BATAAN NURSE'S DIARY: A SAGA OF VAIN HOPES!

Finds Army Hospital a Bedlam After Jap Bombing.

BY LIEUT. RUTH STRAUB, as told to MARCIA WINN.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

It was hope that kept them fighting. Hope that help would come. That was what we lived for. It was hope that kept us all there, for no one thought we could be let down. I know that the boys still at Bataan still are hoping.

O, I was so proud to be a BBB. We all were. You know what that was, of course—Battling Battalions of Bataan. And we really were:

Battling Battalions of Bataan—
No mama, no papa, no Uncle Sam.

There were more than 60 nurses there in jungle hospital. The boys called us the Sisters of Bataan. We liked that. We could have used many, many more nurses, and many, many more doctors, but we had no reserve to rely upon. Neither did we have any reserve in the army at Bataan. There was nothing to draw upon. Every one had to fight all the time. The minute our patients were better they were out of bed and back at the front. They shouldn't have been, of course, but they were. All of them, right up until the end, when there were 6,000 desperately sick and wounded men lying on cots and on the ground there in the jungle.

Opens Diary for First Time.

I didn't keep this diary to be read by any one else. I don't know why I'm reading it to you, for this is the first time I've opened it since we got back to the United States.

The first entry is Dec. 7, but I didn't write it that day. I started on Dec. 28, the day after we got to Corregidor from Manila with our freighter of 300 wounded boys. I thought it would be nice to have a record of the war, and it turned out to be a comfort.

It was a comfort to sit down at the end of the day and write. It was like having a conversation with some one. I used to write in it every night down there in the hospital in the tunnel at Corregidor with that 400 feet of rock overhead with the Japs doing their best to smash that, too, after they blew our beautiful modern hospital on the hill into splinters.

Harder to Write on Bataan.

And I took it with me to Bataan. It was harder to write there because we were always exhausted. The only light was from kerosene lamps painted blue, and bombs kept falling, and iguanas scurried thru the heavy jungle growth beside my bed. But it's good to have something to occupy one's mind when all you see around you is pain and all you hear is the "wheee" of shells and you are always tight with hunger or your head is whirling from quinine.

It is strange, now that I look thru this, that I wrote so little about individual patients. I don't know why. I suppose it was because there were so many, always, and they all needed help so badly.

We hadn't dreamed it would ever be war out there. At least I didn't. Glen had been worried a long time. He kept wanting me to get married so he could send me back to the United States, but I wanted to wait until he could go with me. But I'm ahead of myself. I was thinking of that last Sunday he called me from Clark field.

Meet on Boat.

Glen [Glen M. Alder of Los Angeles] was a lieutenant in the army air force. We came to the Philippines on the same boat and landed in Manila on July 18, 1939. We met the day the boat left San Francisco. We were both second lieutenants and the same age, 24. He was a pilot, but he had gone to the University of California at Los Angeles before joining the air force.

I was at Sternberg army hospital at Manila for two months, then was transferred to Fort Stotsenburg, 60 miles away. It was a beautiful post—all flowers and giant trees with a long, low, one-story wooden hospital. Clark field, where Glen was stationed, was right beside the post.

Not very long before the war broke out I was sent back to Sternberg. Glen would fly over and signal me from his plane. It was a code we had, but it sounded like a plane in distress. I remember one night when the commanding officer at Clark field

NURSE'S PRAYER: TO BE THERE AS PALS ARE FREED

Today THE TRIBUNE begins publication of one of the most valiant documents to come out of the war in the Pacific. It is the diary of Lieut. Ruth Straub of Milwaukee, an army nurse.

Miss Straub, a frail young woman of 27, was at Manila on Dec. 8, when it was bombed by the Japanese, and for 20 days thereafter. She was evacuated to Corregidor and later was assigned to Bataan. She escaped from Bataan the day it fell and for the next three weeks lived and worked in the tunnel hospital cut in the rock of Corregidor. She escaped from Corregidor three days before its surrender.

The diary is being published as it was written—in the terse, strained words of a young nurse writing at night under shellfire and bombing.

At her request these excerpts are dedicated to army nurses still there. Miss Straub hopes to be with the force which some day will relieve them.

In the instalment printed in the adoining column and in succeeding ones, Miss Straub introduces each selection of excerpts by detailing certain background facts.

Alsab Beats Whirlaway in a Movie Finish

It had all the elements of fiction, climaxed by one of the most exciting finishes in American racing history. Here was Whirlaway, owned by a former Chicagoan, Warren Wright, less than $10,000 from a half million dollars in earnings, and king of the handicap horses. Here was Alsab, picked up at the Saratoga yearling sales for $700 by Sabath, winner this year of the Preakness and other important races. Here were two great stretch runners finally brought together after previous efforts to match them had failed.

Alsab Always in Front.

For a mile and a sixteenth they matched strides, Carroll Bierman astride Alsab and Georgie Woolf, on Whirlaway, both yelling to their mounts as they caught the excitement of the 35,000 spectators. And Alsab, always threatened, yet always maintaining a lead, which had melted at the finish so that the human eye could not tell which had won. Whirlaway, two strides past the wire, shot out in front. But the camera showed Alsab had just nosed out his rival at the wire.

Whirlaway, being Alsab's senior by a year, was weighted with 126 pounds, seven more than the Chicago-owned thorobred carried. It was Alsab all the way from two and a half lengths down to the infinitesimal margin he still had when the race was run. Three times Woolf moved Whirlaway to tremendous effort. The first time was as they neared the backstretch, then again as they came pounding around toward the far turn. Each time, Alsab lost some of his margin, but rode out the storm. As they completed the mile, Whirlaway ranged up alongside his foe and the old familiar cry, "here comes Whirlaway," came rolling out of the stands. But Alsab had the speed and stamina to withstand this final challenge.

Whirlaway Made Favorite.

Whirlaway was the betting favorite at 30 cents on the dollar. Alsab was $1.60 to $1 to win, returning $5.20 for each $2 ticket. The time was 1 minute 56 2-5 seconds. From the mile mark to the finish they were timed in 18 seconds—6 seconds for each sixteenth, or 110 yards.

Whirlaway's total turf earnings are $491,136, more than any horse has won in history. Alsab, by picking up $25,000 today, boosted its total winnings to $298,475 for two campaigns.

CHARGE MURDER IN SNAKE DEATH AT CHURCH MEET

Harlan, Ky., Sept. 19 (AP).—Three men were held to the grand jury today on a charge of murder following the death yesterday of James Couch, 30 years old, as a result of rattlesnake bites.

The men are George Washington Hensley, 50, of Harlan and Bradley Shell, 45, and W. B. Creech, 60, both of Pine Mountain.

Coroner Fielding Hensley reported Couch was bitten fatally by rattlesnakes which he handled at a religious meeting at the Little Pine Mountain Church of God at Laurel Branch.

Saves Patrons from Gunman; Dies Himself

A heroic south side grocer who placed the safety of his patrons ahead of his own was shot and killed last night by a lone bandit. The grocer, after first driving his customers outside the store, ran out and locked the robber inside the store. The gunman came out thru the glass firing.

The victim of the shooting was Thomas Papayanis, 47 years old, owner of a large food mart at 2300 East 71st street. He was married and the father of four children.

Flees in Car Driven by Woman.

The robber, about 25 years old and well dressed, escaped in a car said to have been driven by a woman.

He entered Papayanis' 71st street store alone. Five or six customers, two of them women, were also in the store. The bandit was waited upon by Harry Demis, 18, of 7237 Lafayette avenue, a clerk. The pseudo customer ordered a loaf of bread and some sausage. Then he handed Demis a $5 bill.

As Demis handed over the change, the man drew a revolver and announced, "This is a stickup!" Demis yelled. The robber waved his gun threateningly as Papayanis and the customers looked his way.

Pushes Customers to Street.

Then Papayanis advanced. The bandit fled toward a side door and tried to open it. It was locked, but as he struggled with it, Papayanis pushed his customers outside the front door. Then he followed quickly and locked the door from the outside.

Finding himself trapped, the bandit threw a heavy bottle thru the pane of glass in the door. Then he forced his way to the outside.

Papayanis confronted him, the only possible barrier to escape. The customers whom he had chased out were gone. The bandit leveled his revolver and fired three bullets. All struck Papayanis, one in the heart, and he dropped dead.

Mexican Legislators Seek to Send Troops Overseas

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Sept. 19 (AP). A move to send Mexican troops to the active war zones was announced today by a group of radical deputies who said they would ask the chamber of deputies to make the suggestion to President Avila Camacho. The radical deputies said they would ask that an expeditionary force be trained and equipped. They also announced they would seek seizure of all property of axis citizens in Mexico and internment of all axis citizens.

2 BATTLESHIPS BELIEVED HIT BY FLYING FORTS

Cruisers Also Flee Hail of Bombs.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—Army flying fortresses drove a Japanese force of battleships and cruisers away from the American-held sector of the Solomon Islands last Monday with a bombing attack which possibly damaged two of the battleships.

The action was announced by the navy today in a communique which clearly left open the possibility that the powerful Jap fleet may be assembling for a renewal of the efforts to wrest the strategic Guadalcanal-Tulagi area from American hands.

The communique also reported that army bombers had made fresh attacks on Jap installations on Gizo Island and at Rekata bay—bases which the enemy presumably uses for offensive operations against Guadalcanal.

While land activity in the Solomons slowed to minor skirmishes and sniping, the big army bombers discovered the Japanese battle force prowling northeastward of Tulagi and roared in to the attack.

Meet Anti-Aircraft Fire.

"Heavy anti-aircraft fire was encountered," the navy said, "but possible hits on two battleships were reported. When last seen, this force was retiring to the north."

There was no evidence to show the exact intentions of the enemy admirals in having such an armada in this area. Since their ships apparently lacked aircraft protection, they may have been maneuvering to join a force of aircraft carriers and transports for an onslaught against the Solomons.

It was from the northeast that the Japanese made their last large scale naval move against the American-held areas of the Solomons on Aug. 25. Both army and navy air and sea forces met that thrust and the Japs precipitately withdrew.

Marines Reënforced.

The main Japanese sea units in the area at that time appeared to have been screening operations of lighter units, accompanying transports, which struck more directly at Guadalcanal from the north and were repulsed.

The enemy made a major effort last week end to drive the marines from their positions guarding the American airfield on Guadalcanal. The battleship-cruiser force may have been on a wide screening sweep to cover unsuccessful attacks, which reached its full fury the night of Sept. 13-14 only a few hours before the flying fortresses made contact with the enemy.

Land fighting on Guadalcanal, where the enemy objective is recapture of the airfield, has lulled since Sunday night, the navy said, being confined to minor patrol activity, sniping and occasional skirmishes between small enemy units and U. S. marines.

"Supplies and reënforcements have reached our forces," the communique said.

NEW LEXINGTON TO BE LAUNCHED ONE YEAR EARLY

Washington, Sept. 19 (AP).—The new aircraft carried Lexington, replacing the one which was sunk last May in the battle of the Coral sea, will be launched next Saturday, one year ahead of schedule, the navy announced today.

The Lexington will be the second carrier launched since Pearl Harbor. The Essex, prototype of a new class to which the Lexington belongs, entered the water at Newport News, Va., July 31. It will be some months, however, before these two new "flattops" will be ready to join the fleet.

His mother, Mrs. Edith Shelldrake, who has just arrived from Singapore with her husband, was aboard the United States army transport West Point en route to Colombo, Ceylon, when Westpoint was born Feb. 4.

SERB PATRIOTS FIGHT JUGO-SLAV REDS, TURKS TOLD

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ANKARA, Turkey, Sept. 19.—Serbian guerrillas are now fighting Communist elements who refuse to accept Gen. Draja Mihailovitch's orders, as well as those of the Nazis and Italians, according to latest Jugo-Slav reports from across the border.

The number of Communist troops is estimated at only 10,000 or 12,000, while Mihailovitch's total force is about 80,000. As a result the danger of real trouble is not considered serious.

The axis has been trying to capitalize on the friction, using broadcasts from a station calling itself "Free Jugo-Slavia," believed to be operating in Italy.

Serbs Tie Up 17 Divisions.

Jugo-Slav sources say that 17 enemy divisions, four of which are German, still are tied up in Jugo-Slavia by the determined resistance of Gen. Mihailovitch. The Chetniks recently have gotten nearly 100 tons of automatic arms, grenades, ammunition, and medical supplies by means that cannot be revealed and have made good use of them. Last month they fought four battles with axis troops at Banjaluka, Prozor, and near Sarajevo and Tuzla.

The Jugo-Slavs who now are carrying on the fight, 17 months after the conquest of their country, know that they are not strong enough to expel the enemy, but they give valuable aid in tying up troops and preventing the enemy from exploiting the country profitably for the war effort.

Most of them are armed only with rifles, grenades and a few machine guns but there are some heavier weapons. The Italians astonishingly make deals with the guerrillas, exchanging arms, ammunition, and gasoline for the release of captured Italians.

Loyal to Their Oath.

The Jugo-Slavs captured by the axis are desperately short of provisions and clothing but do not waver in morale.

I saw a letter which, despite the German censors, said bluntly:

"We are all faithful to our oath and to the ideals that brought the coup d'état" [when the Jugo-Slavs rebelled against the government's sellout to the axis].

Over 300,000 Jugo-Slav prisoners held by the axis now are in dire need of food and clothing, but the difficulty is in getting supplies to them. The number of parcels from Turkey is limited to 1,320 a month to prevent mass shipments that might create shortages here. Thousands of packages from America are delayed because war material must have priority on shipping space.

Finally, there is the problem of pilfering by the Germans. One letter said, "Thanks for the packages. Many things were missing from the food packages which had been opened, but, thank God, they didn't open the one containing the shoes."

The Jugo-Slavs say that 1,500 pairs of shoes were shipped four months ago and that all were seized for the German army in violation of international agreements.

ONLY 5 INCHES OF BATH WATER FOR KING GEORGE

LONDON, Sept. 20 [Sunday] (AP).—King George and everybody else at Buckingham palace and Windsor castle will bathe in no more than five inches of water from now on. It is part of Britain's fuel conservation plan.

The monarch ordered every bath tub in the royal households painted with a black or red line at the five inch level and a notice posted calling attention to the necessity for fuel economy, the British press association disclosed today.

The king directed that not more than one small bulb shall be lighted in a bathroom or bedroom and that all additional bulbs be removed. There are to be no fires in any bedroom except on physicians' orders. Fuel economy measures also have been introduced in kitchens.

Nazis Kill Husband of Princess Juliana's Friend

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 19.—[Canadian Press].—Baroness Roell, friend of Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, who has been living with the princess here, has received word that her husband was shot by the Germans three weeks ago. Baron Willem Roell, 37, stayed behind in May, 1940, when the Nazis invaded his country.

REDS HIT BACK IN STALINGRAD; REWIN STREETS

Nazis Regroup Army for New Smash.

MOSCOW, Sept. 20 [Sunday]—(AP).—Surging back with renewed vigor, Russian soldiers fighting for the very life of Stalingrad drove the Nazis out of several streets within the city yesterday and "wiped out" about a company of German riflemen, the soviets announced officially today.

Field Marshal Ewald von Kleist.

The soviet triumph in fierce fighting on the bloodstained pavements of the city of Stalin was reported as the Germans pressed anew to the assault after regrouping their forces.

Thus the battle for Stalingrad went into its 27th day with the Russian flag still flying over the city Adolf Hitler has ordered taken at any cost.

Nazis Reform Ranks.

Unable to engulf the city with their first rushes from the outskirts, the Germans formed again yesterday for greater assaults and maintained continuous attacks in the streets.

German tanks were participating in the street fighting, the soviet high command disclosed in announcing that 20 tanks were thrown into the battle in one part of the city in an attempt to assist a surrounded company. Eight of the tanks were burned out by anti-tank guns, grenades and incendiary bottles, it was said.

[The German news agency Transocean reported from the Stalingrad front that German troops had entered a harbor district of the city after fighting their way thru the streets with flame throwers. The whole district was nothing but a pile of ruins, the report said.]

The German drive in the Mozdok area of the Caucasus toward the Grozny oil fields also appeared to be increasing in intensity. The communique mentioned "a number of enemy counterattacks" but said all had been repelled. In this fighting, the Russians said, German Field Marshal Ewald von Kleist, 61 year old commander of the first tank army, was killed. Von Kleist fought most of the German-Russian war in the Ukraine, the Don, and Donetz areas and in the Caucasus.

Destroy Two Companies.

To the east of Mozdok, the communique said, one soviet unit wiped out two companies of enemy infantry, and artillery with the assistance of tank busters put out of action five German tanks.

Earlier reports said two new German divisions—the 13th tank and 111th infantry—had arrived in this sector and entered the battle. On the first charge they were said by front dispatches to have advanced a mile and a half and on another charge gained another eight miles. They were reported, however, to have lost 40 tanks.

The Russians then counterattacked and the Germans staggered back, leaving 25 more tanks. Front reports said the Russians followed up the first attack with others, which ended in a "considerable defeat" for the Germans.

Russians on Offensive.

Red Star, the army newspaper, said fighting was in progress southwest of Mozdok, with the Russians on the offensive.

In the Voronezh area, 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad, two regiments of German infantry, supported by tanks, launched eight attacks, the communique said, but all were repulsed. The Germans lost ten tanks and two battalions were "annihilated."

Russian dispatches from the Stalingrad front said German tommy gunners in Red army uniforms and tanks disguised as soviet machines failed in a five-hour battle to take an important height which controls the heart of the city and the Volga river banks.

Night became garish day from the constant flash of cannon, the thousands of aerial flares, and the flames from incendiary bombs and burning buildings.

COASTAL AREAS ARE CLEARED BY ENGLAND, NAZIS

Hint Germans Fear Raid on Belgian Shore.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Following parallel moves by Britain and Germany in clearing civilians from coastal regions today, royal air force bombers pounded the coast of northern France tonight. Terrific explosions shook English towns across the channel. The assault came after the British had ordered civilians from an area facing the North sea, while the Germans were reported evacuating Belgian families from Ostend.

The evacuation orders followed an overnight shift in RAF operations from bombing to extensive mine laying in Nazi coastal areas.

Circulation of the Ostend report coincided with suggestions among British military critics that the Dieppe Commando raid last month was not on a large enough scale for an adequate test of German defenses.

Second English Region Cleared.

A British war office announcement said all inhabitants would be taken from a "considerable area" staked out for military purposes in the east Riding district of Yorkshire, which is opposite the German naval stronghold in Helgoland bight [bay].

Several weeks ago a part of East Anglia facing the Netherlands and Belgium had been cleared of civilians and declared military area.

No explanation was given in either case beyond the necessity of military purposes. Both areas, however, are a natural jumping off point for European invasion.

The Belgian news agency report telling of the removal from Ostend, just above Dover strait which links the English channel and the North sea, said some families had been given only three hours to prepare for departure.

Report Sabotage Increases.

The Ostend report suggested the Germans were preparing against another raid such as that of Aug. 19 on Dieppe, in occupied France, and added:

"Coastal sabotage has increased. Numerous mysterious fires have broken out near German airfields in west Flanders."

A Nazi bomber was reported shot down over England today and later it was reported that other Nazi bombers had crossed the northeast coast and dropped incendiaries near an inland town.

[Air raid alarms were sounded last midnight in Berne, Zurich, and Basel, Switzerland, it was reported in London early today.]

CANADIANS LIST 6,300 CASUALTIES SINCE WAR BEGAN

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 19 (AP).—Canadian army casualties now total about 6,300 killed, wounded, missing, and prisoners since the outbreak of war, national defense headquarters announced today.

It said there were 2,000 casualties in the Canadian force at Hongkong, about 1,000 others in other theaters, chiefly in the United Kingdom, and more than 3,350 at Dieppe.

Six soldiers previously reported killed in the Dieppe raid now are reported alive, five of them as war prisoners. Two previously reported missing are safe, the 158th army casualty list of the war showed. Forty-four previously reported missing are known now to be prisoners.

DIES OF HEART AILMENT.

Alois Kraus, 76 years old, 1924 Burley avenue, died Friday night in his home. His death was attributed to heart disease.

New Activity on the Channel Front

The English channel area, where new military activity has taken place. British civilians were being evacuated from areas in the East Riding district of Yorkshire (1), and London heard that Germans were evacuating Belgians from Ostend (2), which military experts regard as a good point for an invasion of the continent. Meanwhile, the British laid a new mine field along the German-held coast.

F. D. R., CHURCHILL DEBATE BY PHONE —OVER A PHRASE!

Differ Over Promise of Second Front.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Sept. 19. — President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill held a debate in June over the tran-Atlantic telephone regarding use of the English language, it was revealed today.

At issue was a phrase in a communique issued simultaneously from Washington and London announcing the signing of the Anglo-Russian treaty, saying agreement had been reached on the urgency of the task of opening a second front in Europe in 1942.

Churchill Calls Up.

It had been decided that the language should be identical. But the phrase was coined in the United States, and Churchill apparently thought there was a better way of saying it. He telephoned the White House suggesting a more felicitous phrase and, it is said, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden sided with him.

Fears "Too Many Interpretations."

Just what the prime minister did not like about Mr. Roosevelt's choice of words has not been revealed, but the best guess is that he felt part of the statement was susceptible to too many interpretations.

Proponents of immediate opening of a second front read in it the promise of an invasion this summer, while more conservative ones analyzed it as possibly meaning that the Russians had been convinced that the task was too great.

The latter interpretation has been proved wrong by expressions of disappointment emanating from Moscow because the allied armies have not yet landed in France.

WHAT STATEMENT SAID.

It was presumed that the long distance debate had reference to the following paragraph from a White House statement issued on June 11:

"In the course of the conversations, full understanding was reached with regard to the urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in 1942. In addition, the measures for increasing and speeding up the supplies of planes, tanks and other kinds of war materials from the United States to the soviet union were discussed."

NAZI ACE DECORATED.

DUTCH TOLD TO HELP DEVELOP NAZI LANDS IN EUROPE—OR ELSE

LONDON, Sept. 19 (AP).—Dutch industries and farmers were told tonight they must coöperate with the Nazis in the plan to colonize and develop Germany's conquests in eastern Europe, Aneta, the Netherlands news agency, reported.

The agency said Rost van Tonningen, head of the Netherlands East company, the Nazi-sponsored organization which is to carry out the settlement and development scheme, broadcast over the German controled Hilversum radio that if the Dutch do not respond to the call, "the Germans will doubtless intervene by other means in order to further interests of the European community."

Van Tonningen said there were two eastern territories involved in the project: "Eastland," comprising Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, and White Ruthenia, and the Ukraine. Two kinds of collaboration were expected, he said. One was provision of labor, the other, provision of entire firms.

JAPAN RECALLS ENVOY IN RUSSIA, BERLIN REPORTS

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The German radio broadcast today a Tokio dispatch saying that the first secretary of the Japanese embassy at Kuibyshev, Russia, had been recalled for consultation. The dispatch, by Transocean news service, said that the diplomat, Funao Miyakawa, probably would leave the Russian provisional capital on Sept. 25.

Miyakawa was a specialist assigned by Tokio to represent Japanese interests in a long series of negotiations relating to incidents along the Manchurian-Japanese border.

The Russians protested to him when a soviet gunboat was sunk in a clash with Japanese forces on the Amur river in June, 1937.

Miyakawa delivered another formal protest in March, 1938, on the activities of Russian troops in Siberia and in September, 1938, conducted negotiations with the Russian foreign office after a Russian-Japanese clash at Suifenho, 250 miles north of Changkufeng on the Siberian-Corean-Manchurian border where fighting occurred at about the same time.

DIEPPE, TOBRUK LOSSES JOLT 2D FRONT AGITATORS

Experts Urge Caution in Planning Invasion.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—Agitation of amateur strategists for the immediate opening of a second front in Europe to relieve German pressure on Russia was given a severe setback during the last week by reports of the heavy losses suffered by allied forces in men and weapons in the recent large scale raids on Dieppe and Tobruk.

At the German held channel port of Dieppe, Canada paid the very heavy price of 67 per cent of her attacking force killed, wounded, or missing. Of 5,000 Canadian troops employed in the raid—which had little, if any, strategic importance, according to military experts—3,350 were casualties. This total included 170 dead, 163 wounded, and 2,547 missing.

Two Destroyers Lost.

At the Libyan port of Tobruk, which the axis forces recaptured from British troops a short time ago, the British acknowledged the loss of two destroyers. No figures have been given on casualties suffered by the troops engaged, but the losses are presumed to have been considerable.

In military circles it was said that uninformed persons, who are demanding immediate land and sea invasion of western Europe, would profit by a study of these two operations. Such an attempt at present, it was emphasized, would result in terrific loss of life and equipment and run a high risk of failure without bringing any measurable relief to the embattled Red army.

Dieppe Raid Misrepresented.

At the time of the Commando raid on Dieppe, British officials gave a glowing account of the operation, which was seized upon by those clamoring for an immediate second front as demonstrating that an immediate second front is feasible. More level headed persons were misled by the first reports of the raid and believed that the next raid might be even larger and that a progression of raids would continue until a full fledged invasion would be the natural outcome of the Commando operations.

Military experts were more skeptical. They looked on the Dieppe raid as nothing more than an experiment and were fearful, as subsequent developments showed, that the price was too heavy for the lessons learned and the advantages gained, if any.

Must Have Air Mastery.

The losses suffered supported the contention of those military experts who maintain that any invasion is doomed to failure until the allies have clear mastery of the air over the entire theater of operations, which may be gained in 1943 or possibly in 1944 at the earliest.

Another stumbling block in the path of invasion is the lack of sufficient shipping, made more acute by the heavy toll of the Nazi U-boat campaign in American waters.

Military experts estimate that 17 tons of shipping are necessary to transport a soldier 3,000 miles, and that 3.4 tons are necessary to maintain him abroad. On this basis, experts estimate it would take 17,000,000 tons of shipping—or almost 3,000 ships of 6,000 tons each—to transport an expeditionary force of 1,000,000 men and 3,400,000 tons of shipping, or more than 800 ships, to keep supplies moving to such a force.

AEF of 4 Million Men.

Experts do not believe that an army of 1 million men would be large enough to establish and extend a second front. It is estimated that between 2 and 4 million American troops will compose the American section of the allied invasion army alone. At present the country does not have anywhere near the number of ships necessary to transport this force, and experts are agreed that the merchant marine cannot meet the task unless the submarine menace is halted and ship construction is stepped up to provide the needed vessels.

'IMPORTANT' GERMAN SPY CAPTURED IN CUBA GETS DEATH SENTENCE

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 19 (AP).—A special tribunal today sentenced Heinz August Luning to death by firing squad as a German spy. The 31 year old Luning was seized early this month by Cuban police who described him as "one of the most important spies yet captured in America." At that time Maj. Gen. Manuel Benitez, chief of the Cuban national police, said he had made a complete confession of widespread espionage. Among other things, he was said to have confessed sending by short wave radio and by code letter information on arrival and departure of allied and neutral ships in Cuban harbors.

Heinz Luning.

Luning was identified as a native of Bremen who was an export and import merchant at Hamburg before coming to Cuba on Sept. 29, 1941. The court did not set a date for Luning's execution. It was understood that the decision would be reviewed by the Supreme court and then by President Fulgencio Batista.

BOMBER CRASHES IN LANDING; 3 FLYERS KILLED

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—The Columbia army air base announced that three men were killed today in the crash of a medium bomber on the field. Base officials reported the plane was coming in from a routine flight. The victims were Lieut. Thomas M. Macteer, Quincy, Mass.; Staff Sergt. Alex W. Kaiser, Buchanan, N. D., and Staff Sergt. Peter P. Conrad, Philadelphia, Pa.

Seven Saved, One Missing.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 19 (AP).—Seven army flyers were rescued by the coast guard today after a medium bombing plane crashed into San Francisco bay, near Treasure Island. One member of the eight man crew was missing.

At nearby Hamilton field it was said the plane was "on a routine training flight." Names of those aboard were withheld.

Pursuit Pilot Killed.

Middletown, N. J., Sept. 19 (AP).—Staff Sergt. Samuel Porter Brodshow Jr. of Nashville, Tenn., the pilot, was killed late today when an army fighter plane crashed in flames near the estate of J. Wright Brown, president of Editor & Publisher, newspaper trade magazine. The plane landed in a bush cluttered field near the Navesink river, half a mile east of state highway No. 35, and about three miles south of Red Bank.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

Frank Gangan, 48, of 6738 South Sangamon street, a watchman in the Chrysler corporation plant, died of a heart attack in Holy Cross hospital yesterday.

RUSSIAN GIANT 'V' OF INDUSTRY FAR FROM NAZI GRASP

Hitler Has Only 2 of 20 Vital Areas.

New York, Sept. 19 [Wide World]. —If Hitler gets Stalingrad he will have taken only three of Russia's 20 important industrial areas. And two of the three rate as comparatively small.

In mileage to the remaining areas the job looks even grimmer than the road over which his troops have come—the road which has taken 14 months. This information comes from maps and records of Russian War Relief, Inc., and its president, Edward C. Carter, a native of New England.

It is true that 77,000,000 persons lived in the areas Hitler has taken, and that number is more than one-third the entire Russian population. But Russian reports indicate that 37,000,000 of these, largely working and fighting men, escaped to swell the man power still out of Hitler's reach.

Of the 20 original industrial areas, five are 200 miles or more in diameter, and 15 are comparatively minor, that is, centering around a single city.

One Major Area Taken.

Hitler has taken only one major area, Karkhov-Rostov, its capture completed this summer. He has one minor area, Kiev, taken last summer.

Remaining to the Russians are four major and 13 [not including Stalingrad] minor areas. The majors are Moscow, and, 750 miles to the east, across the Urals, three more huge districts which form a giant V, its two arms stretching eastward away from Hitler, respectively about 800 and 1,000 miles.

The German on the banks of the Volga at Stalingrad stands at the farthest point eastward of Hitler's penetration of industrial areas. In front of him there stretches, as wide as the United States, most of the rest of Russia's war industry. Imagine Stalingrad in the position of Baltimore, and have the German travel northwest instead of northeast as he is doing at Stalingrad.

Saratov Area the Nearest.

At about the distance of Pittsburgh he would find a virtual Russian Pittsburgh area. Nearest would be Saratov, about as far as Altoona, Pa., from Baltimore. Then would come Kuibyshev, the provisional capital, which is also an industrial center, and lies about as far as Pittsburgh from Baltimore. Beyond, into Ohio on this scale, the German would come to another minor area, Chkalov. And far north, equivalent to about Ottawa, Can., he would find another one, Kirov.

Next he would run into Stalin's Chicago, the biggest of all the Russian industrial areas and the master key of the whole plan, built from the ground up over the last 20 years or more. This is Sverdlovsk, about 500 miles in diameter. Its center is 750 miles east of Moscow, at the apex of the industrial V. Here are steel, iron, coal, nonferrous metals, planes, shells, chemicals, and explosives. It is known that somewhere in or near this region the Russians have eight or nine new synthetic rubber plants.

Tashkent 1,000 Miles Away.

From there the German soldier would have to travel 1,000 miles, like going to Texas, to the next major area, Tashkent. From Stalingrad directly southeast to Tashkent it is also 1,000 miles.

From the Russian Chicago to the fifth major area would be like going from the Windy City to Denver. The area is Novosibirsk. En route, by a couple of 400 to 500 mile detours, the German could attack two more minor areas, Kounrad and Zachita. Beyond Novosibirsk, at about the distances of Hollywood and San Francisco, he would find two more, Kirkutsk and Uean Ude.

Over on the Pacific ocean side are three more industrial areas, self-sufficient even to agriculture, namely Komsomolosk, with a population of 15,000, and Khabarovsk and Vladivostok.

Completing the 20 are Moscow, Leningrad, and Murmansk. The two latter rate as minor areas.

Sees Long Fight Ahead.

Carter, who has visited Russia seven times, says it will take a lot of fighting yet before the Germans can close a southern supply route to Russia. The route would be the Caspian sea, and its two major northern ports, Astrakhan and Guriev. The former is about 250 miles from Stalingrad, the latter about 400. South Caspian receiving ports are Baku, which the Germans might take, and more than 100 miles across the sea, Krasnovodsk, which they apparently cannot take any time soon. The latter is a rail head. The northern Caspian is frozen from December to April.

The Urals, reputed ramparts for Russia's new war production, might not be too difficult to penetrate, Carter says. They are 4,000 to 5,000 feet high, their slopes gradual.

Soldiers Get Rousing Welcome

Corp. Herbert M. Ullrich is welcomed home by his mother, Mrs. Albert O. Ullrich; his father; his neice, Kathleen Roney, 2 years old, and his sister, Mrs. Ruth Roney (left to right).

Kiss Has to Wait

Fifty soldiers of Chicago's own 202d coast artillery, who left here Sept. 9, 1940, were given a rousing reception by relatives and friends yesterday when they returned home on 10 day furloughs from a west coast military zone. None received a more tumultuous welcome than Corp. Herbert Ullrich, 5825 North Austin avenue, who was met by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Albert O. Ullrich; his sister, Mrs. Ruth Roney, and Mrs. Roney's 2 year old daughter, Kathleen. But Kathleen, who has been kissing the soldier's photograph daily, didn't recognize her uncle and turned down his demand for a kiss—until they became acquainted again.

1,300,000 NAZIS DIE IN SOUTHERN PUSH, REDS CLAIM

MOSCOW, Sept. 19 (AP).—A Communist party announcement today stated that German casualties in the drive in south Russia alone have reached 1,300,000 killed.

The statement did not specify what period of time or what area of Russian was covered. In comparison with previous Russian tabulations of axis casualties, the new Moscow figure would appear high if it were for the action of this summer only, despite its intensity.

The last previous Russian report on German casualties, on Aug. 18, listed German casualties at 1,250,000 in three months, 480,000 of them killed, against Russian dead, wounded, and missing totaling 606,000.

Willkie Guest of Chinese Ambassador in Kuibyshev

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Sept. 19 (AP). —Wendell L. Willkie was the guest of Chinese ambassador Shao Li-Tze at a dinner at the Grand hotel last night. Willkie later attended a presentation of the ballet "Swan Lake" as the guest of S. A. Lozovsky, soviet vice-commissar of foreign affairs.

QUISLING REGIME TOTTERS; NORSE BALK AT 'PEACE'

7 Executed in Reich as Unrest Grows.

LONDON, Sept. 19 (AP).—The executions of seven more Germans who resisted Nazi tyranny and of the man who signaled the start of the recent general strike in Luxembourg were reported from the continent today, while in Norway patriot resistance to the Germans threatened the puppet régime of Maj. Vidkun Quisling, the arch traitor.

The Norwegian government in London said Quisling had abandoned his plan for a corporate parliament "which would have concluded peace with Germany and mobilized Norwegian youth to fight against Norway's allies."

Patriots Hear of Plan.

The immediate cause of Quisling's move, the government said, was mass resignation from industrial trade unions and professional organizations after Quisling decreed Sept. 10 that membership in those bodies should become compulsory.

A government source said Norwegian patriots had heard of the plan for the corporative parliament before the unionization decree was issued. Leaders of 350,000 trade unionists circulated the resignation idea thru their underground press. Employers joined in the plan and tens of thousands of resignations poured into the offices of the Trade Union confederation and the Federation of Norwegian Industries.

The source said reliable reports showed that Reichscommissioner Terboven was aspiring "to overthrow Quisling and assume the rank of a sort of viceroy." He added that widespread dissatisfaction has been caused among Quisling's followers by conscription decrees which, it has been estimated, would affect at least half the men among the Norwegian Nazis.

The execution of the seven Germans and of the Luxembourg patriot, Heinrich Adam, brought to 163 the number of deaths reported in the last two days, including 116 in Paris.

Adam had set off the factory siren blast which signaled the strike in protest against the incorporation of the country into the reich.

The seven Germans, six of them residents of Frankfurt, were put to death Sept. 17 for high treason and preparing to commit treason.

Germans Regroup Army for New Smash.

of bombs. The planes flew low, sirens howling, to swell the pandemonium.

[The German high command said "fighting for Stalingrad is being successfully continued in face of stubborn enemy resistance." It also said a local relief attack by strong Russian forces from the north against a German "cutting off position" had collapsed with severe soviet losses, including 100 tanks.]

Give Up No More Ground.

Probably no battlefield in past wars has appeared as such an area of continuous movement and endless maneuvers of major forces.

At one place after German dive bombers had attacked a line of buildings the Russians were forced to retire in the face of a charge by two regiments of infantry and 100 tanks. But they quickly regrouped and took positions around the ruined buildings.

With the same violence the Germans assaulted the hill commanding the center of the city and protecting important crossings.

First the German airforce dropped several hundred bombs in 40 to 45 minutes. Then 50 German tanks rumbled toward the hill, firing as they came. Swarms of Nazi tommy gunners then moved in.

A furious and at times confusing battle developed. In the first phase, the Russians gave way, abandoning some positions around the hill. Then they struggled to the offensive, and ejected the Germans.

Fight to Last Bullet.

In isolated sectors, the army organ Red Star said, small Russian units became surrounded and fought to the last bullet. One sergeant stayed in a trench as a German tank rolled over him, blowing up the tank in his last moment.

The Moscow radio said that the Black sea air force had attacked an enemy port, sinking two minesweepers, three torpedo boats, and a large barge and blowing up an ammunition dump. The port was not named.

Reds Attack Finnish Lines.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Sept. 19 (AP).—The Russians continued to exert heavy pressure against Finnish lines north of Lake Onega yesterday, the Finnish command reported today.

OPA RULES: BURN COAL IF YOU CAN; YOU'LL GET NO OIL

All Buildings Must Convert if Possible.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—The government today ruled that apartment houses and commercial and industrial establishments failing to convert to coal heat when possible will get no fuel oil rations—basic or supplemental.

The Office of Price Administration previously had ruled that householders who failed to convert when possible would get no supplemental rations, altho they would have a basic ration. The rulings apply only to rationed areas.

Paul M. O'Leary, deputy OPA administrator in charge of rationing, said the "desperateness of the fuel oil situation" demands that all large users, including apartments, office buildings and manufacturing plants, convert oil burners wherever possible. The government, he asserted, has cleared the way for conversions and arranged for priorities on necessary materials.

Heat for 20 Homes.

"We might remember that the oil saved from one large building that converts is enough to heat a score or more of homes all winter," said O'Leary.

When registering for rations, commercial, industrial, and institutional establishments will be required to report on the convertibility of their oil furnaces. Rationing boards, which will have the advice of heating experts, then will determine what establishments shall be denied rations.

O'Leary said that no rations will be allowed to any applicant, whether for a private home or large manufacturing plant, if a new oil burner or equipment for conversion to fuel oil has been installed since June 1, 1942.

Hospitals Exempted.

Rations for large buildings that cannot convert to coal will be based on a percentage of last year's consumption, with adjustments. In most cases, O'Leary said, the curtailment will be at least as great as that in private homes, but exceptions will be made for hospitals.

OPA has announced that the rationing program in a 30 state area is intended to reduce consumption by about 25 per cent. Domestic users will be allowed sufficient fuel oil to maintain day temperatures of 65 degrees under average weather conditions, with adjustments to be made in case of sickness or other similar factors.

Chicagoland Figures.

Illinois has 162,495 homes heated by fuel oil, according to 1940 census figures. This is 7.6 per cent of the state's residences. In Indiana, 2.2 per cent of the homes are heated by oil; in Iowa, 8.9 per cent; Michigan, 6.7 per cent; Wisconsin, 9.5 per cent.

New York state leads the rationed area in the number of homes using oil heat, with 652,820, or 18.6 per cent. Rhode Island leads in the percentage of homes thus heated—45.8 per cent, for a total of 84,986.

AVIATION GUNNER, HIT 125 TIMES BY SHRAPNEL, HOME

Chicagoan Tells Rescue of Nine from Sea.

A story of how nine men aboard a navy P-B-Y flying patrol boat saved themselves and their craft after it had been shot down by enemy anti-aircraft gunners in the sea east of Iceland was told yesterday by a young Chicagoan who came home with 125 shrapnel wounds in his back.

He is Clifford R. Youmans, 22 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard C. Youmans, 5109 Kimbark avenue, and aviation machinist's mate, second class, aboard the patrol boat. Youmans said he and three companions, two also wounded, spent three hours adrift on a bullet-riddled life raft before they were rescued by natives.

Plane Runs Into Fog.

Youmans, who enlisted in 1938 following graduation from Tilden Technical High school, said the boat, on a patrol flight June 20, ran into fog about 1 p. m. To get a glimpse of the surface the pilot flew the plane down to about 300 feet above the sea.

Anti-aircraft and machine gun fire from an enemy war vessel which was not seen by the crew, struck the ship. One shell, Youmans said, burst in the cabin near the machine gun he was manning and fragments of it wounded him and six of his fellow crewmen. The detonation discharged ammunition in the magazine of his gun, he said.

Made Crash Landing.

Other shells crippled the starboard motor and passed thru a depth charge aboard the flying boat, but without exploding it, Youmans said. For a time the pilot managed to keep the boat in the air. Finally, he had to make a crash landing.

Youmans and six members of the crew were ordered to take to life rafts when the patrol boat was about two miles off shore. He said the raft he and his three companions selected was punctured by bullets. They were unable to navigate it toward shore, tho it was still buoyant enough to keep them afloat.

Three men on the other raft reached shore safely just as a rescue plane appeared overhead, Youmans said. Another raft was dropped by the rescue plane and the marksmanship of the rescuers was so unerring, Youmans said, that this raft struck one of his companions on the head. The companion was William B. C. Smith, known as "Alphabet" Smith, who had come thru the battle [up to this point] unscathed. The blow caused slight injuries, Youman said.

Youmans said they encountered further difficulty because the raft from the rescue ship had landed bottom side up and they were unable to reverse it. They left the bullet ridden raft and climbed aboard the raft dropped by the plane crew. Natives put out in a boat from shore and rescued them.

The pilot of the damaged plane was able to start one of the plane's motors and taxied it to shore.

Youmans, an expert swimmer who several years ago was awarded a coast guard life saving medal for his rescue of one of two children from the lake, said he spent the next six weeks in a hospital in Iceland. Twenty-five shell fragments were removed from his body.

Dashiell Hammett, Author, Enlists in Army as Private

Camp Upton, N. Y., Sept. 19 (AP).—Dashiell Hammett, 48 years old, a mystery story writer, enlisted in the army today as Pvt. Samuel D. Hammett—his full name. The author, whose home is in Pleasantville, N. Y., was a sergeant in the medical corps in the World war.

GENERAL LAUDS PERFORMANCE OF "THUNDERBOLT"

Somewhere in Indiana, Sept. 19 (AP).—Brig. Gen. A. W. Vanaman of the army air force praised the P-47 Thunderbolt plane produced at the Republic Aviation corporation's Indiana plant as the craft was tested today.

Gen. Vanaman, addressing the workers, praised the plane as a fighter and commended the spirit and industry which produced it three months ahead of schedule.

Ralph S. Damon, plant president, said ground was broken in April after contracts had been signed in March. The plant is the largest of Republic's units.

The first P-47 fighters will be delivered to the army before finishing touches are completed on the plant itself, Damon said.

KAISER SEEKING 20,000 WORKERS FOR SHIPYARDS

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The New York office of the United States Employment service announced today that representatives of Henry J. Kaiser, west coast shipbuilder, are seeking about 20,000 workers from the city's pool of unemployed for work in Kaiser's plants in the west.

Two personnel officers of the Kaiser company have been consulting a number of government officials in New York, it was said, but numerous technical details remain to be worked out before workers can be engaged and sent to west coast plants.

Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, regional director of the War Man Power commission, estimated yesterday that 370,000 nonworkers are in the city. Government officials said many of those sought are unskilled laborers.

In times of War as in days of Peace, music inspires. The Trumpet, which only yesterday gayly led the dance, today sounds the martial "Call to Arms" . . . School Band Drums march off the football field and now their distant ruffle may be heard across the fields of battle . . . The Hammond Organ brings spiritual uplift to thousands in Service chapels . . . and the men in uniform may gather 'round the Army Steinway for a song of home.

On the Home Front, Music will continue to furnish inspiration—to bring peace and respite to a war-ridden world. Lyon & Healy now, as in the troubled days of 1917, of 1898 and of 1864, has the Music that your home is so in need of today.

SERVICE JOURNAL EXPECTS SEIZURE OF FRENCH PORTS

Dakar Termed 'Key' in Axis War Against Brazil.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—Discussion of the possible allied seizure of the French African port of Dakar has been revived by the continuing friction between the United States and the Vichy government of unoccupied France.

The quasiofficial Army and Navy Journal today predicted that the United States and Britain not only may seize Dakar, but may take over French possessions in the Caribbean—Martinique and Guadeloupe Islands.

Events may compel the United States to coöperate with the British in seizing the African port, as a logical sequel to the British operations at Madagascar, the Journal said. Dakar, long considered a key strategic position on the east coast of Africa, has increased in importance since the entrance of Brazil into the war on the side of the allies.

U-Boat Hunting Grounds.

"The danger zone for united nations shipping has been and is the waters lying between Portuguese East Africa, the islands which divide the Mozambique channel into numerous sea lanes, and Madagascar," the Journal said. "The Mozambique channel at one point narrows to 200 miles, and has been the successful hunting ground for axis and Japanese subs. In order to curb such activities, the British government in May occupied the naval base at Diego Suarez, but instead of pressing forward, militarily, it attempted appeasement, and this method only resulted in greater strengthening of the Vichy forces and delivery of munitions to them by axis submarines.

"Further, this policy resulted in more sinkings in the Mozambique channel, which created the suspicion that Madagascar harbors are being used as submarine bases.

Supplied by Small Boats.

"In all likelihood dhows are supplying the subs with food, water, and Diesel oil, probably at points in the reefy island archipelagoes which lie along the channel.

"Vichy is apprehensive that the United States will seize the French Caribbean territories and they have reason for their fear. The negotiations instituted with the governor general of those territories have not been concluded and there is no doubt that prolonged delay in meeting our demands would cause us to act.

"There also is the matter of Dakar, which is in the German mind, and events may compel us to coöperate with the British in seizing that base, the more important now because Brazil is at war and it might serve as a jumping off place for planes operating against our South American ally.

Axis Recognizes Threat.

"The significance of the presence of United States troops in Africa is fully appreciated by Berlin and Rome, for it is proof that we will not hesitate to take any strategic area which would be dangerous to our safety."

Discussing our relations with the Vichy government, the publication said that the United States is talking "tough" and implementing words with deeds.

"In the matter of action, our Flying Fortresses will continue to bomb factories in France which are turning out war materials for the axis, and Vichy protests and demands that such measures cease are being disregarded," it continued.

BRITISH TAKE 2D EAST COAST PORT IN MADAGASCAR

LONDON, Sept. 19 (AP).—Mobile British troops have occupied Brickaville, on the east coast of Madagascar, 100 miles due east of Tananarive, the capital, the Vichy radio said tonight. The troops, the radio said, were landed at Tamatave yesterday.

The landing at Tamatave, the island's chief commercial port, 70 miles northeast of Brickaville, was the first the British had made on the east coast following their original west coast landings 10 days ago.

A British communique in East Africa, reported that continued progress was being made by columns moving up in Tananarive from Majunga on the northwest. A British commentator said one British column advancing from Majunga was less than 60 miles from the capital. There was a possibility, this informant said, that French forces might be concentrating at the capital for a stand, but that present resistance was negligible and only a few British casualties had been suffered.

KILLED IN FALL FROM TREE.

CHICAGO POSTAL CLERK HANDLES AEF MAIL NOW

Loses 32 Pounds (Not Sterling) on Job.

LONDON, Sept. 19 [Wide World].—Even the less indulgent of his fellow officers express a measure of sympathy when 2d Lieut. Ervin Boettcher speaks nostalgically of the good old years—17 of them—in the Chicago postoffice.

Boettcher is second in command at the American headquarters postoffice, and has lost 32 pounds in four months.

Lieut. Ervin Boettcher.

"I feel better, tho," he adds.

The tremendous job of getting the mail service going for the benefit of the United States soldiers and airmen is, for the most part, in the hands of experienced postal employés now on active duty.

Veteran of Unit.

Lieut. Boettcher, whose home is at 5911 South Union avenue, Chicago, is the veteran of the headquarters unit. Old timer among the 28 enlisted men in this postoffice is Pvt. Wesley Green of Chicago.

Since this branch of the American army postoffice in Britain opened early in May more than 300,000 V-mail, or airgraph, letters have been dispatched, and the average daily volume now is running between 7,500 and 9,000. Ordinary mail averages about 1,200 pounds—about 45 letters to the pound—each day.

Money Orders Boom.

Money order business is voluminous and increasing. The average daily total is estimated at between 5,000 and 6,000 dollars.

These huge sums, it is explained, represent mainly payments to relatives by soldiers who either have not made allotments, or by those who wish to make added contributions to dependents.

The parcel post end of the work is relatively slight, because of the British restrictions on shipping merchandise out of the country. Incoming packages are numerous, however, and provide some of the most cheerful moments in the soldiers' lives.

ALLIED TANK, TROOP SORTIE REPULSED IN EGYPT, SAY ITALIANS

ROME, Sept. 19 [from Italian broadcasts]—(AP).—A burst of British activity in Egypt's western desert was reported by the Italian high command today with the announcement that axis air forces inflicted heavy losses yesterday on allied tanks and troop columns making "exploratory thrusts" in the southern sector of the El Alamein front. Three British planes were reported shot down.

[The Germans, likewise indicating that something big might be developing after a period of quiesence in North Africa, echoed Rome's report, saying axis airmen on Friday carried out "continuous" bombing and machine gunning attacks on British "tank reserves and motorized columns."]

The Italian high command also said that an Italian torpedo boat had sunk a British submarine in the Mediterranean. [There was no confirmation of this report in allied quarters.]

Allies Batter Tobruk.

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 19 (AP).—Allied heavy bombers raider Tobruk again last night, pounding harbor and shipping installations in the axis' Libyan supply port.

YANKS BUILD BIG PLANE REPAIRING PLANT IN MONTH

Turn British Swamp Into American Factory.

AN AMERICAN AIR SERVICE BASE IN BRITAIN, Sept. 19 (AP).—On ground which only a month ago was a bog, there has risen today an impressive nucleus for a vast United States air service station for the coming offensive against Hitler.

Maj. Gen. W. H. Frank.

Four weeks ago Maj. Gen. Walter Hale Frank, chief of the air service command, said he wanted the first units ready for operation by mid-September. It was almost an impossible order for a private aircraft company and the army, which are doing the work coöperatively. But the bosses said they'd try.

Today a rangy motor overhaul section with so many shops you would get lost without a guide already is functioning, with motor test blocks installed, generator plant set up, hangars, barracks, and various other repair buildings taking form.

Indiana Men Working.

There was an establishment here to start with, of course, and some roads and other facilities. But American speed, ingenuity, and adaptability have carried the project even beyond the confidence of the Americans themselves.

Robert Crouch, production engineer of Hartford, Conn., and Beverly Hills, Cal., asserted: "It is a tremendous task and it is being done tremendously. If you think this is progress just wait and see what it'll be like in another two weeks."

Arthur Lego, Indianapolis, one of six Indiana men in the motor repair section, said: "No expense has been spared. They've put everything into it. The equipment is wonderful. Some of it even is better than that in use back home because it is newer."

With Lego, are Tony Kennington, George Campbell, Lowell Hale, and Louis Knue, all of Indianapolis, and Alfred Y. Hardy, Evansville, Ind.

General Praises Workers.

They are just a few of the hundreds of skilled mechanics who went to work immediately, unloading boat after boat, digging for foundations, pouring concrete, and helping in all manner of construction jobs. Most of them had not done anything of that kind before.

Gen. Frank said both private and army personnel were "magnificent."

19 OF LEXINGTON CREW AWARDED HEROISM HONORS

Lieut. Buchan of Chicago Gets Gold Star.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—The navy announced today that 23 officers and men who distinguished themselves during the Coral sea battle had been awarded decorations for heroism in action. Nineteen of them served on the Lexington, which was sunk after inflicting heavy damage on the enemy.

Lieut. Robert B. Buchan.

The distinguished service medal was conferred upon Rear Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch, 59, of Washington, D. C., and Rear Adm. William W. Smith, 54, of Springfield, N. J. Fitch commanded a task force with which the Lexington operated and Smith commanded a naval unit in the Coral sea battle.

Lieut. Comm. John C. Daniel, 43, of Philadelphia, Pa., and Ensign Robert Arnold Sweatt, 23, of Contoocook, N. H., were the first naval officers to receive the new navy and marine corps medal authorized by congress last month. They received the award for their efforts to save members of the Lexington.

Chicago Officer Honored.

Five officers of the Lexington received gold stars in lieu of second navy crosses for action in the Coral sea. They included Lieut. [J. G.] Robert B. Buchan, 25, of 1724 E. 84th street, Chicago; Lieut. [J. G.] Harry B. Bass, 25, Beaumont, Texas, and Lieut. Walter F. Henry, 30, Butler, Mo.

Eight dive bomber pilots who won the navy cross for the first time also received citations for heroism. They included Lieut. [J. G.] George O. Wood, 27, Galt, Cal.; Lieut. [J. G.] John G. Sheridan, 30, Glendale, Cal.; Lieut. [J. G.] Clem B. Connally, 25, Waco, Tex; Ensign Alva A. Simmons, 24, Portales, N. M.; Ensign Frank R. McDonald, 24, Botheld, Wash.; Ensign Russell P. Lecklider, 23, Toledo, O., and Ensign Robert P. William, 24, Encinitas, Cal.

Posthumous Cross.

Lieut. Edwin W. Hurst, 31, Sioux Falls, S. D., was awarded the navy cross posthumously. He had won the distinguished flying cross in the battle of Lae and Salamaua.

Melvin H. Georgius, chief aviation pilot, 24, of Los Angeles, Cal., who also won the flying cross at Lae and Salamaua, also was awarded the navy cross.

Other decorations included Lieut. Frederick W. Hawes, 32, Centralia, Wash., navy cross, and Ensign Harry B. Gibbs, 22, Wheeling, W. Va., distinguished flying cross.

LIEUT. BUCHAN, AWARD WINNER, STATIONED HERE

Lieut. Robert B. Buchan of Chicago, who was among the officers of the Lexington awarded gold stars yesterday for action in the Coral sea, now is an instructor at the Glenview naval reserve aviation training base, and on the aircraft carrier training ship Wolverine.

Lieut. Buchan, who lives with his wife and daughter at 703 Glendale road, Glenview, was awarded the navy cross on June 15 for sinking a Japanese transport off New Guinea. He said yesterday that the gold star comes in recognition of his work in helping sink the Japanese aircraft carrier Ryukaku on the day before the Lexington went down, and for downing a Japanese bomber and for scoring hits on fighter planes in the Lexington attack.

Lieut. Buchan is 26 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Buchan, 1724 East 84th street. He was graduated from Hyde Park High school and attended the University of Illinois for two years. He worked for his father, a druggist, and as a clerk in a Chicago bank before enlisting in the navy air corps in 1938.

Japs Order Red Armbands for Foes in Shanghai

BERLIN, Sept. 19 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The Japanese army and navy commands at Shanghai have decreed that all subjects of nations at war with Japan or which have severed diplomatic relations with Japan must wear a red arm band beginning Oct. 1, a DNB dispatch from Tokio reported tonight. The order affects all British and United States citizens more than 13 years of age except Indians and Filipinos.

Hero Gives Navy Recruits Tips on Warfare

BE TOUGHER THAN JAPS, BULKELEY TELLS RECRUITS

Bataan Motor Boat Ace Speaks in Chicago.

Lieut. Comm. John D. Bulkeley, mosquito boat hero of Bataan who piloted Gen. Douglas MacArthur on his escape from the Philippines, told a group of newly enlisted naval recruits yesterday that they must train themselves to be tougher than the Japs if Uncle Sam is to win victory in the Pacific.

"The Japs are tough—the toughest foe the United States has ever faced—and you men must make yourselves tougher to win," Commander Bulkeley told the recruits and members of their families assembled in the navy recruiting office at the United States court house.

Halls "Only Democratic Navy."

He warned them that "eating boiled monkey as we did" and similar hardships are ahead, but he added their primary compensation was the privilege of serving the only true democratic navy in the world, in which "every enlisted man is as good a man as any officer" and always given fair treatment. He spoke of many instances of abuses committed upon their own enlisted men by Jap, Nazi, and Italian officers.

Commander Bulkeley, reviewing his battle studded experiences, told the recruits there was no better way for them to become officers than to rise thru the ranks. He said the task of every man serving the country has been cut out for him and that the ordinary seaman can do his job as well as Gen. MacArthur is doing his.

Navy Man Sees Twin Sworn.

Among the recruits was Jack Levine, 25 years old, 1520 South Trumbull avenue, who was sworn in as his twin brother, Albert, looked on. Albert, who joined six months ago, returned from San Diego on a furlough.

Chicago's "Fly for Navy" drive for 2,000 naval aviation cadets by Sept. 30, moved nearer its goal when 65 other men were sworn in, lifting the total since Aug. 1 to 1,720.

Among them was Walter Osterhout, 19 years old ,Manistique, Mich., stunt man who once drove an automobile over a 110 foot cliff. He believed he would be able to handle a dive bomber.

The army aviation cadet selection board reported 41 more men qualified as cadets yesterday. The total enrollments of the army board since Sept. 1, 1941 reached 10,426.

LEXINGTON HERO WILL COMMAND NAVAL AIR BASE

Commander M. T. Seligman, executive officer aboard the aircraft carrier Lexington during the battle of the Coral sea, has been appointed commanding officer of the naval reserve aviation base at Peru, Ind., the ninth naval district announced yesterday. He succeeds Commander Philip T. Stonemetz.

Seligman, holder of the navy cross, recently was awarded a gold star by the navy for heroic and distinguished service performed in that battle.

The naval hero was graduated from Annapolis in 1918 in time to get an assignment to North sea patrol duty in the first World war. He later won his wings as a naval pilot. Commander Seligman still is an active flyer.

NAVAL MATERIAL INSPECTORS WILL TRAIN IN CHICAGO

Lease Space for Second Institution of Kind.

BY AL CHASE.

Plans were completed yesterday which will give Chicago a naval material inspector school, the second of its kind in the country, where men and women will be instructed in bench inspection of machine parts by means of precision instruments. When the six to eight weeks' course is completed the graduates will be employed by the navy at plants having naval contracts.

Lieut. E. M. Savage, whose father, Arthur W. Savage, was the inventor and manufacturer of the Savage rifle, said the new school will occupy 10,000 square feet on the sixth floor of the La Salle-Monroe building.

Students to Be Paid.

Operating on a 24 hour basis, with three daily shifts of eight hours each, the new naval school will train women [from 18 to 40 preferred, altho older applicants will be considered], men older than 45, and men with 4F draft classification.

Students will be paid at the rate of $1,440 annually, or about $27 weekly, during school attendance. School work instruction will consist of six hours of bench inspection and two hours of related work daily.

Upon graduation they will be paid at the rate of $1,620 annually, or about $31 a week, for the first month on the job. After that they can work up to $2,600 a year, or $50 a week.

400 Applications Received.

Applications for these educational working jobs are being received in room 1107 of the new west side post office building. Already 400 applications have been received, Lieut. Savage said. Selections are to be made thru a civil service aptitude test. Selectees will retain their civilian status altho working for the navy, it was said.

The new naval school will start with 100 pupil workers on each of the three shifts. The opening date has been tentatively set for the middle of October. Lieut. Savage will be in charge of the new naval educational unit.

CONGRESS PARTY LEADERS ASSAIL UPRISING IN INDIA

Charge All Sought to Be a Gandhi.

BY HERBERT L. MATTHEWS.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

NEW DELHI, India, Sept. 19.—The Northwest Frontier province is much quieter than the eastern and southern provinces, according to Abdul Qaiyum, one of the three All-India Congress party members of the central legislative assembly who are still out of jail.

Qaiyum, whose associates are Prof. N. G. Ranga and K. S. Gupta, said the government adopted a different attitude in the Northwest Frontier province than elsewhere. Congress leaders have not been arrested. Abdul Gaffar Khan, the "Frontier Gandhi," is still at large, and meeting and demonstrations are allowed. Last Saturday mobs entered the courts, police stations, and secretariat, but government officers were told to listen to their complaints, so there was no violence.

According to Qaiyum, if the Congress leaders are arrested there will be 10 times as much trouble there as in the other parts of India.

Call Disturbances Premature.

All three men said the India-wide disturbances had been premature and badly handled because no one knew what the Congress chief had planned, and every one was trying to be a Gandhi. They stressed that the real Congress program had not got under way.

They asked how any one could doubt the anti-Fascism of the Congress after its record over many years, while the United States furnished arms to Japan and Britain closed the Burma road. They said the educated Indians were anti-Japanese, and, between the two evils, would prefer the British, but that the ignorant masses did not realize what a Japanese invasion would mean.

Distrust British Promises.

An outstanding characteristic of these men is distrust of British promises. They are convinced the British have no intention of freeing India after the war.

This is a fundamental of the Indian situation. It is a vicious circle, for the Indians do not trust the British, and the British do not trust the Indians. That is why many Indians want President Roosevelt to arbitrate the quarrel, altho some even suspect the Americans because United States troops are here.

JAP SHIP FIRED BY FLYING FORTS OFF NEW GUINEA

Enemy Bases on Coast Pounded Again.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Sept. 20 [Sunday] —(AP).—Flying Fortresses set fire to a Japanese cargo ship off New Guinea, the allied command reported today.

The attack was geared with a continuation of heavy bombing and strafing of enemy bases at Lae and Buna on the northeastern New Guinea coast and on Buka Island in the Solomons.

For the third day, fighting in the jungles of the Owen Stanley mountains north of Port Moresby was at a minimum, being limited largely to activity by allied patrols, the communique said.

Medium bombers and fighters raiding Lae failed to encounter any air defense, and all the planes taking part returned safely to their bases.

The bombers centered their attention on enemy dispersal areas, while the fighters strafed anti-aircraft and supply installations.

Fighter Planes Raid Buna.

The assault on Buna was made by fighter planes ranging the trail to Kokoda, Japanese advance base on the northern slope of the Owen Stanleys. At Buna airdrome, a supply dump and a Zero fighter were set aflame and an anti-aircraft position was silenced. Along the Kokoda trail, cannon and machine gun fire raked buildings, sheds, and huts.

Buka was visited by medium bombers in a night attack under poor weather conditions. Returning pilots reported fires started.

Two or three enemy raiders attacked Port Moresby, the center for allied operations in New Guinea, but the communique said the "bombs dropped harmlessly in an uninhabited wooded area."

At Goodenough bay, the communique said, allied fighter planes machine gunned an enemy whaling boat, killing its occupants.

Lose Nearly All Ships.

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The British radio quoted a spokesman at allied headquarters in Australia as saying today the Japanese now had lost almost the entire fleet they had put into Buna, base of the Japanese drive across New Guinea on Port Moresby.

How many ships the Japanese used to maintain the Buna foothold has not been made known.

BREAD TO COST MORE, POTATOES LESS IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Sept. 20 [Sunday]—(AP).—The food ministry ordered the price of bread increased from 8 to 9 pence [15 cents] for a four pound loaf today and simultaneously announced that the price of potatoes would be cut to an average of a penny a pound.

The price changes are in line with a government campaign to reduce the consumption of bread and increase the consumption of potatoes. The price of bread has been kept stable since the start of the war by a subsidy of 300 million to 320 million dollars.

SEAMAN LISTED AMONG MISSING PHONES PROTEST

Relatives of Chester G. Cole, seaman, 1st class, of 920 Main street, Evanston, didn't know what to think Friday morning when they discovered while reading THE TRIBUNE that Cole was listed by the navy as missing in action.

On Sept. 4 they had received a telegram from the navy department which stated Cole was missing. Later that day a second navy telegram said the first was a mistake, and that Cole was wounded and a survivor.

Yesterday Cole telephoned from "someplace in California" that he had lost two fingers in action, but otherwise was well.

Before joning the navy two years ago Cole lived with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weiland, and was employed in Weiland's flower shop in Winnetka. His mother, Mrs. Laura Cole, lives in Des Plaines, and another sister, Miss Frances Cole, lives with the Weilands.

NEW DEAL HOISTS TRIAL BALLOONS AT LEGION RALLY

Three Spokesmen Deliver Messages on War.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 19.—Delegates to the first national wartime convention of the American Legion today heard three administration spokesmen deliver messages which were regarded as trial balloons either for legislation soon to be laid before congress or edicts to be issued by the White House or by war bureaus. They were:

1. Secretary of Navy Frank Knox said the time has passed for differing with the administration on the conduct of the war.

2. Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the war manpower commission, declared universal conscription for war industry and the armed forces will come whenever the President and congress have concluded that voluntary contribution to the war effort has reached its limit.

3. Robert Patterson, undersecretary of war, said rationing of gasoline soon will be decreed on a national scale to save rubber and echoed McNutt's statement that "we soon will have universal service legislation."

Messages Are Broadcast.

These messages were broadcast by nation-wide networks and were heard not only by the Legionnaires in Kansas City's arena but also by an audience estimated in size as second only to that which listens to messages of the President. Knox's address was broadcast by W-G-N.

Legion officials said the broadcasts were of prime interest to more than 1,100,000 Legionnaires and their families who were unable to attend the conventions and to 12,000 Legion posts thruout the nation, as well as to the public.

Gov. Payne Ratner of Kansas, a Republican, lashed at what he described as Washington incompetence and urged the delegates to act to eradicate it.

Constructive Suggestions Urged.

He said all loyalty is due those in responsible positions, but they must have "constructive suggestions for the better" where they err. Gov. Ratner said incompetents in key positions of war responsibility are enemies on the home front.

"We cannot win the war with part of the nation sacrificing and another part benefiting," he said. "We cannot win the war with part of our resources in action, another idle."

Commenting on the array of administration spokesmen who will address the Legion delegates during their three day assembly, Alfred M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential candidate, asserted: "It undoubtedly is the administration's hope that this and similar conventions will go on record favoring contemplated legislation and thus run interference for New Deal policies." He declined to comment on the proposal for universal service.

18 Year Draft Urged.

Another recommendation was placed before the convention by National Comm. Lynn U. Stambaugh in his annual report. He urged the delegates to indorse lowering the draft age to 18 years.

He urged also that college students be inducted into service or that their training be taken over by the military.

The delegates responded with repeated applause to a plea for a vast postwar air force, made by Louis A. Johnson, former assistant secretary of war and now personal representative of the President.

F. D. R. Termed Sole Leader.

Knox asserted the President is the nation's sole leader and that no one should differ with him.

"Some of us have differed with him in the days before the war on domestic issues," Knox declared. "This is no time to pursue those differences. We must not perpetuate old grudges or revive old quarrels. The political sniper today is as dangerous as the Japanese sniper in a palm tree. The man who stirs up differences between racial and religious groups is as dangerous as the Stuka

"The man who sees dark conspiracies in every act of the government, who whispers or shouts that Washington is overrun with business men working for their own interests, or is a hotbed of radicalism plotting to overthrow our institutions is as dangerous to our victory as a panzer division."

Knox asserted Germany is losing superiority in the air because of losses on the Russian, Egyptian, and British fronts and the acceleration of allied aircraft production.

He added that the German navy is a fugitive force in European waters, as the Italian fleet is in the Mediterranean.

He said submarines have been driven from English waters and from the Atlantic coast within range of land based planes. Knox also described American successes against the Japanese in the Coral sea, at Midway, and in the Solomons.

Man Power Draft Undecided.

McNutt said the war man power commission has made no recommendations toward a universal draft.

"There are men in Washington who will tell you they have seen the bill," he said. "But don't ask me when it will come. I don't know. But it will come when the President and congress conclude that the limit of the voluntary system has been reached.

"It will come because we are not making full use of our man power. Look around your own communities if you want to know when national service will be necessary."

He listed symptoms that will indicate the time is near: So long as industrialists pirate workers, so long as workers quit important jobs and make long trips for a few cents more in wages, so long as industrialists discriminate against women and Negroes, and as long as local unions refuse to recognize their leaders' pledges to the war effort.

All Must Pay: Patterson.

Undersecretary of War Patterson asserted that all must pay the price for victory, no matter what his station in life.

"Strikes in munitions plants are not to be tolerated even for a single day," he said. "There must be no quitting of jobs for better pay by wartime workers. The time is not far off when we shall have broad universal service legislation under which we can assign men to industrial jobs as we now assign them to military posts."

He said there must be no more driving for pleasure or on trivial errands and assailed those who complain about gasoline rationing.

"Gasoline rationing soon will be on a nation-wide scale to save rubber," he said. "Tank treads formerly made of rubber now are made of steel. There is small hope that synthetic rubber can be obtained in quantity soon. You of the eastern seaboard know that gasoline rationing has caused but little inconvenience."

Johnson began by asserting the fruits of the 1918 victory were squandered and that the proceeds of the victory in this war must not be lost.

"I am speaking now as a hardboiled realist," he said. "We know now that the world situation is one we cannot forget. Neither can we leave it alone, because it will not leave us alone.

"We shall have to work out a system by which the world is safe and at peace if we are to be safe and at peace. The reasons are hardboiled, military facts.

"Today attack on the United States, if it comes, will be an airborne attack. This could happen on a small scale now. But air power is only at the beginning of its development. Five years from now any nation which can put a great air fleet into the skies will be able to do enormous damage to the United States.

"If it takes a bombing attack on a midwestern city to teach us our pressing danger [and I hope it will not], the lesson would be cheap, even at that price."

Green Urges Home Support.

Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois, wearing the blue and gold overseas cap of the Chicago Board of Trade post, addressed the morning session, urging that a united home front support the men on the war fronts.

"There is no apathy among us, no failure to understand what lies ahead, no complacency, no cocksureness," he said. "In the more than nine months since Americans were shocked and awakened they have become a united people, an unselfish, giving people, firm in the righteousness of their cause, and grimly determined that nothing shall keep them from victory.

"They are proclaiming to the enemy by their actions that back of those in uniform are more than 130 million others striving, saving, and sacrificing to speed the day the axis is destroyed and all men are free again.

Service Termed Only Part of War.

"It is not enough to give our sons to the armed forces. It is not enough that the finest of our youth put down their books, leave their offices, farms, or factories to embark on the great adventure. The home front must be made strong and unconquerable."

In his annual report, in addition to recommending draft law changes, National Commander Stambaugh outlined the Legion's national program to aid the war effort. This included the recruiting programs for the navy, scrap and salvage drives, organization of state guards, setting up and manning air raid warning stations, opening the organization's facilities to men in service, and a number of other varied activities.

The Legion was welcomed to Kansas City by Gov. F. C. Donnell of Missouri and Mayor John B. Gage. The Legion medallion was presented to Acting Mayor John L. Bohn of Milwaukee, Wis., in whose city the 1941 convention was held.

Father and Son Are Air Officers

Meet on Leaves

A father and his son, both officers in the army air forces, met in Chicago yesterday to spend brief leaves together before their service separates them. The father is Capt. Howard L. Watrous, 54 years old, formerly of Winnetka and a veteran of the first World war, who now is in the air forces transportation division. His son is Lieut. William Schuyler Watrous, 24, who received his commission at Miami Beach, Fla., a day before his dad arrived to begin his training for the second great war of the century. Capt. Watrous expects he will move to the east, while his son, now training at Spencer, Ia., as a glider pilot, hopes to get into the Pacific area conflict. In joining the air forces the two are keeping alive a family tradition. Their father and grandfather was William Schuyler Watrous, who was a captain of an Illinois infantry company during the Civil war. The two fighters met in the office of their brother and uncle, William G. Watrous, 664 North Michigan avenue, member of an advertising firm.

15 TO FACE JURY IN FIRST ILLEGAL AUTO SALE QUIZ

At least 15 persons have been notified to appear before the federal grand jury which is to start an investigation tomorrow to determine whether new automobiles have been illegally sold in Chicago since the government issued its so-called freezing order on Jan. 6.

District Attorney J. Albert Woll confirmed the fact that such an investigation is to be made, and that it will be conducted by his own staff. He added that it was the first inquiry of the kind, so far as he knows, since the freeze took effect.

Among those summoned to appear are Emil Denemark, who operates a large automobile agency at 3860 Ogden avenue, and seven of his employés. Denemark was ordered to bring in for grand jury examination all the records of the firm's sales this year, and all information pertaining to the cars now on its sales floor.

The other seven known to have been placed under subpena have been instructed, it was reported, to bring in papers relating to purchases of cars by them after the government's order forbidding general sales. They are:

Dr. Jacob Rosen, 4010 Madison street; Mrs. Helen R. Rosen, 4037 Adams street; Anton Majcher, 3017 Cermak road; Mrs. Andy Frain, 6649 Navajo avenue, whose husband supplies ushers for sports events; A. Levy, 5011 North California avenue; Henry Sabath, 7167 Grand avenue, and Myer Axelrod, 5814 Chicago avenue.

Dealer Prominent Democrat.

Denemark, who is prominent in Democratic politics and on the race tracks [his wife owns a string of thorobreds] said last night he was unable to understand what it was all about.

"The auto sales rules have been in confusion ever since they were started," he said. "Every now and then they are changed. We did deliver a few cars that had been contracted for before the freezing date, and we were sure that we were complying with regulations then. We still think so.

"I have been in business for 29 years and never was in trouble. Certainly I never tried to take advantage under the law. My records are and always have been open to the OPA and any other government agency."

He added that the confusion of rules was so great that "we are not even selling used cars."

REPORT PRECINCT REGISTRATION IS LIGHT FIRST DAY

Downstate County Seats Say Rain Is Handicap.

What politicians call Democratic weather was charged yesterday with much of the responsibility for light registration of voters in downstate Illinois.

It was the first day for precinct registration of voters in territory brought under the permanent registration system by an act of the assembly last year. No official figures were available for reports from precinct registrars to county clerks were not required. Information from rural districts was almost entirely missing.

The impression in county seats, however, was that a long drizzle in many parts of the state, coupled with a seasonal reluctance of farmers to leave their fields, had made the turnout of voters a small one. The shortage, it was predicted, will be made up by the second precinct registration day on Oct. 6 and by interim registration at county clerks' offices before that date.

The ottal vote cast downstate in 1938, the last preceding off year election, was 1,600,001. Approximately 300,000 are registered in the nine election board cities in that area who are not required to register anew. And it is estimated that about 500,000 were registered in the new permanent registration territory before yesterday.

On that basis, it was calculated that more than 1 million, or about 65 per cent, of the 1938 total vote outside Cook county is now registered. If, however, calculations are based on the presidential year, 1940, when the total downstate vote was 2,124,046, the downstate registration is less than 50 per cent.

Get Reports from 20 Counties.

Unofficial reports of the results of yesterday's registration gathered from 20 of the 101 counties downstate by the Associated Press were as follows:

Fulton—Light turnout.

Jefferson—Slow.

Kane—Extremely light.

Kankakee—Probably fewer than 1,000 registered.

Lake—Expected to register 10,000 before polls closed.

La Salle—Light turnout.

Logan—Officials expected to register 35 per cent.

Macon—Early turnout light.

Slow Registration in Alton.

Madison—Registration in Alton was slow.

McLean—Estimates of day's registration ranged from 10 to 30 per cent.

Stephenson—Very light registration indicated.

Vermilion—Estimated 70 per cent would be registered.

Warren—Turnout was light.

Whiteside—Indications were 2,000 registered during the day.

Will—Day's total estimated as 10,000.

Winnebago—Light thru the morning.

Most of these counties are in the thickly populated northern part of the state. It was believed the returns from southern counties probably will show even lighter registration.

Seeks Divorce

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Henry J. Topping Jr., the former Gloria Baker, looked up from her night club table last night and announced she would leave for her Palm Beach, Fla., home today to begin a divorce action. Mrs. Topping, former society glamor girl, and her husband, a tin plate heir, have been separated for some time. She and Topping, now a naval air force lieutenant, were married a week after Topping and his first wife, the former Jayne Shadduck, were divorced in 1938.

$6,000 in Postal Savings Disproves Vagrancy Charge

John Gonzales, 45 years old, 14 West Maple street, a former hotel bus boy, arraigned before Judge George L. Quilici in the East Chicago avenue court yesterday on a charge of vagrancy, proved that he was not guilty by exhibiting $6,000 worth of postal savings certificates. He said that he retired four years ago after saving that sum from his salary.

was a patient there, and Glen flew over. Some of the men in the hospital rushed outdoors when they heard the signal. They thought a plane was falling. But the c. o. just grunted, "There's that damnable fellow of Miss Straub's again."

"Run for Shelter."

I was at Sternberg that Sunday, Dec. 7, when Glen called me. He wasn't able to tell me much over the phone, but said, "Ruthie, darling, if anything happens down there, be sure to run for the nearest air raid shelter."

I laughed when he said that. Imagine finding an air raid shelter at Sternberg! He sounded depressed and worried. My diary tells it better than I can. It says:

Monday, Dec. 8—News that Pearl Harbor had been bombed is here today. During a meeting of nurses and doctors Col. Carroll announced that Clark field had been bombed and that nurses and doctors were needed badly up there.

I had to volunteer. Thought I couldn't wait to get there.

Arrived at Stotsenburg at nightfall. The hospital was bedlam—amputations, dressings, intravenuses, blood transfusions, shock, death. Worked all night. Hopped over banisters and slid under the hospital during raids. Many died during the night. It was remarkable to see the medical staff at work. One doctor, a flight surgeon, had a head injury, but during the night he got up and went to the operating room to help with the other patients.

* *

Impossible to Sleep.

Tuesday, Dec. 9—Went over to the nurses' quarters after breakfast to shower and get a little sleep, but this was impossible. Planes taking off and landing kept one at a nervous tension. Too, I was worried about Glen. Tried to reach him, but all efforts fruitless. My bag was left behind, and I had no clean clothes, so I borrowed some uniform sox.

Saw several pilots from Clark field who told me Glen was O. K. What a relief! If I could only see him for a minute. . . . Reported off duty tonight, and several of us crawled into a cement enclosed cubicle under a hospital ward. It was damp, and the air putrid, but we really slept. Pure exhaustion. The girls are taking this beautifully.

Wednesday, Dec. 10—This a. m. the commanding officer sent me to Manila on a special ambulance detail. Took four patients. Tried again to reach Glen before I left, but no success. Left word with the chaplain to tell Glen I would be back later in the day. Left about 11:15 a. m. Caught in an air raid alarm as we reached Clark field. The patients, driver and I hid in some tall, dry grass. All clear, and away we went for Manila. Trip long, due to heavy traffic. Caleses carametas [native carts] loaded with Filipinos and household goods evacuating the city. Wondered if the message I left for Glen had been delivered. Arrived at Sternberg late p. m. Air raid sounded just as we came in. Saw 77 planes overhead on way to port area, which they bombed. [This was the first bombing of Manila.]

Fiancé Seriously Injured.

During the raid Col. Carroll called me to the office: "You're not to go back to Stotsenburg. Your fiancé has been seriously injured." Dead? No. Thought I'd lose my mind. Later Maj. Hubbard came down from Stotsenburg and told me Glen had suffered a basal skull fracture, but that he'd be all right. Wonderful news! No sleep tonight. Up and down stairs during several alarms.

Dec. 13—Ordered to go out as acting chief nurse to set up 500 bed hospital in the Holy Ghost school across from Malacanan palace. It is to become emergency hospital as S. [Sternberg] is overflowing. [We are burying the dead in sheets.] It should make a fairly nice hospital, but the mosquitoes! The building is hard to black out, too. Miss Wilson, Capt. Fox, Lieut. Brown, and myself make up the staff. We have four Filipino nurses with us.

Sleeping on the second floor of the main building tonight. Will find permanent quarters tomorrow. Made list of needed supplies, but transportation is poor, so we will have to wait. The Catholic nuns are grand and have helped us put up beds and empty classrooms. Work, work, work. I keep going back to Sternberg to find out about Glen.

Finds Out from Captain.

Dec. 14—Worked all a. m., but couldn't keep my mind on my work. Finally I got Lieut. Brown to take me to Sternberg. Perhaps someone would know about Glen. Searched all over the hospital. So many of our friends who lived there at Clark field are in it now, but no one can tell me a thing. Had dinner at Sternberg and then drove back to Holy Ghost. I found myself alone in the receiving office, so I made an official call to the hospital at Fort Stotsenburg. Capt. Kege answered.

He hesitated a long time and finally said: "I am sorry to be the one to tell you. Glen was admitted on the 10th and died shortly thereafter."

The world tumbled around my ears.

* *

Dec. 16—It doesn't seem true. They took me back as a patient. Luminal every four hours. Why, why, why . . . Others have carried on bravely, and I must, too. Glen would want it. "Everything is all right," he said that last time he called and I told him he should save his money and not spend it on telephone calls. "I'm talking to you. How much longer do I know I will be able to?" . . . Air raid signals were frightening at first. I hardly think of them now. . . . They tried to keep me in bed, but I couldn't stay. I went downstairs and worked.

* *

Dec. 17—They brought me Glen's personal effects today. Now I know he is dead.

* *

[The second instalment in Miss Straub's diary of the first 165 days of the war in the Pacific will appear tomorrow.]

Nurse Sees War Strike in Manila Hospital

Lieut. Ruth Straub, army nurse, whose diary of life with American forces fighting Japs on Bataan peninsula in the Philippines starts in The Tribune today.

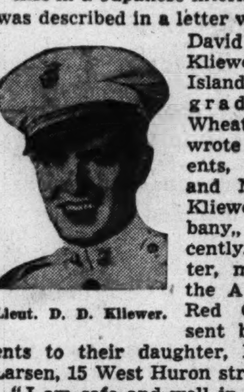
WHEATON GRADUATE WHO SANK SUB HELD AS PRISONER BY JAPS

Life in a Japanese internment camp was described in a letter which Lieut. David Donald Kliewer, Wake Island hero and graduate of Wheaton college, wrote to his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Kliewer of Albany, Ore., recently. The letter, mailed thru the American Red Cross, was sent by his parents to their daughter, Mrs. R. F. Larsen, 15 West Huron street.



Lieut. D. D. Kliewer.

"I am safe and well in a Japanese camp," Lieut. Kliewer wrote. "I am teaching calculus to my fellow prisoners and have organized a Bible class. I'm learning to become a soup guzzler and rice eater."

In an announcement made by the navy on March 9, Lieut. Kliewer was credited with sinking a Japanese submarine in the defense of Wake Island. He was returning to his base from a late reconnaissance patrol when he bombed the submarine. Lieut. Kliewer joined the air corps in February, 1940.

AWARD PURPLE HEART TO ALL DEAD, WOUNDED

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—The Purple Heart, oldest American military decoration, is to be awarded to all army personnel killed or wounded by enemy action, the war department announced today. The award will be made posthumously to relatives.

The Purple Heart was authorized by George Washington during the Revolution. It is in the form of a gold heart with a gold silhouette of Washington in the ecnter. This is mounted on a background of purple enamel. The medal is suspended from a purple ribbon, edged in white.

27 Torpedo Victims on One Raft Reach Portugal

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 19 (AP).—Twenty-seven survivors from a British freighter sunk off the Portuguese coast this morning were landed today at Setubal by a Portuguese motor launch. The men were found on one raft. Four of them were seriously injured and seven others less seriously. They were hospitalized at Setubal.

FAST AND PRAY ON YOM KIPPUR, ATONEMENT DAY

Jews to Mark Sabbath of Sabbaths.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Ancient lore of the Hebrews and their successors, the Jews, used to tell how every soul passed in review before the Lord on Rosh Hashana, or New Year's day, but on Yom Kippur, 10 days later, his fate for the coming year was sealed according to the genuineness of his repentance and amendment of his life.

While the literal interpretation of this tradition largely has disappeared, tonight as Yom Kippur comes and the lovely hymn, the Kol Nidre, is sung, a deep solemnity envelops the devout as in the spiritual presence of his Judge. Yom Kippur, or day of atonement, is the Sabbath of Sabbaths, described by rabbis as the most sacred day of the entire year.

Devout Enjoined to Fast.

In the days of the temple at Jerusalem the service on Yom Kippur was elaborate and imposing, but in modern times the Sabbath of solemn rest is given over to prayer, meditation, and fasting. The Yom Kippur fast, enjoined by the Bible in Leviticus, asks the devout to "afflict your souls," which is traditionally interpreted to mean to observe strict fasting.

Another mark of the day is the 24 hour candle, kindled on the eve of Yom Kippur, in memory of the dead, and it is a widespread custom to wear white shrouds during the day, following the custom of the ancient high priest, in token of purity.

Concerns Voluntary Vows.

Tonight's services in the synagogue, the threefold chanting of the Kol Nidre, signifies a formal abrogation of vows made under the influence of emotional stress, and is intended to protect against unfulfilled promises which were neglected or forgotten. But rabbis are quick to explain that this dispensation from vows deals only to those voluntarily assumed and concerns the relationship of his conscience to the heavenly Judge. They add that no oath or promise involving another person, a community, or a court of justice is implied in the Kol Nidre.

Reminiscent of Jerusalem temple days is tomorrow's Musaf, or additional service when the high priest alone, and on this day only, entered the holy of holies, the innermost part of the sanctuary. The Neilah or closing service of Yom Kippur, recalls the closing of the temple gates in old Jerusalem. Neilah ends with the blowing of the ram's horn and terminates the solemn day.

Would-Be WAACs Brave Rain to Talk Enlistment

It takes more than heavy rains to cool the ambition of WAAC minded women, according to Lieutenants Mary Stephenson and Ruth Woodworth, women's army auxiliary corps recruiting officers in Chicago. They said yesterday that the staff at the recruiting office, 515 South Franklin street, was kept busy giving information to women who disregarded the weather and called to get application blanks for entry into the corps.

NAVY TO FURNISH LIFT EQUIPMENT FOR CANAL SPANS

Projects Designed to Aid Shipbuilding Work.

Machinery for lifting or moving 16 bascule and swing bridges and raising one fixed bridge on the Chicago Sanitary and Ship canal will be provided by the navy to facilitate passage of vessels built for the armed services, the 9th naval district public relations office announced yesterday. All bridges affected have been built for some time but lack operating machinery.

Included are five bridges owned by the city of Chicago, three by the Chicago Sanitary district, and nine by the following railroads: Santa Fe, Baltimore and Ohio, Belt Railroad Company of Chicago, Chicago Junction, Illinois Central, Pennsylvania, and Indiana Harbor Belt Railroad company.

City Bridges Involved.

The city bridges involved, W. W. de Berard, chief city engineer, said, are at California avenue, Cicero avenue, and Pulaski boulevard, all of the bascule type; Kedzie boulevard, of the swing type, and Western avenue, a fixed type bridge with a 22 foot clearance designed to accommodate only barge traffic. The three sanitary district bridges to be equipped are at Harlem avenue, just outside the city, and those at Summit and Willow Springs.

The announcement stated the cost will be about 2 million dollars, exclusive of maintenance and operation expenses, and that it is expected the project will be completed by Jan. 1, 1943. The facilities will be owned by the government, the navy said, with bridge owners having an option to purchase them within the six months after termination of the war emergency at a price to be negotiated then.

See Construction Cost Cuts.

The navy said several important contributions to the war effort will result from the project. Deliveries of the larger vessels will be speeded up and their cost of construction lessened. Top hampers now must be left off a number of these boats until after they have cleared the bridges.

The project will permit delivery to the ocean of ships under construction in certain Great Lakes localities at times when the lakes are closed to navigation by ice.

The navy said the project would permit use of Great Lakes shipbuilding facilities for construction of certain larger vessels, with a resulting saving of critical materials which otherwise would be used in building new shipways elsewhere.

The project is made possible, the announcement continued, thru cooperation of bridge owners with the navy and other interested government agencies.

HOW NAIL-TOUGH AEF PARATROOPS TRAIN IN BRITAIN

Win Praise for Two Day Assault Problem.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 19.—In a well camouflaged camp in the wooded hills of a beautiful estate in England, American parachute troops, whose presence in Great Britain was revealed only yesterday, are becoming one of the most highly trained assault units of the United States army.

When the fact that the chutists are in England was announced, THE TRIBUNE correspondent was the only reporter at their camp and I got a good insight into how these wiry shock troops have been and are being given intensive training in air-borne war tactics.

Complete Maneuver Skilfully.

On Thursday they completed a two day problem, dropping from big, low flying converted DC-3's [21 passenger transport planes] to attack and seize an objective in a heavily farmed area. Today the officers listened to a critique on the maneuver. They learned that the mission had been properly and skilfully executed and their colleagues, the British paratroopers, were impressed by the Americans' performance.

Since their arrival here the American units have been exchanging ideas with the British. Each outfit has tested the other's equipment under simulated battle conditions.

When the men are not engaged in a problem, they are likely to be found on the rugged assault course laid out by their commanding officer, Lieut. Col. Edson D. Raff of New York City. It is by far the "worst" course I have seen in my tours of camps here and in the United States.

List of Obstacles.

Bounded by barbed wire, it includes such obstacles as:

Crawling across a swaying rope and timber ladder, jumping across shell holes, crossing by narrow logs over a barbed wire filled chasm, advancing despite flame throwers thru more wire to attack terraced trenches, climbing walls, hurdling more ditches, wriggling thru pipes topped with wire and sand bags, sliding across a gully on a cable while using another cable as a hand rest, and going hand over hand along an iron ladder.

On top of this, there are still more barbed wire, ditches, shell holes, simulated mine fields, and a hidden enemy. All this has to be accomplished at top speed up and down dales and thru a dense woods while carrying a full pack.

All in Day's Work.

But it is all in the day's work for these lads, many of whom are from the middle west. This afternoon they were out on the athletic field. Baseball drew all but the hardiest, who were banging their heads together in a hard tackling football game without protective equipment. Some of the men played in their bare feet.

Tumbling out of planes and perhaps landing cross-wind brings a certain number of sprained ankles and broken legs. This accounts for most of the work by the paradoctor, Capt. C. Alden, who reports that the general health of the men is excellent, especially now that they are on American rations.

Pvt. [First Class] Dwight Burns of Marshalltown, Ia., a former secretary of a savings and loan association, was walking around with a taped ankle as the result of a gusty ground wind in yesterday's problem. He is a rifleman and says that he would not trade with any one.

Doesn't Mind 2 Mile Jog.

"Once I got lost on a night problem and slept under a haystack," said Pvt. Russel Neview of Bay City, Mich., a former Great Lakes sailor who operates a machine gun.

"None of us mind the two mile jog in the morning and evening," added Pvt. Marin Lee White of Lima, O., a rifleman, who was a railroad brakeman, "since we went on American rations. And we all go for the dances where our air force band plays. In fact, the girls here go out of their way to make us feel at home."

Another midwesterner, Pvt. Thadeus Czolgosz of Saginaw, Mich., who once ran a milling machine, declared that one reason for the tremendous esprit de corps of this unit was the fine officer personnel.

PATRIOTS BLAST TANK FACTORY IN ALBANIA, REPORT

ANKARA, Turkey, Sept. 17 [Delayed]—(AP).—Albanian authorities in refuge here said today patriots had blown up a tank and machine repair factory near Tirana, capital of the Italian occupied nation, destroyed a Tirana hotel and set fire to a Fascist wool warehouse at Durazzo in July and August.

Bomb-wielding guerrillas were reported to have damaged severely an Italian military convoy on the Kruja-Burrel road last month.

The greatest destruction in all the forays apparently was in the tank and repair factory near Tirana July 5, the Albanians said. Two Albanian officers dressed in Italian uniforms were reported to have carried explosives into the factory and set off a blast that jarred the countryside and killed several hundred Italians.

Lillian Gish, veteran star of stage, screen, and radio, and Veronica Lake, motion picture actress, passed thru Chicago yesterday afternoon en route from Hollywood to the east.

Miss Gish, her Scotch terrier, Malcolm, and seven pieces of luggage were bound for New York City where the actress will begin rehearsals for a comedy, "Mr. Sycamore," in which she will open Oct. 12 in Boston, Mass..

Miss Lake, with her blonde hair almost hidden beneath a stern brimmed hat with a snood, is on her way to Washington, D. C., where she will open a treasury department bond sales tour that will take her thru the southern states and to New York City. Miss Lake refused to explain an adhesive patch on her nose, but dispatches from Hollywood recently quoted her as saying she ran into a tree when she and her husband were running to their car during a rainstorm.

CITY EXTENDING WATER SERVICE TO WAR PLANTS

Pipeline Projects Will Cost Million.

In order to supply Chicago water to rapidly growing defense plants and defense home projects the city is engaged in a million dollar water pipe extension program, according to Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works. The program provides for the laying of 85,888 feet of water pipe.

Hewitt said yesterday that 76,704 feet of water pipe of varying sizes from 6 to 36 inches in diameter have been laid this year or will be laid for defense plants. Some of the plants are outside the city limits. The total cost of that work is estimated at $893,745.

The money spent by the city, Hewitt explained, will be returned in the form of payments for the use of the water. In some instances, he said, the Defense Plant corporation has advanced the cost of the water pipe extension work and will be reimbursed when the firms pay their water bills. He said this method of financing the work eliminates the need for the city to allocate special funds for the purpose.

The largest extension for defense plant purposes, installed for the Chrysler corporation at that firm's new plant at an estimated cost of $450,000, called for 19,944 feet of 36 inch water main.

The city proposes to install 10,560 feet of 24 inch main at an estimated cost of $158,400 for the Douglas plant.

Thirteen defense plants either have been served by new installations of city water mains or will be, Hewitt said.

Thirty-two defense home projects are included in the water pipe extension bureau program this year. The projects call for 9,184 feet of pipe. The cost is estimated at $40,294.

SLEUTHING IS FUN BUT NOT EXCITING, SAY DETECTIVES

National Convention Ends with Banquet.

BY MARTHA MURPHY.

Being a detective is lots of fun, but it's not very exciting. That's what 109 members of the World Association of Detectives said last night as they closed their 15th annual convention at the La Salle hotel.

"Oh, it's barrels of fun," said a lady detective, Mrs. A. Louise Harris of Toledo, O. "We do a lot of work at defense plants so I don't get around very much anymore, but business is booming. Why, lots of us don't even shadow people anymore. The rubber shortage is so serious we don't like to use the tires.

Started as Ball Players.

Most of the detectives just drifted into their shadowy business or were flung into it by fate. Take Enoch H. Warren of Chattanooga, Tenn. Warren played star baseball in college and was invited to join the police department nine for three months. Warren played ball and detected on the side, planning to go back to college.

"Then I met a beautiful Irish redhead, Mrs. Warren, and I stayed on the police force," Warren said.

Warren said last night that his specialty is Civil War histroy, but actually his detective firm specializes in mountain murder mysteries.

"I've got one man working for me who's solved 505 homicide cases in the last few years," Warren said.

C. B. Welch of Tampa, Fla., moved from studying law into detecting. He's disgusted with people who think detectives wear disguises. "This is a scientific business we're in," Welch said, "all fingerprints and stuff." Welch's fellow detectives preferred talking about the southerner's prowess with "hush-puppies," fried corn bread, to hearing about his scientific business.

Trailed Bigamist Abroad.

Only two detectives celebrating the convention's end look like movie dicks. They're Col. W. W. Freeman, former chief of police of Pasadena, Cal., and red headed, freckled James H. McQueeny of Chicago, president of the association.

Col. Freeman has gray hair and a gray goatee and smokes long, black cigars. His most exciting case was trailing a bigamist with eight wives to Hawaii, Australia, Scotland, Canada, and finally catching him in Scranton, Pa.

Many, many exciting things happened to Lee Eckley of Toronto, Canada, back in the good old days. Asked to relate a few, he grinned gleefully and said, "listen, girlie, you don't want to hear about my most exciting case. All I'll tell you is that when we found him he had three sash weights around his neck."

MYRON TAYLOR HAS LONG TALK WITH POPE PIUS

[By Wireless to The New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 19.—In one of his longest private audiences, Pope Pius XII. today received Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Vatican, for an hour and a half in his study. No official statement was issued as to the subjects discussed.

Speculation in neutral quarters as to the discussions favored the interpretation that it concerned the Jewish question in France. Vatican reprobation of the Vichy government's attitude has risen to new heights during the past 10 days with encouragement of French clergy to maintain its stand.

Some persons believe that some important action is about to be attempted to favor the "oppressed religious minority" in occupied countries. The action, it was hinted, might be carried out under the pope's personal auspices.

PANTS MAKERS SEIZED IN SALE OF ARMY GOODS

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 19 (AP).—Two officials of the Lackawanna Pants Manufacturing company were under arrest today on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government by selling privately hundreds of pairs of trousers manufactured for the army.

John F. Sears, in charge of the Philadelphia FBI office, identified them as Theodore Koppelman, president and half owner, and his nephew, Daniel Koppelman, office manager. Sears and Carmen Luongo, a shipping clerk, also was arrested and a warrant had been obtained for David Greenblatt, the firm's accountant. All faced the same charge. The firm holds large government contracts.

WHAT WINDOWS? HENNEMAN'S TOO BUSY RIGHT NOW

Panes Are Replaced, but by Whom?

When the police began chasing George Henneman to ask him who paid for the windows, he wished he were in Peoria. And what do you think? That's where he was yesterday, in room 242 at the Jefferson hotel.

He had nothing to say about smashed windows, or smashed windows paid for, but as business agent for the Chicago Painters' District council he was willing to be quoted upon some phases of the labor movement.

He was in Peoria, he said, to attend the Illinois State Painters' union convention. Would he be back when it was over to talk about windows? Well, no, as a labor executive he would have to remain in Peoria this week to attend the convention of the Illinois State Federation of Labor.

Women Help Man Escape.

The windows were in James Cappany's restaurant at 232 West Garfield boulevard. Thursday night vandals smashed them with bricks. Employés rushed out after the vandals and came back with a man they said was Henneman. Three women in the restaurant then helped this man escape.

On Friday, the windows were mysteriously replaced. Cappany and his wife told Lieut. George Barnes of the police labor detail that they had ordered no new windows. Barnes asked the company that put the windows in and was told that the new windows had been ordered by Joseph Casey, another business agent for the union.

Mrs. Cappany then recalled an illuminating circumstance: She hired the front of the building painted in May. Casey, she said, warned her that she had better discharge her painters and hire members of his union. But she didn't.

Takes Lie Detector Test.

Casey, questioned by Alexander Napoli, assistant state's attorney, agreed to take a lie detector test to prove that he hadn't ordered the new windows. The test was given him, but no results have been announced.

Results of another test were announced: Casey was taken before Mrs. Cappany to determine whether he was the man who had warned her to hire new painters. She said yes.

TWO EX-CONVICTS SENTENCED.

Two former convicts, arrested Wednesday after they had wrecked a vending machine in a tavern at 1113 Chicago avenue, were sentenced yesterday by Judge George L. Quilici in Racine avenue court to six months in the Bridewell. The charge was malicious mischief. The men are Steve Bronski, 35 years old, of 742 North May street, and Theodore Glowa, 24, of 1431 Walton street.

2 N. Y. OFFICIALS INDICTED; FACE PERJURY CHARGE

New City, N. Y., Sept. 19 [Special].—County Attorney Walter A. McDermott and Mrs. Helen Essex, town clerk of Orangetown, were among eight persons indicted today by the Rockland county grand jury which has been investigating gambling for the last four months. They were accused of perjury in connection with a gambling prosecution.

Mrs. Essex is vice president of the Republican county committee and was a delegate to the Republican national conventions of 1936 and 1940. In 1919 she defeated her husband, the late Harry Essex, for the post of town clerk. McDermott, a Republican, has served as county attorney since 1938. They were released on $5,000 bail each after pleading not guilty.

The Rockland county gambling inquiry was ordered by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and previously resulted in the conviction of Former Sheriff Edward C. Dorman on charges of contriving a lottery. After receiving today's report, County Judge John A. McKenna praised the jurors and dismissed them.

SALVAGE LIST PREPARED FOR HOME GUIDANCE

Search for Acceptable Articles Asked.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—Each housewife in the nation shortly will receive a list showing just what items of scrap to be found around the home and farm contain material essential for war production.

The list, prepared by the American Industries Salvage committee, lists more than 100 items and serves as a guide for making a systematic search.

The War Production board announced today that local salvage committees will be responsible for getting at least one copy of the list into every home. It will be ready for distribution next week.

Bath Tubs Acceptable.

Following are some of the items on the list:

Girdles and Garters.

RUBBER—Girdles, shower caps, gloves, tires, tubes, boots, galoshes and rubbers, baby pants, plug stoppers, nipples, floor mats, sponges, aprons, garters, toys, shower curtains, rubber washers, rubber corks, rubber covered wires, seat pads, soles and heels, raincoats, combs, bands, pencil erasers, garden hose, hot water bottles, balls, swim suits, bathing caps, mattresses, sheets, tennis shoes, bath mats, jar rings.

STATE WILL ASSIGN MORE TRUCKS TO AID IN COLLECTING SCRAP

State highway trucks not engaged in vital work on arterial highways will be assigned to aid in scrap collection drives in communities where local trucking facilities have been exhausted, Gov. Green asserted last night.

He declared that altho the state's trucks already have been engaged in hauling scrap in downstate communities, their participation will be expanded as a direct contribution to the war effort. He explained that the participation has been limited only by the pressing need for highway maintenance work which is carried on largely during the summer months. More trucks will be available in the late fall and winter.

Robert Tieken and George M. Eisenberg, co-chairmen of the salvage division of the Illinois Council of Defense, reported to Gov. Green that a maximum of 45 state trucks have been employed in scrap drives at any one time in downstate counties.

"The state highway department has done yeoman service in our scrap collection campaign," they said.

CITY BOASTS 11,000 SALVAGE DEPOTS; PLANS 9,000 MORE

William L. McFetridge, Chicago area salvage director, announced approximately 11,000 waste metal salvage depots have been established in the city, principally by civilian defense block organizations, and said his office hopes to increase this total to 20,000 by Oct. 1.

He announced 80 principal downtown office building are being asked to set up salvage depots in lobbies. The first, McFetridge said, will be established tomorrow in the Randolph and Wells building, 130 North Wells street, as a model for other buildings. Downtown Parking Stations, Inc., he reported, will set up depots tomorrow in the 16 downtown garages and parking lots it operates, and other parking lot operators are being asked to follow suit.

Depots are to be set up in several hundred more service stations, as well as in schools thruout the city, eh added.

4 MILLION MEN IN ARMY ALONE SAYS GEN. ULIO

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—Disclosure that the army alone has expanded to 4,000,000 men was made today by Maj. Gen. James A. Ulio, the adjutant general, in a report on methods used for assignment of soldiers.

President Roosevelt had said 4,000,000 were under arms, but did not explain whether the figure included the navy and other armed services. Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, indicated in recent testimony before a congressional committee that the strength of the army will exceed 4,500,000 by the end of this year.

Chile Marks Army Day with Parade of 10,000

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 19 (AP).—Chile celebrated its annual Army day today with a review of 10,000 soldiers and sailors by President Juan Antonio Rios. In the reviewing stand with the President were high officials and diplomats, including those of the axis powers. Overhead roared air force planes recently acquired from the United States. The mechanized ground equipment displayed was of United States manufacture.

Lovely Receptionist Knows All Answers.

Nurse Plays Cupid

LONDON, Sept. 19 (AP).—Dozens of members of the women's auxiliary air force today were puzzled when a nurse asked each of them: "Are you Brenda?" Their questioner was Nurse Jane Cresswell, who was seeking to repair a storybook romance between an American soldier and a WAAF which was shattered by a black-out accident. It seems Pvt. Eugene Cohen of Pittsburgh met Brenda while on leave. En route to meet her again at King's Cross station, Cohen was hit by a taxicab. At St. George's hospital he kept saying: "I must meet Brenda." Nurse Cresswell decided to find her at the station. She failed 24 times, but the 25th WAAF she queried was Brenda.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 4 [By Air Mail.]—Life for the corps of women who sit long hours behind the reception desks in the Washington club or the American Eagle club has its brighter side in some of the questions asked by American soldiers on their first leave in London.

Listen in with me at the Washington club, near the desk of a lovely woman with golden hair, an Irish-French heritage, and a rich, throaty lilt in her voice.

A young lieutenant approaches to ask the receptionist to dinner. He is told she is married, the mother of a 6 year old daughter, and therefore uninterested.

"Well, I only wanted to talk to you about my wife," he says, crestfallen.

Two Bring Gifts.

There was the case, too, of the soldier whom the lady at the desk assisted the night before to get to his rooming house. He insisted the next day on making her a present of a pair of silk stockings he had been saving. Or the military policeman who gets an occasional grapefruit from home and brings it to the lady at the desk to send on to her daughter in the country.

But most of the men ask what they can do of an evening, or what sights to see. And these volunteer Red Cross workers quickly put them on to an inexpensive sight-seeing service, or one of the conducted tours of the houses of parliament, or hand out free tickets to a good show or a movie or a lecture or, in many cases, suggest where they can go to dance and meet a nice girl.

Men of Chicagoland.

On the register at this desk are the names of many men from Chicagoland. Some of them are:

Chicago: Sergt. Charles J. Orlowski, Pvts. William W. Work, J. Tichman, A. W. Di Pietro, R. J. Fraser, Hyman Chapman, Edward L. La Parta; Ensign K. H. Bergson, Coxswain Max Brisbane, Sergt. G. E. Renner, Sergt. Ralph Fisher, Sergt. Joseph S. Pietrzyk, Pvts. Joseph S. Fifefiak, S. D. Richstein, H. N. Rosegren, C. E. Ruber, Ross Schwin, G. Voleta, J. J. O'Brien, Conrad Utrecht, James F. McCourt, G. McMahon, C. A. McFarlan; Corp. George Waller, 724 North Harvey avenue, Oak Park; Pvt. H. F. Bailey, 528 Carpenter street, Oak Park; Corp. C. A. Bartlett, 521 Jackson street, Forest Park; Pvts. Walter S. Dora, Hammond, Ind.; L. Anderson, Batavia; James H. Roughton, Urbana; D. E. Parker, Quincy, and Howard E. Robertson, Galesburg.

Her Mail Is Heavy.

Near by at the American Eagle club, which was formed in December, 1939, to care for the American volunteers in the RAF, the visitor finds another woman of infinite patience, Mrs. F. E. Dexter, presiding at the information desk.

Her daily mail is staggering. From all of the far-flung fighting fronts, and from training bases, Americans write her to inquire about their buddies or to ask for help.

One pilot recently wrote from a German prison camp asking for mail. Another, Pilot R. D. Shumway of Statesboro, Ga., also writing from a prison camp, said he just wanted to let Mrs. Dexter know that his address had been changed.

"That's a pip," laughed Mrs. Dexter. "I'd always been after him to let me know his changes before and he never would. But I'm awfully glad to know he's alive. He had been missing since June 3."

Such letters Mrs. Dexter always sends on to the boys' parents. Hundreds of soldiers keep writing in to get on the weekly radio program aired by the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Among Mrs. Dexter's "clients" are more than 200 men from Illinois, all except 50 from in and near Chicago. Their names and addresses, as taken from the register, were:

F. S. Greene, 739 9th street, Wilmette; M. Freeman, Edgewater Beach hotel; George Popham, Drexel boulevard; F. H. Galbraith, 210 South Cross street, Wheaton; C. M. Holman, 7159 Eggleston avenue; E. Name with a Story.

The name of Eugene Pendleton, 4047 Kenmore avenue, a sergeant-pilot, had a check mark opposite his name. That meant, said Mrs. Dexter, that he was shot down in March and reported missing.

But word had just come thru the International Red Cross in the form of a card from Pendleton in a German prison camp. He reported himself well, adding that he had been shot down on Friday, the 13th. This message was sent on to his mother on the weekly radio broadcast.

Tickets for Social

More than 375 cakes yesterday were on their way to American service men as a result of an all-day social sponsored by zone 11 of community 7 in division 4 of the Chicago civilian defense organization. The social, which required donation of a cake, cookies or a carton of cigarets for admittance, was held at 3640 Grand avenue. Mrs. Jewell Callahan, 1217 North Monticello avenue, chairman of the committee for the social, said numerous gifts of cookies and 12 cartons of cigarets were donated in addition to the cakes.

100 LOOP STORES KEEP OPEN TILL 9 TOMORROW NIGHT

Weekly Shopping Evening to Help War Workers.

Many millions of dollars worth of retail merchandise concentrated in the stores of downtown Chicago will be available to evening shoppers tomorrow and following Mondays. More than 100 stores, the State Street council has announced, will keep their doors open until 9 p. m. on the first shopping day of the week.

This change from traditional policy is a concession to workers in war industry whose duties prevent them from getting into the loop during the regular sales hours, according to H. W. Rieger, executive secretary of the council. Another advantage, it has been explained, is that the evening shopping time will permit husbands and wives to visit the stores together.

Special Transportation.

The council reported that the city and interurban transportation agencies have made arrangements for additional facilities to handle the Monday night crowds, and that parking, for those who cannot avoid using their cars, is easier than in the daylight hours.

Special displays of new fall fashions for men and women will be ready for tomorrow, and many of the stores will emphasize gifts for soldiers and sailors who are so far from home that Christmas remembrances for them must be mailed months in advance.

Tried by Some Since July.

Monday evening opening is not an untried experiment. Loop merchants have stayed open at night in the busy holiday seasons. Early in July several clothing firms and specialty shops kept open until the 9 o'clock curfew and regarded the results as so satisfactory that they have kept the system in effect.

Participating in the new schedule of hours, beginning tomorrow, will be stores handling a wide variety of merchandise, the firms adding up to more than 100 store units. Those on Michigan and Wabash avenues and other loop streets, as well as nearly all on State street, will coöperate in the program. Some firms with suburban branches will keep them open also.

WOMAN KILLED IN COLLAPSE OF STORE; 11 HURT

Cheyenne, Wyo., Sept. 19 (AP).—A woman was killed and 11 persons were injured today in the collapse of a large grocery building. The roof fell in, two brick walls were leveled, and parts of the two remaining walls gave way.

Coroner Paul Worland said the woman killed was Mrs. John Bogensberger, 36 years old, mother of five children and wife of a Union Pacific railroad shop foreman.

Five of the 40 or 50 persons in the store were injured seriously and were taken to hospitals.

NATION WARNED IT FACES ACUTE FOOD SHORTAGE

Draft and War Jobs Force Farm Shutdowns.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—Warnings were sounded on Capitol hill today that the United States and her allies face serious shortages of vital food supplies within the next year as a result of administration policies toward farm labor and the failure of the government to check recent marketing practices which are threatening the production of beef.

The administration has allowed farm labor to be drafted or drawn into war plants without provision for replacing them, it was charged. At the same time, Chairman Harry S. Truman [D., Mo.] of the senate committee investigating the war program, disclosed that unfattened, grass fed cattle is being rushed to market prematurely because of the heavy demand for meat.

Meanwhile, similar alarm was expressed by the agricultural committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce which asserted that besides the withdrawal of man power from the farming areas there is the added peril of shortages of essential farm equipment. The committee urged that farm prices be kept on a level which will serve as an incentive for production on a scale to meet the demands of the war effort despite the reduced labor market and material shortages.

Withdrawal Called Dangerous.

"During the last year farmers have produced abundantly and prospects of a bountiful harvest of essential commodities are now most promising," the group stated in a formal report. "But for many weeks there have been indications that withdrawal of man power from the farms has reached dangerous proportions and that even the producing facilities were in the process of curtailment. In the light of these developments, it is essential that consideration should be given to the maintenance of the efficiency and productive capacity of the agricultural industry."

An investigation into the cattle feeding program has already been started by the Truman committee, it was disclosed, while members of the house agricultural committee are preparing for an inquiry into the farm labor problems.

Quick Change Demanded.

Chairman Hampton P. Fulmer [D., S. C.] of the house group, asserted that present administration policies "must be changed and changed quickly if this country and the allies we are expected to feed are going to escape an acute shortage of food."

There have been many complaints in recent months that draft boards in agricultural regions have been more interested in filling their quotas than in safeguarding the supply of farm labor. Members of congress have urged repeatedly that agricultural workers be granted deferments where necessary to keep farm production at a maximum.

Fulmer also accused Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Man Power commission, of permitting industrial employers to fill jobs in war plants at the expense of farm employers, who are powerless to prevent the migration of their workers to better paying jobs in the cities.

Officials Face Quiz.

The committee members, scheduled to begin their inquiry next week, will hear testimony from McNutt, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, head of the selective service system, and Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard. The group has agreed to adopt an aggressive attitude toward the problem, Fulmer said, and will demand a full explanation of their programs from these officials.

"If something isn't done quickly, we won't have anything to eat," warned Rep. Stephen Page [D., Ga.], a member of the committee. "It's time we begin to take this thing seriously."

"The situation is quite serious and rapidly growing more so," declared Rep. Clifford R. Hope [R., Kan.], ranking minority member. "There is a real possibility that in another year or so we may turn up with an actual food shortage."

Farms Being Abandoned.

Other members from agricultural states told of the growing alarm over the shortage of farm workers. Several said they have received word that whole farms are being abandoned because their owners cannot find men to work them. Rep. Cliff Clevenger [R., O.], said that nearly 100 farms in one county in his district have no operators because of the draft and migration of the work^rs to cities in search of war work.

In announcing the inquiry into the cattle feeding program, Sen. Truman said that he has received numerous complaints from cattle men that packers are bidding so high for the unfattened beef that it is being sold at top prices . The normal procedure, he said, is for feeders in the grain states to buy most of their cattle for feeding on corn and other grain for later sale as top grade beef.

"However, with the great demand for beef from our own troops and our allies, and with higher wages creating a greater domestic demand for meat, there has been a rush to buy the unfattened cattle," he declared.

"The consequence is that cattle that ordinarily would be fattened this year and sold next is going directly to the market, imperiling next year's supply."

Bumper Crop Provides Wheat Housing Problem

Without storage space, sacks of wheat from a bumper crop are stacked in tentlike piles along railroad tracks in Mabton, Wash. They are to be roofed or covered with canvas.

MARINE CHIEF, HOME FROM MIDWAY, IS SURE U. S. CAN HOLD ISLAND

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—Col. Harold D. Shannon, commandant of the marine corps ground forces at Midway Island, said today that the overconfident Japanese attackers last June "never got within 100 miles of the island despite their vast fleet and supporting plane force."

"And I think the marines will hold on to Midway Island," Col. Shannon said proudly, in an interview approved by the navy. "The boys have their own creed. They say 'we'll hold it till hell freezes over.' And I believe them."

With regard to the fighting qualities of the Japanese, Col. Shannon asserted that "the Japs are to be contended with as long as they have superior forces in any location, but once the forces are eualed there is no question of the outcome." Col. Shannon was one of the first marine commandants in the Pacific centers of action to return to the mainland to make reports.

Stabber of Woman Shot in Chase; Bites Policeman

WRITER PRAISES HARDY ALASKA HIGHWAY CREW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 19.—"There are no punks among the engineers and other Americans building the Alaska highway," writes Peter Elliott in the Vancouver Daily Province today after a tour extending over the route to Fort Nelson. They have stuck it out thru superhuman difficulties in taming the muskeg and deep snow.

Big husky Red McCusker, master guide and big game hunter who has known every inch of that inhospitable northland wilderness since he was a boy 30 years ago, hands it to the Yanks, some of how had never seen a dog team. Red's group once ran out of grub. "We scabbed on the dogs and ate their food," he said.

Over the old winter trail between Fort St. John and Fort Nelson they fared better, seeing plenty of moose and caribou. Red testifies that the United States engineers could have chosen many routes but the one they chose is the best. A taciturn son of the silent places, Red says "those Yanks are good boys. I gave them a year to get thru; now you can expect that road open and in service weeks before Christmas."

PREDICT LABOR SHORTAGE WILL CUT FARM YIELD

Leaders Tell of Drain to Army and Industry.

Unless the government takes action to curtail the drafting of farm workers and their movement to high paying jobs in war plants, farm production will be critically curtailed in the northern Illinois area, farm leaders declared yesterday. Especially hard hit will be dairy and live stock industries, which require more experienced workers than grain farming, it was said.

The farm spokesmen said members of draft boards serving predominantly rural areas are confronted with an apparently insurmountable problem of meeting draft quotas and leaving sufficient labor to man farms. In view of selective service regulations, they said, the boards generally have done a fine job.

Predict Shortage in Spring.

Most of these draft boards said they have deferred many farm workers until December to permit harvesting of bumper 1942 crops, but that it appears most of these men will go to the army during the winter and accordingly the problem will be greatly increased by next spring.

Lee Shaddle, Plano, member of Kendall county's only draft board, said the board acted on the theory that most farmers not more than 55 years old, in good health and with adequate machinery, could get along without a farm hand by coöperating with neighbors in busy seasons. He said only one son of a farmer had been drafted there so far, altho many have enlisted and numerous other farm workers have been drafted.

Daniel Knowlton, member of Will county's No. 3 board, said 75 to 100 out of 750 or 800 farm workers registered with his board have been taken and the rest deferred at least thru the present year. His board has drafted promptly any farm worker who was deferred for agricultural reasons and who subsequently took a better paying industrial job, he said. John Woock, chairman of Will county board No. 1, said about 30 out of several hundred available farm workers in his board's district have been drafted.

Many men in Kane county's No. 2 board, with 7,200 registrants, have been deferred until December, but will be drafted then, John McDonald, a board member, said. Dr. Henry W. Sandeen, chairman of McHenry county's No. 2 board, said that until his board receives different instructions from selective service headquarters only those farm workers "absolutely essential" will be deferred.

Dairy Farmer to Sell Herd.

In stressing the seriousness of the farm labor problem, Arthur C. Johnson, Kane county farm adviser, said there is a growing tendency thruout the Chicago milkshed for dairy farmers either to curtail operations or turn to other types of farming because of the growing labor shortage.

Ira N. Russell Jr., president of the Kane County Farm bureau, said one farmer in the county is selling his entire herd of 61 dairy cows at auction Tuesday because he can't obtain capable help. "You can't blame farm workers who are not of military age for taking much better paying jobs in war plants," he said.

George T. Swaim, Kankakee county farm adviser, said a recent survey showed his county had lost 600 farm boys thru the draft and about twice as many to war industries.

He is a tire specialist. He works with tires, lives with tires, knows them inside and out. He knows why some tires don't deliver the miles that were built into them. He knows the little things to look for that mean trouble ahead—and how to correct the fault in time.

No matter what make of tires you have now, or what their condition, your Goodyear Dealer can help you get more miles out of them. He has the right equipment, he uses first-grade materials, he works by tested methods. If you will get his advice and act on it, you may add months to your car's span of life.

5 SURE WAYS TO GET MORE TIRE MILES

1. Check air pressure at least once a week. Too little air means excessive side wear, possible internal injuries—too much air causes extra center wear, makes bruises worse.
2. Have your tires "cross-switched" every 2500 miles.... This evens up the wear on all your tires, helps you get more total mileage.
3. Have your tires inspected now—and again every 2500 miles, inside and outside. Small cuts, scrapes, bruises may ruin a tire if not fixed in time.
4. Have wheel alignment and wheel balance checked now—and again every 2500 miles. This checks uneven wear, adds tire mileage.
5. Have your brakes checked now—and again every 2500 miles. When you grind away good tread rubber, you throw away good tire miles.

Your Goodyear Dealer will tell you frankly which of these services you need and when to get them done.

SLOW

Remember . . . "HALF SPEED AHEAD" doubles tire mileage. Make it a rule to drive at 30 regularly—and never over 35. Don't burn up good tires that cannot be replaced.

INFLATION CURB FIGHT EXPECTED ON PARITY ISSUE

G. O. P. in Senate to Back Floor Amendments.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—A fight over terms of the new anti-inflation legislation loomed in congress today as leaders of both houses prepared for debate on the measure next week.

The bills, which were reported simultaneously last night by house and senate committees, would give President Roosevelt broad powers over farm prices, salaries, and wages.

It was apparent today the chief battle will be over farm parity prices, altho it was learned many other amendments will be offered and attempts will be made to write in a more rigid wage fixing formula than that provided in either the house or the senate version.

G. O. P. to Back Changes.

Senate Republicans, after conferring for two hours, said they agreed the bill as reported represents a "substantial improvement" over earlier drafts.

They declared, however, their intention of supporting various amendments which will be offered from the floor. Sen. Charles L. McNary [R., Ore.], the minority leader, said the amendments will be offered by both Democrats and Republicans.

McNary said he understands that Sen. John H. Bankhead [D., Ala.], a leader of the powerful farm bloc, will demand that the legislation specify the inclusion of farm labor costs in computing parity prices for agricultural products.

Altho defeated on this question in the committee, farm senators are said to be confident they will gather enough extra support on the floor to prevail over the opposition of the administration to this move.

Bills Specify Farm Ceilings.

Both bills would authorize President Roosevelt to fix a new ceiling on farm prices at parity, or the highest price in the period between Jan. 1 and Sept. 15 of this year, whichever is higher. The present price fixing law sets the ceiling at 110 per cent of parity.

While not opposing the fixing of lower maximum prices, farm members sought to rewrite the parity formula to include increased farm labor costs resulting from the draft and from other wartime conditions. President Roosevelt declared himself opposed to a change in the parity formula, and his stalwarts prevailed in the committees of both houses.

Parity is the price designed to give farmers the same relative purchasing power from the sale of their products that they enjoyed in the 1909-'14 period. As presently computed it takes into consideration taxes and interest on debts, but not labor costs.

Date Varies in Measures.

The senate bill also authorizes and directs the president to "stabilize" salaries and wages "so far as practicable" on the basis of levels which existed Sept. 15. The house bill contains the same proviso, but makes Aug. 15 the base date.

In his ultimatum to congress, requesting action by Oct. 1, Mr. Roosevelt sought only legislation to enable him to fix new ceilings on farm prices. He said he would fix wages without authority of congress. Many members who resented the tone of the message asserted, however, they would have nothing to do with revising the farm price ceilings unless the same legislation dealt also with wages.

The members also gave the President a deadline—Nov. 1—before which he must act under the legislation. This was their answer to his Oct. 1 "You do it or I will" ultimatum.

WOOD WORKER HELD TO JURY AS DRAFT DODGER

Jack Campo, a wood worker, 32 years old, was held to the federal grand jury yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on a charge of failure to report for induction into the army.

John M. Kiely, assistant United States attorney, told Commissioner Walker that the government had suggested that Campo might not be punished if he reported and that Campo, who lives at 836 Madison street, had replied:

"War is black magic. It is a method of dishonest politicians, monopolists, and false humanitarians to impose their dastardly wills upon a helpless population. This is an economic war and I want no part of it."

Boost Quota in Chicago USO Drive to $1,750,000

The United Service Organizations drive to raise 105 per cent of a $1,750,000 goal has now reached $1,747,891. The additional 5 per cent was added to cover expenses unexpectedly brought about by the increased need of entertainment for service men in Chicago.

HOME ROBBED DURING PARTY.

Burglars yesterday broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sang, 7719 Phillips avenue, while they were entertaining guests, and stole cash and other loot amount to $100.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

A. C. writes: "I am a dentist, 39, married but with no other dependents. I have been practicing for 12 years. My practice has grown to the point where I have to turn patients away. Today I received my classification of 1-A. I appealed to my local board and appeal officer who told me that I was 1-A and would be inducted. The medical assignment board told me that I couldn't apply for a commission until I received my induction papers. Is this true, and if it is, why?"

ANSWER: The surgeon general's office sent thru an order to medical procurement offices which, in effect, closes the door to a commission for professional men who have passed their 37th birth date. There was nothing in the order, according to local authorities, explaining why doctors and dentists ceased to be doctors and dentists just because they had passed a certain birth date. It was explained, however, that professional men subject to the draft would be given opportunity to apply for a commission after they had been drafted, but no plausible explanation was given as to why these men had to wait to be drafted before they could be commissioned. If the army has enough doctors and dentists, then these men should apply to the office of naval officer procurement and see if they can serve that arm of service.

ANSWER: No; if you were covered under the provisions of the old age and survivors insurance program prior to induction. Supposing you were covered from Jan. 1, 1937—the date the system started—until Jan. 1, 1941, you would have four years of coverage. Since the law permits a man to be out of the system one month for each month you were covered, you will continue to be covered by social security for four years, or until Dec. 31, 1945. However, your employment record is the determining factor.

F. S. H. writes: "A group of teachers has about 15 questions which have not yet been answered in your column and they would like to submit them to you. Do you want them singly or all together?"

ANSWER: We thought about all the questions that could be asked had been asked, but if these teachers have some new ones, we would be glad to hear from them. We would prefer these questions singly and with supporting data.

D. H. R. writes: "My son, 19, has an appointment to West Point. He is now in college. Would this defer him till after the examination in March if the draft law lowers the ages to the 18 and 19 year old group?"

ANSWER: This is one of those "if" propositions. If your son becomes 20 between now and March and before he takes and passes the examination, he could be called in the draft. If he takes and passes the examination, he becomes a cadet, and is then a part of the nation's armed forces, and is no longer under the jurisdiction of the draft board. If the age limits should be lowered before he takes and/or passes the examination, he would, of course, be subject to induction.

REPORTS RECORD OF COAL SALE TO SCHOOL BURNED

C. Vernon Thompson, assistant state's attorney, was told yesterday that books necessary to his study of school board purchases in Cicero had been accidentally burned.

The records of the Cicero board of education, district 99, show coal purchases aggregating $30,397 in 1941 and 1942 from the Novak Brothers Coal company at Ogden and Cicero avenues in the suburb. When Thompson asked the company's records, for comparison, he was told by the company president, James Novak, that a yard foreman had burned the sales records by mistake.

Thompson thereupon summoned Novak to appear before the grand jury tomorrow in the hope that the president may be able to help the inquiry from memory. Thompson is studying purchases of the school board at the request of the Cicero educational council, a group of 19 organizations.

ACTS TO CANCEL CITIZENSHIP OF BUND TROOPER

J. Albert Woll, United States attorney, petitioned in the United States District court yesterday for revocation of the citizenship of Carl August Vogl, 40 years old, a German born milkman living at 2250 Berteau avenue. Woll said Vogl was a member of the German bund when he became an American citizen six years ago and that he remained a member of the bund in its storm trooper branch. Woll and Austin Hall, assistant United States attorney, said Vogl frequently uttered sentiments of loyalty to Germany and disloyalty to the United States. Vogl is married and the father of two children.

RELEASE STURCH ON BOND; JAILED IN ASSAULT CASE

Eddie Sturch, ex-convict politician of the 42d ward, was charged with disorderly conduct yesterday after being questioned at the East Chicago avenue police station about the slugging of R. Hill Carruth, 51 years old, an insurance man living at 179 Fuller lane, Winnetka.

Sturch was arrested Friday night as he was preparing to leave the North Western railroad station for Wisconsin with five bags. Capt. Frank Reynolds of the East Chicago avenue police ordered him locked up. The captain gave notice that as long as he is police commander of the district Sturch will "push no one around." Sturch was released on $100 bond and ordered to appear in the station's court tomorrow after he had filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

Reynolds said that Sturch slugged Carruth without provocation Wednesday night in a tavern at 660 North Clark street, injuring the insurance man so severly that it was necessary to take him to the Henrotin hospital. Sturch gave his residence as 616 Rush street.

THE REPUBLIC IN STORMY WEATHER.

Congress probably will get a bill passed before Mr. Roosevelt's deadline of Oct. 1 to regularize the procedure by which he otherwise intends to assert his assumed authority to annul an act and fix farm prices regardless of it. Such action by the legislature would temporarily relieve the situation, temporarily and superficially. It might only be a postponement of the day when executive order completely governs this country unless a final stop be put to the idea that the administrative department has superseded the legislative.

As was expected, there are people who pretend an intelligent and intellectual conception of American principles and who, nevertheless, applaud Mr. Roosevelt's determination to be a leader unhampered by constitutional restrictions and who are trying to lead the country to an acceptance of this revolutionary procedure. Their motives are fairly obvious. They are tired of the republican form of government with its representative system and are ready for the makeover into a totalitarian set-up in which the executive order is final and in which the representative body is retained, if at all, merely as a ratifying branch which receives and accepts the law.

This is the common form of transition from popular free government to autocracy. Examples of it, from the time of Probus to the present, are numerous and each one represents the rise and fall of a free people who gradually lost the powers inherent in them to a man bold, resourceful and powerful, plausible and fascinating on his road to power and ruthless and unconciliatory when he got it.

It is the plague of each people that has won a measure of independence and liberty and then lost it to have become indifferent to the precise things which, if retained, would have protected them. Usually they first lose their perception of what is invaluable to them when they are distracted by events, distressed by internal conditions, or oppressed by fears of enemies outside. They then begin to distrust the efficacy of the processes which protect their freedom and, in panic or misplaced enthusiasms, they consent to the acts which destroy them.

Americans may think that they are peculiarly endowed with resources to resist successfully any such tendencies and that they can trifle with some well worn fundamentals which may have been repeated from textbooks so often that they have lost their moral force, their instructive and admonitory voices. In fact, the American people are not so endowed. They are distinctly in a worse case than, for instance, the British.

In parliament the responsible members of the British government are at all times accountable to the representative assembly. Mr. Churchill may now exercise great authority and have in his hands great power, but the Englishman knows that all his conduct is reviewable and any act may, at the will of parliament, result in his retirement. Mr. Chamberlain, his predecessor, encountered that and Mr. Churchill yet may. Our executive holds an office of different character. Only once in our history has congress undertaken to remove a President and then did not do so altho the animosities were almost without parallel. And we know how easy it is—we certainly know now—for an executive to keep himself in office by using his prerogatives to make himself popular and to convey the idea of his indispensability.

The American people confront not only wars, of which there is no end in sight, but peace which will be but little less critical. We have in store years of struggle, both in war and peace, of disordered economy, of problems greater than we have ever faced before, and the future is clearly one which will test the stamina, the common sense, and the endurance of this nation. There may be many moments when doubts will arise as to the competence of our system of government, with its guaranties of freedom, to survive to do the necessary work and to bring this nation thru.

There are people who profess a conviction that our system of government is outdated, that it is based upon economic, political, and social fallacies or upon ideas which have spent their force. They wish to discard our principles and formulas and venture out into a system of governmental controls which will make every individual subject to the orders of governmental managers. When Mr. Roosevelt said that he would override a law of congress and substitute his executive order for it he gave great encouragement to these subversionists because he indicated that he was of their way of thinking. They had reason to believe that the people would fail to see the point involved and that they would accustom themselves to the new type of government.

Unfortunately, part of the damage has been done. Even if congress grants authority and prevents assumption of power, there nevertheless has been the threat of it and that is the warning of things to come.

THE EXPLANATION.

A great many Chicagoans who have been unable to decide just what to think about the Congress street superhighway project have now had their mystification removed. It is not a method of lining the pockets of real estate speculators, as some believed. It is not a means of putting legal, real estate, and engineering experts back on the pay roll at fat fees, as was surmised in other quarters. The explanation is far more simple. The Congress street highway is a patriotic project to aid the war collection drive for scrap iron and steel.

We have this assurance from Philip Harrington, city commissioner of subways and superhighways, via Walter J. Malatesta, a salvage expert for the War Production board. Mr. Malatesta discloses that he has been informed by Mr. Harrington that 8,055 tons of scrap will be salvaged when buildings being acquired by the city for the Congress street right of way are razed. The city is paying almost 1 million dollars for these properties, so the scrap Mr. Harrington hopes to realize will cost $124.14 a ton.

The ceiling price on steel scrap is now $19.17 a ton, and it does seem that there ought to be some cheaper way of getting it in than Mr. Harrington's.

THE PRICE OF FARMS.

Farm conditions are brilliant. Altho production is so large as to be historic, prices are the highest in years. In a recent speech Leon Henderson placed the income of farmers for the year at 15 billion dollars. The biggest previous figure was 14½ billions in 1919. It was down to 4½ billions in 1932, and has varied between 4 and 9 billions since then.

In years of short crops in the past prices have been high and when crops have been large prices have been low. Now both multiplier and multiplicand are big. There are over 3 billion bushels of corn in the fields, a record exceeded only in 1920 and then by only a little. The crop usually runs between 2 and 2½ billion bushels, but dipped to 1½ billions or a little less in the two drouth years of 1934 and 1936. Despite the large crop, it commands a high price—a price which in 14 years has been exceeded only in the drouth years.

There was never a wheat crop to compare with the miracle harvest of 1915 when 1 billion 8 million bushels were threshed. This year's is the closest thing to it. In the years since 1915 some of the crops have been close to half a billion bushels, but the market price now is the highest since 1929.

The smallest acreage since 1896 was sown to cotton this year, but the crop is the second largest in a decade. More lint per acre is being realized than ever before. And for this plenty the farmers will receive double the price which prevailed at the outbreak of this war in 1939. The 1942 price is about equal to that which prevailed in 1929.

Hogs are more numerous than ever before, but command World war prices. The $5 hog of a couple of years ago has been replaced by the $15 hog—more of them and worth 3 times as much per pound. In eight months 34 million hogs have come to the market, the most since the all-time record in 1924 when the total was only 3 per cent larger. Farmers sold more beef cattle last month than in any August in history. The average price was the highest since 1920. Sheep and lamb marketings have also established records, and the average price is the best in 20 years.

There are now more dairy cattle than ever before, and the average cow has upped her yield 1¾ pounds above the 10 year average. There is a ready market for all of it and butter sells at a 20 year peak. Farmers have 32 million more hens laying for them than last year, the total of 287 million being within a fraction of 1 per cent of the record. And nests never had so much in them. Taking as 1.000 an egg a day from every possible layer, the hens batted .398 in August compared with .395 the best previous performance. Despite the increased production of eggs, the price is the highest since 1921. To mention a few more items, there is more hay than ever, the potato crop yield per acre is epochal, the peanut thresh was phenomenal, and cranberries are more plentiful than in a long time, and bigger than usual. Despite all this, prices all along the line are unusually remunerative.

When any line of business does as well as this, it is a challenge to speculation. Those already in the industry seek to expand the scale of their operations, and others seek to get in on the good thing. Strange to relate, that is not taking place in agriculture at the present time. A. G. Black, head of the Farm Credit administration, in a speech in Chicago last week stated that farmers are not buying more land but are using their expanded income to get out of hock. Many farm mortgages are being paid ahead of schedule, Black said, and the number of farmers who have gotten completely out of debt is large. The price of farm land, despite bonanza returns, has leveled off.

It was different in the last war. Farm income rose from 6 billions in 1914 to 13 billions in 1918, to 14½ billions the next year and was 12½ billions in 1920. The policy of the Wilson administration was to encourage the buying of farms on credit. By a law passed in 1913, national banks were permitted to invest in farm mortgages and three years later the federal farm loan act was passed, providing for the creation of federal land banks and joint stock land banks. The new institutions lent money on farm land, using the mortgages as collateral for bonds sold to the public. A large amount of insurance company funds, which were rapidly expanding by this time, was also offered to farmers.

The high prices for agricultural products and the new credit facilities encouraged the farmers to bid up the price of land recklessly. Much farm land was bought purely as a speculation, the buyer expecting to sell in a short time at a profit. Farm mortgage debt increased from 4 1-3 billion dollars in 1914 to more than 10 billions by 1921 and nearly 11 billions at the peak in 1923. This credit inflated farm land values from an average of $40 per acre in 1914 to $70 per acre in 1920. All farm real estate was worth 39½ billions in 1914 and 66 billions six years later.

The sequel was an awful crash. The average price of land fell from $70 per acre to $28. All farm land and buildings declined to 31 billions from 66 billions. Even now, all farm real estate is worth only 36 billions, less than before the other war. The mortgage debt has been paid down to 6½ billions, the lowest in 25 years.

Gross farm income this year will equal about 40 per cent of farm values. In other words, farms are selling for 2½ times gross income. Before the war, the multiplier was 6 to 7 and in 1929 about 5¾.

Why are farms so cheap? One obvious explanation is the shortage of labor, with high wages drawing off a large part of the labor the draft doesn't take. Since 1935, 2 million people have gone to town from the farm. Secondly, the policy of the government is now not to get farmers into debt but to get them out of it. Then, too, the farm distress of the '20s and '30s is too recent to be forgotten, farmers have no confidence that the present prosperity will continue long, and are making no permanent commitments to capitalize present swollen earnings. Finally, farm values are no doubt affected by the general apathy toward speculation. Stocks aren't being bid up, either, and there is scarcely any demand for urban real estate.

We may not know what the most compelling reason is, but we can plainly observe the situation. It is that the farmer, tho strongly tempted to speculate, is keeping his head.

MOTHER OF THE YANKS

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON [By air mail].—In one corner of the lounge sat a man and a woman. He was a young American soldier, just back from the Dieppe raid and his first battle test.

Nerves tense and tight, he was pouring out the story of what he had done and what he had seen. And gradually the tenseness left his face, the soldier relaxed, and again was a fighting man fit for combat.

The woman who had been listening quietly was Mrs. Mary Y. Munford, formerly of Chicago, now of the American Red Cross. Cultured, gentle, kindly, and sympathetic, this gray haired mother of three sons, two of whom are in the navy, has become the mother overseas to thousands of American soldiers.

And this brief glimpse into the lounge of the Washington club, mecca of the American soldier in London, introduces the story of the great job being done overseas by the American Red Cross.

In contrast to the last war, when welfare work was handled by many agencies, this time the entire job is being done by the Red Cross. It's a new task for the Red Cross, being done with spirit and vigor by a group of trained professionals plus hundreds of volunteer British women.

Their work is also closely integrated with that of the special service troops, headed by Col. George E. Ramey, brother of Lieut. Richard Ramey, on leave from THE TRIBUNE's sport department. But the work of the special service troops, with their mobile units which bring victrolas, books, cigarets, and games to soldiers wherever they are in the field, is a separate story.

* *

Nine months ago the Washington club, one of 18 established all over Great Britain, was a badly blitzed and unoccupied hotel. The Red Cross decided it would make a good club.

William Gower, an American lawyer, took up the matter with the ministry of public works. The property was condemned, a fair rental was fixed by the ministry, and the club opened on July 4 under the direction of Husted Crumpf.

Today it is packed with soldiers on leave or permanently billeted in London. Behind the reception desk sits a corps of volunteer women workers, many of them titled Britons, many former Americans who married Englishmen.

These volunteers work long and hard hours, but they report that they love their work with the American boys. There are 200 of them in addition to a paid staff of 130, Crumpf, Mrs. Munford, and two young American Red Cross girls.

You walk thru the lounge where soldiers loll in bright cretonne colored easy chairs. At the piano a sailor begins batting out hot swing tunes, and the ever-going juke box is turned off while the men gather about the piano.

Up the stairs or in the elevator, if you prefer, you walk down the corridors inspecting rooms. There are two to four beds in each room, enough to sleep 265 men a night. Ultimately the Red Cross, by taking over other buildings as dormitories, or opening new clubs, hopes to have accommodations for between 5,000 and 7,000 men in London.

You test the mattresses and find them perfect. You marvel at the two pillows for each bed and fresh sheets every day. The bathrooms are clean and commodious, and on each floor are quiet reading rooms.

"This club is marvelous," said Sergt. Vern Lindquist of Minneapolis, Minn. "For 50 cents a day you get a room and breakfast, and the other meals are 20 cents each.

"And the English have certainly been swell to me. With my pals I stopped a man on the street the other day to ask a direction. He insisted on taking us there in a taxi and then wound up driving us all over London all day showing us the sights. Wouldn't let us pay a penny."

One big hit with every one is the food. The kitchen is staffed with women cooks and bossed by two of them who had cooked in America for 10 years. So the boys know that at least there is one place in London where you can count on American cooking.

The day of my visit luncheon consisted of soup, rice, fried onions, hamburgers, gravy, boiled potatoes, cauliflower, apple pie, and coffee. In the snack bar, which is always open for sandwiches, coffee, or coca-cola, we also found that great rarity, a cantaloupe.

Ice cold cola drinks are the really big treat for these American boys. But close behind runs the opportunity of getting ice cream and real American doughnuts from the doughnut machine.

"You've no idea what this means until you've been here awhile," said Pvt. First Class Douglas Hazzard of Syracuse, N. Y., whose uncle, Clifford O'Donnald, lives in the stockyards district. "To get coffee prepared the American way and cold drinks. And sheets on the bed. Man, O man!"

"We've tried to build a concentrated spot of home here in the club," explained Mrs. Munford, in between greeting new arrivals, waving to old friends, or tossing off a neat quip with soldiers.

"The idea was to make this a gracious, dignified place, full of warmth, so that no matter what kind of a home the soldier came from he would feel at home. We couldn't have done it without the great generosity of the British people, who have given us magnificent gifts and the hospitality of their homes to the soldiers on leave."

* *

There is always music in the air, usually the latest American swing, which is virtually the only popular music heard in London. Recently Mrs. Munford, who is assistant director of the club, tried out a musical experiment.

A group of English artists, supplied by the Council for the Encouragement of Music and Art, gave a recital of classical music for an hour on Sunday evening. It proved so successful that it is now a weekly feature, and more chairs have had to be added to the lounge room.

Now the room also contains a concert grand piano, loaned for the duration by an English woman, Miss Doris Tetley.

Thousands of Britons have opened their homes to the American fighters, offering everything from tea to a fortnight. Mrs. Munford's staff tries to match up the background of the soldier and his host to make the American as comfortable as possible.

Every week English women come in to darn socks for the soldiers. And one American woman donated 15 pounds [$60], which Mrs. Munford uses as an emergency loan fund.

"And every single loan has been repaid," she added proudly. "I feel that no American boy should be on the streets of London without a shilling in his pocket. So when the boys turn up broke I can usually help them."

And when a soldier comes back to the club with a heavy load of spirits on board, a not infrequent happening for men who have been long stationed in such a remote outpost as Iceland, this kindly woman and the staff put the boy to bed.

Does she scold him the next day?

"No, indeed," said Mrs. Munford. "That's his business. And, besides, our boys give very little trouble. They treat this place like their own club. We rarely need help from an M. P."

Another experiment which has worked well was her establishment of a house committee, composed of eight soldiers resident in London, representing all branches of the armed services.

One of the committee is a Chicago boy, Sergt. Bill Carey, 6565 Glenwood avenue, who enlisted in the Canadian forces in May, 1940, and transferred to the American army this June. He also gives a nightly news broadcast on American sports over the BBC solely for the American troops.

Sergt. Carey can't say enough in praise of the Red Cross overseas. And beware the man who hints to any soldier that he doesn't like the Red Cross. That man will have a fight on his hands.

"MY LEGS GIVE OUT."

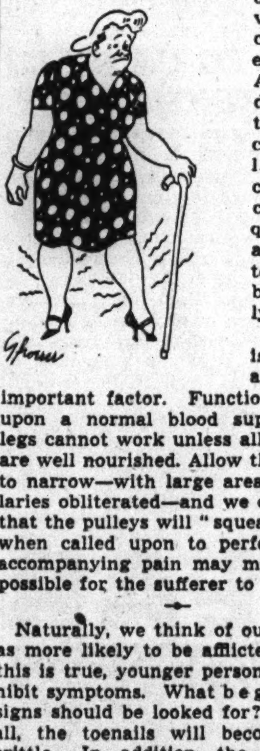
As age advances, more attention will need to be given the feet and lower legs. Particularly with those who are overweight, muscles may weaken and ligaments stretch. When walking becomes an ordeal, a vicious cycle may be established. As activity decreases the fibers continue to lose elasticity. In consequence they are unable to spring back quickly.



But there is another and very important factor. Function depends upon a normal blood supply. The legs cannot work unless all the parts are well nourished. Allow the arteries to narrow—with large areas of capillaries obliterated—and we can expect that the pulleys will "squeak" loudly when called upon to perform. The accompanying pain may make it impossible for the sufferer to get about.

Naturally, we think of our oldsters as more likely to be afflicted. While this is true, younger persons may exhibit symptoms. What beginning signs should be looked for? First of all, the toenails will become more brittle. In addition, the skin will atrophy [shrink] and feet which have perspired normally will cease to do so. Because the muscles are used less frequently they may waste away, and thus force the bones to receive more pressure, causing calluses to increase in size and number.

A very simple test will tell us whether the arterial circulation is substandard. With the patient lying down, the extremities are elevated and observed for pallor. If this is marked and appears rather quickly, the legs are then hung over the side of the bed, whereupon they will fill with vital fluid and turn dusky red.

The prospective victim, as a rule, is the one who complains that his hands and feet are more susceptible to cold. There is also a tendency to numbness and tingling—"going to sleep." Finally the individual may mention that he can scarcely walk a block without experiencing a cramp-like stab in the calf muscles. The seizure may be so severe that it will oblige him to stop and rest before he can go on. Cold weather aggravates the manifestation as will effort such as hill climbing. This is merely the cry of the muscles for more nutriment and hence the term, "intermittent claudication" [limping].

What can be done? Contrast baths are of real value. The legs are plunged into warm water [105 degrees F.] and allowed to remain for a minute or two. Then they are placed in cool water [60 degrees F.]. The procedures alternate for a total of 20 to 30 minutes. The last immersion should be in the heated liquid. Thereafter the parts are dried thoroly, covered with talcum powder, and massaged gently with stroking movements toward the body.

Sitz baths likewise are beneficial. The patient is seated in a tub with the fluid 12 inches deep, at a temperature of about 100 degrees F. Each daily session lasts for 20 to 30 minutes. Dry heat may well be avoided, as burns will be difficult to heal.

We should remind ourselves that certain toxins, particularly tobacco and alcohol—when used to excess—may injure capillaries. Unfortunately, we cannot lay new pipes as we can replace worn out city mains. We hope to make our human channels last.

MOTORISTS' VISION.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 14.—When the war ends, our rubber shortage problem will be under control and our wartime restrictions on use of automobiles, now imposed as a necessary sacrifice for victory, will be removed.

When that time comes, is it inevitable that our highway slaughter be resumed? Must we resign ourselves to the killing or injuring of over 4,000 Americans by automobiles every day in the year?

The automobile is a mechanical device as much as any machine in any industrial plant. When any machine has a continuing record of killing and maiming human beings the first logical step is to analyze the machine itself and take every possible measure to make it safe to operate.

The element most essential to the safe operation of any motor car is full and adequate vision for the driver. But the driver of the modern pleasure car, particularly of late years, has had his effective sight curtailed to an alarming degree.

The operator has been moved away back until he sits actually nearer the rear than the front of his car, and his view is impaired by an exaggerated hood, bloated fenders and wide windshield corner posts. As a result, the operator forfeits about 90 per cent of his useful sight. Guesswork driving, careless driving, reckless driving, and accidents are inevitable under these conditions.

Commercial vehicles have seen the light. Buses and trucks have put operators up front, and have cut accidents sharply thereby. Army jeep and transport trucks are designed to give better vision to the driver. This is the ideal time for the automobile industry to make a great forward step in solving the paramount problem of safety.

ARTHUR W. STEVENS,
President, Automobile Safety Association.

CAN'T GET IT OUT THE DOOR.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—After reading all the appeals for scrap steel, I would like to let you know of my case. I have a 1,000 gallon oil tank in my basement which has a leak and is of no use to me. This tank is made of plate steel and has to be cut up before it can be taken out of the basement. I'm trying to give this scrap tank for war material, but I've had about five people tell me the profit they'll make on the scrap tank is not equal to the cost of the labor.

I still am willing to give this tank to any one who will cut it up and get it out of the basement. PERPLEXED.

HELPFUL POLICEMAN.

Berwyn, Ill., Sept. 12.—On Sept. 10 I was walking south on Wabash avenue looking for a piano company. Not being able to find this company, I asked a police officer for information. He was so courteous and accommodating that I think he deserves utmost credit. He was officer No. 2276. MRS. LILLIAN BRUHN.

WOMEN PAST 40.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Every day THE TRIBUNE'S "Help Wanted — Women" columns seem to grow larger. Yet the employers seem to be overlooking one large group of women—those in the 40 to 60 age bracket. Most ads give 40 as the age limit. The woman between 40 and 60 who has been active and energetic all her life now has her family raised, and, in many cases, gone from home. She is still in her prime, rich in experience and patience, and has none of the nagging responsibilities that harry a younger working woman.

At the present time the only work open for her is the hardest of all—standing on her feet all day behind a counter, or doing heavy housework—which a woman will turn to only when desperate.

Why can't they do the general office, light factory or easier store work where the demand is so great and the 40 or less age limit so definite?

I offer this as a suggestion to employers as a possible solution to their present employment problem. READER.

BIRTH CERTIFICATE CHARGE.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—I believe that I can explain the "delay charge" that Mrs. R. N. complained of in her recent letter regarding birth certificates. What probably happened is that when the order went in for the birth certificate, it was found that the birth had never been recorded, so the remittance was returned to Mrs. R. N. together with a blank form to be filled out for a "delayed registration." Before the birth certificate could be issued, the birth had to be recorded, and the fee for that is 25 cents.

Mrs. R. N. may be assured that the birth registration office will not intentionally put one over on her, but they do make mistakes in filling out-of-the-ordinary requests. S. C. SWANSON.

DEMOCRAT FOR BROOKS.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—I believe Sen. Brooks was right when he made that speech. I do not regard it as the responsibility of the United States to police the world now or ever. I am a stockyards district Democrat. Guess how we will vote. J. C. H.

WHERE WERE THEY?

Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., Sept. 14.—Sen. Brooks raises a very important question in asking what Mayor Kelly and McKeough did during the last World war. Thousands of the boys out here would also like to know what Mayor Kelly and McKeough were doing then. We would like to know where they hid themselves, for we know that neither of them, altho of military age, offered to join any branch of service and fight for America. It is about time that our dads got next to these shirkers now holding office, turned them all out, and elected men who were sufficiently proud of their country to fight for it. PVT. J.

LUCKY SEVEN.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—He was born Dec. 7, 1924, and 17 years later, on Dec. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor was bombed.

He enlisted on July 7, 1942, in the marine corps, and on Aug. 7 the marines took over in the Solomon Islands.

On Sept. 7, he finished his basic training at Boat camp in San Diego, and two days later boarded a transport bound for "somewhere in the Pacific" to "get those Japs."

Who? My son. And he still says seven is his lucky number. I hope he's right.

A MARINE'S MOTHER.

REUNION THRU THE FESTIVAL.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—While I was rehearsing the fretted orchestra in preparation for the recent Chicago Music Festival, a Tribune photographer snapped at random players in this group. One of these pictures was recognized by a niece who had given up hope of ever again seeing Miss Edith Atwater, who graced the next morning's edition. Thru this reunion your festival has added a new pleasure to one who least expected it.

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problems a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

CODICIL TO WILL.

Chicago, Sept. 10 [Legal Friend of the People].—I married a widower with three children who [1] made a codicil to his will as follows: ". . . do hereby make and publish this codicil to my last will . . . Sec. 2 paragraph 1 is hereby modified as follows: Upon death of my [2] wife one fourth of her share shall be divided equally between her four children or their descendants according to the same manner as provided for the distribution of the shares of my children. This is to take effect even if my wife dies before me." 3. Is this made out correctly so my four children will receive their share in the event I pass away before my husband? R. J.

1. This sounds as if you mean that it was made at the time of the marriage and hence that the will was made previously.

2. On the foregoing assumption the word "wife" would refer to his previous wife.

3. We cannot say without having the surrounding circumstances. See 1 and 2. We advise you to have a personal interview with an attorney.

HALL LIGHTING.

Chicago, Sept. 10 [Legal Friend of the People].—What are the rules for three flat building hall lights? People in the building all retire much later than ten o'clock. M. W.

Section 66-1 of the City Code requires that the "means of exit in every existing building shall be provided with normal illumination." This wording is broad enough to cover even private residences that are not wired for electric lighting.

Since the context deals with building construction, the wording might be construed as limited to the installation of the equipment, or at any rate, to leave subsequent operation of the lights to a "rule of reason" test. There is no more specific ordinance fixing definite hours during which the lights must be on.

Since the form of the verb is passive, it does not indicate whether the duty is placed on the landlord or the tenant, but [as in the case of screens, sec. 96-16] it will probably be construed against the landlord. Except for these doubtful provisions of the City Code, a landlord is under no general legal obligation to maintain hall or stairway lights.

Chicago, Sept. 11 [Legal Friend of the People.]—If a personal check is given and the person receiving the check is asked to hold it [altho check is not postdated], [1] should something happen to the maker of the check or [2] the bank should close, what protection would the person receiving the check have?

3. How long may a personal check be held and the maker still be liable?

4. What is the law covering the opening of a small mail or phone business in one's own home? The business consists of service only but no help is employed. Is there a license necessary? J. A.

1. Presumably, the holder could enforce it against the estate of the maker.

2. To the extent of loss due to the delay in presenting, the drawer's estate would be discharged unless the agreement excusing presentment could be proved.

3. Ten years on proper facts.

4. There are no necessary legal prerequisites on the bare facts stated.

DEED TO PROPERTY.

Chicago, Sept. 1 [Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If the deed to a house has been lost, is it necessary to have a new one made up before the house can be sold? If so, where can this be done?

2. When property goes thru probate, who receives the rent on same during this procedure? J. M.

1. If the deed has been recorded, then its subsequent possession is unimportant.

2. If the personal property is enough to pay the debts and administration expenses, then the executor or administrator does not necessarily have anything to do with the real estate and presumably the rent should be divided between the heirs.

G. O. P. IN INDIANA RIPS MUDDLING IN WAR EFFORT

Judge Calls for End of Political Delays.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 19.—While workers in both parties are concentrating on getting as complete a registration as possible by Oct. 3—the final day—candidates are jogging around and some are taking to the stump whenever an audience is in prospect.

Judge J. A. Emmert.

Republicans are speaking of muddling in the war effort and are dwelling on the synthetic rubber and tire situation, profiteering, shipping, bottlenecks, and what they term "chaotic disorganization in Washington." Democrats are thumping away on the issue of prewar nonintervention.

One picturesque figure in the Republican campaign is Judge James A. Emmert of Shelbyville, candidate for attorney general. He is of the rugged, frontier type. "He looks like Lincoln," his admirers say. He served 22 months overseas in the World war, has been on the bench a dozen years, and is carrying the ball as one of the most effective of the Republican speakers.

Charges New Deal Failure.

"In 1940 the Republicans made an issue of production," says Judge Emmert. "But the New Deal has been more interested in social gains than production, and we haven't yet got production. The President on Sept. 14 warned us our output is 'just half enough.' The New Deal war effort has failed in its lack of war organization for production. It has been like a football team with half a dozen quarter backs, each calling a different signal.

"Gov. Henry Schricker [D.] in his keynote address of this campaign said: 'This war, much like the first World war of 25 years ago, came to us largely because we were unprepared.' That is true, but the governor forgets that Hitler didn't become chancellor of Germany until 1933, the year the New Deal began controling this country.

"Ever since that time the New Deal has had an overwhelming vote in congress to pass any legislation it cared to enact. The responsibility rests with the party in power. It had access to all confidential sources of information on what Hitler was doing, and how Japan was preparing, but even after the fall of France we were assured that any one who wanted a two-ocean navy was 'just plain dumb.'

Delay on Production Cited.

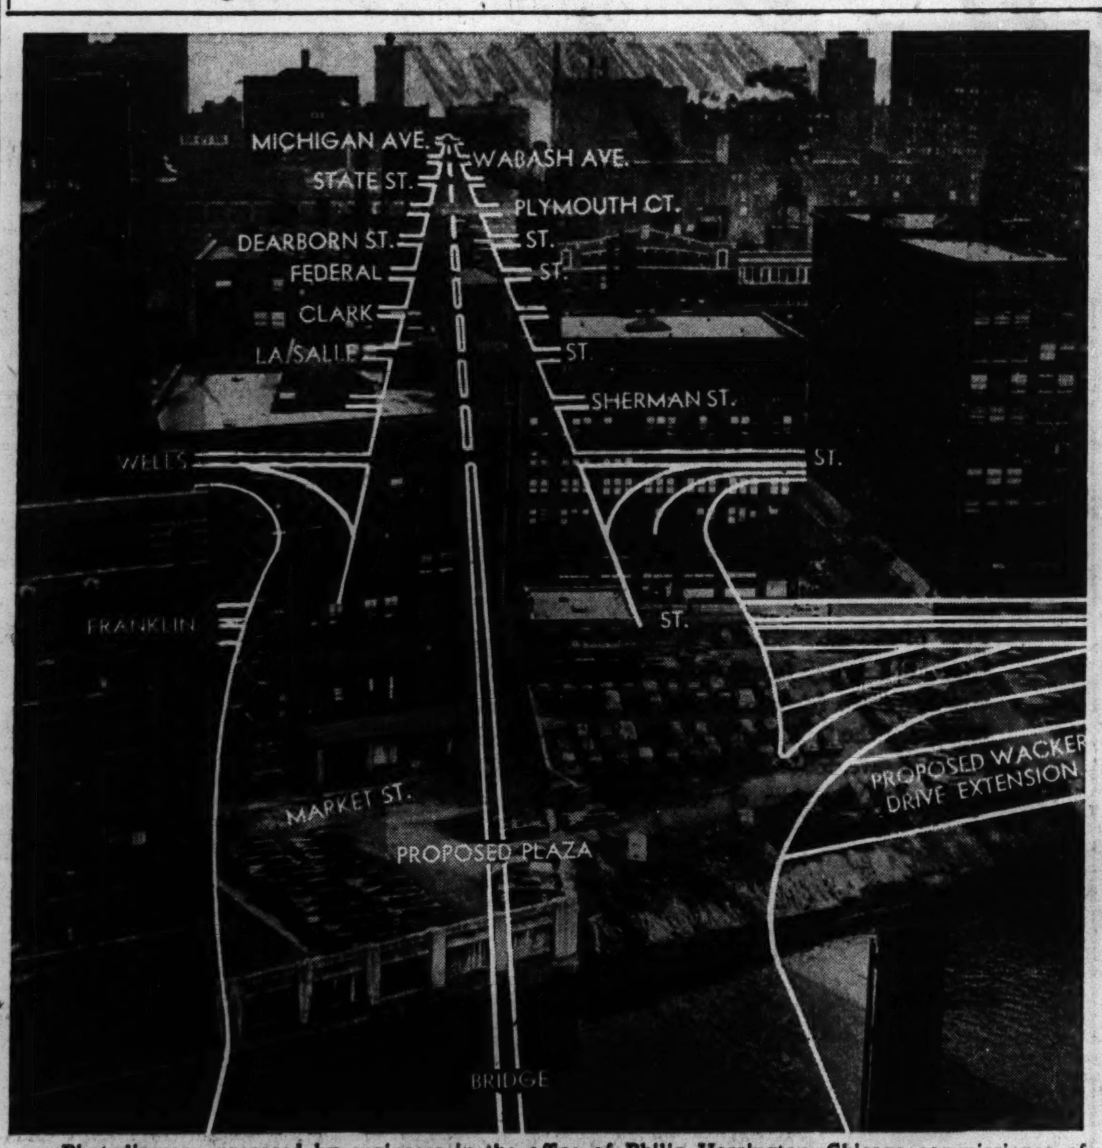
"For 20 months the New Deal delayed the creation of the war production board. Hitler took the experience of Bernard Baruch and his war industries board of the first World war, and with slight modifications rearmed Germany and conquered most of Europe. But the New Deal had to have something different, something that permitted more political control."

Indiana does not elect a governor or a senator this year. The printed ballots will have four tickets—on other state officials, county and congressional candidates, and city and township tickets. The Republicans carried the state for Wendell Willkie two years ago but lost the governorship to Schricker by 3,963 votes. In the registration drive the Republican state committee is telling workers the state would have a Republican governor if each precinct in Indiana had given approximately one more vote to the Republican state ticket two years ago. Reports are coming into headquarters of rural regions where farmers are swinging to the Republican side.

28 Buildings in Path of Proposed Congress Street Highway



Photodiagram, prepared by engineers in the office of Philip Harrington, Chicago commissioner of subways and superhighways, showing how the proposed route of the Congress street superhighway thru the loop would require the razing of 28 buildings between State street and the Chicago river. The view is east from the roof of the new postoffice. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

120 to 600 Feet Wide

The demolition of 28 buildings for the proposed Congress street superhighway will provide a right of way from 120 to 600 feet wide between State street and the Chicago river, Philip Harrington, commissioner of subways and superhighways, said yesterday.

The 28 properties are now being acquired by the city altho the Congress street project cannot be started until after the war because of priorities. The razing of the buildings will result in the sale of 8,055 tons of steel and iron scrap for war purposes.

Plans for the highway call for a right of way 120 to 132 feet wide between State and Wells streets. From Wells street to the river the city plans to build a plaza where Franklin street and a proposed extension of Wacker drive will connect with the Congress street highway.

HIGH COURT ASKED TO BACK BARRETT IN U. OF I. RUCKUS

Attorney General Calls Johnson Pay Illegal.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 19 (AP).—Attorney General George Barrett today asked the state Supreme court to uphold his action in impounding the salary checks of Prof. Sveinbjorn Johnson, University of Illinois legal counsel, and charged that payment of the professor's $9,000-a-year salary was an "unlawful diversion" of state funds.

Answering the petition of the university board of trustees for a writ of mandamus to compel Barrett and Auditor Arthur C. Lueder to release the impounded checks of Johnson and Norval D. Hodges, assistant university counsel, the attorney general asserted the university board had no authority to employ legal counsel.

Cites Johnson's Letter.

Barrett's answer filed with the Supreme court included a letter signed by Johnson on May 6, 1941—a year before the controversy started—in which the university counsel acknowledged that the attorney general was the lawful legal adviser to the University of Illinois.

Barrett ordered Auditor Lueder to impound the checks of Johnson and Hodges last May, contending that the attorney general is the sole legal adviser for the university.

Citing Johnson's letter acknowledging that the attorney general is the university's legal adviser, Barrett in his answer charged the U. of I. board filed the petition for a writ of mandamus "with the deliberate intent to deceive, mislead and misadvise the court."

Professorship Not Attacked.

The university in its petition contended it had the right as an independent corporation to hire its own counsel and charged that Attorney General Barrett's action was a "menace" to the institution's scholastic standing. Barrett replied that he had not sought the ouster of Johnson as a professor of law, but solely as university counsel.

In his letter of May 6, 1941, to the attorney general, Johnson said that "all legal proceedings to which the university is a party are, of course, entirely under the control of the attorney general, but we give such assistance or coöperation as he may require."

The letter added: "Ever since the position of counsel was established in the administration of Gov. Deneen in 1907, or earlier, the board and the holder of this formal title have recognized fully the fact that the attorney general, under the constitution, is the legal adviser of the board of trustees."

AWVS OPEN TWO EVENINGS.

It was announced yesterday that the American Women's Voluntary services will maintain office hours at 130 North La Salle street on Monday and Tuesday evenings to accommodate business and professional women who desire to enroll in the courses offered by the AWVS.

"I AM 35 and married. I always knocked out pretty good money as a commercial artist—even had a shop of my own.

"But I wanted to get in on some of this flying. I was too old to be a pilot so decided on the next best thing—to train as a radio operator and fly as one of the crew.

"Early in December last year, I saw an ad in the Sunday Tribune for a radio communications and television course. I investigated and found that the school was also training men for the Signal Corps and the Air Corps. I took the course.

"I have just finished it and after a month's special government training in Washington, D. C., I will be assigned as radio man to one of those big, four-engined commercial airline planes of the transport command which carry officials and special cargoes to foreign fronts.

"The pay is $400 a month and $8 a day for every day away from Washington. Some fun, thanks to that Tribune want ad!"

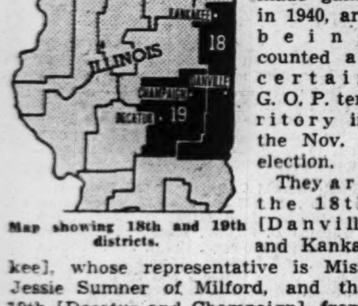
STRONGER G. O. P. VOTE EXPECTED IN 2 DISTRICTS

Gains for Jessie Sumner and Wheat Indicated.

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Decatur, Ill., Sept. 19.—Two normally Republican congressional districts in east central Illinois, where the Democrats made gains in 1940, are being counted as certain G. O. P. territory in the Nov. 3 election.



Map showing 18th and 19th districts.

They are the 18th [Danville and Kankakee], whose representative is Miss Jessie Sumner of Milford, and the 19th [Decatur and Champaign], from which William H. Wheat, Rantoul banker, is congressman. Both are running for their third consecutive terms.

A tour of these districts indicates that growing dissatisfaction with the national administration has reversed the trend of two years so decisively that G. O. P. optimism is at its highest point in years.

Brooks Held in High Regard.

This optimism owes much to the regard in which downstate Republicans hold the head of their off year ticket, Sen. Wayland Brooks. They see an overwhelming preference for Brooks outside of Chicago, but say they will turn out to vote for him in force to make sure this margin is not wiped out by Cook county returns.

Farmers and laborers and business men and industrialists believe that America will win the war, but they also believe that she could win it sooner with more intelligent and aggressive leadership. Most of them feel that a Republican majority in congress this year will inject new life into the conduct of the war.

State-wide permanent registration is expected to decrease the total vote of the two districts. This should tend to increase the Republican margins congressionally, since thruout both districts the G. O. P. organizations are stronger and more active in bringing in registrations.

Estimates of the proportion of voters who will have registered before the deadline Oct. 6, made by county leaders, range from 65 to 90 per cent of the previous high registrations, with the average somewhere between 70 and 75 per cent. The draft is considered to be responsible for much of the decrease.

Gain Expected for Miss Sumner.

In the 18th district it is predicted that Rep. Sumner will increase considerably her 1940 plurality of 7,665 votes. Her district consists of the counties of Vermilion, Kankakee, Iroquois, Edgar, Clark, and Cumberland. Two years ago she lost only Vermilion county to her Democratic opponent, James A. Meeks of Danville, a three term congressman when she unseated him in 1938. Meeks was able to carry his own county by only 1,910 votes in a total of 43,876.

A well informed Democrat of the conservative vintage predicted that Miss Sumner will carry Vermilion county by a sizable margin this year. He said this would happen in spite of a Republican split in the county, "because the only real division here now is between the New Deal pros and antis." G. O. P. predictions of her Vermilion county margin range up to 2,500 votes.

Only "Even Break" Needed.

With her prospect of increased pluralities in the other large counties of Kankakee and Iroquois [her own], Miss Sumner would not require more than an even break in the three smaller rural counties, where she is expected to increase her political holdings.

Her rival this year is Fred E. Butcher, a Danville mining promoter of no political experience, who also is active in the McKinley religious foundation at the University of Illinois.

In the 19th district Rep. Wheat has a strong rival in Alfred D. Huston of Urbana, a part time professor of speech at the University of Illinois who came within 1,842 votes of unseating Wheat two years ago when the district cast a record of 150,024 ballots. Of the four largest counties—Macon, Champaign, Coles, and Shelby—Huston carried all but Champaign, home county of both candidates, rolling up his biggest lead in Macon, where the G. O. P. was in the midst of a factional split. Rep. Wheat carried De Witt, Douglas, Piatt, and Moultrie counties, all strong agricultural territory.

G. O. P. observers predict that, with the Democrats suffering most in the indicated decrease in registration, Wheat will win every county.

Rubber Czar Welcomed Home

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]
W. M. Jeffers, Omaha, recently appointed national rubber administrator, as he was welcomed home yesterday by hundreds of fellow railroad men, shrine patrolmen, soldiers, and civilians.

Tells His Plans

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 19 (AP).—Measures taken to conserve rubber will be dictated by necessity and not to appease one group or area, or to hurt another, Rubber Administrator William M. Jeffers emphasized today in a brief talk to 1,500 Omahans who welcomed him home at the airport here.

"Military needs must come first, essential driving will be second, then the rest of us will have to get along with what's left," Jeffers stressed.

Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific railroad, said, "I'm not unmindful of the fact that this is an important assignment—and a tough one. First of all we've got to try to win the war, and after that we've got to try to do our best to make things more comfortable for people.

"We can win the war by conserving rubber—we can lose the war by wasting it," The administrator asserted.

ILLINOIS TO VOTE NOV. 3 ON ENDING FOOD SALES TAX

Referendum to Fulfill Governor's Pledge.

Voters of Chicago and Illinois will have an opportunity at the Nov. 3 election to vote yes or no on a proposal designed to remove the state sales tax on food for human consumption. Tax experts said yesterday that if the measure wins Illinoisans will save approximately 27 million dollars a year in taxes.

The proposa, sponsored by Gov. Dwight H. Green, will be in the form of an amendment to the state constitution, authorizing the legislature to exempt esculent, or human, food. The constitutional amendment process was adopted as the one sure to pass court tests, whereas a statutory amendment might imperil the entire sales tax structure.

Levy Reduced to 2 Per Cent.

The original state sales tax was 3 per cent under the Democratic administration of the late Gov. Henry Horner. This was whittled down to 2 per cent July 1, 1941, under the Republican administration of Gov. Green. In addition, Gov. Green undertook, in fulfillment of a campaign pledge, to eliminate the tax on human foodstuffs.

Gov. Green said that the sales tax, even at 2 per cent, burdened many of the people least able to afford it—small wage earners and average wage earners with large families to feed. Other proponents questioned the propriety of taxing such a prime necessity of life as food.

Says Worse Levies Might Result.

Some opposition has developed against the proposed food exemption. J. T. Meek, executive secretary of the Illinois Federation of Retail Associations, said yesterday that with gasoline and other taxes dependent upon the automobile steadily dwindling, any exemption of food might be replaced with worse taxes. For instance, he said, sales taxes on other commodities might be greatly increased.

Meek said the question should be considered in the light of rising defense expenses and postwar needs. The everyday difficulties also should be considered, he said, pointing out that in a food store, for instance, the merchant would have to separate foods from such nonedible items as soaps and clothespins in order to apply the tax.

LUTHERAN YOUTH BUILDING WILL BE DEDICATED TODAY

Approximately 1,000 youths and youth leaders of the Walther league of the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri synod, representing all parts of the United States, Canada, and Alaska, attended a banquet at the Knickerbocker hotel last night to signalize the dedication of the new $100,000 Lutheran Youth building, 875 North Dearborn parkway.

The dedication of the new building will be held today at 3 p. m., with the Rev. Otto H. Theiss, executive of the league, the principal speaker. The Rev. Adalbert R. Kretzmann, pastor of the Lutheran Church of St. Luke, Belmont and Greenview avenues, will be the dedicatory chaplain.

DIES IN STATE HOSPITAL.

Albert Baird, 87 years old, an inmate of the Chicago State hospital since 1939, died there yesterday of a heart attack.

DRIVER FATALLY HURT WHEN HIS TRUCK CRASHES

Gerhard Ramsaier, 44 years old, 719 North 11th avenue, Melrose Park, a truck driver, was fatally injured yesterday when his truck overturned on state highway 31, near McHenry.

Toma Philip, 50, of 121 North Ogden avenue, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile at South Park way and 25th street. The driver was Ernest Smucker, 23, of 651 Groveland Park, a medical student, and elevator operator at Chicago Memorial hospital.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 500 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 388 were killed in Chicago, where 14,694 were injured.

MILL WORKER ELECTROCUTED.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 19 (AP).—Carl A. Cormeny, 45 years old, flour mill worker, was electrocuted last night when he grasped a charged motor switch.

RAIN POSTPONES BIRTHDAY PARTY WITH 1,700 GUESTS

Rain ruled out the party W. S. Moore, plumbing contractor, 2006 Grant street, Evanston, had planned for 1,400 children and 300 adults yesterday and it will be held tomorrow at 4 p. m. instead. For the last 12 years Moore has celebrated his birthday by giving a party for the neighborhood children. Yesterday was his 71st birthday.

Only 12 children attended the first party, but the guest list has grown each year. Bleachers have been set up on Moore's lawn so his friends may be comfortable while they watch a full length talking picture. A merry-go-round, ponies, and a clown will help entertain the youngsters and there will be plenty of ice cream, cake, pop, peanuts, and popcorn for everybody.

Among the grownups Moore has invited to his party are Mayor S. G. Ingraham of Evanston, Judge Harry H. Porter, and Judge James M. Corcoran of Evanston, and Rep. Stephen A. Day.

Illinois Highway Deaths Total 114 in July, New Low

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 19 (AP).—Illinois highway fatalities in July totaled 114, the lowest ever reported by the state highway division. Reduced traffic resulting from the war, rather than improved driving, was reponsible for the decrease from 209 deaths reported in July, 1941, the division reported.

BROOKS SPEAKS TODAY IN TWO ILLINOIS CITIES

Sen. Wayland Brooks will be the principal speaker this afternoon at a three county rally in Bird park, Kankakee. The counties to be represented at the rally are Kankakee, Iroquois and Grundy. Sen. Brooks will speak at 3 o'clock.

At 8 o'clock the senator will speak at the Wharton fieldhouse in Moline at a civilian defense show under the auspices of the Moline Safety council. He then will make a radio address which will be broadcast nationally over the Mutual network.

After the broadcast Sen. Brooks will return by plane to Washington.

U. OF C. SEES 20% FEWER STUDENTS; OPENS TUESDAY

The University of Chicago will begin its 50th academic year Tuesday with the opening of Freshman week. The university announced that the total registration is expected to be about 20 per cent less than last October, when 5,276 students were enrolled for all classes.

The reorganization of the college curriculum permits students to enter the college after two years of high school. The university announced that 125 students have registered to date for the first year of college, as compared with 80 last year, and that approximately 625 high school graduates have been enrolled for the junior year of the college course.

The university has adopted a six day week, with classes on alternate days. The curriculum has been changed to provide special training in the physical sciences and mathematics for students preparing to enter the armed services.

Getting Up Nights Nervousness and Kidney Strain

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.

Worry, Colds, working too hard, or overeating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Guaranteed Trial Offer

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. An iron clad guarantee insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c.

AUTHOR'S NOTE: Cystex is produced under the direction of a licensed physician for The Knox Co., one of the largest drug companies in the world with laboratory connections in the U.S.A., Canada, England, Australia and South America. The guarantee of money back unless satisfied is enforced 100% and is a dependable form of assurance to all users of Cystex.

BY BUYING YOUR CLOTH WINDOW SHADES IN "READY TO HANG" SIZES

Most leading department stores, furniture stores and specialty shops offer you this convenient service . . .

Good cloth window shades are available in "ready to hang" sizes at many convenient stores. You'll find a size that will fit into the brackets of your present shade—or if it needs to be cut down slightly in width your dealer can do this for you in just a few minutes' time. You can easily carry the package home. It isn't big and it isn't heavy. Then instead of waiting a week or more while your shades are being made special, you can take down the old ones and put up the new, without a minute's delay. It's just that easy to have sparkling fresh cloth window shades in just a few minutes. You've saved time—you've saved money—and you've spared your dealer's tires and gasoline for larger, heavier deliveries.

FOLLOW THESE SIMPLE INSTRUCTIONS TO DETERMINE THE CORRECT SIZE WINDOW SHADE NEEDED

Take your present shade, unroll it, and measure the full length of the cloth from the roller to the bottom of the lower hem. Then measure the width of the roller barrel—measure from here to here

With those two measurements your dealer can supply you with a new window shade just exactly the size of your present shade.

If you prefer you may take your old shades along. Perhaps your dealer can save you money by attaching new shade cloth to your present rollers.

GOOD

ANCHOR machine coated muslin (100 thread count). It's starch sealed, smooth calendered shade cloth mounted on responsive spring rollers. Available only in 36" width by 6 or 7 feet long. Can be cut down in width to fit smaller windows. Assorted colors.

600 EMPLOYES OWN MILWAUKEE JOURNAL STOCK

Office Boys and Top Hands Included in Group.

BY THORNTON SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 19.—Some 600 employés of the Milwaukee Journal, ranging from office boys and telephone girls to the top hands, now own 40 per cent of the Journal and have a voice in running the publication and its newest child, Radio City.

Employé ownership of the Journal will be extended until the actual workers own a majority of the stock under irrevocable arrangement agreed upon by Harry J. Grant, chairman of the Journal company board, and Miss Faye McBeath, who are principal owners of the remainder of the stock.

Stock Sold by Harvard.

When L. W. Nieman, founder of the Journal, died in 1935 his widow was the principal heir of his estate. Before she died less than a year later she named Harvard university as her heir, designating the bequest was to be used to create the Nieman fellowship, which was to advance the interests of journalism and serve as a memorial to her husband.

Harvard university sold the stock it had inherited to the Journal company, which then placed 30,000 shares in trust under its employé ownership plan.

Miss McBeath, Grant, and the heirs of L. T. Boyd, Nieman's early partner, own all of the stock not assigned to Journal employés.

Clubs Indorse Experiments.

The experiment, which will make the Journal employés the principal owners, has been recognized by 15 representatives of Milwaukee's leading service clubs, who have just awarded Grant the 1942 distinguished service medal of the Cosmopolitan club for outstanding public service. The award will be given at a banquet Oct. 6.

The service club's award gave form to the popular feeling that there is a community value in having ownership of a newspaper spread among its employés with their roots and interests deep in the city of their residence, as compared with its sale as a purely commercial institution.

The employé ownership plan was worked out by Grant during years of study. It took form in 1935 when he became president and editor. It was facilitated by a provision in the Nieman will that the paper should be sold to the buyer best equipped to carry on the Journal tradition, even if such buyer were not the highest bidder for the property.

Ownership Is Extended.

The original plan provided that 25 per cent of the stock should be owned by the employés. This has been increased to 40 per cent by stock sales of Grant and Miss McBeath. Under the plan, the stock was allocated to employés who had worked on the Journal on a full time basis for five years or longer. The amount of the individual allotment was determined by the amount of the worker's salary and the length of his service. There was no restriction over the character of work. There was no premium for union membership and there was no prejudice against it.

The original allotment was paid for on easy terms, with dividends applying on the purchase price. The stock is issued in certificates of beneficial interest, which have all the rights of ordinary common stock except that they are subject to an option by the employés' trust to purchase at the termination of employment, thru death, resignation, discharge, incapacity, or any other cause.

The price for the first allotment was $35 a share. It is now priced at $60 a share. This makes the quoted value of the employés' 40 per cent of the 120,000 shares of the Journal stock approximately $2,800,000. Journal men called into military service are given leaves of absence and allowed to retain their stock holdings and to share in dividends.

BOMBER MAKERS BRING UNIVERSITY ROOM SHORTAGE

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 19 [Special].—Workers at the Willow Run bomber plant have engaged so many rooms here that the University of Michigan faces a serious housing shortage. Today only 94 rooms for men were on the approved list in the dean's office, altho an estimated 3,000 returning students will be seeking rooms a week hence.

There is no record of rooms available for women, but the office of the dean of women has appealed to Ann Arbor townspeople to take in 300. Most of the 6,280 rooms in university dormitories were booked in July.

Upper classmen returning to campus early last week tramped futilely for days in search of rooms,

OBITUARIES

William D. Higdon.

Monticello, Ill., Sept. 19 [Special].—Funeral services for William D. Higdon, 72 years old, former mayor of Monticello and current Democratic candidate for Piatt county judge, will be held Monday afternoon. He died last night. From 1920 to 1937 he was publisher of the Monticello Bulletin. He is survived by his widow and a daughter.

Mrs. Angelica Falls.

Services for Mrs. Angelica Grand-Pré Falls, 63 years old, a resident of Chicago for 42 years, will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in St. Anselm's church, 6045 Michigan avenue. MR. AND MRS. JACK OAKIE.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 19 (AP).—Screen Comic Jack Oakie and Venita Varden, his wife, have separated, with Oakie moving out of their Northridge home. Confirming the parting, Miss Varden said no divorce was planned. "Why should there be?" she asked. "There is no other woman in his life and no other man in mine."

CHIEF FLEMING'S FUNERAL IS SET FOR TOMORROW

Services for James J. Fleming, chief of the county highway police who died of a heart attack Friday night, will be held tomorrow, his family announced. Details of the funeral, however, were being delayed pending the arrival of George Fleming, a son who is in the navy. The body was to remain in the undertaking parlors at 5708 Madison street.

Sheriff O'Brien, who appointed Fleming county police chief a year ago after Fleming retired from the city force with the rank of captain, said he had no one in mind as Chief Fleming's successor. He intimated the job would not be filled because of the approaching election at which a new sheriff will be chosen. The new sheriff who will take office early in December will be able to name a new highway police chief, he said.

Chief Fleming was 64. He joined the Chicago police department in 1906 and became a captain in 1926. When he reached the compulsory retirement age of 63 a year ago he contemplated a long rest. Sheriff O'Brien, however, prevailed upon him to take charge of the county highway force.

HARVEST PARTY TO END SEASON AT PARK CENTER

Corn husking, corn shelling, and nail driving contests will be among the features of the harvest party which will close the season at the Chicago service men's summer recreation center in Lincoln park at 7 p. m. tonight. Bonfires will be lighted on the grounds and service men and members of the center's girls' club will roast frankfurters, marshmallows, and corn. Square dancing, old fashioned waltzes, and schottisches will be on the dancing program. Guests have been asked to wear overalls, straw hats, and bandannas.

CONDE NAST, 68, N. Y. MAGAZINE PUBLISHER, DIES

Lavish Entertainer; One of 'Best Dressed' Men.

New York, Sept. 19 [Special].—Conde Nast, founder and president of the Conde Nast Publications Inc., died today after suffering a heart attack. He was 68 years old.

Nast was one of New York's leading magazine publishers, and one of the most successful. By his own efforts as head of his various publications and as the maker and seller of dress patterns, he became wealthy.

A native New Yorker, he attended Georgetown university, where he managed athletic teams and wrote their publicity before studying at St. Louis university, receiving his LL. B. degree in 1897. He was a lawyer in St. Louis until his friend, Robert Collier, a former college classmate at Georgetown, invited him to New York as advertising manager of Collier's magazine.

Buys Vogue Magazine.

Nast was soon earning $40,000 a year in his new job, which he held until 1905, when he became business manager. Since 1909, when he bought Vogue magazine, he devoted himself to his own publishing. Vogue became one of the leading fashion magazines and his Vogue patterns became famous. In time he acquired Vanity Fair and House and Garden and the American Golfer.

Famous for his lavish entertaining, Nast often brought together leaders of society, the stage, and the arts. In 1934 he was voted by a jury of tailors one of America's 10 best dressed men.

Three Children Survive.

In 1902 he married Clarisse Coudert. They had two children, Natica, who was married to Gerald P. Warburg in 1933, and Charles, now a major in the army.

Following a divorce in 1923, Nast married Miss Leslie Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Volney Foster of Lake Forest, Ill. This marriage also ended in divorce. A daughter, Leslie, 12 years old, survives. The second Mrs. Nast is now the wife of Col. Rex Benson, British military attaché in Washington.

Death of 2 Under Cement Termed Accident by Jury

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death yesterday in the death of two carpenters killed Friday when they were buried under an avalanche of fresh cement while working on the Chrysler corporation's new aviation engine plant on the southwest side. The victims were Michael Stenson, 47 years old, 3309 Van Buren street, and Charles Wood, 62, 1184 Harvey avenue, Oak Park.

Builders Reply to NHA Order Stopping All New Home Building by Quoting CHA

REPEAT WARNING THAT INFLUX OF WORKERS IS DUE

Housing Body Asks Where They'll Live.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

The Metropolitan Chicago Home Builders association, composed of a majority of the principal residential construction firms in this area, tomorrow will submit a formal reply to the National Housing agency's recent announcement that Chicago will get no more new housing until it utilizes all present dwelling units and its local labor supply. After the NHA order was made public federal officials admitted some of their figures might not be entirely correct and invited the home builders to discuss further the data on which the housing curtailment order was based.

As a basis for this discussion between NHA and the association a memorandum was compiled by Attorney Robert N. Golding on "Chicago's war housing problem" in which quoted the Chicago Housing authority as stating recently that war jobs are being created in Chicago faster than workers can be found.

Asks Where They Will Live.

A minimum of 22,000 new workers are expected to be brought into Chicago during the next year, and if more war plants are built and the volume of war work is increased "in accordance with the present plans" many more than 22,000 workers may move into Chicago, Golding quoted CHA as asserting.

And he then quoted the housing authority as asking: "But where will they live?"

Last month CHA again referred to "the increasing shortage of housing for Chicago's growing army of defense workers," but on Sept. 9, Golding recalled, NHA declared there was no shortage of either workers or housing facilities for them in the Chicago area.

Says Some One Is Wrong.

"Somebody is clearly and tragically wrong," said Golding. "We say 'tragically' because it must be apparent to all that if there be no housing available, there will be no workers; and if there be no workers, there will be less ammunition, guns, planes, and other material, no matter how many fine buildings are erected to produce the latest types of machinery."

Golding declared that the attack on Chicago's housing problems is a race against time to prevent housing shortages here from impeding our war production.

"We cannot condemn too strongly," he said, "the approach to the problem employed by the various agencies on Sept. 9 [when NHA issued its order forbidding all new home building in the Chicago area until further notice]."

"Too Late with Too Little."

Golding quoted a federal official as having said "We are constantly on the alert and will follow the facts," and added "we suggest in all seriousness that it's about time we all began to get there first, ahead of the facts, instead of waiting until something happens, after which everybody will arrive, according to plan, all out of breath—too late with too little."

The agencies have admitted that the situation may change in as short a time as three months, so that we may then be faced with a shortage of labor and of housing, Golding asserted.

Says Today Is Time to Build.

"It takes about six months to construct adequate housing facilities," he said. "If a shortage shows up three months from now, how will we keep the factories operating in the following six months while we are constructing housing facilities?

"If we want housing facilities in March, 1943, today is when we should start to build."

STATE-CHICAGO CORNER IS SOLD ON CASH BASIS

County records yesterday disclosed further details on the sale of the northwest corner of North State street and Chicago avenue, reported last week. Revenue stamps on the deed indicated a price of $85,000. The transaction was on an all cash basis, according to Albert H. Wetten & Co., which represented the Willing Investment Trust, seller. William Kapsis was broker for the undisclosed buyer. The property is divided into two parcels: the four story Ottawa building on the corner, containing 18 flats and 8 stores, fronting 104 feet on State and 67 feet on Chicago. Adjoining it on the west is a three story old residence, at 8 West Chicago avenue, 25 by 104. The entire property was placed in trust with the Chicago City Bank and Trust company.

Privately Financed Housing Project

Row house project for war workers nearing completion at the northeast corner of Phillips avenue and East 74th street, by the Fred J. Walsh company. It contains 14 residential units of five rooms each, all designed by Harold Stahl. Half of these homes will be rented. Some will be open for inspection today.

Lawndale Gardens—New U. S. Housing Group

Lawndale Gardens, Chicago Housing authority's federally financed war housing development, covering two city blocks bounded by 25th and 26th streets, California boulevard, and Washtenaw avenue. Eric Hall is architect and Welso Construction company is builder. Completion is scheduled for Dec. 15. It will house 128 families.

Realty Miscellany

Logan T. McMenemy, active in Chicago real estate for several years, operating as McMenemy, Inc., at 221 North La Salle street, and prior to that as president of McMenemy and Martin, Inc., recently was promoted from major to lieutenant colonel in the United States army air corps. He was an aviator in France in the World war. He is stationed at McClellan field, California.

Ken Fogle, formerly in charge of the conventional loan department of the Percy Wilson Mortgage and Finance corporation, who had been an officer in the air corps of the Illinois National Guard, and who entered the regular army in 1940 as a captain, is a colonel attached to an air field in this country.

H. Evert Kincaid, director of the master plan of the Chicago Plan commission, will discuss "Planning New Communities for Chicago" at the first fall luncheon meeting at Lambda Alpha, land economics fraternity, in a private dining room at the Chicago Real Estate board, 105 West Madison street, next Thursday noon.

John J. Falvey of the Chicago Title and Trust company will discuss the effect of rent control on operating expenses at the first fall meeting of the Society of Residential Appraisers in the Chicago Real Estate board's dining room, 105 West Madison street, Tuesday evening, Sept. 22.

Name Selected for New CHA Row Housing

Chicago's fourth public war housing project, under construction on the west side at 26th street and California boulevard, was officially named Lawndale Gardens, the Chicago housing authority announced yesterday.

Scheduled for completion about Dec. 15 the new federal row house project will house 128 families of war workers. The land and buildings will cost about $690,000, it was said.

Rents will amount to approximately 20 to 25 per cent of the family income. Applications for living quarters are being received at the CHA's office of tenant selection, 1000 South Lytle street, from war workers whose income does not exceed $2,100 a year.

OPENS TWO ROW HOUSE PROJECTS FOR INSPECTION

Walsh Firm Has 85 Units Under Construction.

Altho new residential construction in the Chicago metropolitan area is temporarily banned by a federal order from the National Housing agency, a large number of homes started before the edict was issued are in various stages of completion in the city and suburbs.

One of the most active of Chicago's home builders, the Fred J. Walsh company, has 85 dwelling units under construction.

Work was started just prior to the NHA order on 23 row house units, for which Walsh had priorities, on both sides of Bennett avenue, between 84th and 85th streets. These are expected to be ready for occupancy in November or December.

Open to Public Today.

Another row house project of the Walsh company is at the northeast corner of Phillips avenue and East 74th street. This is so near completion that some of the 14 units will be opened to the public today.

A similar project of 14 units nearing completion at the northwest corner of Pitner avenue and Davis street, Evanston, across from the Evanston Township high school also will have some of its units open for inspection today. This is scheduled for occupancy by Oct. 1.

Still another row house project being built by Walsh is a 34 unit group on the east side of Euclid avenue, extending from 76th to 77th street.

Half to Be Rented.

Observing the War Production board ruling, half of the homes on Euclid and Bennet avenues will be rented for $50 a month. Homes to be marketed will be sold for $6,000, with a 10 per cent initial payment and $44 monthly payments, which includes taxes.

Designed by Architect Harold Stahl all of the homes have five rooms.

PRESIDENT OF OIL FIRM SELLS HIS BIG CO-OP FLAT

Dr. Robert E. Wilson, president of Pan American Petroleum and Transport company, and Pearl Rockefeller Wilson, his wife, of New York, yesterday sold their nine room coöperative apartment at 6901 Oglesby avenue, to John R. Roney, former president of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company. The price was $16,500, according to Henry W. Kennedy of McKey and Poague, Inc., who represented all parties. Dr. Wilson, while vice president of Standard Oil [Indiana], invented an oil cracking company process still used. He now lives in Scarsdale, N. Y.

San Francisco Reports 8,000 Vacancies, Little War Work

A study of war housing in the San Francisco-Oakland area made by Homer Hoyt, director of research for the Chicago Plan commission, based on a 175 mile tour of the San Francisso bay region, was completed by him yesterday. This is in addition to three Pacific coast studies printed recently in this department on Los Angeles, San Diego, and the Seattle-Portland area.

The air-conditioned peninsula of San Francisco has 8,000 vacant dwelling units but no large war industries. Across the bay in Oakland, Richmond, and Vallejo, where the great shipbuilding and navy yards are located and where employment has increased from 8,800 to 150,000, there are no residential vacancies.

The tremendous San Francisco-Oakland bridge is the funnel thru which the helmeted shipyard workers from San Francisco pour to their work. The Golden Gate bridge will be another funnel when shipyards north of the Golden Gate are completed.

Lines of cargo vessels nearing completion loom above the flat lands of Richmond where thousands of new dwelling units, financed by FHA, are filling in lots that had been subdivided in the boom of 1906 but never built upon.

Spawned by War.

It is Vallejo, however, that is the wonder mushroom city spawned by war. Thousands of dwelling units, public and private, dormitories, and single family homes, permanent and "wreckable," line the hillsides in serried columns and fill the valleys. Near Vallejo is the great Mare Island navy yard. A little farther west the once sleepy town of Benecia, where a big government arsenal is located, is being crowded with new dwelling units for war workers.

Not far from Vallejo is "Trailer City," a community of several thousand trailers, which maintains its own government. The trailerites work in the arsenal, navy yard, and war plants.

Ferries May Come Back.

As in the other Pacific coast cities, mass transportation facilities in the San Francisco area from home to work will be a crying necessity if rubber tires fail. The old ferries, rendered obsolete by the bridges, will be put back into service to carry workers from San Francisco to the shipyards.

There is a need for 100,000 more shipbuilders, and new housing units must be built near the shipbuilding centers. Workers must come to the edge of this great protected deep harbor to fabricate the vessels that will give striking power to our war effort, and these workers must either have homes within walking distance or be provided with mass transportation facilities that will bring them to work in a reasonable time from the now vacant dwelling units in San Francisco.

TWO EVANSTON BUILDINGS SOLD, TOTAL $330,000

Sale of two Evanston apartment properties for a total of $330,000 was disclosed by deeds filed at the recorder's office. George F. Getz Jr. purchased the southwest corner of Sheridan road and Sheridan square from the First National Bank and Trust company of Evanston thru Nels H. Bowles & Co. for $225,000. The property, 268 by 150 feet, contains a 47 flat building and a 30 car garage.

As part payment Getz conveyed four Chicago realty holdings: the northwest corner of Janssen and Byron at $45,000; northeast corner of Devon and Claremont, $35,000; southeast corner of Cortland and Elston, $85,000, and the northeast corner of Narragansett and Addison at $30,000.

The building at 907-15 Sherman avenue, Evanston, was sold by the Metropolitan Trust company, trustee, to the Roger Marc corporation for $105,000. It contains 43 apartments, four stores, and a 10 car garage, occupying a lot 126 by 152 feet. I. Deemar was broker.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 19.—Bob Ray, Wisconsin full back, sprinted 12 yards around the defensive left end on the first play of the fourth period of the Badgers' opening football game this afternoon in Camp Randall stadium. By this scoring maneuver, Wisconsin salvaged a 7 to 0 victory when it seemed that by the brilliant defensive play of the Warriors' line the Camp Grant soldiers might gain a scoreless tie.

Wisconsin threatened three times in the first half, but failed to score. In this time the Badgers had three passes intercepted. Moreover, the Warriors' linemen had solved each attack. Then, almost without warning, Camp Grant presented the Badgers with a fourth scoring chance. As suddenly as they acquired the ball on a fumble the Badgers scored on the next play.

Hanzlik Recovers Fumble.

On the next to last play of the third quarter Bob Baumann, Badger left tackle, kicked out of bounds on the Warriors' 18 yard line. Camp Grant immediately attempted a fake quick kick with Stan Stasica, former South Carolina half back, trying to skirt the Badgers' left flank. Stasica juggled the lateral pass and fumbled. Bob Hanzlik, Wisconsin end, fell on the ball on Camp Grant's 12 yard stripe as the timer signaled the end of the quarter.

The teams changed goals and Camp Grant went into a six man line with two tightly drawn up backers. Wisconsin caught these men out of position by putting the ball in play without a back field shift. On the play Ray was at the left end of the defensive line almost before the soldiers charged. A well timed block on the defensive left half got him to the corner of the end zone and Ray lunged over the goal as he was tackled by the safety. Ray followed up with a place kick for the extra point.

Wisconsin almost scored again in the fourth period. That it didn't still cannot be explained. Quarter Back Ashley Anderson, who certainly should have scored, probably doesn't know the reason himself. Anderson intercepted a pass by Stasica on Wisconsin's 20 yard line and with a running start flashed down the east side line with red shirted blockers clearing a path deep into enemy territory.

Anderson Drops the Ball.

At midfield he had a clear route except for the safety man, who eventually was screened out of the play as Anderson was within 5 yards of Camp Grant's goal line. Anderson had slowed up, however, to give a blocker a chance for this maneuver, and then for no apparent reason he came to a complete stop. As he pivoted to his own left, without being tackled, he dropped the ball. Fred Negus, Wisconsin center, recovered on the Warriors' 6 yard line.

The Badgers immediately received an additional gain of 5 yards when Camp Grant was penalized for an extra time out. It was first down on the 1 yard line. But Wisconsin couldn't score, and this failure—the fourth of the game—was the most embarrassing of all. Len Calligaro lost 3 yards at guard. Then he plunged for a yard. Mark Hoskins went around defensive right end, but was run out of bounds after gaining 1 yard. On fourth down Elroy Hirsch's pass to Hoskins in the flat was incomplete and the Warriors took over.

Camp Grant never seriously threatened to score, and did not mark up its

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 19.—Thomas Farmer, the Cedar Rapids youth who was suspected of gridiron promise last season, today collaborated with associate Hawkeyes to give the University of Iowa eleven a 26 to 7 victory over the Washington Bears of St. Louis in the 1942 opener at Iowa stadium. Or maybe we should have said that Tom's chums collaborated with him, for he accounted personally for eight of the home point total by scoring one touchdown and two points by placement, and was a direct party to two other scores, pitching a brace of touchdown passes.

Master Farmer thus becomes the chief hope of the Iowans for the remaining nine games of their heavy schedule. It was no secret that Tom was quite some shakes as a passer in the closing games of last season and now there's little doubt that he will be on what is sometimes called the mound for the rest of the season.

See Plenty of Tevis.

In all, 30 Hawkeye hands enjoyed some exercise this afternoon, during which the winners maintained a scoring tempo of one touchdown per quarter. The laboratory nature of the game for new material was effected largely thru the lightness and inexperience of the Bears, who came to the game with only four workmen who had done intercollegiate duty before today. The victors were aware at all times, however, of the annoying presence of Half Back Lee Tevis and End Gene O'Rourke. Tevis practically put on a one man show for his side, handling all of the punting and passing chores and carrying the ball 75 per cent of the time. It was his pass to O'Rourke, a 39 yard toss in the sixth minute of the last quarter that led to the Bears' only touchdown. Yes, Tevis added the point after, too.

Aside from Farmer, the Hawkeyes unveiled two talented sophomores in Tackle Bruno Niedziela of Chicago's Crane Tech, and Full Back Dick Hoerner, a Dubuque product who scored the first Iowa touchdown. That score, by the way, was set up by Guard Gene Curran, an alumnus of Chicago's St. Ignatius High. Curran recovered a Washington fumble on the Bears' 31 yard line, and Hoerner took the ball over after an obstinate stand by the Bears forced the use of four downs from the 3 yard line.

Iowa Wins Statistics.

Iowa, of course, led in every statistical department except punt returns, which the ubiquitous Tevis hauled back single handed for a total of 85 yards. Thirteen first downs were recorded against the Bears' eight, off a net of 190 yards by rushing and 158 by passing. The bulk of this latter yardage was contributed by Farmer's arm. Tom might have had a better pitching average for the day, having connected on six out of eight when he retired. He returned

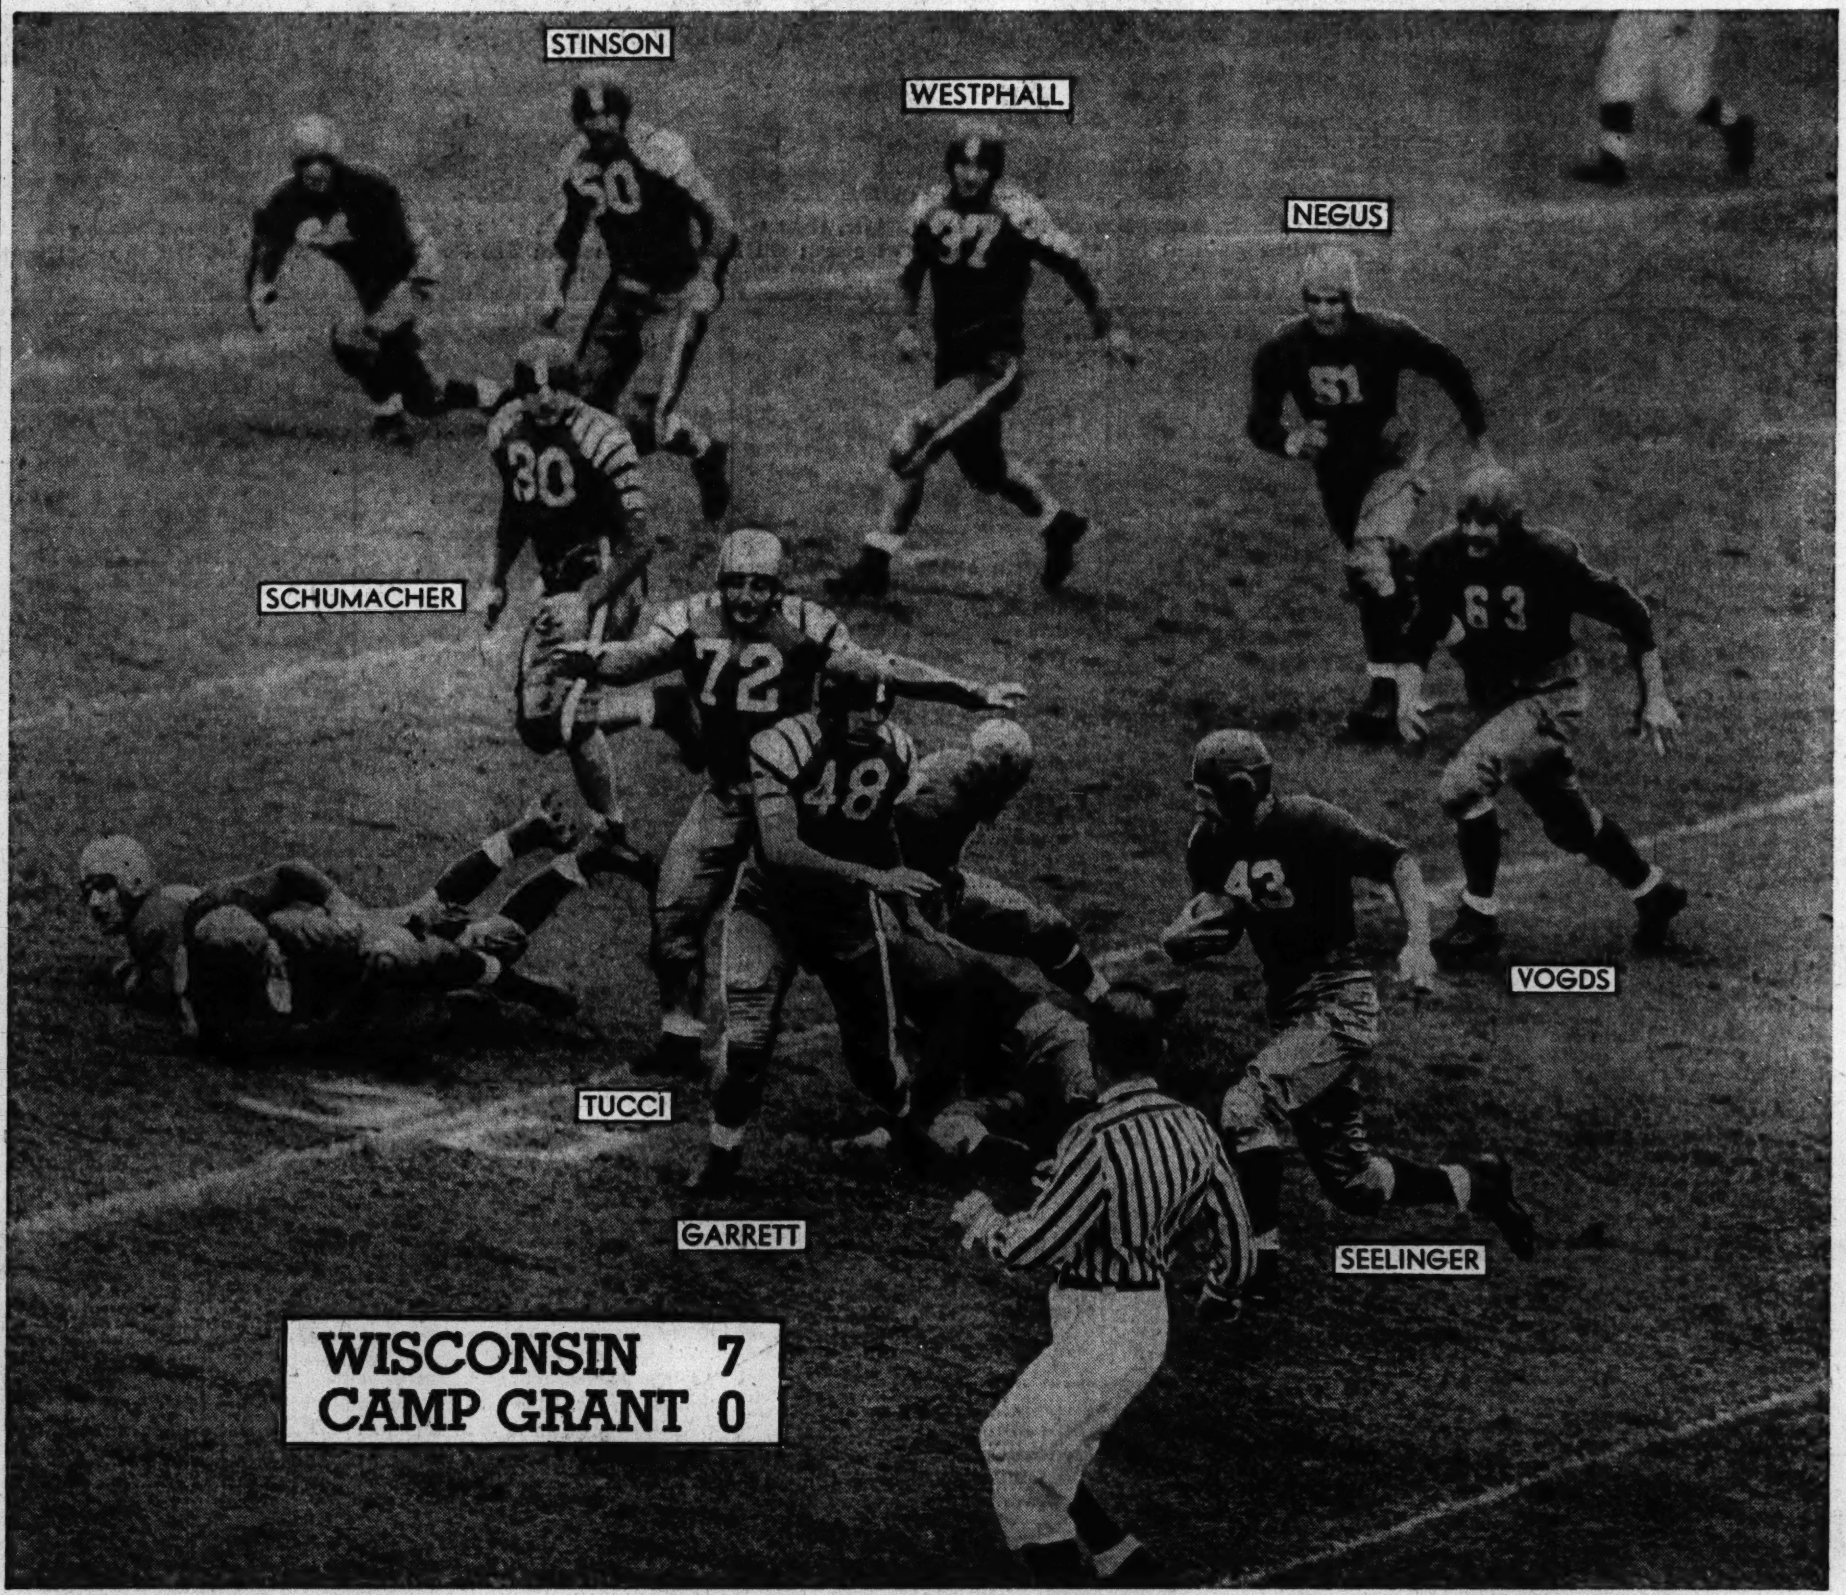
A BADGER TRAVELS 23 YARDS WITH SOLDIERS' KICK-OFF



Len Seelinger, University of Wisconsin half back, returns Camp Grant's opening kickoff 23 yards to his own 33 in yesterday's game in Madison, Wis. Held scoreless by the Warriors for three periods, the Badgers scored on the first play of the fourth period after Camp Grant had fumbled, Bob Ray went around end for the only touchdown of the game, and then kicked the extra point for Wisconsin's 7 to 0 victory. ### IOWA PREFLIGHT VETERANS ROLL OVER KANSAS IN OPENER, 61 TO 0

Lawrence, Kas., Sept. 1 [Special].—The Seahawks of the Iowa Naval preflight school turned on the power in the second and final periods today to deal the University of Kansas its worst beating in 53 years of football, 61 to 0. There was no doubt among the less than 3,000 fans who saw the contest that Lieut. Col. Bernie Bierman has assembled a great football team at the Iowa City naval institution.

The Seahawks were held to a field goal in the first period, scored three touchdowns in the second. rested with one touchdown in the third, and crossed the goal line five times in the last.

Schatzer Is Star.

Bill Schatzer, 187 pound substitute half back from North Central college, Napervillie, Ill., was the Seahawks' star. He scored the first two touchdowns, had a large share in the 422 yards gained by his team from scrimmage and was the most successful of the Seahawk passers.

The Jayhawkers held the Seahawks in check during the first period until near the end when George Svendsen, former Minnesota and Green Bay Packer center, scored on a placekick from the 9 yard line.

Schatzer climaxed a 70 yard drive for a touchdown early in the second period with a 5 yard run and Fred Gage, formerly of Wisconsin, kicked the point. A few plays later, after interference had been called to make a Seahawk pass good on the Kansas 17, Schatzer went 17 yards to score and Forest Evashevski of Michigan kicked the point. Then with two seconds to go in the period, George Paskvan, formerly with Wisconsin and the Green Bay Packers, crashed over from the 1 to make it 23 to 0.

Then the Parade Resumes.

Schatzer's passing was responsible for the third period score. He passed 18 yards to Evashevski to the Kansas 25 and a few plays later found Evashevski in the end zone for a counter.

George Benson of Northwestern opened the fireworks in the last period by crashing over from the 4 yard line but failed to convert the extra point. The next counter came on a pass from Dick Fisher, Ohio State, to Mal Kutner, Texas. Harlin Fraumann, Michigan, kicked the point. Next Fisher intercepted a pass, lateraled to Kutner, who lateraled to Bus Mertes, Iowa, who in turn lateraled to Kutner for the touchdown. Jim Langhurst, Ohio State, passed to Matt Bolger, Notre Dame, for the next counter and Hanson, Minnesota kicked the point. Langhurst intercepted a pass by Hoyt Baker and raced 47 yards for the final counter.

The Kansas star was Ray Evans, junior half back. His passing formed the only threat the Kansans could muster against the big Seahawks and his defensive work was superb. Junius Penny, substitute sophomore center, was a bulwark in the Kansas defense.

Giants Defeat All-Star Army Eleven, 10 to 7

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 19 (AP).—The New York Giants, effectively bottling up high scoring John Kimbrough, walloped the Western Army All-Stars, 10 to 7, tonight in the soldiers' final game of their brief series for army emergency relief against National Football league clubs.

The soldiers played five professional elevens, and tonight's defeat was their third. They lost the opener to Washington in Los Angeles, 26 to 7; beat the Chicago Cardinals in Denver, 16 to 10, and blanked the Detroit Lions in Detroit, 12 to 0. Then they lost in Milwaukee last Sunday to Green Bay, 36 to 21.

Goodnight Goes 93 Yards.

Maj. Wallace Wade's All-Stars never were able to get a sustained offensive under way. They scored on Owen Goodnight's 93 yard run with an intercepted pass in the fourth period.

The Giants, coming back from their recent defeat at the hands of the Eastern Army All-Stars, outclassed the soldiers by a margin larger than indicated by the score, which they amassed by Andy Marefos's first period field goal and Leo Cantor's plunge for 12 yards in the third period.

Kimbrough, former Texas A. and M. All-American, who led the army offensive in previous games, was stopped effectively by New York's charging forwards, and the army attack almost was nonexistent without

WEATHER KEEPS CARDS AND CUBS APART; THEY'LL PLAY TWO TODAY

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Billy Southworth's Cardinals, who have been tearing thru the National league field for the last month, were forced to pause yesterday in the mad dash that to all appearances has them headed for world series combat with the Yankees. The Cards, not at all excited but nevertheless anxious to have the whole thing settled in their favor as quickly as possible, were forced into a double header for this afternoon with the Cubs, who have suddenly become important despite their lowly position.

When the weather man refused to relent even tho given until starting time for the scheduled opener, the Cards tossed aside their baseball tools and scattered in search of radios. They wanted to know how things were going with the Brooklyn Bums, the team they recently blasted out of first place. It was a matter of curiosity as to whether their three game lead would expand by a half lap or contract by a half lap. They didn't seem worried when the Dodgers won, cutting their lead to two and a half games.

Warneke, Passeau to Pitch.

Yesterday's postponement failed to change the pitching plans of either manager, except that the four moundmen involved will work the same afternoon instead of over a two days' stretch. Unless there's a last minute alteration at 1 o'clock this afternoon, the starting time having been moved up as a hedge against possible darkness, the two games that mean so much to the leaders will be matters between Morton Cooper and Lon Warneke, a Card alumnus, and Claude Passeau and Max Lanier, a lefty.

By leading with Cooper, the St. Louis boss isn't doing the Cubs a favor. They have beaten him twice, once on opening day when the entire Cardinal outfit looked shaky, and again July 4 when they broke his eight game winning streak. He has trimmed them once. So you might say that the percentage is in favor of the fellow who, despite what success the Cubs have enjoyed against him, is one of the few big leaguers with a 20 game victory total. He has lost only seven. And he now is able to offer the Cubs another streak at which to aim, if they can. He has taken his last seven.

Wins with Warneke's Shirt.

Cooper is the lad who until the season was well on its way laughed at the superstition about No. 13. He denied the jinx by wearing it on his back. But winning his 13th game was so long delayed that he decided upon a change. He adopted No. 14. It worked. The change in fortune continued as he moved up the number ladder. Incidentally when he wore No. 18, it was a shirt Warneke had left behind when he was moved to the Cubs. Mort tried No. 21 against the Phils but failed to finish, altho he didn't figure in the decision.

The No. 21 shirt belonged to Johnny Beazley. Cooper figured it was too tight, a condition that con-

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 19 (AP).—Si Johnson walked three men in succession in the 11th inning today to force across a run and give the Brooklyn Dodgers a 5 to 4 victory over the Philadelphia Phils. This cut the National league lead of the idle St. Louis Cardinals to two and a half games.

The pay-off was a heartbreaking letdown for the Phils, who had pressed the fight thruout the entire game and outhit the Dodgers, 14 to 7.

The Phils loaded the bases in both the extra innings and batted Curt Davis out of the box in the 10th, but couldn't quite break thru to score.

Nahem Does Great Job.

At the height of their 10th inning effort Sam Nahem, who had delivered a great relief performance by holding Brooklyn scoreless for seven successive innings, was removed for a pinch hitter.

Johnson hurdled one wave of Dodgers successfully, but in the 11th he gave a base on balls to Peewee Reese, leading off. He got two out, Billy Herman on a sacrifice that put Reese on second, and Pitcher Hugh Casey on a popup. But then Dixie Walker, Arky Vaughan, and Pete Reiser waited out consecutive passes and the one to Reiser, forcing over the winning run, came on four straight pitches.

A game opening double by Merrill May and a single by Ron Northey gave the Phils a run in the first. In the second, with Danny Murtaugh on base, Catcher Thompson Livingston hoisted his second home run of the year into the left field stands to provide a couple more. Northey singled, stole second and was driven home by Bill Burich to knot the score at 4 all in the fifth.

It's Wyatt, Newsom Today.

There it remained. In the 10th the Phils rapped three consecutive singles off Davis but failed to score, a great peg by Reiser cutting off Nick Etten at the plate. They also filled the sacks in the 11th on May's third hit of the game, a fielder's choice and an intentional walk to Etten—his fourth of the day—but Casey forced Burich to bounce out to second. In all, the Phils left 14 runners stranded.

Brooklyn counted in the first inning on a pass to Walker, an infield hit by Vaughan, a sacrifice by Reiser and Joe Medwick's long fly. The three Dodger runs in the second grew from successive singles by Mickey Owen and Reese, a pass to Herman, a double play ball by Davis, a pass to Vaughan and then Reiser's line hit, which sent across two.

The victory was Brooklyn's 13th in 16 games with the Phils this season, and portended well for their remaining six contests with the tail-enders. Manager Leo Durocher announced he would send his ace, Whit Wyatt, and Buck Newsom against the Phils in tomorrow's double header.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

St. Louis isn't the only Cardinal team defending a National league lead in Chicago today. A few hours after the baseball Cardinals end their labors in Wrigley field, the football Cardinals of Chicago will be trying for their second straight National Football league victory.

They are bracketed with the Detroit Lions in Comiskey park tonight, and it's the official opening of the pro league season here. The Bears, league champions for two consecutive seasons, play their first game for keeps in Chicago on Oct. 11 and their opponents will be these same Cardinals.

For the first time since Jim Conzelman took over the Cardinals they have made a successful start. The Cardinals scored in the first quarter last Sunday against the Cleveland Rams, then played a conservative game the rest of the way. Tonight, a week's drill giving them more confidence in execution of plays, the south siders are expected to show more offensive power.

Innovation for Chicago.

Sunday night pro football is an innovation in Chicago. Charley Bidwill, owner of the Cardinals, who year in and year out has faithfully tried to get a winner, is responsible for this experiment. He got the idea from the large Sunday evening turnouts for hockey. Tonight's game will start at 8:30 o'clock and the Cardinal management will be a bit disappointed if the crowd doesn't reach 25,000.

The Cards have some talented newcomers to show off to their followers. Steve Lach from Duke and Lloyd Cheatham from Auburn were two of the nation's outstanding backs last season. Bud Schwenk, who started his college career under Conzelman at Washington university in St. Louis, has charge of the passing department. The two touchdowns the Cards scored against the western Army All-Stars and the Rams were direct results of throws from Bud's right arm.

Joining these three freshmen in the starting back field will be Marshall Goldberg, the old Pitt terror. Marshall, who only at the last minute decided to play this year, was not in top condition in the two preceding games, but he will be able to go at top speed this evening.

Other New Backs, Too.

The Cards have several other new backs, including Johnny Knolla, the national ground gaining king two seasons ago at Creighton. They have two new starting tackles, Chet Bulger of Auburn, who looks like a lineman find of the year, and Gilford [Cactus Face] Duggan, a giant from Oklahoma, who has played with the New York Giants. Their starting guards are Milt Popovich and Conway Baker, two of the three really oldtimers on the squad. The other is Buddy Parker, quarter back. At center is Ray Apolskis, starting his second season. He is backed up by Vinc Banonis of the University of Detroit. Banonis, Lach, and Cheatham were members of this year's College All-Stars.

There are four veteran ends. Bill Daddio and Alton Coppage will start, with Frank Ivy and Dick Evans in reserve. Daddio, starting his second season, is a former teammate of Goldberg's at Pitt and ranks among the best goal kickers in the league.

Lions Have New Talent.

Like the Cardinals, the Lions have a host of newcomers. Tho the Bears, Redskins, and Packers have run up big scores in exhibition games, none compares with the 42 to 6 beating the Lions gave the Philadelphia Eagles. The Lions lost to the Western Army All-Stars, 12 to 0, compared to the 16 to 10 score between the latter eleven and the Cardinals.

The Lions have two back fields capable of a strong running and passing attack. Bill Edwards, who came to Detroit from Western Reserve as coach last year, has profited from a season's experience. To make the attack more versatile, he has added T formation plays, patterned after the Bears' attack. The Lions have a Bear-type full back in John Polanski, 6 foot 2 inch 210 pounder from Wake Forest. He led the country in yards gained rushing in 1941. Another flashy newcomer is Dominic Sanzotta, a half back from Western Reserve.

Two Other League Games Today.

There are two other league matches today. The Redskins, favorites to win the eastern division title, meet the Pittsburgh Steelers in Washington and should win about as they please. The Philadelphia Eagles, who beat Pittsburgh last week, take on Cleveland in Akron's Rubber bowl. This one looks like a toss-up.

The Bears and Packers inaugurate their season next Sunday in Green Bay. The Giants also begin their campaign that day in Washington against the Steelers and the Dodgers make their league debut against the Eagles in Buffalo, N. Y.

Lid on Ducks Is Off Saturday in Three States

BY BOB BECKER.

Sportsmen in the northern states are making their final preparations for the opening of the 1942 hunting season, for next Saturday morning shotguns may go boom wherever the ducks are congregated in Minnesota, Wisconsin, South Dakota, and other states in the upper third of the country. The season in Illinois and other central zone states opens Oct. 15.

Unusually large hatches of ducks in some of the northern states promise pretty good sport for opening day, according to reports from South Dakota. This week hunters are lining up their shell supplies and many are discovering a new regulation in the waterfowl laws which will make it possible to conserve their game longer than ever before.

May Be Held 30 Days After Close.

Under the 1942 federal regulations it will be possible this year to hold ducks and geese [in numbers fixed by possession limits] for 30 days after the close of the season. This will enable the sportsmen to keep birds frozen and use them in the home after the threatened rationing of fresh meat becomes a fact. Permission to keep game so long thus will give many sportsmen the chance to substitute wild game meat for fresh meat which the government requires for our armed forces in all parts of the world. In Illinois, where the duck season closes Dec. 23, it will be legal to hold ducks and geese shot during the open season until the third week in January.

The state of South Dakota will launch one of its biggest hunting seasons next Saturday when not only ducks may be taken but also pheasants. There are so many pheasants out there that between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 of these birds may be harvested by the hunters this fall. South Dakota potholes and lakes have received considerable rainfall this summer, so the state has experienced a good hatching season for local ducks.

Take Shells with You.

Our survey of places to hunt in South Dakota indicates that nonresident hunters should keep these points in mind before they set sail for the northwest within a few days: First, take shells with you. You may have trouble getting ammunition out there. Secondly, if you own a setter, pointer, springer, retriever, or other dog that will hunt, take it along. The cover is very heavy. A dog to find and retrieve game is a conservation measure. Third, most any weapon from a slingshot to a bolo or a 20 gauge should get limits of pheasants because the birds are so plentiful. Fourth, if the weather is warm [it very likely will be] look up refrigeration for your game so it won't spoil, for this year, above all others, is the one when no sportsman should waste a single bird in view of the importance of using wild game meat in place of other fresh meat needed by our armed forces.

Minnesota has checked in with another bumper crop of pheasants this year. The ringneck population is equal to or better than the 1940 population, which was the biggest in history. Minnesota will have a 23 day open season on ringnecks starting Oct. 17 and continuing to Nov. 8. Plenty of ruffed grouse in Minnesota, too. Surveys show that this bird will reach its population cycle next year, which means this season, the one preceding the peak, is anything but a short one on birds.

QUINCY, CHICAGO CYO TEAMS PLAY FOR TITLE TODAY

When the Quincy CYO All-Stars take the field against Annunciation, the Chicago CYO champions, this afternoon in Weber park to decide the Illinois CYO baseball honors, it will mark the second time in two years that the downstate challengers have sought the Catholic youth laurels.

Last year, after winning the Chicago CYO baseball title, St. Andrew's nine traveled to Quincy to tackle the CYO champions of the Springfield diocese, and won, 11 to 3.

Preceding the state title game will be three games among finalists in the 1942 CYO Softball league to determine the champions in the pro, junior, and senior divisions. The first game is scheduled for 1 o'clock, and will bring together St. Stanislaus B and M and Blessed Agnes preps. At 2 o'clock St. John the Baptist and St. Stanislaus B and M juniors will take the field and at 3 o'clock another St. John Baptist team will clash with St. Vitus for the senior division honors.

ST. RITA GAINS 6 TO 6 DEADLOCK WITH LINDBLOM

St. Rita of the Catholic league and Lindblom of the City league battled to a 6 to 6 tie yesterady on St. Rita's field.

Lindblom scored first when Jerome Zukauskas took Victor Mitchell's 10 yard pass in the end zone in the opening period. St. Rita came right back and John Zimny plunged over from the 2 yard line climaxing the march down the field before the quarter ended.

In the fourth quarter Lindblom advanced to St. Rita's 10 before being stopped. Lineups:

BILL HEINLEIN FIRES 66, LEADS IN DECATUR OPEN

Decatur, Ill., Sept. 19 (AP).—Bill Heinlein, veteran pro from Noblesville, Ind., grabbed a two stroke lead today in the first 18 holes of the $1,000 Decatur golf Open by shooting a 35—31—66. The final 36 holes will be played tomorrow.

Heinlein cut a stroke off par on the first nine and then ducked four under on the back side, finishing off his round by holing a 45 foot approach for a birdie 3 on the 18th.

Following Heinlein was Jim Ferrier of Elmhurst, Ill., who fired a 34—34—68. Tied for third were Mike Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., with 34—35—69, and Dick Metz of Chicago with 35—34—69. Gib Sellers of Walled Lake, Mich., was even par with 36—35—71.

Seven were grouped at 72, including the two leading amateurs, Bob Cochrane of St. Louis with 36—36 and Art Dawson of Decatur, a cross-handed swinger, who posted 40—32.

COLUMBUS BEATS TOLEDO, 6-4, IN PLAY-OFF GAME

Columbus, O., Sept. 19 (AP).—Archie McKain limited Columbus to seven hits but could not keep the Red Birds under control in the seventh and eighth innings as they came from behind to score five runs and a subsequent 6 to 4 victory over Toledo in the second game of the American association final play-offs here tonight. Columbus also won the opening game last night.

The two teams will move to Toledo tomorrow to resume the best four out of seven series there. Score:

PARK RIDGE FOUR, DETROIT RANGERS TO CLASH TODAY

Polo's boy wonder, 17 year old Jack Ivory, will swing into action this afternoon when his father's Ivory Rangers of Detroit meet Park Ridge at 3:30 o'clock in the Tri-State Invitational tourney at River road and Devon avenue. Young Ivory packs 208 pounds of power behind his mallet swings and as a consequence gets more distance in his shots than any poloist in this area.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 20.—All the folks who can get into Fenway park tomorrow afternoon—about 40,000—will be there to root for the Eastern Army All-Stars as they try to make it a sweep of their series with National league football teams by beating the Chicago Bears. Paradoxically, the fans, while they'll be whooping it up for the soldiers, will not be agin the Bears, who are very popular hereabouts, what with a flock of New Englanders playing on the Chicago team.

In the absence of his injured field general, Sid Luckman, Coach George Halas of the Bears will employ Charley O'Rourke to boss the offense. O'Rourke, in addition to being a native of Malden, Boston suburb, is hailed as one of the greatest of Boston college's several great stars.

Charley Knows Army's Style.

O'Rourke, too, knows something about the technique of Col. Bob Neyland, coach of the Army All-Stars. Less than two years ago O'Rourke was the big dealer in the shocking Boston college victory over Coach Neyland's Tennessee stalwarts in the Sugar bowl game. In beating the New York football Giants, 16 to 0, in New York last Saturday, and the Brooklyn football Dodgers, 13 to 7, in Baltimore, last Wednesday night, the soldiers employed the Tennessee system exclusively. They expect to do the same with even greater polish here tomorrow afternoon.

Besides O'Rourke, there are seven Bears who hail from the Boston area. For instance, two of the full backs who are scheduled to see much service tomorrow, Bill Osmanski and Gary Famiglietti, are well known hereabouts. Osmanski played at Holy Cross and Famiglietti is from Boston university. Then there's Frank Maznicki, late of Boston college. The starting army lineup will include eight former professionals, most of whom know quite a bit about Bear trickery. Norm Standlee, who will start at full back for the army, for instance, should not be mystified by too many of the sly Halas stratagems and T formation wiles that will be presented tomorrow.

It's Their Last Chance.

Col. Neyland, whose team will be disbanded after tomorrow's game, is expected to pour plenty of man power on the Bears, with a view of wearing them down, which must sound like an odd process to those who know the Bears. However, the Army has a squad of 54 players, all of whom have been in football training since Aug. 5, and all but two or three are in excellent physical shape.

Even the lugubrious Col. Neyland says the team is ready for its best performance, and remember, they have whipped the Giants and Dodgers. Moreover, [illegible] say they could have thrashed the Giants, 60 to 0, instead of 16 to 0 if they hadn't been conserving for the Bears.

And speaking of conserving, Joe Stydahar will not start for the Bears tomorrow. He wants to get rid of a mild Charley horse before the Packer game next week in Green Bay.

While the game tomorrow is not entirely for army emergency relief, the game will be presented as a military show, under the auspices of the Cross Cuppishon Amerian Legion post. The program will start at 12:30 o'clock and the kickoff will be at 1:10 o'clock, Chicago war time.

RESERVED SEATS FOR SERIES SOLD OUT IN ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 19 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals' office announced tonight a sellout of reserved seats for the world series. President Sam Breadon said applications for tickets already exceeded the number of seats available. No more will be accepted.

JUVENILE SOCCER GAMES OFF.

The first round series of the Juvenile Soccer league scheduled for yesterday were postponed until next Saturday.

KENTUCKY GIVES GEORGIA A SCARE, BUT LOSES, 7 TO 6

Sinkwich Makes a Costly Fumble; Then He Scores.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 19 (AP).—The University of Georgia averted an early season upset today by scoring in the last four minutes to defeat Kentucky, 7 to 6, before 10,000.

Until the thrilling finish, it appeared that Frankie Sinkwich, Georgia's great left half back from Youngstown, O., would be the goat. He fumbled in the third quarter and the Kentuckians recovered the ball 7 yards from Georgia's goal line. Charley Kuhn went around end on third down from the 1 yard line to score.

Sinkwich Goes Over.

Then Sinkwich came into his own in the final quarter. With less than five minutes to go, the Bulldogs regained possession of the ball on their 37. Sinkwich tried the line, but it held him to 1 yard. Then he passed to Walter Maguire for 9, and shot another to End Van Davis for 32 for a first down on Kentucky's 21.

Sinkwich hammered the line twice for first down on the 10. He picked up 3 more, then 5, then 0, and finally, on fourth down, hurled himself the last 2 yards to score. Leo Costa kicked goal for the winning point.

Teams Use Three Freshmen.

MISSOURI WINS, 31-0.

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 19 (AP).—Missouri, Big Six champion, today defeated the Fort Riley cavalry replacement center team, 31 to 0, in its first football game of the season.

The Tigers scored in every period. Bob Steuber and his mates moved from their 46 to the Centaur 13 from where Harold Adams lateraled to Steuber for the opening touchdown. In the third quarter, Vernon Bowen ran back the kickoff from the Tigers' 13 to the 44 and then raced 55 yards to score. The next time Missouri got the ball Ralph Carter, who relieved Bowen, raced 76 yards to score. Keith Parker intercepted one of Bob Ford's passes on the Centaur 46 in the final period to open the final scoring drive.

TEXAS ROUTS CORPUS CHRISTI.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 19 (AP).—The University of Texas Longhorns, co-favorites with Texas A. & M. for the Southwest conference football title, today opened their season by romping over the Corpus Christi naval air station eleven, 40 to 0.

Texas scored one touchdown in the first quarter, two each in the second and third, and one in the fourth. The cadets, sparked by George Franck, former Minnesota star, and Ike Kepford, ex-Northwestern player, drove to the Longhorns' 40 early in the game, but there the attack was stopped and Texas drove to its first score. The longest touchdown run was by Roy McKay, a 54 yard sprint for the third score.

Marty Karow, coach of the service team, used all of his 36 players.

ROOM FOR 10 YOUNG MEN WHO WANT AN OPTION ON THE FUTURE

Non-Combatant Aviation Service

Chicago School of Aircraft Instruments, largest, best equipped school of its kind, will accept 10 qualified men in its classes beginning September 28 and October 5, to learn aircraft instrument maintenance, calibration, and overhaul.

Complete 28 week course qualifies you for Civil Service Commission appointment without experience or examination. Requests for graduates by airlines, airplane manufacturers, instrument makers, air bases, etc., far exceed total enrollment—offering positions with unlimited futures and splendid starting salaries.

ACCREDITED RECOGNITION

C. S. A. I. has nation-wide recognition. The school is commissioned by the U. S. Army Air Forces to train enlisted men as aircraft instrument technicians — is approved by the U. S. A. Civil Aeronautics Administration as a certified repair base (No. 1357) — and is registered by the Illinois Department of Registration and Education.

Since there are only 10 vacancies in our classes starting Sept. 28 and October 5, write immediately to Dept. A-94 for full information. If you live in or near Chicago plan to visit the school any weekday or evening. Phone Longbeach 6100 for appointment.

RIVERLAND WINS AUTUMN STAKE BY TWO LENGTHS

With Regards Is Second at Hawthorne.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Riverland, the horse which was running with $2,000 platers last month, continued to increase his prestige by scoring his second consecutive stake victory yesterday at Hawthorne. Jockey Steve Brooks drove him thru an opening along the rail at the head of the stretch and sent him on home two lengths ahead of With Regards in the $5,000 Autumn handicap. Another two lengths farther back came Stinging Bee, beating Best Seller out of third place by the margin of a nose.

Harold Clark of Chicago recently purchased Riverland from Howard Wells for $6,000. In his first venture into the stake class a week ago yesterday this horse won the $5,000 Hawthorne Speed handicap at six furlongs. Yesterday he showed that he was equally good over a longer distance, the route being a mile and a sixteenth.

Six Firsts and Two Seconds.

After being idle since the Lincoln Fields meeting, Riverland was brought to Washington Park last month. Racing for Wells, he won in the $2,000 class, was moved up to $4,000 and won again. Then he advanced to the $5,000 group and ran second to Sales Talk. Subsequently Clark bought him. In eight starts since launching his campaign on Aug. 1 Riverland now has won six and taken two second places.

In numbering With Regards among his victims yesterday, Riverland beat the horse which ran second in the American Derby and third in the Classic.

A field of seven went to the post in the Autumn handicap, With Regards being the favorite by a narrow margin over Riverland, both being approximately 2 to 1. Best Seller closed at 5 to 1, Sales Talk at 6 to 1, and the others ranged up to 15 to 1 on Stinging Bee.

With Regards Sets Pace.

Charley Corbett sent With Regards out swiftly to make the pace. He opened up a lead of three lengths by the time they began the run down the back stretch. As they approached the far turn, however, the others began closing on him. Sales Talk, Riverland, Montsin, and Best Seller all came at him in a wave, cutting his lead to half a length as they went into the curve. Sales Talk came up on the inside with a determined challenge and raced head and head with With Regards as they made the swing.

Moving into the stretch, Sales Talk went quite wide, carrying With Regards with him. This left the path wide open for Brooks to drive Riverland up on the inside. Before they reached midstretch Riverland was comfortably in front. Meanwhile Sales Talk had weakened in his duel with With Regards and had dropped out of it, leaving Stinging Bee and Best Seller to engage in their head and head battle for third place.

The prices on Riverland were $6.60, $3.60, and $3.00 across the board.

The mutuel handle for the day was $695,686.

Aletern Wins the Potomac; Favorite Last

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 19 (AP).—A. C. Ernst's Aletern won the $7,725 Potomac handicap purse today after a stretch duel with Half Crown. The favorite, R. Sterling Clark's Colchis, finished last in the field of seven 3 year olds.

Aletern, with Jimmy Thornburg aboard, moved up fast coming into the stretch to take over the lead from Christiana stable's Half Crown, which set all the early pace, and go on to a half length victory. Two lengths back of Half Crown in third place was Mrs. D. B. Miller's Incoming.

Half Crown Takes Lead.

Thornburg, who was accounting for his 15th victory of the seven day old Havre meeting, piloted the son of Eternal-Xanthina home in 1:47 1-5 for the mile and one-sixteenth over a heavy track. Twice this week Thornburg has won four races in one day.

Aletern, which closed as third choice, returned $15.60, $6.40, and $4.20 across the board. Half Crown paid $9 and $5, and Incoming $7.90 for $2.

Half Crown took the lead shortly after the start, followed by Colchis and Greentree stable's Buckskin, with Aletern last. Buckskin took over second spot at the far turn with Aletern moving up fast. Reaching the stretch, Aletern came down the outside to go on to the victory, despite a strong bid by Jockey Nick Wall and Half Crown.

Betting Near Normal.

Thornburg ran his Havre de Grace victory to 16 in the secondary feature, the $2,000 Susquehanna handicap for 3 year olds and upward, when he brought Lavann stable's Chuckle In in 1:13 2-5 for the six furlongs.

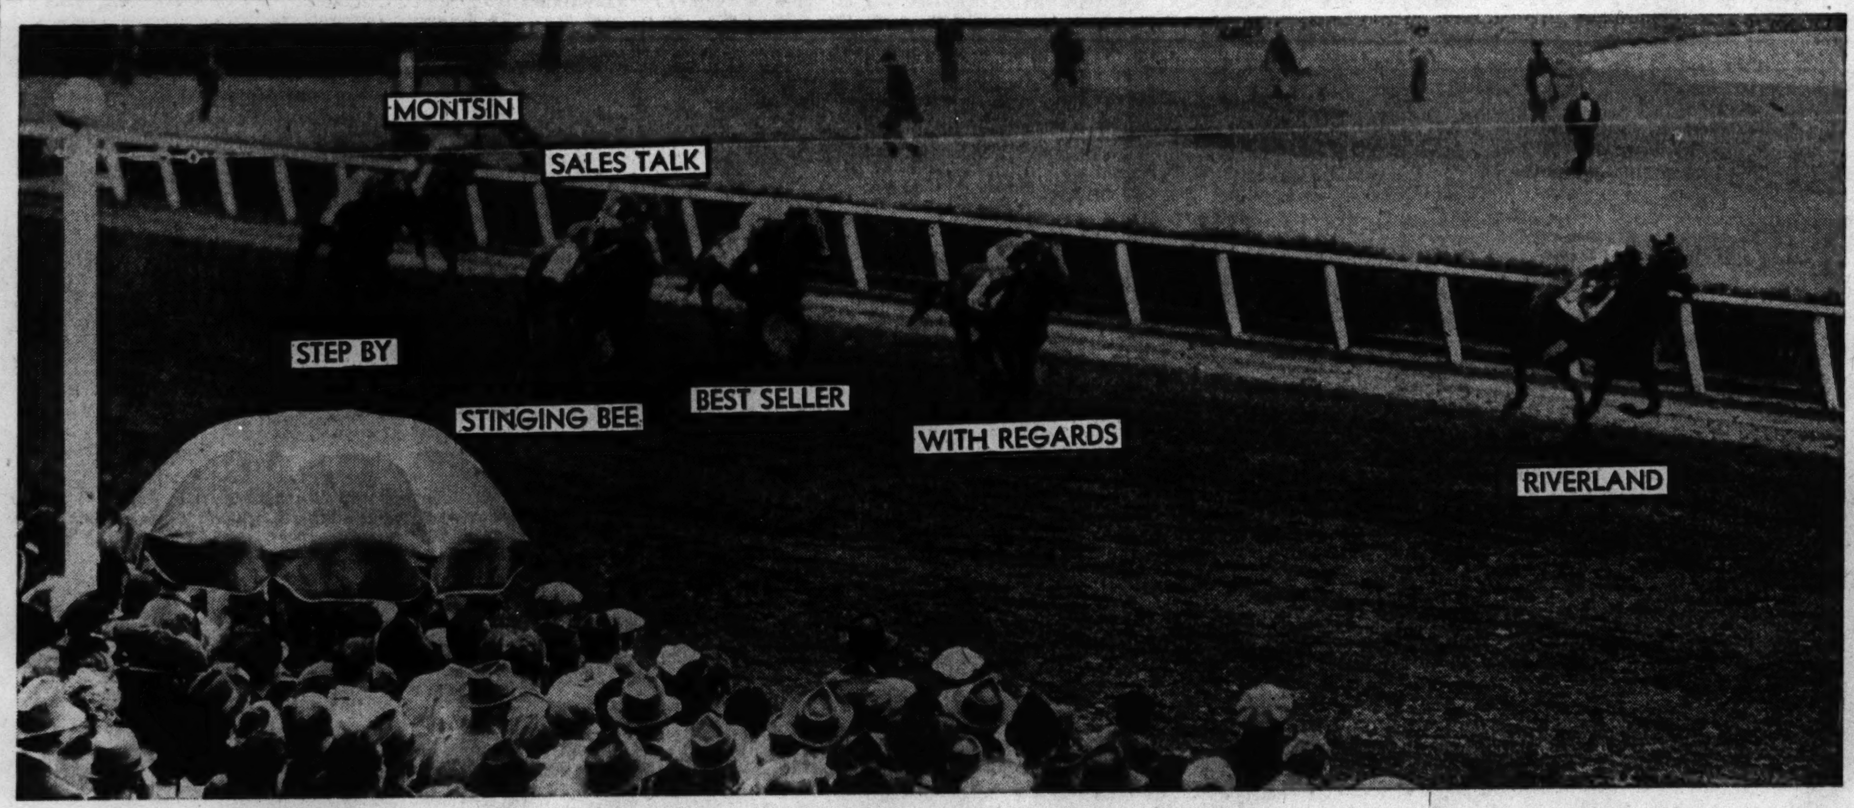
RUSSELL MARTIN WINS WITH 74 AT RIVERSIDE

Russell Martin, a guest, shot a 74 to carry off low gross honors at Riverside Country club's annual Harvest Home invitational yesterday. The balance of the prizes were awarded on a net basis, and E. J. Elting took first place for members, with 86—13—73, and Arthur Bierbaum won the guest prize, with a 91—25—66.

A. S. George won second place for members, with 80—6—74, and F. J. Soukup was third, with 81—7—74. Other guest prize winners were Henry Mlady, 98—31—67, and Frank Lanz, 94—24—70.

In the nine hole morning event with one-half handicap, J. J. Tourek shot a 42—6—36 to carry off first place for members, while Ollie George led the guest shooters, with 50—12—38.

RIVERLAND SCORES AGAIN—THIS TIME IN AUTUMN HANDICAP



Riverland, owned by Harold Clark of Chicago and Miami, captures the $5,000 Autumn handicap at Hawthorne yesterday by two lengths over With Regards. Stinging Bee, two lengths back of With Regards, was third by a nose over Best Seller. The previous Saturday Riverland had scored in the Hawthorne Speed handicap. Yesterday Riverland was quoted at 2 to 1 as was With Regards. Riverland raced into command at midstretch and was drawing out at the end. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

UNCLE WALTER, under a snug hold to the stretch turn, was slow to respond, came up on the inside when engaging COPPER HEELS, drifted out slightly in the late stages, and got up at the end. COPPER HEELS displayed the most speed from the start, raced wide, and, holding on fairly well, only gave way to the winner in the last stride. CHIEF BUD came to extreme outside in the stretch, moved with a rush nearing the last eighth, but weakened near the close.

SUMATRA III., away fast and steadied along to the last five-sixteenths, was forced wide by CHERRIKO entering the stretch, took command gradually when clear, and came out slightly near the end. STRAY CHORD had speed, saved ground, and held on gamely. CHERRIKO drifted out when taking command on the stretch turn and did not keep up in the drive.

IRON WORKS, away fast but unable to keep up, improved his position with a rush when racing on the extreme outside entering the stretch, quickly drew out after getting to the front, and won easily. MARCHON, never far back and also raced wide, moved up under pressure in the stretch but labored in the going after five-eighths yet outstayed PRECIPITOUS. Latter, taken back at the start, trailed badly to the stretch, where he closed well on he inside.

SONNY CASEY opened up a commanding advantage with a rush, continued strongly in the going under good restraint rounding the turn, was roused entering the stretch, and had something left. SAY NOMORE, under stout reserve to the last five-sixteenths, was on the inside in the stretch and closed well under punishment. LATENT, a forward factor from the start, weakened badly in the final eighth.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Three year olds and up. Claiming. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

PROUD SISTER had speed from the start, was on the outside while forcing the pace, drew into command under energetic riding, and weakened in the late stages, but lasted. POMIVA did not keep up on the turn but came strongly in the last three-sixteenths, and finished fastest. VOTUM, taken to the outside early, bettered his position gradually the last three-eighths and made a determined effort in the drive.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Three year olds and up. Myrtlewood handicap. Purse $3,000. Net value to winner, $1,950; second, $600; third, $300; fourth, $150.

Time, :23 1-5, :48 1-5, 1:13 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Miss Dogwood, $8.80 straight, $3.80 place, $2.80 show; Signator, $3.40 place, $2.60 show; Sis Baker, $3.80 show. Winner trained by J. M. Goode. Went to post at 4:37½. Off at once. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

MISS DOGWOOD, under steady restraint for a half mile, came out slightly when engaging SIGNATOR under light pressure approaching the final eighth, responded to punishment after five-eighths, and was getting away from SIGNATOR at the end. Latter, on the outside thruout and also in hand to the stretch, gained a short advantage after being placed to a drive but was unable to retain it, while holding on with determination. SIS BAKER raced well to the final eighth, where she faltered.

Time, :24 3-5, :49 1-5, 1:15, 1:42 2-5, 1:49 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Riverland, $6.60 straight, $3.60 place, $3.00 show; With Regards, $3.80 place, $3.40 show; Stinging Bee, $5.20 show. Winner trained by M. Jolley. Went to post at 5:06. Off at 5:06½. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

RIVERLAND, under brisk riding early but taken in hand after three sixteenths, came thru on the inside when making his bid under strong pressure, raced into command gradually and was drawing out at the close. WITH REGARDS, away fastest and having fine speed, held sway in hand until reaching the final half mile, drifted out while engaging SALES TALK for the lead, failed to withstand the winner after regaining command entering the last three-sixteenths, and swerved in the late stages. STINGING BEE raced very wide, was under stout urging after three-quarters, and faltered in the last sixteenth, but outstayed BEST SELLER.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Two year olds. Claiming. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

Winner trained by J. Lowenstein. Went to post at 5:37. At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won easily, place driving.

HEART BREAKER took command with a rush, was steadied around the stretch turn, came away in the last quarter, and had something left. TIME OUT, taken back repeatedly, lost ground entering the stretch, and swerved under weak handling thereafter. ARRIVE ON TIME, never a great distance back, did not rally to light urging and tired badly in the last three-sixteenths.

CLOUDY WEATHER, always within striking distance of the leaders, moved up strongly on the inside rounding the stretch turn, took command when straightened away in the home stretch, and under mild urging drew away to win by a wide margin. MISMARK, a forward factor thruout, raced on the outside rounding the final bend, closed gamely in the final drive. KENTY MISS, never far from the pace in the early stages, raced very wide entering the final quarter, was going gamely at the end.

Slovaks Meet Spartas Today in Soccer Play

BY OFFSIDE.

The second round soccer league series today provides three featured attractions. The Slovaks, state champions, face a stiff test against the Spartas, major league titleholders, in the Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. The Slovaks, who feel the loss of Pete Matevich, and Emil Tomecek, have another disappointment. Smitty Tomecek, their crack center forward joins the navy this week.

The Spartas, who were held scoreless last week by the Chicago Sport club for over one hour, haven't come to terms with their holdouts, Joe Silovsky, goal keeper, Jimmy MacDermott, and Jimmy Wolf, forwards, and will give another tryout to Frank Soucek, and Mal Gormych, of the Olympia's. Today's match starts at 2:30. The reserves of both teams play at 12:30. Lineups:

| SLOVAKS. | | SPARTAS. |
|---|---|---|
| Wisniewski | G.K. | Burda |
| Ruzich | R.B. | Scott |
| Daniels | L.B. | Mrnka |
| Proksa | R.H. | Rezak |
| F. Tomecek | C.H. | Nudera |
| D. Jariabka | L.H. | Hamous |
| T. Jariabka | O.R. | Soucek |
| Mizialko | I.R. | Gormych |
| S. Tomecek | C.F. | Cook |
| Bohm | I.L. | Werier |
| Cermak | O.L. | Pavlecek |

Referee—Robert Jones.

Headliner on North Side.

North side fans can witness another headliner at California avenue and Roscoe street, when the Schwabens meet the Vikings in a major league contest. The Schwabens who started last week with a victory over the Kickers, will have veterans Erni Schaaf and Frank Kutsch back in their lineup.

The Vikings, after their close victory over the Linneas in last week's opener, will show one change, Al O'Hare coming in at his usual place on the right wing. The Reserves meet in a regular league game starting at 12:30, Eli Korer will referee the big game. The lineups:

| SCHWABEN. | | VIKINGS. |
|---|---|---|
| Gutekunst | G.K. | R. Camplin |
| Schaaf | R.B. | Flodin |
| Kutsch | L.B. | Kuehl |

| Jordon | O.R. | Brsotrom |
| Streng | I.R. | O'Hare |
| Behnke | C.F. | E. Camplin |
| Janik | I.L. | Granquist |
| Druek | O.L. | Ohrenberger |

Two Games in A Division.

The A division features two important games, the South Side Swedes, who started out last week with a big win over the Fichte, meeting the Necaxas in the school stadium at 82d street and Yates avenue, and the Italian Sport club playing Oak Park in the Reda stadium, 2600 West Huron street.

A number of matches have been postponed owing to the Jewish holidays, but next week all teams will see action.

Today's schedule:

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE [Major division]—Slovaks vs. Spartas, Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, 2:30, referee, Robert Jones; Schwabens vs. Vikings, California avenue and Roscoe street, 2:30, referee, Eli Korer; Chicago Sport Club vs. Kickers, Kedzie avenue and Roscoe street, 2:30, referee, Jack Maher; Hansa vs. Linneas, Kimball avenue and Addison street, 2:30, referee, Rudolph Basak.

A AND B SECTIONS—S. S. Swedes vs. Necaxa, School stadium, 82d street and Yates avenue, 2:30, referee, Fred Klotz; Italian Sport Club vs. Oak Park, Reda stadium, 2600 West Grand avenue, 2:30, referee, Raymond Huber; Workers vs. Fichte, Hanson park, 2:30, referee, Carl Behnke; Norwegians vs. Necaxa, 4500 Fullerton avenue, 2:30, referee, Alfred Rothman; Rockford vs. S. ## NEWS FROM ARMY AND NAVY POSTS

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Scott Field.

PVT. JOSE DE CAPRILES of New York, one of the finest saber arms in the country, has been added to the fencing team at this parent radio school of the army air forces technical training command. . . . The addition to the team of De Capriles gives this field a three weapon squad second to none. . . . The team, composed of two national champions and two divisional title holders, is captained by Lieut. Col. Fred W. Siebert, whose home is at 1209 North Le Claire avenue in Chicago. . . . Other members of the squad include Staff Sergeant James A. Steere, son of Mrs. Christine Steere of 1224 East 52d street, Chicago.

Pvt. José De Capriles.

Camp Grant.

THE Warrior gridders will make their fourth appearance of the season against Lake Forest college in Bell bowl Saturday. . . . They encountered Wisconsin yesterday after having beaten Falk Corporation of Milwaukee and suffering a defeat at the hands of the Chicago Bears previously. . . . Technical Sergt. Al Noto, former Catholic Youth organization flyweight champion, who distinguished himself in Golden Gloves competition, scored his second straight victory over Gene Roberts of Danville, Ill., in one of a series of intramural bouts held at this camp recently. . . . Pvt. Joe Rogalski registered his ninth decision of the year by pitching the post's baseball representatives to a 9 to 2 victory over the Streator White Sox in Streator last Sunday. . . . The achievement gave the soldiers their 48th conquest in 61 games. They will conclude the season today in Rockola stadium, with the Spencer Coals offering the opposition. . . . Pvt. Harvey J Lhost of company D, 30th battalion, is being admired by golfers at the camp because of his recent success in making a hole in one. . . . Pvt. Stephen F. Strpka is considered a top bowler at this reservation despite the fact he has only a 170 average.

Fort Sheridan.

THE post's baseball standard bearers will end the season with a game against a team from Racine, Wis., Wednesday. However, there appears to be more interest in the opening of the camp's bowling alleys on Tuesday. . . . Schedules have not been drawn up as yet, but Lieut. Dee W. Pinneo, new assistant athletic officer, said boxing, basketball, badminton, and tennis will be among the major sports on the calendar. . . . Plans for the winter will be drawn up the first week in October. . . . Lieut. Pinneo is a former basketball captain and tennis player at Michigan State. . . . He is a native of Grand Rapids, Mich. . . . The Hunters, paced by Nappy Van Sistine, biggest athlete at the camp, and Bob Timmel, late of Notre Dame and Oconomowoc, Wis., upset the Ohms, 8 to 1, to capture the second place playoff in the Tower softball league during the week. . . . Van Sistine had a perfect day at bat with two hits and two walks, not to mention his excellent fielding performance at first base despite his 293 pounds. . . . The Mixers won the league championship earlier. . . . Latest recruit is Pvt. Lloyd Schenider of Madison, Wis., who pitched and played the outfield for Wisconsin last spring.

Navy Pier.

FOUR more enlisted men from the pier have become commissioned officers. . . . They are Dwight M. Lewis, Kenneth Anthony Norton, Martin Pysmenny, and Davis Hine, all being former chiefs connected with the athletic department. . . . Each received the rank of ensign. . . . Comm. J. E. Hurff, executive officer at this establishment and given credit for the pier's well-rounded sports program, has been ordered to report for sea duty as commanding officer of a newly commissioned transport. . . . His successor at the pier is Lieut. Comm. J. L. Seligman, security officer, who will serve as second in command until a new executive officer is assigned. . . . The station's cross-country team will open the season against Milwaukee State Teachers' college Oct. 3. . . . The pier bowlers recently defeated the Pabst Blue Ribbons, 2609 to 2472, in the opening of the Arena House league.

Chanute Field.

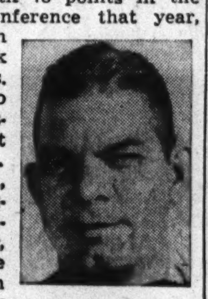
GENE ROSE, football end at the University of Tennessee in 1935, has been assigned to this field. . . . Rose, who was among the high scorers with 78 points in the Southeastern conference that year, later played with the New York football Giants. . . . He also starred as a basketball player at Tennessee. . . . Danny Dann, heavyweight boxer, and Ray Roldan, star bowler, who coached the Chanute team which beat Hank Marino's All-Stars in a benefit match in Chicago recently, have been transferred to other stations. . . . The Planesmen will be searching for their 10th straight victory in a baseball game against the Glen Ellyn Reds this afternoon at Glen Ellyn. . . . Gil Gillespie, former physical instructor for movie stars in Hollywood, is conducting classes for 60 men, who in turn will impart the knowledge taught them to other soldiers at daily calisthenics and games sessions.



Gene Rose.

Great Lakes.

BARRACKS 504, which is coached by Joseph Vecchione, is holding the lead in the Service school basketball competition for the second straight week. . . . In order to build up their record of 14 victories against one loss, the leaders were obliged to squeeze a 23 to 22 triumph over barracks 607. . . . They also came from behind to nip barracks 508 on another occasion. . . . Leading the 504 team are Francis McSharer, Jack Siple, Francis Borowski, J. R. Patterson, Robert George, Marwood Good, and Ben Prewitt. . . . One of the most sought after bowlers on the station is Maurice Wellman, apprentice seaman and former printer from Indianapolis. . . . Wellman had a 205 average in Indianapolis' two top leagues last season to rank well up among that city's leading pinmen. . . . A year ago last Christmas he bowled a 300 game in match competition. . . .

Barracks 611 of the night shift at Service school's gunnery class has laid claim to having the championship race boat crew of the station as the result of beating barracks 506 and setting a new course record of 3 minutes and 5 seconds. . . . Meanwhile, the 1st Regiment maintained its superiority in regimental races by winning both cutter and whaleboat races. . . . The races were rowed to martial music, and cheers from six assembled companies, while signalmen kept the onlookers informed as to the progress of the events. . . . Harry Shinn served as coxswain for the 1st Regiment cutter crew, which stroked the course in 3 minutes, 20 seconds to beat the second place 5th Regiment. . . . Michael Disano piloted the 1st Regiment's winning whaleboat crew, 5th Regiment again placing second.

OCCUPATION RUNS SECOND; IS DISQUALIFIED

Loses to Slide Rule at Aqueduct.

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—John Marsch's Occupation, top money winning 2 year old of the year, failed in his eastern debut today as W. E. Boeing's Slide Rule whipped Chicago's chief claimant to the juvenile title by three lengths in the $10,000 Cowdin stakes at Aqueduct.

And then, as if that was not enough of a disappointment for the colt that had won six of his eight starts and $117,575, he was disqualified out of second money and thus dropped out of the picture for the first time in his short career. Crispin Oglebay's True Blue, six lengths back of Occupation at the end of the six and a half furlongs, was moved up to second and William Ziegler Jr.'s Breezing Home up to third.

Arcaro Suspended for Ride.

Arcaro was suspended, effective Monday, with his case referred to the stewards of the Jockey club to determine how long the grounding should last. Venancio Nodarse, up on Breezing Home, was suspended for nine days, effective Tuesday, for rough riding leaving the starting gate.

Slide Rule Pays $10.30.

With Occupation the odds-on choice, Slide Rule returned $10.30 in earning the purse of $8,975. McCreary took him up alongside Occupation around the turn and then drew clear in the final drive as Marsch's horse refused to extend himself. Mrs. John Hertz's Count Fleet, Occupation's chief rival around the Chicago tracks, was scratched.

Giants Defeat All-Star Army Eleven, 10 to 7

him. Kimbrough made only 17 yards in 11 running attempts.

The pros had a big edge in statistics, with 14 first downs to the army's eight, 193 yards by rushing to the soldiers' 103. Wade's men took to the air frequently and picked up 113 yards via passes to the Giants' 39.

The Giants dominated the game in the first half, which was played largely between the 20 yard stripes. The New York team got as close as the army 26 and, when it couldn't penetrate the line, Andy Marefos dropped back to the 37 and place-kicked a field goal. At this point Kimbrough made his big bid, racing back 43 yards with the kickoff. But the team couldn't get going.

Pros Crash Thru Line.

The Giants ripped the army line to shreds in the third period, moving 75 yards, largely thru the plunging of Merle Hapes, who contributed a 36 yard sprint to the drive. Cantor, freshman Giant back from U. C. L. A., took it over for the pros from the 12.

The army score came midway in the fourth, when Goodnight snatched Hank Soar's pass in the flat on the army 7 and took off down the field for 93 yards, aided by Hank Gude's last second block on Soar. Bill Dawson placekicked the extra point.

A BROOKLYN FAN CALLS ON CUBS TO GIVE THEIR ALL

Six-eighths of the National league isn't doing right by one of the two other eighths—Brooklyn's Bums, who were in first place for 144 days of the season, but aren't there any longer. This seems to be the thought conveyed by "Brooklyn fan" who yesterday dispatched a lengthy telegram to the Cubs, and probably to all the other enemy clubs, St. Louis excepted.

Said "Brooklyn Fan": "The Dodgers have lost their hitting eye but we think you members of the other teams have quit to St. Louis. . . . We cannot believe that it is an accident which has caused so many of you to have the same difficulties in the last innings to make the poor selection of pitchers and pinch hitters. . . . We cannot do anything except make this appeal to your sporting blood and also call attention to the lack of help your clubs received from St. Louis fans. . . . Let's have a bang up fight right down to the wire. . . . Don't kill the bold that lays the golden eggs by quitting."

All the Cubs read the anonymous plea and enjoyed a hearty laugh.

P. S.: The telegram was sent before the Phils coöperated with the Dodgers yesterday when Si Johnson walked three straight batters in the 11th to force in the winning run.

CONCORDIA AND WHEATON PLAY SCORELESS TIE

The Concordia and Wheaton football teams battled to a scoreless tie yesterday in River Forest. Wheaton drove 67 yards down to the Concordia 4 yard line in the second quarter, but was unable to score in four attempts.

RED SOX DEFEAT YANKEES, 9 TO 6, IN 10TH INNING

Cullenbine, Keller, Finney, Williams Hit Homers.

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox took advantage of Bill Dickey's wild throw in the 10th inning today to score three runs and beat the New York Yankees 9 to 6 for their 90th victory of the season—their greatest number of victories in 25 years.

Boston's winning rally was started by Johnny Pesky, who led off with his 201st hit of the year. Ted Williams drew his third walk and Tony Lupien sacrificed—but Dickey fielded the bunt and threw wild past first, letting both runners score. Lou Finney followed with a single scoring Lupien, which with an earlier homer and triple gave him three runs batted in for the day.

Ted Williams hit his 34th home run in the first inning. Roy Cullenbine got his second as a Yankee, and Charley Keller added his 26th. Score:

Sox, Browns Idle; 2 Games Set for Today

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 19 [Special].—The White Sox and Brown shivered in their dugouts for more than 45 minutes here this afternoon before club officials and umpires finally agreed the weather was more suitable for duck-hunting and football than it was for baseball.

As a result, the game, the first of a three game series, was canceled as far as St. Louis is concerned, but Bill Dewitt, general manager of the Browns, indicated an attempt would be made to play the game in Chicago next Saturday or Sunday when the Browns and Sox wind up the season.

Tomorrow afternoon the two teams will play a double header, final games in St. Louis for the third place Browns.

Johnny Humphries was slated to hurl today, but he was scratched in Manager Jim Dykes' pitching plans for tomorrow. Buck Ross and Bill Dietrich will oppose the Browns. Luke Sewel announced he would start Steve Sundra and Bob Muncrief.

Winklers to Play Giants in Double Header Today

Chicago Winkler Motors and American Giants resume an ald rivalry in a double header this afternoon in Rockola stadium, 4200 N. Central avenue. The Winklers will use Paul Mason and Dick Hudson on the mound. Charley Shields and Willie Ferrell are expected to start for the Giants, whose lineup also will include Jimmy Crutchfield, Lester Lockett, Ralph Wyatt, Art Pennington and other leading colored players. The first game will start at 1:30.

THINKIN' OF THAT PENNANT ON A RAINY, RAINY DAY!

Mike Gonzales, coach of the Cards, better known for his classic report on a rookie player: "Good field, no hit," peeking out at the weather with Manager Billy Southworth (right) before yesterday's game was postponed.

Softball Play Is Postponed by Weather

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 19 [Special].—All games in the semi-final round of the world's championship softball tournament scheduled for tonight were postponed until tomorrow night because of weather. The final round for the championship titles in both the girls and men's divisions has been set for Monday night.

The Garden City Maids of Chicago are paired with the Erin Brews of Cleveland, O., whom they beat in a previous round, and the undefeated Jax Girls of New Orleans will play the Phoenix, Ariz., Ramblers in the girls' division semi-final games, while in the men's division, the unbeaten Deep Rock Oilers of Tulsa, Okla., face once beaten Briggs Bombers of Detroit, Mich., and the Zollner Pistons of Fort Wayne, Ind., will meet the Bendix Brakes team of South Bend, the defending champions.

At the annual Amateur Softball association commissioners meeting, John Owen, Chicago attorney, was reappointed commissioner for Metropolitan Chicago for 1943. Raymond Johnson, sports editor of the Nashville, Tenn., Tennessean, was elected president of the Amateur Softball association, and W. E. Landis, the retiring president, was made a member of the executive board.

The 1943 tournament was awarded to Detroit.

6 Clubs Still in Metropolitan Title Play-Offs

The second week of playoff competition in the Metropolitan Amateur Baseball league has narrowed the championship field to six teams, four in the senior bracket and two junior contenders who battle for the title in a best two of three series.

This afternoon's senior schedule calls for a double header in Block stadium, Indiana Harbor. Melrose Park Red Birds, champions of the Kilbourne-Oak Park bracket, will battle St. Vitus in the opener and Clarion A. C. will take on Assumption A. C. in the second game.

Meanwhile consolation tournaments still are being held in both the senior and junior brackets. Four senior games and two junior games highlighted by the Triner A. C.-Chi-Plebes battle in Riis park, 6200 Fullerton avenue, will set the stage for next Sunday's final round.

Today's Schedule.

SENIOR CHAMPIONSHIP—Melrose Park Red Birds vs. St. Vitus A. C., Block stadium, 12:30 p. m.; Clarions A. C. vs. Assumption, Block stadium, 3:30 p. m.

SENIOR CONSOLATION—Triner A. C. vs. Chi-Plebes, Riis park, 6200 Fullerton, 3 p. m.; Red Wings A. C. vs. Rams A. C., McKinley park, 39th and Western, 1 p. m.; Golden Stars vs. Chi-Reds, Washington park, 53d and Cottage, 3 p. m.; St. Davids A. C. vs. Tim Ryans A. C., Shermban park, 3 p. m.

JUNIOR CONSOLATION—Wolcott Tigers vs. Maciejewski Boosters, 52d and 29th place, 2:30 p. m.; W. S. Arrows vs. Cicero Cavaliers, Revere park, 2509 Irving, 3 p. m.

Yacht Races Are Called Off Because of Weather

Scheduled yacht races off Wilmette, Belmont, and Chicago harbors were called off yesterday due to heavy weather on the lake.

Chester Is Outweighed, but Defeats Dupo, 7 to 6

Chester, Ill., Sept. 19 [Special].—Altho outweighed 20 pounds per man, Chester High school defeated Dupo this afternoon, 7 to 6. Paul Bartel passed 15 yards to Right Half Bob Davis for a touchdown in the second quarter and added the extra point. Dupo scored in the third quarter on a 20 yard run by George Cunningham. A portion of the receipts went to Berdell Hasemyer who was injured in a game last year.

Dropped to Minors, Handley Quits Baseball

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 19 [Special].—Lee Handley, third baseman recently released by Pittsburgh to Toronto in the International league, today declared that he was thru with baseball. An injury sustained by Handley in an auto accident last year kept him out of baseball most of this season.

WEATHER STOPS CARDS; PLAY TWO WITH CUBS TODAY

tributed to his inability to take care of the Phils. So today he's going to start all over, not at his original 13 but 14, a number that belonged to Gus Mancuso until he was shipped away to the Giants in midseason.

Paging All Numerologists.

The No. 13 enters recent Cardinal history in another way. On Aug. 13 they were beaten, 13 to 5. Thirteen Cardinals were in the game. They lost to Passeau, another No. 13 devotee. That group of jinx numbers started 'em off. They won eight straight, which was part of 17 out of 19 when August expired. From Aug. 13 to the first of September they went from 8½ to 3 games behind the Dodgers. And it wasn't long before they had breezed past the champions.

The record that Warneke will pit against Cooper isn't quite as impressive as the latter's 20 and 7. When the Cardinal bosses decided the Arkansas wisecracker had passed the age limit and handed him back to his first big league love he had won six while losing four. As a Cub he has broken even, 5 and 5, and two of his successes were over the Dodgers, who once were dearly loved in Brooklyn but never in the rest of the National league. The rivals just don't seem to care about Leo Durocher, the Bums' boss.

Moore's in Playing Shape.

As for Passeau, he has a season's work sheet of consequence. He has won 18 against 13 losses, a percentage that indicates he either is very good or decidedly the other way. He'll have no soft touch in Lanier, who has 13 and 7, and seldom is a simple problem for the hitters who wear the fancy Cub uniforms.

Terry Moore, one of the Cards' various flashy outfielders, is ready to go back today after a rest enforced by a leg injury, but in view of the Cards' exploits during his absence Boss Southworth may hesitate to remove Harry Walker, Moore's understudy.

GIANTS DEFEAT BRAVES, 7 TO 6, WITH BIG INNING

Score Five in Seventh; Hubbell Wins No. 10.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 19 (AP).—The New York Giants and Boston Braves held a battle of big innings today and the Giants got the biggest, five runs in the seventh when Manager Mel Ott hit his 28th homer with the bases loaded, to win, 7 to 6.

The victory was credited as the 10th of the season for Carl Hubbell, who was removed for a pinch hitter in the seventh, while the defeat was charged to Lou Tost, first of five Boston hurlers. Score:

BOWLERS START PRACTICING FOR ALL-STAR SHOW

Preliminaries Will Open on Oct. 17.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

Chicago's ranking bowlers, the fellows who by reason of having maintained league averages of 190 or more last season are eligible to compete in the All-Star preliminaries, are beginning to sharpen their games in preparation for the local trials that are to open Oct. 17 and run for three weekends. The preliminaries are to produce 8 of the 14 men the city will put into the second All-Star event which in turn is to produce the 1943 national match game champion. The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and Bowling Proprietors' Association of America will sponsor the All-Star show.

Most of the city's big name shooters are getting their practice in league play—in such circuits as the Classic, which rolls twice weekly; the Windy City, Randolph, Gold Coast, North End and South End Traveling, Greater Chicago Traveling, and others. But some of them are getting ready to compete in special matches, too, such as the 24 game doubles involving Herb Freitag-Paul Krumske against Eli Maricich-John Small, which opens Oct. 3. Of that group Freitag already is seeded in the All-Star tournament, while Krumske and Maricich, who competed last season, and Small are expected to file entries. Others who, like Freitag, are seeded by virtue of having finished among the high 22 in last year's All-Star tournament are Joe Wilman, Bill Hargadon, Joe Sinke, Bill Flesch, and Wally Freitag.

Tourney to Open Dec. 5.

Aim of all the men who are to participate in the Chicago preliminaries is to reach the individual event that is to open Dec. 5 in what is now the Auditorium theater but by then will be the Service Men's Center No. 2 Bowling Lanes. That event will be the second All-Star tournament, in which a field that may reach 120 of the nation's sharpshooters, will compete for the national match game title held by Ned Day.

To get into that big national show, Chicago bowlers first will have to file entries in the Chicago trials. Individual entries must be mailed to Math. Luecker, secretary of the Bowling Proprietors Association of Greater Chicago, along with the entry fee of $25. Luecker's home address is 1738 Addison street. The entries must be in by midnight of Oct. 10.

On Oct. 17 the entrants will start round robin match play competition in the bowling center nearest their homes holding a preliminary. They will be placed in groups of eight, with each man in the group meeting every other man in a four-game match—seven matches, or 28 games in all. Should a particular house have more than one group in play the winners will meeet in a roll-off. This preliminary play will take place Oct. 17-18, 24-25, and Oct. 31-Nov. 1. Each entrant will roll a four-game match on five of those dates and a double-header on the other to make up his seven matches.

Entry Fees in Prize Pot.

Prizes will be determined by the entry, but the eight winners will have their $50 entry fees into the All-Star tournament paid, and probably will earn additional cash. The full total of the entry fees, of course, plus part of the gate that is to be charged will go into the prize pot.

The Tribune Charities will sponsor the Chicago trials as well as the All-Star tournament. It will file the Chicago winners' entries with Eddie Linsz, secretary of the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America, who will be secretary of the major event.

The men reaching the All-Star tourney will compete Dec. 5 thru Dec. 10 in preliminaries on a total pin basis, rolling five games daily or 30 games in all. At the end of the six days the high nine will enter the finals, along with either Ned Day or Johnnie Crimmins of Detroit, who last year won the right to challenge Day. Day and Crimmins are to compete in a 90-game match, firing 15 games a day during the six preliminary days. The winner will join the other nine finalists in a round robin that is to produce the 1943 national match game champion. Day probably will be in the service by December, but the committee is hopeful that a leave can be arranged which will permit him to compete.

The show will be the year's premier event for star bowlers. All profits will go toward maintaining the 12 alleys on which the show takes place.

WITTIG FAILS IN 13TH; SYRACUSE WINS OPENER, 1-0

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 19 (AP).—Johnny Wittig, star Jersey City right hander, hurled 10 1-3 innings of hitless runless baseball today, but lost a heartbreaking 1 to 0 decision to Clay Lambert of Syracuse when the Chiefs pushed the only run of the game over in the 13th to take the opening chapter of the final series for the International league's Governors cup.

Lambert gave up only eight hits and batted in the winning run with a single following Johnny Bottarini's triple, scoring Walter Cazen, who ran for Bottarini.

Wittig, who had shut out Newark with two hits in the preliminary round, was complete master over the Redmen for the first 10 innings. The first Syracuse safety was a line single to center by Van Harrington with one away in the 11th. In the 13th Johnny Rucker, after a long run, got his hands on Bottarini's drive, but couldn't hold it and it was scored as a triple. Lambert then inserted his single.

Jersey City..000 000 000 000 0—0 8 1
Batteries—Lambert and Bottarini; Wittig and Poland, Hartje.

Navy League, Sea Scouts to Hold Regattas

Two regattas honoring Commodore Sheldon Clark, head of the Yachtsmen's Association of America, the Sea Scouts of America, and the Navy League of the United States, will be held at Chicago today.

A fleet of sailing yachts representing Milwaukee and Chicagoland yacht clubs will compete off Chicago harbor starting at 1 p. m. The regatta is the 18th annual Commodore Sheldon Clark trophy event of the Chicago Yacht club. At 1:30 o'clock 23 Sea Scout ships of the Chicago council will race in the annual Commodore Sheldon Clark lifeboat rowing regatta on the Chicago river.

Every sailing class of boats over 22 feet long is eligible to compete in the Chicago Yacht club's regatta, without entry fee or filing entry. The starters must all be numbered according to Lake Michigan Yachting association rules, however, and their ratings must be on file with the club.

Cups to Be Awarded.

Two triangular courses will be sailed off the Monroe street club house of the Chicago Yacht club. A green flag on the regatta committee boat anchored outside the breakwater will indicate that buoys are to be rounded to starboard. An orange flag will mean buoys to port. Lieut. Byron H. Willis, U. S. N. R., is chairman of the regatta committee.

Commodore Sheldon Clark cups will be awarded the yachts with the best corrected time in the cruising and Universal [racing] divisions. Prizes also will be awarded the winning craft in each class. Classes will start three minutes apart instead of the usual five.

Starting times follow:

Course A—12 Statute Miles.

1:00—Q class, 8 meter class, 10 meter class.
1:03—Class A, cruising division.
1:06—Class B, cruising division.
1:09—Universal yawls and schooners.
1:12—R class.
1:15—S class and 22 square meters.
1:18—Class C, cruising division.
1:21—Class D, cruising division.
1:24—Class E, cruising division.

Course B—7 Statute Miles.

1:27—Star class.
1:30—110 class.
1:33—Tumlaren class.

In previous years the regatta was held off Navy pier, but the public does not have access to the pier now. All events will be in view of the downtown Outer drive this afternoon.

Six Heats for Sea Scouts.

Six heats, started a half hour apart, will be rowed by the Sea Scouts competing for the Commodore Sheldon Clark trophies in the Chicago river. A five-eighth mile course between the Outer drive bridge and the Michigan avenue bridge will be run. The finish line will be just west of the Michigan avenue bridge. Spectators may watch from the Wacker drive viaduct, according to Chet A. Koehler, Sea Scout director.

Among the crews of Sea Scouts, all under 21, who will row the lifeboats are boys from the five ships which won the Commodore Noyes races last week. These are Sea Scout ships Victor, Flying Cloud, Constellation, Half Moon, and Seeadler. Entries follow:

First heat—Sea Scout ships Victor, Flying Cloud, Blackhawk, Orzel. Starting time 1:30 p. m.

Second heat—Sea Scout ships Constellation, Privateer, Flying Dutchman, Valiant. Starting time 2 p. m.

Third heat—Sea Scout ships Half Moon, Triton, MacMillan, Independence. Starting time 2:30 p. m.

Fifth heat—Sea Scout ships Bishop Sheil, Ad Post Clipper, Smith, Capt. Allen Clark. Starting time 3:30 p. m.

Sixth heat—Sea Scout ships Emden, Richard E. Byrd, Scanlon.

Note to Conn: Louis Drops 1st Sparmate in 1st Round

Greenwood Lake, N. Y., Sept. 19 (AP).—Sergt. Joe Louis started sparring training today for his Oct. 12 fight with Billy Conn by knocking out Larry Lane, Trenton, N. J., heavyweight, in the first round. It was the first time the champion had donned gloves, except for exhibitions, since he knocked out Abe Simon March 27.

SPOTTING THE PINS

The second of the Chicago Sunday sweepstakes sponsored by the Classic Bowling league is scheduled tonight at Dom De Vito's Park Manor at 100 East 75th street. These are the weekly events by which Chicago's top teams expect to raise a considerable sum for maintenance of the 12 alleys in Service Men's Center No. 2, the Auditorium theater. The Classic is to turn over every penny it raises at the gate at the sweepstakes to the service men's bowling center. Thompson Restaurants won the opening event last Sunday. Tonight's schedule:

7 p. m.—Schlitz, Budweisers, United States Beer, Meister Brau, Ambrosia, Schamberger, Schlitz, Edelweiss. 9:15—Monarch Beer, Washington Shirt, Thompson Restaurants, Prima Pilsners, Joseph L. Gills, Playdium, Atlas Prager.

Teams which won the ABC championships the last two years are the only quintets that will enter tomorrow night's matches in the Windy City Major league with clean records. They are the Budweisers, who oppose the John Tomans, and the Vogel Bros., who meet the Nonebetter Ice Creams. Vogels won the world title in 1941; the Buds last spring. Other matches:

Reichman Jewelers vs. Soper Bros., Bee-Vac vs. Mineralites, Hooges vs. Joseph L. Gills, Samuels Bourbons vs. O'Keefe Coals, Meister Brau vs. Furman Funerals, Cascade Bowling vs. Ace Fasteners.

Bowling Lanes to Hold 2d Women's Solo Event.

Embarrassing: The foul called on the Tribune Nite-Hawk league on a gutter ball. . . . Ralph Olsen announces his second annual women's individual event, to be rolled in January at Bowling Lanes. Last season's event was won by Tillie Kagel of Indianapolis, who took $500 and a medal for shooting 1,205 in six games across 12 alleys. . . . Samuelson's Arcade hit a season's high of 2,597 its last time out in the Bowling Lanes women's major. The league has 16 teams. . . . Liberators are leading with a 3-0 record, while the Devastators trail with 0-3 in the O. F. Carlson's Men's league at Lawrence Bowl.

Herb Freitag and Pul Krumske will shoot two other Classic leaguers Eli Maricich and John Small, in a 24 game match for a purse of $1,000. Rolling in six-game blocks, they will be at Dearborn-Jackson Oct. 3 and 4 and at Gold Coast Oct. 10 and 11. . . . Goransons opened with a sprightly 3,039 in the Greater Chicago Traveling league's inaugural matches. They took the odd game with an 1,100 total. Their Frank Andrews got 655 to tie Al Kowalski of the Cascades for the evening's high solo count.

Dan Protheroe with 652 and Warf Brewer with 635 paced the South Shore National bank to a 2,986 total and a triple over McFall's Tavern in the South Shore Major opening. . . . Mee-Rammes improved a bit in shooting 866, 927, and 1,005, but Wallace Coals did likewise in getting 899, 977, and 1,010 and a clean sweep in Samuelson's Major. This week's schedule:

Waggoner Service Station vs. Wallace Coals, Dette Realtors vs. Old Pogues; Budweisers vs. Fritzi Scheffs, Mee-Ramme vs. Michelobs.

Itasca Bowlers to Start Season Wednesday.

Feldman Petroleums came up with a 2,868 total and 1,015 game to lead four three-game winners in the K. A. M. Men's club league at Hyde Park. And in the Ken Park Lawn Janitors' circuit at the same house, League President George Reese led the way with a 610 total. . . . Andy Anderson is completing the setup for the Itasca Golf club's league, which opens Wednesday night at Northtown. It is a mixed circuit. . . . Tomorrow night's big match in the North End Traveling league: the Gold Crown Beers vs. Chapin & Gore at Faetz & Sons, starting at 7 o'clock. Gold Crowns are defending champions and the C. & G.'s are considered the team to beat this year. Other matches:

Schambergers vs. Hunter's Bourbons at Samuelson's, 7 p. m.; Stack & Ryan Bowl vs. Jolly Jacks at Monte Carlo, 7:30; Pogue's Bourbons vs. Budweisers at Gold Coast, 9 p. m.; Keeley Beers vs. Pepsi-Colas at Goldammer's Milford, 7 p. m.

Clark Shoes, Logan Square Buicks, and the Marigold Arcades won three games from the Newarts, Brucks, and Svobodas, respectively, in the Congress Women's Classic league. Betty Brugman of the Mario Restaurants fired a 564 total for top series. Other scores:

Nine Van Camp, diminutive WIBC all-events champion, is leading the Beverly Tuesday league with a 203 average. High scorer in the circuit last week was Lillian Koehler with 224—553.

Illini Score in 4th; Beat Frosh, 14 to 0

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 19 [Special].—After being held scoreless for three quarters on a slow field, the Illinois varsity scored two touchdowns in the final period today to defeat a stubborn freshman team, 14 to 0.

The first touchdown followed a 73 yard drive with Capt. Jimmy Smith and Dick Good carrying the ball. Smith went over from the 2 yard line. The second touchdown was set up by Art Dufelmeier's 20 yard run to the 5 yard line from where Joe Astroth passed to Ray Grierson in the end zone.

The varsity made 18 first downs to none by the first year men. The best offensive feat by the freshmen was a 43 yard run from the second half kickoff by Bill Krall of Gary, Ind. Dwight Eddelman, basketball star from Centralia, was frequently inserted to punt for the freshmen.

The lineups:

Badgers Beat Warriors in 4th Period, 7-0

initial first down until the third quarter. But the Warriors' five man line with three backers-up and their other defensive formations stopped the Badgers' ground attack. The quality of line play held Hirsch, highly regarded sophomore, in check save for one brilliant run that materially aided Wisconsin in piling up its 201 yards by rushing.

Harder Used Only Once.

The Badgers attack wasn't at full strength since Full Back Pat Harder, who led the Western conference last season in yards gained, appeared for only one play, a field goal attempt from the Badgers' 37 yard line in the third quarter that was short of the posts. Harder retired immediately, but it was announced last night he would play against Notre Dame next week when the Irish open their season here.

In other respects today's game was a typical opener. Wisconsin outfumbled the soldiers and completed only three passes in 13 tries, two of them by Sophomore Jack Wink. In view of the Warriors' efficient line play, the Badgers probably were satisfied with a one touchdown victory. That this game was hard fought is attested by limited substitutions. Three of the six substitutions in the Badger line were made in the last four minutes. Hanzlik played 60 minutes at left end.

It should be added also that the Badgers were careful not to display too many of their offensive weapons since Notre Dame, and all Big Nine rivals on Wisconsin's schedule, had scouts at the game.

Badgers Roll to 9 Yard Line.

Wisconsin's first march from Camp Grant's 46 yard line marked up a first down on the 9 yard stripe. Len Seelinger, Calligaro, and Hoskins advanced the ball only 2 yards in three attempts and Seelinger's fourth down pass was intercepted.

The Badgers' second threat started on their own 47 yard line in the next quarter. Wink's passes were the principal weapons. His first, on third down, gained 27 yards and on the second play thereafter he threw again for 16 yards to Hanzlik for a first down on Camp Grant's 16. Hoskins picked up 3 yards at right tackle. Hirsch's pass was incomplete, and on third down, Wink's pass was intercepted by Stasica who returned the ball to his own 7.

Hirsch Fumbles, But Recovers.

Stasica kicked out and Hirsch fumbled, but recovered on the Warriors' 38. Hirsch and Hoskins moved to the 25 in two plays. Then Ray was given the ball for four consecutive plunges. On the last he failed to gain, altho needing only a yard, and the ball changed hands on Camp Grant's 16.

Near the end of the game Wink intercepted an enemy pass and returned to the Warrior's 17, but once more the ground attack bogged down. Jim Regan's fourth down pass fell incomplete and Camp Grant took the ball on its own 15.

Badgers Lose Granitz, Hahn by Ineligibility

Madison, Wis., Sept. 19 [Special].—University of Wisconsin football prospects suffered a serious setback when it was announced by Head Coach Harry Stuhldreher today that Frank Granitz, letter man left half back candidate, and Lloyd Hahn, sophomore tackle, had failed in their condition exams and would be ineligible for the season.

Granitz consistently had been a member of the first string unit. He was one of the best punters on the squad, a good passer, and was counted on to do a lot of ground gaining this fall. His loss leaves the left half back position manned by only Len Seelinger and Elroy Hirsch.

Scrap to Pay Admissions to Dodgers' Home Games

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 19 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers are going into the scrap business—and that's no pun. Starting Monday, 10 pounds of scrap metal will be good for admission to each of the Dodgers' five remaining home games.

VARSITY DEFEATS RESERVES, 18-0, IN N. U. PRACTICE

Graham's Passing and Running Is Highlight.

Northwestern's varsity scored an 18 to 0 victory over the reserves in Dyche stadium yesterday in a tuneup for next Saturday's opener with the Iowa Seahawks. Rain fell thruout the game and hampered the offensive efforts of both teams.

The regulars, attired in white jerseys, encountered stiff resistance from the purple jersied reserves and did not threaten until near the end of the first quarter when Otto Graham, left half, returned a punt 20 yards to the Purple 12 yard line. Don Buffmire, right half, picked up 2 yards at tackle and Graham added 6 more at end. Ed [Buckets] Hirsch, full back, went over for the first touchdown.

Graham to Hasse for Score.

Midway in the second quarter Graham threw a 20 yard pass to Bud Hasse who advanced to the Purple 18 yard line. Buffmire, Graham, and Hirsch drove to the 5 yard line in three plays where Graham passed to Hasse for a touchdown.

The third score came in the final period and was set up by Graham's long punt return to the Purple 30 yard line. Hirsch plunged thru center for 14 yards and Otto circled end for 5 more. Hirsch went the remaining distance for a touchdown.

Sophomores Show Strength.

The Purple team, consisting largely of sophomores, showed flashes of offensive strength, but was unable to get a sustained drive under way. John Winter, sophomore half back, sparked the Purple attack with his passing. He completed a number of aerials to Hal Colberg, senior end, and Jules Siegle, sophomore end.

DEWAR STARS FOR HOOSIERS.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 19 [Special].—Sophomore Jimmy Dewar, 190 pound left half back from Oak Park, Ill., proved to Coach Bo McMillin today that his wonder boy, Bill Hillenbrand, has an able substitute in case something happens to the junior All-Big Nine tail back.

In a passing session that preceeded today's varsity freshman regulation game, during which the Hoosiers were on public display for the first time, Dewar not only hit his targets, Indiana's two Greek wingmen, Ted Hasapes and Pete Pihos, on most of his passes, but withstood the brutal rushing of the regular wingmen, and came back for more.

TWO BOILER MAKERS HURT.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 19 [Special].—Two linemen, Ewell O'Bryan, veteran left tackle, and Cecil [Bud] David, sophomore guard from Hammond, Ind., were injured today as Purdue's varsity football squad defeated the freshmen, 27 to 0, in a regulation game.

O'Bryan, who would have been a starter against Fordham here next Saturday, suffered a shoulder dislocation that is expected to keep him out of action at least 10 days while David, husky newcomer, suffered a broken collar bone and probably will be out for the season.

DALEY PACES GOPHERS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 19 (AP).—The "Daley double"—two touchdowns by Bill Daley every afternoon—was increased to three today as he led Minnesota's first team to a 35 to 0 victory over the seconds.

Herman Frickey opened the scoring for the regulars in the first four minutes of the game. The right half back tossed a 23 yard touchdown pass to Bill Garnaas, who kicked the extra point, the first of five he made. A few minutes later Daley ran 63 yards for the second score after taking a lateral from Garnaas.

The regulars scored a third time before the half was over, with Frickey flipping another pass to Garnaas. Daley took over the varsity offense by himself in the second half, driving thru the reserves for two more touchdowns.

BUCKEYES PLEASE BROWN.

Columbus, O., Sept. 19 (AP).—Coach Paul Brown watched his Ohio State varsity whip the third and fourth stringers, 34 to 0, in a practice game today, and then declared:

"Well, that just about completes the heavy work [for Saturday's opener with Fort Knox], but we still haven't solved our punting problem."

The kicking chore will get another going-over next week.

Brown was especially pleased today with the running of some of his flashy backs, and the outstanding end play of Bob Shaw, the giant junior from Fremont.

PASSES SCORE AT STATE.

East Lansing, Mich., Sept. 19 [Special].—Sophomores provided the spark today as the Michigan State squad put on its second hard scrimmage of the season. Play was featured by a wide open type of attack, more or less on the razzle dazzle side, with passes filling the air.

Five touchdowns were scored, four of them by passing. Elbert Stark of Geneva, Ill., was on the hurling end of two. One was good for 65 yards. Dick Kieppe, regular left half back, returned to practice after having taken a navy examination yesterday and celebrated by pitching the other two touchdown passes.

Penn State and Duquesne Battle Again to 6-6 Tie

State College, Pa., Sept. 19 (AP).—Penn State and Duquesne battled to a 6 to 6 tie in a practice game today before 4,000 fans. It was the fourth consecutive tie in practice games between the two teams in the past 18 months.

Iowa Defeats Washington in Opener, 26-7

to the game with the rest of the varsity in the closing minutes, however, and two of his tries were intercepted, while another went for naught.

The Bears were still in a stubborn mood after Hoerner's first quarter touchdown, made in the 12th minute of play, but the Hawkeyes, aided by the introduction of Chuck Uknes, a hard running back from Sioux City, and Ted Curran, a speedy sophomore out of Quincy, Ill., began to roll again. Tevis got away his best punt of the day, the ball traveling 54 yards and going out of bounds on the Iowa 37 yard stripe. Farmer, Curran and Uknes, with the last named carrying most of the freight thru the line, brought it to the Washington 34 yard line.

Tom Flips 'Em Handsomely.

Here Farmer flipped a 13 yard pass to Bill Parker on the Bear 21 yard line. Uknes added 4 yards in two plays and then Parker accepted another pass from Farmer, going to the 5 yard mark. Uknes contributed two more and then Farmer went over for the touchdown, adding the point to make it 14 to 0. Near the end of the quarter, Tevis led a march into Iowa territory that finally was frustrated by Tom Hand and Orv Davidsmeyer of the Hawkeyes at the 19 yard line.

Early in the third period the local lads began another parade, opening with Hoerner's 33 yard return of the kickoff to his 38 yard line. This came to grief thru a fumble on the Washington 22 yard mark just after Farmer had hurled a running pass to Ben Trickey, Iowa basketball captain who had just entered the game at quarter. Forest Masterson, sophomore center, then recovered a fumble by Tevis on the Washington 38 yard line, and Hoerner, Curran, and Farmer drove down to the Bears' 29 yard mark. Farmer was stopped and he nearly lost the ball on a poor pass from center. On the next play he passed to Trickey, who caught the ball on the 16 yard line and romped the rest of the way for a touchdown.

Go 66 Yards to Score.

The outset of the fourth quarter saw Farmer give Iowa a first down on its own 31 yard line after a smash at his own right tackle. Curran made 3 yards, and Farmer passed 21 yards to Bill Burkett, Hawkeye right end. William fielded the ball on the Bears' 45 yard line, and except for a slight interruption by Jim Hight of the Bears at the 10 yard line, skipped down the sidelines all the way. Farmer's kick was wide.

The Washington touchdown was ignited when Tevis' pass to Bud Brinkley was ruled complete because of interference at the Bears' 42 yard line. Tevis got 3 himself and then Brinkley cut thru to the Iowa 34 yard stripe. Quarter Back Ray Mills lost 5 yards, then Tevis wound up and pitched his long pass to O'Rourke. The latter was run out of bounds on the 3 yard line, and Mills finally scored on a quarter back sneak.

BELICHICK RUNS 80 YDS.; SCORES IN SAILOR GAME

Orange Team Beats Blue, 21-0, at Great Lakes.

Two touchdowns by passes and another on an 80 yard run by Steve Belichick, former Western Reserve university full back, yesterday gave the Orange team a 21 to 0 victory over the Blues as the Great Lakes Naval Training station ended heavy workouts for its game with Michigan in Ann Arbor next Saturday. The practice game was scheduled to be held in Waukegan, but was shifted to the station's Constitution field because of weather conditions.

Harrell Passes to Preston.

Belichick's long run was made shortly after the game started. The second Orange touchdown was scored when Bill Harrell, former Alabama half back, tossed a 12 yard pass to Fred Preston, ex-Nebraska end. The pass ended a 50 yard march, which included a 20 yard run by Harrell.

Hugh McCullough, formerly of Oklahoma, another newcomer to the Bluejacket squad, accounted for the final score when he dashed 35 yards to the Blues' 8 yard line. McCullough then rifled a pass to John Popov, right half back, for the touchdown. Rudy Mucha, playing quarter back for the Orange squad, kicked the 3 extra points.

Bruce Smith and several other members of the squad did not participate in the game because of field conditions. Lineups:

Substitutions: Blues—Tackles, Odson, Busler; guards, Robesky, Levy, Marino; ends, Moeller, Brekke; quarter back, Schneidman; right half back, Kmetovic; left half back, Cowart; full back, McClanahan, Sweiger.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 19 [Special].—Two brilliant back field performances by junior Tom Kuzma and Sophomore Bob Weise today took Michigan out of the gridiron doldrums they've been in so far this season as Coach Fritz Crisler's Wolverines held their last full length dress rehearsal before the season opener against Great Lakes next Saturday.

The regulars, playing the second and third teams, showed more scoring punch and power in the form of running and passing plays than at any other time this season. Weise, who was called up to replace injured Don Boor at full back, scored three touchdowns in the first 10 minutes, then Kuzma turned on the heat, and by the end of the half had made two scoring runs of 55 and 65 yards, plus a 75 yard kick-off return that was called back on a penalty. Kuzma also threw two touchdown passes. Weise accounted for another goal on a punt return of 55 yards. Nine touchdowns were scored by the regulars on the first half.

While the performance of the regulars today looked good, the lack of reserve strength was definitely ascertained.

FORCED SAVING BY HEAVY NEW TAX CONSIDERED

Would Refund Part After the War.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—A program which would force Americans to buy some 15 billion dollars worth of government bonds annually to aid in financing the war and controling inflation may be laid before congress after it disposes of the tax bill, it was learned today.

Expected to involve either stiff increases in present and proposed taxes or the imposition of new ones, the program is to be worked out by a joint congressional committee established by the revenue bill and directed to report by Dec. 1.

Working with this committee will be Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, who recently urged that congress supplement present voluntary bond investments by levying against the amount of money individuals spend to provide a form of compulsory savings.

Doubt Taxpayers' Capacity.

Chairman Walter F. George [D., Ga.] of the senate finance committee expressed belief that to be of any benefit in reducing the war deficit a compulsory savings program would have to produce between 12 and 15 billion dollars yearly. He added that while taxation appeared the only feasible method of enforcing bond investments, there was some dobut that taxpayers could stand this additional burden on top of the high taxes they will pay under the new revenue measure.

"The treasury ought to have submitted a compulsory savings plan a year ago, when we could have approached this problem by making gradual increases in taxes," he told reporters. "Now if we are to get anything like the amount that will be needed, we may have to make a sudden and sharp increase in taxes."

George said it would require an average increase of about 20 per cent in the individual tax rate schedule to produce 1 billion dollars monthly. Even if corporations were included in the compulsory savings program, he said the average individual tax rate increase might reach 15 per cent.

Some to Be Returned.

Thus an individual in the low income brackets, who will pay at the starting rate of 24 cents on each dollar of taxable income under the revenue bill, might have 39 cents taken from him, 15 of which he would get back after the war.

Sen. John A. Danaher [R., Conn.], a finance committee member, has suggested that enforced savings be accomplished thru a 10 per cent tax on retail sales, will the purchaser obtaining stamps which he could convert into bonds.

George raised the objection that such a system might result in a "black market" in which those in the low income groups who would need the savings most after the war would sell the stamps at less than their face value for cash.

May Revise Proposal.

The treasury may revise and renew its proposal for a spending tax, which was rejected by the finance committee in considering the revenue measure. As a part of this proposal, the treasury suggested that a 10 per cent levy be placed on all money spent by individuals above certian specified exemptions, the yield to be used in financing war expenditures and returned to the taxpayers after the war.

The need for some form of compulsory savings has been stressed by Senators Robert A. Taft [R., Ohio] and Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], who contended that otherwise the government would have to borrow about 30 billion dollars from banks to meet its anticipated expenditures of 73 billions in the fiscal year ending next June 30. They viewed this prospective bank borrowing as holding grave dangers of inflation.

RELIEVE GYPSUM OF ANTI-TRUST CRIMINAL ACTION

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—The government has decided to drop a criminal charge of violating the Sherman anti-trust law against two building material companies—United States Gypsum and Certainteed Products—and will proceed only with a civil action, a justice department official said today.

The official said that the civil case, filed Aug. 15, 1940, was broader than the indictment returned about two months earlier, and it was regarded as best to proceed with the later action. Trial date has not yet been set. Trial on the criminal charge was scheduled for next month.

Both actions were in the Federal District court here.

COSTLY TO COMPANY.

United States Gypsum company yesterday said, "This is the second time within a year that the government has failed to sustain its charges of Sherman act violations made over two years ago against various members of the gypsum industry." The company said about half a million dollars had been expended to cover costs incurred in preparation for the cases.

STOCK PRICES IN 2 WARS

Business Holds High Rate; New Controls Near

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Business activity, as reflected in steel production, freight movement, electric power output, heavy construction, and retail trade, held a a high level last week. As industry pushed war production efforts in the face of shortages of materials and man power, war agencies prepared new and unprecedented controls reaching all the way down to individual citizens, and a new "czar" emerged with full powers over rubber.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey orders "work or fight."

William M. Jeffers, Union Pacific railroad president, is the man whom Donald M. Nelson, War Production board chairman, assigned to the job of ending the rubber muddle. Jeffers was given all of Nelson's powers over rubber. He promised action, and enough rubber for all actual needs. Jeffers said "you can't take America off wheels."

Set Up New Command.

Nelson, busy on other problems, too, set up a high command over the war production program with Charles E. Wilson in charge.

That move pulled a famous industrial team out of retirement, bringing Gerard Swope and Owen D. Young once more to the top jobs in General Electric company. Wilson resigned as G. E. president, and Swope took over that job. Young became acting chairman. Swope and Young had retired Jan. 1, 1940.

Industry, already up against serious problems of supply, received indications from Nelson and President Roosevelt that still bigger problems lie ahead. Nelson, reporting that production has increased 3½ times since Pearl Harbor, warned that the pace still is not swift enough.

Extend Rule of Individuals.

In one of the most sweeping extensions of control over individual lives in American history, Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Man Power commission, authorized the civil service commission to transfer any government employé from one government agency to another, or into navy yards or arsenals, without the consent of the employé or his superiors.

Regarded equally drastic was an order by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey directing that 200,000 workers in the nonferrous metals and lumbering industries in 12 states be classified by draft boards as immediately available for military service if they quit their present jobs without draft board permission. The aim is to prevent a drainage of men out of those two vital industries into other higher pay jobs. The effect of the order is to put such men on a "work or fight" basis.

SKILLED MECHANICS AMONG PRISONERS AT WORK ON WAR OUTPUT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—America's prisons have gone into war production in a big way, the WPB reported today. The board said about 100 prisons in all states, which own industrial equipment and land valued at 6 million dollars, are turning out war goods ranging from airplane castings and bomb parts to paint brushes and camouflage cloth.

Many skilled toolmakers and metal workers are among the 168,000 prison workers whose services are being fitted into the program, WPB said.

AVERAGE HOURLY PAY IN FACTORIES CLIMBS 14% ABOVE YEAR AGO

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—The labor department reported today that wage earners in manufacturing industries averaged 85 cents an hour in July—which was a 14.2 per cent increase above July of last year and a 1.1 climb from June. Average weekly earnings in July were $38.52, an increase of 22.9 per cent above July, 1941, and 1.1 per cent above June.

The department, making a sample survey of about 35,000 manufacturing plants, said general wage rate increases during the month ended July 15 were reported by 1,000 of these plants. The increases averaged 7.1 per cent and affected 565,000 workers.

Strike of 600 Closes Peoria War Factory

John White, subregional director of the CIO Gas, Coke, and Chemical workers, said 600 employés were on strike. C. W. Hancock, plant manager, said 400 to 500 men had not reported for work today.

White said the strike was called because the company had refused to recognize the union as bargaining agent for a majority of the workers which the union claimed after an organization drive in May. Hancock said negotiations had been proceeding along normal lines when the union suddenly called the strike.

Only a skeleton crew of engineers remained on maintenance duty.

Vote Street Car Strike.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 19 (AP).—About 1,700 street car and bus operators of the Massachusetts Street Railway company voted today in favor of a strike to enforce demands for higher wages and a change in working conditions, but delayed strike action pending a meeting with the board of trustees on Monday. The railway system serves 30 communities, many of them busy with war industries.

An AFL union of operators originally asked that the 88 cent hourly pay be increased to $1 and that they be given a daily allowance of 15 minutes "makeup time" to write their reports. A 6 cent pay increase and 10 minute allowance time was proposed by a three man arbitration board.

Company officials said the union refused to agree to the arbitration board's decision. The union said the management first agreed to a "makeup time" provision and then refused to approve it.

Shipyard Workers Return.

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 19 (AP).—Leaving their dispute over a 5 cent ferry charge to arbitration before the Federal Maritime commission, thousands of shipyard workers returned to their jobs today at the plants of the Alabama Drydocks and Shipbuilding company after a two day lay-off.

Brig. Gen. Ben M. Smith, in command of five companies of state troops on patrol here, said approximately 60 per cent of a normal working crew reported for duty this morning. This is near the usual number for Saturday work, he said. Some 10,000 workers left their jobs before the settlement was reached.

Agree to End Strike.

Depew, N. Y., Sept. 19 (AP).—Leaders of striking employés at the National Battery company agreed today to end a walkout and submit their demands for a wage increase to a referee appointed by the War Labor board, United States Conciliator Clarence M. Lamotte said.

Drain Midwest of Oil Cars to Aid the East

More than 62,000 tank cars from the midwest and southeast are now used in transporting petroleum and its products to Atlantic seaboard states, or are being operated in that area, it was estimated yesterday. Prior to the start of this year fewer than 1,000 cars were normally in use for that purpose.

Rep. Edward A. Kelly.

Rep. Edward A. Kelly [D., Ill.] denied in the house last week that the midwest had hoarded petroleum products and retained for its own use substitute transportation facilities to the detriment of the east. He said that in an effort to relieve the eastern petroleum shortage the midwest has given up most of its own normal supply of tank cars.

Supply Drops Steadily.

Prior to the emergency, Kelly said, the midwest was using approximately 40 per cent, about 44,000, of all tank cars. In May it was using only 23,258 cars, and by July 31 the number had dropped to 13,916. The petroleum coordinator requisitioned 12½ per cent of this number, Kelly said, and his order banning use of tank cars to haul gasoline in the midwest will divert still more cars to the east.

Kelly said that Price Administrator Leon Henderson had "muffed the ball" by freezing the price of oil at a figure based on the rate of transportation by water instead of allowing for the increased cost of overland transportation. He estimated that the additional cost of transporting oil to the east other than by boat has approximated in recent months an annual rate of 100 million dollars.

Lauds Rails' Achievement.

"The railroads have performed admirably in handling the vast overland traffic in petroleum products to replace, in large part, the previously dominant ocean tanker transportation," he said.

"In order to release tank cars for the eastbound movement the midwest has carried out a revolutionary reorganization of its methods of local and semi-local delivery of products, supported by orders from the office of the petroleum coördinator and the office of defense transportation."

People and Events

Industrial changes made necessary by production under wartime conditions will be studied by more than 3,000 foremen and supervisors at a "victory clinic" to be held Friday and Saturday by the National Association of Foremen in the Hotel Sherman. Clarence B. Randell, vice president of Inland Steel corporation, will address a banquet session.

Frank L. Kartheiser, who has been employed by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad since 1909, has been promoted to assistant to the vice president of operations, H. C. Murphy, assistant vice president, announced.

PREDICT VAST CHANGES THRU CARGO AIRPLANE

Inland Cities May Be Entry Ports.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Changes in economic geography transcending in significance the shifts in political boundaries growing out of the war are predicted by those who foresee great commercial development of the cargo airplane. Some of the possibilities for future development of air freight are suggested by the announcement that construction will start soon on three experimental 60 ton supercargo planes.

When the war started air freight service was in its infancy. The airplane had not been extensively exploited as a freight carrier. But American air lines were making preliminary studies looking toward an expansion of commercial air express service. These plans were interrupted when the war started. Now, with the war accelerating the development of aircraft technique, the future of air freight transport holds greater possibilities than were foreseen a short time ago by American commercial air lines.

Predict Change in Economic Habits.

Instead of a national air freight service, there is now envisioned a world-wide air transport service that will change greatly our present economic habits.

For example, some air transport enthusiasts expect a rapid decline in the economic importance of the great seaports of the United States and other countries. The dominant economic position that such seaports have occupied thruout history will diminish, they say, when great transport planes can carry cargoes directly to inland destination points. No longer will world commerce be slowed to the speed of ocean vessels, the cargoes of which must be discharged at the seaboard to be carried perhaps hundreds of miles inland to reach their ultimate destination, it is said.

Chicago May Be Port of Entry.

It is foreseeable, some air minded transport men assert, that Chicago and Detroit may become ports of entry as important as New York and New Orleans. Such a possibility illustrates, they say, the extent to which the exploitation of the airplane may change present economic patterns.

American air lines were carrying a steadily expanding volume of commercial air express shipments before the war. Now they have been playing an extremely important rôle in expediting production with rush shipments of aluminum products, machine parts, dies, castings and other vital materials.

Among the products shipped by air express before the war were pharmaceuticals, cut flowers, electrotype plates, wearing apparel and news reel films.

In the future, it is predicted, air freight will be available for shipment of many more products of commerce. With this development, it is said, the importance as distribution centers of Chicago and other centrally located cities will be greatly enhanced.

MUNITIONS BOARD HEAD JOINS WPB AS AID TO NELSON

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—Production Chief Donald M. Nelson, in another move to centralize war production control in his own hands, today drafted the chairman of the army-navy munitions board as one of his key assistants.

Following his selection of Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric, as WPB's top production man, Nelson announced that Ferdinand Eberstadt would leave the munitions board and join WPB Monday as vice chairman in charge of programs and scheduling.

Simultaneously, Nelson transferred James S. Knowlson, from the duties Eberstadt will assume and announced that Knowlson would devote his full time to the "general task of integrating the American and British production and supply programs."

There was no indication whether the once powerful army-navy munitions board would be dissolved, but it appeared clear that many of its important functions had been absorbed by WPB.

Sales Representative Wanted

A fine opportunity is offered by one of the large corporations of the country to a highly qualified sales representative selling to railroads.

To qualify the man should have acquaintance among railroad executives, knowledge of railroad operation, and ability to present sales story convincingly to operating officials. Technical background would help.

Position offers attractive future to man of ability, who is willing to work hard.

Write fully, giving complete facts of age, education, experience, salary expected, and draft status.

Workers, Aided by Higher Pay, Get Adequate Meat Supplies

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

Despite reports of meat shortages in various parts of the country, the average working man has been able to satisfy his appetite for meat because of steadier employment at higher wages this year, authorities in the Chicago meat trade said yesterday. Instead of curtailing meat consumption, Americans have eaten as much meat this year as they ever did.

But they wanted more. Dietitians offered fine nourishing foods that could be used in place of some meat cuts that were not available at times, but there never has been and probably never will be a real substitute for good red meat so far as the man of toil is concerned, packers said.

It is estimated that packers under federal inspection during the first eight months of this year produced a total of 11,427,252,000 pounds of beef, veal, pork, lard, lamb, and mutton, compared with 9,831,233,000 pounds during the corresponding months last year, which was the previous all time production record.

Greater Lend-Lease Purchases.

In the eight months 1,594,937,000 pounds of pork and lard were bought for lend-lease, against 464,108,000 pounds in the period a year ago. After allowing for army, navy, and other government purchases, there was about the same amount left for domestic consumption as in 1941, which was a record year for meat consumption.

In view of the abundance of available meat and prospects of new records in the months to come, there is no cause for hysteria over the meat situation or need for government rationing, packers asserted. There still may be times when a housewife will not be able to purchase her favorite meat cut, but there is no cause for alarm, packers contend.

Packers have prevented any one from getting a "corner" on meat supplies by using a simple rationing system to meat dealers.

Brings Drop in Complaints.

This became necessary, they said, when price ceilings caused a temporary meat shortage in some parts of the country. Representatives of several large packing companies said they have been rationing meat uniformly for several weeks. There are fewer complaints of meat "shortages" now than several weeks ago, which is a result, packers said, of their program apportioning meat to buyers on a quota based on previous purchases.

"The plan for rationing supplies to meat buyers is simple, but it has been effective in that it prevents uneven distribution," explained the head of the provision department of one of the national packers. "For several weeks we have been dividing supplies as fairly as possible."

Cattle prices slumped 25 to 75 cents a hundred pounds in Chicago last week, but hog prices advanced 25 to 65 cents. Lambs were steady.

G. M. Searches Corners, Gets Big Scrap Haul

Ninety war plants of General Motors corporation salvaged 531 million pounds of iron, steel, copper, aluminum, and other metals in the seven months ended with July, B. D. Kunkle, vice president in charge of manufacturing, announced yesterday in Detroit. The figure does not include production scrap from the metal finishing machines.

Of the total, 500 million pounds were iron and steel, and 31 million were copper, aluminum, and other nonferrous metals. The amount collected in July alone was more than 16,700,000 pounds.

Search Even the Cellars.

The company's "waste wardens" dug into many out of the way places to get the metal. One searched an almost forgotten cellar and emerged with a 40 pound eagle that had been cast in an old bell foundry 30 years ago. Others took metal from beneath benches, and out of old cupboards, desks, and tool boxes.

An old tool "morgue" was raided and yielded 1,800 tools that nad not been used for five years or more. The corporation's automobile divisions looked over their old dies, saved those needed to make replacement parts, and scrapped the rest.

Old Tools, Dies Scrapped.

Large quantities of dies, tools, jigs, and fixtures that had been used by the company's suppliers in peacetime also were scrapped. These were corporation owned, but were stored in the plants of the suppliers.

At one plant a truck equipped with an electro-magnet makes regular rounds of the yard, gathering up loose metal. The plants also are saving other materials, such as paper, rubber, and lumber. One Ohio plant found that, with waste materials salvaged, its incinerator was useless. The incinerator was scrapped, yielding 26,000 pounds of metal.

Bank Clearings in Chicago $438,300,000 During Week

Chicago bank clearings were $438,300,000 last week, compared with $341,600,000 in the preceding week and $440,100,000 in the corresponding 1941 period, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The report follows:

LIVE STOCK MEN ASK CEILINGS, AND FLOORS, TOO

Also Seek Controls Over Wages.

Winning the war, increasing food production, and holding inflation in check are more essential than profits to farmers, but ceilings on agricultural products must be such as to enable producers to compete for needed labor in the emergency, the national live stock emergency committee, representing more than a million stockmen, said last night. The committee held an all-day session at the Hotel Sherman.

The group appointed a committee to leave for Washington today to confer with Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard and congressional committees working on price and wage control legislation. Putting the major live stock groups of the country squarely on record in favor of price ceilings on agricultural products, the committee asked that industrial salaries and wages be controled at the same time that agricultural prices are put in a straitjacket.

Ask Floor on Commodities.

The producers asked for a floor under basic farm commodities of 85 to 90 per cent of parity to be maintained by government loans. They asked that the parity formula be revised to include the higher cost of wartime farm wages.

"It will be the policy of this committee in its legislative work," the statement said, "to favor price control with simultaneous control of salaries and industrial wages so as to maintain a fair and equitable relationship between the two, and to stimulate production of agricultural products. We believe that the cost of farm labor should be included in the farm price parity formula."

Ben Brumley, one of the spokesmen for the group, said that the committee expected to discuss the farm labor problem with the adjutant general's office, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, in charge of the draft, and the man power commission.

Warns of Labor Shortage.

"If the rate of withdrawal of labor from farms continues," Brumley said, "I'm afraid there may be serious impairment of farm production next year. Farmers are patriotic and will extend themselves to the utmost to produce more food, but they cannot do the impossible.

"Farmers are more concerned about the future of the country and our free way of life than profits. Price ceilings will not hurt us if we are also given a floor to protect ourselves after the war. Farm prices today are generally satisfactory to producers."

Members of the committee expressed belief that price ceilings on meat and not on live animals will protect the consumer and at the same time be workable when minor inequities are ironed out by the Office of Price Administration. Production of live stock will continue at a high level, the stockmen agreed.

REPORT NATION NEEDS 625,000 MECHANICS IN AUTOMOTIVE SERVICE

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 19 (AP).—The trade publication, Automotive News, in its issue of Sept. 21 will say that to keep motor transportation from bogging down even under the impending national gasoline rationing, at least 625,000 mechanics will be needed in the nation's automotive service stations.

"This figure," the publication will say, "is the result of an analysis by service engineers in the industry who have been endeavoring to develop a simple formula which can be used to predetermine the number of experienced mechanics necessary to service the 20 million cars and 5 million trucks and buses that the Office of Defense Transportation has stipulated are essential to our war transportation economy."

The engineers determined that a minimum of 40 mechanic hours are necessary to keep one automotive vehicle running efficiently for a year under new mileage and driving regulations.

In arriving at the figures, consideration was given also to the extra mechanic labor that would be necessary in the average service shop repairing and rebuilding many parts and functional units that normally have been replaced with factory-rebuilt or new units.

ESSENTIAL CLOTH MADE AVAILABLE; CABLE IS BANNED

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—The WPB today made available an adequate supply of sheetings, flannels, print cloth yarn fabrics, Osnaburg cloth, and tobacco cloth for essential uses.

It assigned an A-2 priority rating to orders placed by dairy supply manufacturers, textile converters, and cloth merchants for specified uses. These include packaging of cheese, production of milk strainers and filters, covering of tobacco seed beds and shade grown tobacco, and manufacture of cotton picking sacks.

In another order, WPB prohibited manufacture of armored cable, effective in 30 days, to aid in the conservation of steel. Armored cable is used as a conductor of electricity in interior wiring systems. WPB said many substitutes were available.

An Unusual Opportunity

For a Man Over 45 Years of Age

A successful industrial rubber manufacturing and sales distributing company, nearly a quarter of a century old, located in one of the principal Middle West cities, due to increasing war order possibilities and post-war peacetime possibilities, offers an unusual opportunity to an able, executive type of man, familiar with modern manufacturing, sales, accounting and tax procedure, draft exempt, over 45 years of age, capable of assuming responsibilities in a business with annual sales of over a million dollars in 1941 — with approximately or better possibilities for this and succeeding post-war years. Due to physical limitations and the owner's desire after nearly 40 years' close application to business to be less active and to be relieved of some of his responsibilities, a suitable salary commensurate with the ability, with promotion to Executive Officer and a $30,000 to $40,000 interest in the business is offered out of owner's personal holdings, payable $20,000 cash, balance secured notes if desired, to a capable, congenial and trustworthy man fitting into this picture to insure ownership interest—with opportunity of further investment in the business later if ability proven and relations satisfactory—with a future limited largely to the man's own ability and application. However, the man and not the money is of first consideration, as the business is well rated and amply financed with established satisfactory earnings. # WEEK'S UPWARD TREND IS BROKEN IN STOCK MARKET

Industrials Off Fractions After Friday's Rally.

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The stock market today ran into enough profit taking to break the upward trend of the last week. While scattered specialists attracted good demand and low priced issues were lively in a narrow range, most of the pivotal industrials which rallied Friday dipped fractions.

There was scant bullishness discernible in the news and the Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped .1 of a point to 37, but on the week showed a net advance of .4. Transfers of 178,480 shares compared with 116,450 last Saturday and were the largest for a two hour stretch in about a month.

Rails Are Less Buoyant.

Rails, for the most part, lost some of their recent buoyancy credited to big earnings prospects as talk of wage boost demands by nonoperating unions was heard.

International Telephone was the liveliest performer adding ⅛ at a new top since 1940 and making the week's net gain a full point.

The climbing utilities in the forepart of the week on the improved tax outlook for power and light companies settled down to a slim area.

On the losing end were United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, United States Rubber, American Telephone, Santa Fe, New York Central, Kennecott, American Can, and Sears, Roebuck.

CHICAGO LIST GAINS.

Gains dominated in price changes on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in light trading. Miller & Hart was the volume leader, with a turnover of 500 shares, but closed unchanged.

DRY GOODS FIRM SAYS WAR DRAIN IMPAIRS WORK

Earnings Slightly Higher in Six Months.

The labor efficiency of Associated Dry Goods corporation has been "distinctly lowered" by the shift of the company's experienced workers into military service and the war industries, Oswald W. Knauth, president, said yesterday in an earnings statement which showed a small increase in profits for the six months ended Aug. 1.

Knauth estimated that net profit was $600,000 on net sales of $33,119,000 for the period, compared with net income of $525,000 on $29,905,000 of sales in the corresponding period a year ago. Provision was made for $850,000 of federal taxes, against $375,000 in the 1941 period.

He said that rising prices and the necessity of taking early delivery of goods to avoid transportation difficulties caused inventories of merchandise to jump to $14,600,000, from $8,600,000 a year ago.

Motor Products Earns More.

Motor Products corporation reported for the fiscal year ended June 30 a net income of $757,903, equal to $1.94 a capital share, compared with $405,034, or $1.04 a share, in the preceding year. Profit was after $200,000 of inventory losses and $510,000 of estimated American and Canadian income and excess profits taxes. The figure of the preceding year included provision of $528,000 for taxes but no deduction for inventory losses.

General Outdoor Advertising company had a net profit of $476,558 in the quarter ended June 30, against $582,294 in the corresponding period of 1941.

WHEAT AND CORN UP ON PROSPECT OF HIGHER LOANS

Rye, Excluded from Plan, Reduced in Price.

Wheat traders construed the prospective government loan rate as likely to result in higher prices and bought futures in substantial quantities, forcing an advance of 1 cent a bushel yesterday. December closed at $1.27⅝.

Farmers can obtain loans of $1.21 a bushel on wheat and about 88 cents on corn if the senate version of the price control bill is adopted by congress, brokers on the Chicago Board of Trade estimated. The proposed loan at 90 per cent of parity would compare with an national average of $1.14 a bushel on 1942 crop wheat and about 83 cents on corn, both figured on 85 per cent of parity.

Cash grain handlers report that the proposed new loans would be equal to about $1.39 on wheat when delivered at Chicago elevators for storage purposes, and to 95 cents to $1 on corn.

Failure of the senate to include rye in the commodities eligible for loans at 90 per cent of parity resulted in selling. The market dropped 2 cents, but rallied to close ½ cent lower.

Weather reports and the prospect of a much higher loan on this year's harvest led to more general buying of futures. Corn closed ⅝ to ¾ cent higher at top prices of the week.

Strike Diverts Supplies.

Farmers sold more than 200,000 bushels of cash corn for deferred shipment to Chicago. A strike at one of the large Peoria distilleries was said to have been a factor in diverting the grain to this market.

Cash wheat is being pledged to the government for loans at a faster rate. The department of agriculture announced that loans were granted on 31 million bushels of wheat during the week ended Sept. 12, reportedly the largest volume for any week on record. The aggregate amount of cash wheat under loan has been raised to about 144 million bushels, or about one-third of the grain that the department estimated would be sealed from the 1942 crop.

RAILS CONTINUE BUOYANT EFFECT ON BOND MARKET

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—Continued broad demand for rail loans gave the bond market a fresh lift today and pushed the rail average near its top figure for the year. Spurring speculative buying of reorganization and other low and medium priced carrier issues was the generally favorable showing of revenue statements issued by a number of important systems.

Rock Island refunding 4s and Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis 4s were active at fractionally higher prices. Others selling higher were Rio Grande Western collateral 4s, New York Central 4½s, Boston and New York Airline 4s, Central Pacific first 4s, and Florida East Coast 5s.

Utility bonds were in selective demand and industrials were steady. United States governments and foreign loans were quiet.

CHASE NATIONAL BIRTHDAY TODAY; FOUNDED IN 1877

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The world's largest commercial bank has its birthday Sunday. It is the Chase National Bank, founded in 1877 by John Thompson, prominent financial figure of that period, and named in honor of Abraham Lincoln's secretary of the treasury, Salmon P. Chase.

The Chase's first statement of condition, published Dec. 27, 1877, showed deposits of $515,686. Its June 30, 1942, statement noted deposits of $3,595,451,030. The Chase's first statement indicated $125,000 invested in United States securities and its latest $1,573,405,156.

Thompson was 75 years old when he organized the bank.

NARROW GAUGE LINE SOUGHT TO USE IN ALASKA

Protest Brings Delay in WPB Requisition.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—Sen. Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.], said today the War Production board had requisitioned the narrow gauge Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad line and equipment between Alamosa and Durango, Colo. Action on the order has been delayed temporarily, he added, on his representation to the Office of Defense Transportation that the line was necessary to the war effort.

Johnson asserted the WPB was also considering requisitioning another narrow gauge D. & R. G. W. line between Gunnison and Montrose, Colo., and the broad gauge Burlington railroad line from Sterling, Colo., to Cheyenne, Wyo., but had not taken definite action.

Would Take Entire Line.

The senator said the board, acting under the President's war powers, first requisitioned seven narrow gauge locomotives from the D. & R. G. W. Informed by General Manager E. A. West that the Alamosa-Durango line could not operate without these engines, Johnson said the WPB replied it would requisition the entire line, including rails and equipment.

Explaining the equipment was wanted for the Alaska-Canada railroad being constructed by the government, Johnson said he told Joseph B. Eastman, ODT director, the Alamosa line was needed to carry vanadium, livestock, oil and lumber.

Needed in War Effort.

He said he contended the line was needed in the war effort, and that Eastman agreed to delay the action temporarily. Such requisition orders are made by the WPB with ODT approval. West is expected here Monday and with Johnson, will protest the requisition order.

The WPB, Johnson said, was considering requisitioning the Gunnison-Montrose line to send it to Alaska, and was studying to determine whether the Burlington's road from Sterling to Cheyenne should be requisitioned for the sake of the steel rails.

WAR CONTRACTS.

Renegotiation of war contracts has been added to the list of other wartime factors which are making it increasingly difficult for corporations to determine earnings and dividend policies.

Altho the army, navy, and Maritime commission are attempting to formulate a consistent basis for renegotiation, the act as it now stands does not define "excessive" profits or "unreasonably" large operating costs.

Consequently, most corporations doing war work have been unable to determine earnings in the face of pending contract renegotiation and many have reduced dividends to conserve cash for contingencies.

In several cases the results have been even more drastic. Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company announced recently the suspension of its bonus plan under which employés shared in profits above a certain amount. Pending renegotiation of Westinghouse war contracts was given as the primary reason for dropping the plan.

1. A corporation will renegotiate before only the price adjustment board with which it has the largest dollar volume of business, and the decision of that board will be recognized by other departments and supply services of the government.

2. The over-all profit will be taken as the primary basis of renegotiation, instead of individual contracts.

3. The right of industry to a "reasonable" profit will be recognized as fundamental.

In its present form the act allows the government wide discretionary powers in deciding what "reasonable" profits and operating costs are. What constitutes "excessive" profits probably will be determined for individual cases.

It is expected that consideration will be given to higher costs of labor and materials, inexperience in new types of production, and postwar readjustment of operations.

Operations requiring unusual skills and techniques may be permitted a larger margin of profit than operations which are relatively simple. It is not known whether price adjustment boards will allow for income taxes paid on earnings returned to the government under a renegotiation of contracts.

SEEK AMERICAN AID TO PAY FOR BRITISH LOSSES

Argue U. S. Should Share in War Compensation.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The prospect of the United States sharing the tremendous burden of compensating British investors for their capital losses in carrying out the scorched earth policy in the western Pacific was raised by the Financial News this week.

The British government, the paper reported, has stated its intention of "giving what assistance it can" after the war in compensating companies operating in Malaya and Burma for the damage resulting from the Jap occupation.

Altho complaining that the offer "is subject to important qualifications and therefore cannot be regarded a satisfactory acceptance of responsibility," Financial News welcomed the offer as a step toward acceptance of the principle that the burden of the far eastern war damage should at least be shared by the British government, if not by the empire as a whole.

President's Policy Cited.

"It may even be suggested," the paper continued, "that the damage sustained in pursuance of the scorched earth policy should concern the united nations as a whole and that coöperative measures should be taken to provide compensation.

"President Roosevelt's new principle of interallied aid is to the effect that equality of effort is obtained if each of the united nations devotes an equal proportion of its national income to the war. It would be logical to extend this principle to take into account the capital losses incurred in carrying out the scorched earth policy."

Altho no definite assessment of the damage will be possible until after the war, British investments in the area totaled hundreds of millions of pounds sterling, and compensation claims will likely reach a huge figure. Malayan rubber and tin mining companies and the oil companies operating in Burma suffered particularly large losses thru the destruction of machinery and plants.

Seek to Offset Losses.

In addition, British interests maintain that allowance should be made for the cessation of business in the invaded territories, involving a loss of revenue until the properties are recaptured and probably for a considerable period thereafter.

America should take the lead in restoring world prosperity after the war by lowering tariffs and lending abroad, Dr. C. R. S. Harris, British economist, wrote in the quarterly journal of the London School of Economics.

"The United States must be ready to assume the rôle in world economic development which was occupied by Great Britain during the 19th century by lending freely and enjoying the income of her foreign investments thru the consumption of foreign goods and services," he said. "She must lead the way to economic disarmament, first by demobilizing the barbed wire entanglements surrounding the domestic market and, second by refusing to place her capital resources at the disposal of countries that do not follow a similar policy."

HUDSON MAKING WING FOR ARMY CURTISS BOMBER

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 19 (AP).—The Hudson Motor Car company disclosed today that it has started production of wings for the Curtiss-Wright "Helldiver" dive bomber under the largest aircraft contract received by the company to date.

A. E. Barit, Hudson president, said that additional men and women needed to handle expanding production on the project are being trained in the Hudson training schools.

He added, "We will be able to utilize much of the equipment we are using in fabricating fuselage sections for army bombers. In addition, our engineers have adapted a large percentage of automotive machinery for this project."

Holds Government Bears Big Part of Wage Boosts

New York, Sept. 19 [Special].—With production at capacity and prices controled, the federal government pays about 75 per cent of any wage increase granted in industry, The Exchange, magazine of the New York Stock exchange, said today.

U. S. TAX AUTHORITIES CLARIFY RULES FOR EXCESS PROFIT RETURN

Federal tax authorities said yesterday that a corporation returning money to the government under a contract renegotiation should, when it has not yet filed its excess profits tax return for the year, repay the excess profit in full and omit the amount from its tax return.

A different procedure is followed in cases where the tax return is already filed before the government finds, under a contract renegotiation, that an excessive profit has been made. In such a case, the corporation should refund only the amount of the excess profits above what has been paid as federal income and excess profits taxes.

The internal revenue bureau cited this example: A company filed a return for 1941 which included 1 million dollars later held to be excessive profit on a war contract. The company paid $400,000 of income and excess profits taxes on the 1 million. The company should repay $600,000 to the government. That ends the procedure. The company cannot deduct the $600,000 from gross income tax for the year or any subsequent year.

WARTIME ROLE WILL BE TOPIC OF CONTROLERS

Problems to Be Discussed at 3 Day Conference.

A three day conference on war problems affecting business accounting will be opened tomorrow at the Palmer House by the Controlers Institute of America. Several hundred company controlers, treasurers, and other executives will attend, Arthur R. Tucker, managing director of the institute, said yesterday.

One of the subjects that will be discussed is the part that large corporations will have in controling inflation. Others will include war contract renegotiation, civilian goods inventory regulation, the 1942 tax bill, efforts to simplify government reports, and problems that will arise after the war.

Says Coöperation Essential.

Edwin W. Burbott, chairman of the convention committee and controler of A. B. Dick company, outlining the program, said that coöperation between the government and controlers is essential if there is to be efficient, smooth operation under the rules laid down by the government and if compliance with regulations is to be prompt.

At the opening general session tomorrow, A. W. Zelomek, consulting economist and president of International Statistical Bureau, Inc., New York, will discuss "What Can Business Expect in 1943?" Dr. Gustav Stolper of New York, former member of the German reichstag and economic adviser to European banks, will talk on "Capitalism After the War." Dr. Franklyn Bliss Snyder, president of Northwestern university, will give a luncheon address.

Donaldson on Program.

John A. Donaldson, president of the institute and vice president and treasurer of Butler Brothers, Chicago, will speak first on the afternoon program, and will be followed by several who will discuss government reports. The institute's annual dinner will be held Tuesday.

Two insurance groups will meet in Chicago this week, also. The National Association of Insurance Agents will meet for three days beginning tomorrow at the Palmer House, and the Illinois Association of Life Insurance Agents will meet Tuesday at the Palmer House for a short session. The national group held executive sessions yesterday.

WORK IS STARTED ON WILLOW RUN HOUSING PROJECT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19 (AP).—Housing Administrator John B. Blandford Jr., announced tonight that construction had begun on the first public war housing project near the Willow Run bomber plant in Michigan, and that contracts had been awarded on two others with work to start immediately.

Blandford said work was under way at Ypsilanti on 3,000 dormitory units which will be made available for workers at the plant. He said contracts had been let on 1,900 family units which will be built in groups of 900 and 1,00 homes at Wayne.

Other public housing projects planned are at Inkster, Ypsilanti, and a new townsite near the plant. In addition to the public housing, 4,500 privvately financed homes have been planned for the Willow Run area.

DECLARES TANKS OF U. S. SUPERIOR TO THOSE OF FOE

American tanks now being turned out in "astounding numbers" are superior to any the axis is using, Brig. Gen. Donald Armstrong, former chief of the Chicago ordnance division and now head the army's combat automotive division in Detroit, said yesterday at a luncheon meeting of directors of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, who are holding a three day conference at the Hotel La Salle.

Armstrong assailed reports which he said adversely criticized American made tanks before their superiority had been proved in battle and said there was "no question" of the superiority of our Gen. Grants and Gen. Lees over German and Italian tanks in North Africa.

KROGER GROCERY 4 WEEKS' SALES UP 29.7 PER CENT

Kroger Grocery and Baking company yesterday reported sales of $30,016,517 for the four weeks ended Sept. 5, an increase of 29.7 per cent over the corresponding period last year. Sales for the 36 weeks ended Sept. 5 were up 26.8 per cent to $255,503,216.

Scott Paper company's sales for the first eight months of 1942 amounted to $21,195,000, 31 per cent more than in the corresponding period last year.

Prices of Butter Futures Are Unchanged to Lower

Butter futures closed unchanged to 0.10 cent lower on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, with the November delivery at 42.65 cents a pound. Egg futures declined 0.05 to 0.10 cent, the October delivery at 35.40 cents a dozen. November Idaho potatoes advanced 0.2 to 0.6 cent a hundred pounds to close at $2.92.

Loan Corporation Buys Consumers Credit Firm

Beneficial Industrial Loan corporation announced yesterday that it had made a cash purchase of all the outstanding stock of Consumers Credit company which operates 24 branch offices in California, Washington, Oregon, Arizona, and Utah, with an approximate investment in small loans of $2,700,000.

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

DONATES WHEEL PANELS.

McHenry, Ill., Sept. 17.—Having raked the entire household for scrap metal for the recent drive and being unable to find another ounce of metal not absolutely necessary to keep the place intact, I thought I had just about reached the limits when it occurred to me that the rear wheel panels on my '41 Olds were not essential, merely ornamental. So I took them off the car and contributed them to the scrap heap in town.

I think every one in the U. S. A. owning a car with rear wheel panels or parts would be more than glad to contribute them at a perilous time like this, so why not suggest this thru your paper, as I am given to understand that the newspapers are going to handle the scrap drive from here on?

ORSON MCNELLIS.

U. S. TAX STICKER STOLEN.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Warning to truck drivers and all motorists! Watch your federal tax tag when you park. Copy your number and keep it handy. My husband's tag was stolen Aug. 20 on 21st and South State street in broad daylight. Now they tell him he must buy another. Do they think a truck driver picks his "fives" off a tree?

ANGRY WIFE.

NOISY WEDDING.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—Will some one tell me why it is that when people get married in Chicago, they go in autos thru the streets blowing their horns so that defense workers can't get their sleep? Why do the police stand by without giving these silly people a ticket for the noise they are making?

I thought we were at war. Don't these silly people think at all? If not, I pity their marriage. F. ROGERS.

ATTENTION MOTOR COACH CO.!

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 15.—Why does the city council permit the Chicago Motor Coach company to park their buses at night, sans lights, on Cottage Grove avenue between 51st and 55th streets? This is a traffic hazard that should be eliminated. The surface lines are forced to park their cars and buses in private barns and yards. This is another form of hospitable favoritism shown to the American Omnibus company of New York by the city fathers. STREET CAR RIDER.

PARKING LOT PRICES.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—I understand there is a ceiling price set on parking lots. Then why can a parking lot at 1127 South Wabash avenue raise the price from 20c to 50c the night of Aug. 27, because of the crowd at the All-Star game? R. G. GREENE.

WOULD SCRAP HORNS.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Why doesn't some one start a campaign against the horn blowing nuisance and really put it over? With all the talk about collecting scrap metal, the automobile horns would furnish an endless supply of scrap. If all the horns could be taken off the cars and buses perhaps the "honkers" would start using their brakes or alleged brains or perhaps even get out of their cars occasionally and ring a doorbell when they are calling on a date. Living on a thru street or boulevard with this constant nuisance is almost too much for any human to stand.

These vicious crackpots are a serious menace to our war efforts, in fact they might rightly be termed sixth columnists, undermining the health of the nation. Just think of the poor defense workers who are employed nights. I wonder how in the world they ever get any sleep. Added to this crackpot sixth columnist list is the clanging street car motormen and the mufflerless motorcyclist.

Would certainly appreciate your printing this letter or an article on the matter and perhaps the noise makers would take a hint. Then maybe we could all get a little sleep. E. J. M.

SCRAP METAL SIGNS.

Decatur, Ill., Sept. 15.—According to reliable newspaper releases, there are a half million less automobiles registered in Illinois in 1942 than in 1941. Shortages of tires and the inevitable rationing of motor fuel will make most of our civilian motorists vacate the highways by 1943. Naturally, trucks and buses will be the main users of our highway systems.

There are tons of steel used in highway signs all over this state. Some of them are erected on steel posts. Let's take all except the most essential steel highway markers and turn them in as scrap. With the steel shortage as critical as it is, Illinois could well afford to turn in its highway markers for a better use; and while we're at it, let's take down all other steel advertising signs along the highways for the same purpose.

After the war is won there will be plenty of time to put up new highway markers before civilian tire sales get back to the peak of 1940-'41.

Let's have Illinois to be the first state to turn its steel highway markers into tanks, guns, and ships!

ROBERT CULSHAW.

PARKING CAR HAZARD.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—In issuing blackout instructions to civilians, the parked car menace has been overlooked. Streets lined solidly with parked cars not only prevent drivers of moving vehicles pulling up to curbs when sirens sound blackout warning, but in case of actual air raids of incendiary bombs, prevent the fire department promptly bringing up apparatus and hose lines to fight fires. As an air raid safety measure, parking autos on streets should be prohibited from sunset to sunrise. A. R.

BLOWOUT—FRONT OR REAR—ALWAYS SERIOUS HAZARD

There is no definite single answer to the old question of the relative danger of a blowout on a front or a rear tire, according to the Chicago Motor club.

The problem of using the best tires on the preferred wheels has always been a matter of interest to motorists, but it becomes increasingly more important as the rubber situation becomes more acute.

In a survey compiled from the motor club's own records and from information supplied by the national bureau of standards, the contest board of the American Automobile association, and from several rubber companies, the motor club has released information on various viewpoints concerning blowout accident probability and severity.

Front Wheel Blowouts.

"According to some authorities," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, "hazards from front wheel blowouts are the more serious. The steering apparatus is more seriously affected by this type of tire failure than by any other. The drag on the front wheel is transferred to the steering wheel, which requires a substantial force to hold. The wobbling motion of the car as the affected wheel runs along on the decreased diameter of the rim is hard to control. A combination of sound, feel, and motion is set up, and tends to upset average and inexperienced drivers.

"The driver has only two preventive forces to control the car after a blowout—steering and stopping. As the steering apparatus is not affected directly by a rear wheel blowout, many motorists and motor authorities believe that the front wheel variety is the more dangerous."

Other authorities, according to Mr. Hayes, believe a rear wheel blowout is the more serious. They explain that improved steering design in the newer cars enables the alert driver to control a front wheel drag by holding the steering wheel firmly. When a rear tire blows, however, the driver instinctively tends to compensate for the initial swerve by swinging the wheel. This usually overcompensates and results in a worse swerve than the original.

Braking Dangerous.

Application of the brakes in any kind of blowout is bad, but in a rear wheel tire failure the braking action accentuates the original swerve and makes the car harder to control. The only effect of braking a front wheel blowout is to make it harder to hold the steering wheel. Experienced drivers know that in case of a rear blowout, power should be applied momentarily until the first swerve of the car is under control.

The instinctive overcompensation in steering and application of brakes by inexperienced drivers is thought by many motorists and highway authorities to make a rear tire blowout more dangerous than that of a front tire.

Other points in favor of putting the best tires on the rear wheels are that tire wear is appreciably less on the front than the rear, and tires with effective nonskid design contribute more to the safety of automobile operation when used on rear wheels.

Several other conditions help determine the severity of an accident where a blowout was the initial contributing cause.

Speed Prime Factor.

Speed is one of the prime factors. It is generally believed that a tire blowout—either front or rear wheel—will not be particularly dangerous for an alert motorist driving at 35 m.p.h. or less. At this reduced speed, most drivers can control their cars. At higher speeds, however, things happen faster and with greater intensity. Both the probability of an accident and the severity of the accident increase with increased speed when badly worn tires are used.

Road conditions also play an important part in the probability and seriousness of a blowout accident. On an open straight road, there is little danger of accident. On icy pavement, crowded streets, and curved roads, accident probability increases.

The ability of the driver to handle the car in an emergency may be more important than any difference between front and rear blowouts. Ability to retain control of the car by proper application of power and correct steering are extremely important in handling a car which is momentarily out of hand because of a blowout.

Unbalanced loading of cars and vehicle design almost certainly play some part in the question of front versus rear wheels, but no test data or factual information are available.

NEW TYPE ROAD HOG CREATED BY GAS RATIONING

It's the Heavy Truck on Hilly Highways.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—Gasoline rationing on the Atlantic seaboard during the last four months has converted big trucks into a new type of road hog. In the midwest, passenger car drivers have long been annoyed by the lumbering freighters impeding their progress on the open highway. When fuel rationing becomes nation-wide, the motorists will have a new complaint against the truckers, if experience in the east is duplicated.

The passenger car driver in the east is forced to minimize his speed to conserve gasoline. With an allowance of only four gallons a week for the common family car, the driver eases the accelerator on any trip in the country. A pace of between 30 and 40 miles an hour is the usual speed for these trips.

Trucks Not Stinted.

Trucks, on the other hand, are not stinted. Those that are able, travel faster than the economizing passenger cars.

The passenger car traveling 35 miles an hour on a rural highway is overtaken by a heavy tractor-trailer combination. The trucker on the tail of the sedan blows his horn as impatiently as a Chicago street car motorman clangs his bell when a traffic light changes to green. With a long vehicle and with slow acceleration, the chauffeur prefers to blow the passenger car out of his way rather than attempt to pass loaded trucks traveling in the country close to their maximum speeds in rolling terrain. They power dive down hill to gain momentum for the approaching ascent. Therefore the speed of the heavy carriers will vary from 50 miles per hour to 15 miles per hour as they go up and down a rolling highway.

Overtaken on Down Grade.

The passenger car driver seeking to maintain a steady speed is overtaken on the down grade. After making way for the truck to pass, the passenger car driver overtakes the truck on the up grade.

Most passenger drivers, while annoyed by this conflict, accept the nuisance as just another feature of the war. They recognize that the hauling of freight over the road is essential to our war time economy. Their attitude is more pleasant than the peace time conflict between fast passenger cars and large, slow moving freighters.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Women are taking an important part in the war production at the large plants of the Hudson Motor Car company in the Detroit area, A. E. Barit, president, states in an interim report on the automobile company's war activities. He explains that when the transition was being made from the making of automobiles to the manufacture of war supplies the company started training women.

Now the women are replacing men who are entering military service. All the company's women hourly workers who formerly helped to build automobiles now have war jobs and the company is training women from outside its plants. It is expected that eventually 5,500 women will be employed on war production.

Women now are working side by side with men in shops and offices, helping to produce naval ordnance, bomber fuselage sections, tank parts, ammunition, airplane engine parts, mine anchors, wings for dive bombers, engines for invasion boats, antiaircraft guns, and a number of secret items of military equipment.

Hudson is even using women to act as guards at its various plants.

Girls are being sworn in as civilian auxiliaries to the military police. All the girls being taken for this service are tall, only one being under 5 feet 10 inches. At present they are being used as escorts for persons entering Hudson plants on business—thus relieving male guards for more strenuous service.

In hiring women workers, Hudson gives preference to wives of former employés now in the armed forces and to dependents of men in service.

Barit states that Hudson is well ahead of schedule on all its war contracts. It was able to utilize its automobile machinery in producing mine anchors for the navy under its latest war contract. The job is being handled without the addition of a single machine tool.

Hudson's largest war job is the operation of a huge ordnance plant for the navy—a plant which occupies more than 135 acres. One of the principal products of this plant is the famous Oerlikon anti-aircraft gun designed for the protection of naval and merchant ships against dive bombers. Production of these guns requires 6,500 special tools, jigs, and gauges and 1,688 standard tools of various kinds. Other products include gun mounts, fire control apparatus, and other ordnance.

Ground for the plant was broken March 17, 1941. By July 16 machinery was being installed, and the plant was dedicated on Oct. 28, 1941—just 7 months and 11 days after work was started on it.

TRADE SCHOOLS—MEN.

Opportunities Now for OLDER MEN
To fill good jobs left vacant by men called in the draft. No experience necessary to learn and qualify. There is a demand also for trained men who have some slight physical handicap that makes them draft exempt.
AND WOMEN ALSO!
They, too, are replacing men called to the colors. Women who have the proper training are getting good jobs as Draftsmen and Inspectors with the same base pay and overtime as men receive.

ARE YOU QUALIFIED?
DRAFTING
All branches, including aircraft and machine drafting. Draftsmen must be had to lay out important war work.
INSPECTION
Including aircraft. Frantic call for trained inspectors to approve finished parts for aircraft and other war equipment.
WELDING
Arc and gas welders are key men and highly paid for regular and overtime work. Get into one of these "live" fields now. Your spare time is enough. Days, evenings, Saturdays. Train here quickly for the job of your choice. Employment help when ready. Start now. No time to lose.
SPEED IN TRAINING
Men must be ready to fill these jobs in weeks, not months or years as heretofore.

AIRCRAFT
Men between the ages of 18 and 50 should face the facts of war; either help secure the war material required by our armed forces or join the armed forces.
This shop training plant has enrolled 3,841 men so far this year. . . . Why?
BECAUSE
[2] Our step-by-step course prepares our students in 8 weeks' time.
[3] Our graduates are in demand and are receiving top pay in the jobs we have secured for them.
[5] We cannot fill the demand for our graduates.
Day or Evening Training
More than 1,000 students now being trained in our modern, splendidly equipped training shops, the largest of their kind in this country.

Intelligent Women for Factory Cost Work
A large industrial company, whose products are used extensively in the war effort, is changing its policy of using men exclusively for factory cost work. It has openings for women at its nearby plant and at other plants throughout the country. While the openings are created by the present emergency, this new policy is to be continued after the war is over.

Because of the variety of products manufactured and the intricacy of the processes, successful applicants will be required to join a class of present women employees in a 3 months' training course, part of which will be conducted at the factory to which that applicant will later be assigned. Out-of-town expenses will be paid in addition to salary during training period.

Desirable candidates will be between 25 and 35, and will have either college training in engineering or business administration, or several years' factory accounting or similar experience.

Replies to this advertisment should be in full detail, giving complete personal and scholastic data, a comprehensive description of your business experience, salary requirement, and a recent snapshot which need not be returned. # DAY by DAY on the FARM by BEN MARKLAND

NATURE exhibits many of her peculiarities to the outdoor fan who pokes around farm woodlots to watch the bird migrations, the habitats of farm furbearers, and the progress of the wildflowers, shrubs, and trees which serve as guides of the seasons. Such woodlot notes have little importance in the world of science and business, but for the farmer and outdoor fan these insignificant little quirks of nature prove the lore which makes rural life so intriguing from the first day of the year to the last.

While thumbing thru a small leaflet issued by the Chicago Academy of Sciences we noted a statement that twining vines, like baseball pitchers, may be left handed or right handed. The tendrils of a grape vine, for example, twist against the sun [counterclockwise], whereas the honeysuckle, wild yam, and hop vines twist with the sun to gain the rating of "lefties" in the vine world.

Examples of Both Kinds.

We examined a number of climbing vines and shrubs on the Du Page county farm this week to see if they conformed to nature's prescription on the way they should climb. The bittersweet vines, which twist up and thru the woven wire fence alongside one of the farm roads, are right handed, spiraling in a counterclockwise direction. Morning glories in the farm yards also are right handed, as are their troublesome relatives the bindweeds.

The only left handed twiners we found on the farm were the wild and cultivated members of the hop family and the common honeysuckle and Sullivant's honeysuckle. All of these shrubs spiral upward in a clockwise movement.

Nature Is Stubborn.

Nature is pretty stubborn about the way these orders are obeyed. If in "training" the vines of a grape arbor the gardener starts the tendrils in the wrong direction they will unwind and start twining to the right.

When we stopped in the yard of one of the farm homes a gardener was performing a task related to this subject of twining. He was helping a honeysuckle vine establish itself on a latticed fence in front of one of the farm cottages. After a few minutes of watching him work it was evident that he had learned to separate the left handers from the right handers in the vine world, because he was twisting the honeysuckle vines in a clockwise direction around the latticework.

THE FAMOUS GAYOSO FARMS FOR SALE. NATIONALLY KNOWN.

Gayoso Farms is the most outstanding Guernsey Breeding Farm in the South. It breeds Registered Guernsey Cattle, Registered Hampshire Hogs, Registered Hereford Cattle and Registered Hampshire Sheep. Gayoso animals have won championships at nearly every Fair in our area. Gayoso Farms has the milk contract, at a most attractive price, at the leading Hotels of Memphis, a city of more than 325,000 people. It has the garbage contracts for hogs at the same Hotels. Gayoso Farms is located 10 miles from Memphis, on the main National Highway from North to South. Of its 1,375 acres, 700 are rich, very fertile bottom land. The balance is of the best type of table and hill land, set to the finest pasture. Well fenced and cross fenced, the farm has been well limed and has had more than 10,000 loads of manure placed on it. Gayoso Farms has ideal dairy and other barns and houses, including new $14,800 Pasteurizing equipment. It has two beautiful lakes well stocked with fish. It is in every way a gentleman's farm that will pay rent dividends. The owner has been called to War and must sell. Gayoso Farms is worth your PERSONAL investigation. Nothing else like it is available in the South. Price is a walkout with everything intact, $200,000. Terms very easy. Without a doubt, Gayoso Farms is the most attractive investment in a Breeding and Dairy Farm in the entire South. Write, wire or telephone, NEELY BOWEN, Exclusive Agent, Union Planters National Bank Bldg., Memphis, Tenn.

SIDELIGHTS ON CINDERELLA!

By HEDDA HOPPER

YOU'VE ALL heard the silly about the man at the Heifetz recital who asked his girl friend if she played the violin. "I don't know," she simpered, "I've never tried." This, which might seem an all-time high in sheer optimism, is as nothing compared with the mental attitude of the average movie fan as regards a screen career. Probably a good 80 per cent of our young and fetching females cherish the fond conviction that they, too, are not Ingrid Bergmans, Teresa Wrights, or Judy Garlands only because they've never really tried. People will tell you in the most patronizing way that a movie career is all a matter of luck. Any young punk with a classy chassis and a look in her eye can crash her way into Hollywood's elect and have the producers fighting over her contract.

Well, I don't say all that doesn't help. Heaven knows our publicity agents have worked the old Cinderella theme threadbare—and it really has come true in a few isolated instances—but the only lasting recipe for success in a film career (or any other) is the same old chestnut, i.e., "hard work, study, patience, hope, and plenty of guts." Many things about the making of pictures have changed since their beginning, but not that. Our current crop of younger actresses is but the counterpart of yesterday's Crawfords, Loys, Lombards, Gaynors, et al. They all came up the hard way. Nobody grabbed them by the ankle and rammed the glass slipper on a startled foot. They've all had fallen arches from standing in line and cricks in their necks from holding their chins up. They're where they are today because they learned to keep on their feet and stay in there slugging when others who started with them had long since conceded the fight.

If you'd watched Marjorie Reynolds on the set of Irving Berlin's "Holiday Inn," going thru a dance routine with Fred Astaire or singing a catchy tune with Bing Crosby, no doubt you'd have envied her the glitter of the spotlight. But the wardrobe woman could tell you that Marjorie's Cinderella shoes have arch supporters in them—and the hairdresser could tell you how the poor kid broke down and cried the day the picture started.

Here's a girl who's been working hard since she was 14. Every moment free from the classroom was spent in dancing school and on sound stages. When nothing came of her dancing she cast aside her ballet slippers and labored on Poverty Row—where there are neither wardrobe women nor hairdressers and a picture's complete in six days. At one stretch she made 35 westerns in 35 weeks and furnished her own stunting. If the script called for her to fall off a horse, Marjorie bit the dust. There was no extra pay for a double to do it. Do you think it strange, then, that after working for nearly 10 years for her big break she broke down and bawled when the great day came?

Back in the silents Myrna Loy worked days as a model, evenings as a dancing teacher, landed a job in a Grauman's Chinese theater prolog, progressed to bits in one quickie after another, determined to give up the whole

CARTOON THAT INSPIRED A SONG

WHEN John T. McCutcheon, The Tribune's veteran cartoonist, drew the cartoon at the left he started something. First, so great was the popular approval of the drawing, which appeared in color on page one of The Daily Tribune, that it was reprinted full page size in a later issue. It has now become a symbol for those who are trying to get families and friends to write more often to the men in the service camps.

The second effect of the cartoon was to inspire Guy Savage, announcer on the staff of W-G-N, to write the song at the right. Savage sought to add impetus to The Tribune's letter writing campaign by expressing in words and music the same spirit that made the cartoon a masterpiece. The Tribune co-operated with him by granting permission to use the cartoon as a cover illustration for the song.

Since publication, the song has been featured over W-G-N by Lawrence Welk's orchestra, as well as others.

blooming mess just as her break came.

Joan Crawford was a movie extra daytimes, a taxi dancer nights, and entered every dance contest held here. Why, she had more silver cups than Hitler has generals. She finally graduated to small parts, but kept on winning Charleston contests and eventually got a toe hold on the Hollywood ladder with "Our Dancing Daughters."

Carole Lombard fought her way up thru Mack Sennett comedies and second-string westerns. Janet Gaynor arrived via the extra route. Janet, whose sense of humor is second to none, has a fund of funny stories about her struggles. One of my favorites concerns her first real car. For years she owned an ancient jaloppy with a sinister disposition. Janet was the only one of the family who could drive it. She had to prop herself forward with three hard cushions in order to reach the gear pedals, and she hated it with a holy hatred! When she signed her starring contract with Fox she broke loose and bought a Packard limousine complete with driver—big, mild-mannered watchdog Clifford, who's driven her ever since up to the time several months ago when he entered the service. That first day Janet and her mother spent tooling grandly about town, lolling back against the pearl gray broadcloth—taking turns addressing Clifford thru the gray silk speaking tube. "What on earth did you say to him?" I asked. "O, just anything that came into our heads," Janet said. "Then Clifford would touch his cap, looking so dignified and grand, while mother and I hugged each other and squealed for joy!"

• • •

Ginger Rogers is another who got her start thru winning a Charleston contest. This was in Dallas, Tex. Ginger, drunk with success, organized her own show, a group of girls called "The Red Heads," and opened in a nearby town. She was a better dancer than a business woman, because after the first week her supporting cast, inflamed by their enthusiastic reception, dispensed with their star and took out on their own, leaving Ginger to foot the bills.

Ginger Rogers.

Undaunted, she worked up a single act and got a booking in a five-a-day Memphis theater where she opened to an all but empty house and a flop performance. A kindly veteran on the same bill tipped her off that the manager was set to fire her, whereupon she and her mother scuttled out the stage door, took refuge in a chili joint, and hid in a booth until time for her second performance. With Leila acting as lookout, Ginger eluded the irate manager and rushed from the wings as the curtain rose. This time the house had begun to fill and her act went over.

Via vaudeville she threaded her way to New York and in 1930 made a hit in "Girl Crazy," where she was pegged by RKO and brought here under a stock contract. There followed the usual miscasting—unimportant parts, an unlifted option at the end of six months. Her next chance came at Warners with Joe E. Brown in "Forty-second Street." Ginger had a minor part, a cigaret girl, with nothing more to work on than one catchy line—"Cigaret me, big boy!"—but managed to stick out like a sore thumb. RKO grabbed her back, and with Fred Astaire in "Flying Down to Rio" she was finally established.

• • •

You all know Mary Martin's story. Another Texas girl, another dancing school—got to Hollywood only to beat her fists in vain against our studio gates. She sang her heart out in a night spot to the frozen pans of our producers and got nowhere except a test at Republic. The verdict came back, "Martin hasn't a prayer!" So-o-o-o—Martin went to New York, took the town by storm with one hit song, and had the Hollywood pack in full cry.

Betty Grable's another who worked and waited but got her break via Broadway. Buddy De Sylva put her into "Du Barry Was a Lady" after she'd been kicking around here for 10 years. Rita Hayworth played heavy Spanish parts in minor epics as a Fox stock girl, but was let out. Then came lean years on Poverty Row. Columbia signed her back in 1937 and submerged her in stinkers. It wasn't until she took her savings and got herself an extensive publicity campaign and married a husband who managed her right that she worked out of B pictures.

• • •

Same thing's true of our males. Brian Donlevy's saga of failure and frustration reads like a dime thriller. When he was a boy in Sheboygan Falls, Wis., he was mad about the stage, acting weekly in amateur theatricals. This was interrupted by one year at Annapolis, after which he resigned and went to New York, where he kept himself alive modeling for the famous illustrator Leyendecker while making daily rounds of theatrical booking offices. For three years he posed for every conceivable type of ad or magazine cover and at the end of that time met Louis Wolheim, who got him a bit in "What Price Glory?" For 12 more years Brian struggled on. In the play "Three Cornered Moon" he got good reviews, followed by a definite hit in "The Milky Way," but Hollywood still ignored him. With his hard-won savings he took a slow train to the coast and found every door closed and bolted—couldn't even get a screen test for the part he'd created on Broadway. When he was down to all but his return fare he had an offer from John Golden for a Broadway part, and before leaving made one farewell round of casting offices. Bob McIntyre, casting for Sam Goldwyn, agreed to interview him. They were searching frantically for a heavy for "Barbary Coast," starring Miriam Hopkins and Eddie Robinson. Sam decided to take a chance on a new face, and Brian knew it was now or never. He'd once played a gangster and got good reviews on the strength of a costume which was solid black from head to heel—so a few days later he entered Goldwyn's office wearing black suit, hat, shirt, tie, shoes, belt, and gloves. Sam was crazy about it, but nixed the gloves—so Brian, fearing his hands might detract from the ensemble, played the part with his hands either behind him or shoved into his pockets. Yes, he walked away with "Barbary Coast," and that was the start of a career that had been 15 years in the making!

Walter Pidgeon, brought here in 1930 for the singing lead in a Warners musical, had years of inferior parts to his credit and several return trips to Broadway plays before Metro finally tumbled to the fact that plenty of women wanted to see Walter get the gal, even tho he wasn't in the first flush of youth.

Our two Johns, Wayne and Payne, had plenty of both on the way up. John Wayne, like Clark Gable and Gary Cooper, entered movie via the westerns, tho his career actually began as a prop boy. Director Raoul Walsh saw the six-foot-five, 210-pound football player carrying a table onto his set—arranged a screen test and put him in a western. For 10 years John rode the range for Republic, Monogram, and Warners. He made a steady living, married his boyhood sweetheart, and raised a family, but no one offered him a contract, and he knew he was in a rut, with nothing ahead but an endless succession of rough riding. John Ford saw him on a horse and picked him for "Stagecoach." He was made a star overnight. He's one of the best-liked men here.

John Payne was passed around from pillar to post. Sam Goldwyn tried him out for a while with no results. Then Emmanuel Cohen put him under a contract that withered on the vine. After that Paramount attempted to star him and flopped. Jack Warner thought he had possibilities, but after two years he was dropped. Not until Twentieth Century gave him "Tin Pan Alley," with Jack Oakie and Alice Faye, was the jinx finally broken. Now John's in the homestretch.

• • •

So that, my children, is the way things work in this wacky make-believe world. The fruits of success are no less sweet because they've been dearly bought—but when you find yourself envying the glitter of some celluloid Casanova, bear in mind that what a Hollywood still man can't do with a soft focus and indirect lighting is nobody's business. Many a virile male gazes out upon you from beneath a Westmore toupee; under many a flawless makeup lurk the crow's-feet acquired in the struggle to give fate the hotfoot, and what appears the triumphant launching of a maiden voyage is oft but the weary warping into port of a battle-scarred veteran!

SCOOP!—The Tribune's Famous Story of Dewey's Victory

By LLOYD WENDT

THE TRIBUNE'S remarkable series of stories by War Correspondent Stanley Johnston of the Battle of the Coral sea has recalled to Tribune workers and old time readers other famous news beats scored by this newspaper. Perhaps the most famous of these was the dispatch from Edward W. Harden telling the story of Commodore (later admiral) George Dewey's victory over the Spanish fleet in the battle of Manila bay in May, 1898. The Tribune was the first publication to give the American account of this victory to the world, beating even Commodore Dewey's official communique by several hours.

The story of this unusual scoop, at the time rated as the greatest in the history of journalism, is worth retelling. It begins the night of April 30, 1898, when Commodore Dewey, commanding a squadron of seven fighting ships, sailed into Manila bay to engage the Spanish fleet.

In Dewey's fleet were the cruisers Olympia, Baltimore, Boston, and Raleigh, the gunboats Concord and Petrel, and the revenue cutter McCulloch, which carried a few small guns. The Spaniards had seven cruisers and three gunboats, which were backed up by their shore defenses in Manila bay.

Normally a commander might have sent one or two vessels into the bay for scouting operations, but this Dewey did not do. He had his orders to "capture or destroy" the Spanish fleet, and he knew that surprise was necessary to carry them out. He was told that the Spaniards had sewn torpedo mines in the bay, but that they were of inferior quality, and might be risked. The commodore steamed boldly past the Corregidor forts, thru the wide shallow channel called Boca Grande. Only the stern light on each vessel was burning, and that was as a guide to the following ship. The night was very dark, except when the moon shone fitfully thru the heavy clouds. The Americans moved with little sound, and the Spaniards seemed asleep.

• • •

At almost exactly midnight, the smoke stack of the McCulloch belched fire. This mishap aroused the Spanish lookouts, and their guns on El Fraile rock, a bare half mile away, opened up on the McCulloch. The shots were high and wide. The Concord and the McCulloch replied, directing their fire at the fort on the rock. Then there was silence and darkness again, and by morning the American fleet was before Manila.

In daylight, Dewey discovered that the Spanish ships were at Cavite, seven miles away, and he immediately went after them. The Olympia, Dewey's flagship which led the way, broke out its battle flags. Men moved to battle stations. Ammunition was brought up. At 5,000 yards, the Olympia opened fire, and the battle of Manila bay was on.

Three newspapermen were covering the battle. They were Joseph Stickney of the New York Herald, a close friend of Dewey, who was aboard the Olympia; John T. McCutcheon, the cartoonist, who represented the Chicago Record, and Edward W. Harden, former Tribune financial editor, who was correspondent for The Tribune and the New York World. McCutcheon and Harden were aboard the McCulloch.

(SPECIAL CABLE.)

(BY E. W. HARDEN OF CHICAGO.)

Hongkong, May 7.—(Copyright, 1898, by the Press Publishing Company, New York World.)—The victory of the American fleet in the bombardment of Manila on Sunday was complete and overwhelming.

Of the Spanish ships eleven were sunk. The fleet was completely destroyed.

The Americans did not lose a single man, and the ships came through the battle uninjured in the least by the Spanish fire.

The Spanish lost 300 men killed and 400 wounded.

On the American fleet only six of the entire number of men engaged were injured.

These are not serious, the wounds being only slight.

The results are a great tribute to the daring and skill of the men in the American navy.

It seems almost incredible that the ships and men should have come through the ordeal without a scratch.

The guns were served with admirable precision, and the ships were maneuvered in so clever a manner that the Spaniards were not able to do any execution.

The enemy's fleet was of course outclassed, but, that even being so, it is a cause for the highest gratification and even wonder that the American men and fleet should have emerged from the conflict comparatively unharmed.

I have just arrived here on the United States boat McCulloch from Manila.

QUESTIONS OF THE HOUR.

Reproduction of Harden's story as it appeared on the front page of The Tribune.

The two men were close friends. Some weeks before the war with Spain broke out, Harden had obtained permission from the treasury department to travel aboard the McCulloch, which was being sent from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast by way of the Suez canal. He asked that his friend McCutcheon be invited to go along. Both men obtained leaves from their papers, agreeing to send back stories of their trip.

The two young journalists were aboard the McCulloch at Malta, in the Mediterranean, when they learned that the battleship Maine had been sunk in Havana harbor. It was expected that the McCulloch, which mounted three inch guns and six pounders, would be called home, but instead it was ordered to proceed to Singapore, where it arrived about April 1.

The McCulloch was in Singapore only a few days when the commander was instructed to proceed with all speed to join Dewey at Hongkong, and to avoid all Spanish vessels en route. Almost immediately after the ship reached Hongkong, war was declared, and neutral England warned Dewey he would have to leave the harbor within 48 hours. The commodore, already preparing for action, took his fleet to Mirs bay, on the China coast. There he got his orders:

Dewey, Asiatic Squadron:

War has commenced between the United States and Spain. Proceed at once to the Philippine islands. Commence operations at once, particularly against the Spanish fleet. You must capture vessels or destroy. Use utmost endeavors.

Long (Secretary of the Navy).

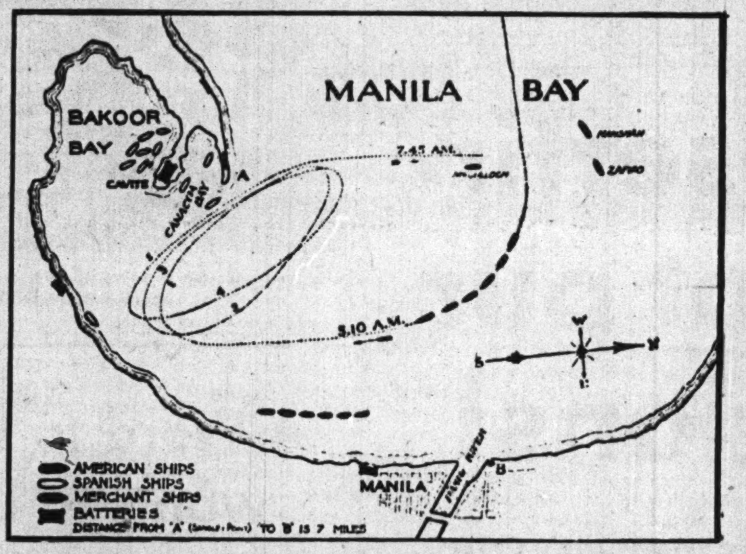

Chart of the Manila Bay action, drawn to illustrate Harden's famous scoop in The Tribune.

Harden and McCutcheon were permitted to remain aboard the McCulloch as Dewey steamed for Manila. Thus, when the battle began on the morning of the 1st of May, they were watching wide-eyed, prepared to serve in the ammunition magazine if the need arose.

Five times Dewey's ships turned and passed in front of the Spanish vessels, guns blazing. Then, unexpectedly, he set the flags for the fleet to withdraw. That withdrawal was the subject of much discussion later, some even suggesting that Dewey called off the fight in order to permit his men to have breakfast. The Spanish commander quickly cabled Madrid, saying the Americans had been repulsed.

Actually, according to Mr. Harden, the withdrawal order came because of a confusion of signals. Dewey, thousands of miles from a base, had entered the battle with less ammunition than he might need. Midway in the fight he signaled his captains, asking how many rounds remained. The answer was "Fifteen." Dewey withdrew to permit a redistribution of ammunition among his ships. Then he learned that his question had been misunderstood. The captains thought he had asked how many rounds they had fired, and the number was 15. There was plenty of ammunition left. Having withdrawn, Dewey decided to give his men breakfast and a rest while the heavy smoke of battle cleared.

At 11:20 the American fleet returned to the fight and found several Spanish ships blazing fiercely, among them the flagship Reina Cristina. The battle was ended at 12:30 when the flag of surrender was raised over the arsenal of Cavite.

Having won this tremendous victory, Dewey moved back to Manila, and informed the commandant there that he would blow up the city if a single hostile move was made against the American ships. The Manila batteries remained silent. But Dewey had insufficient forces to actually take Manila, and the Spaniards refused to surrender the cable office. They had sent a dispatch to Madrid, indicating the nature of the disaster to the Spanish navy, but they would permit no further messages to go thru. Consequently the commodore ordered the cable cut, and contact with the outside world was lost.

The three newspaper correspondents had in their hands the biggest story of a generation, and no way to get it to their readers. On Thursday, May 5, Dewey ordered the McCulloch to Hongkong with his own dispatch giving the news of the battle and its results, which was placed in the charge of Flag Lieutenant Brumby. Before the dispatch ship sailed, Commodore Dewey summoned the correspondents and told them they could go along.

"He gave us only limited instructions," said Harden. "We could send anything we pleased, favorable or unfavorable, so long as we made no predictions as to what Commodore Dewey might do in the future. In addition, he required that his own dispatch should have precedence. To this we all agreed."

When the McCulloch docked at Hongkong, the three newspapermen leaped to the pier. They scrambled into rickshas, and a strange race to the cable office began. Harden, familiar with the area, knew a short cut, and arrived slightly ahead. He appeared breathless at the cable window to file his message, but the Chinese attendant refused to accept so many words and referred him to the manager.

When Harden reached the manager's office, Stickney and McCutcheon were there, and Stickney was insisting that his message should be taken first. Harden objected. McCutcheon stayed out of the argument, and the manager ruled that Stickney's cable should go first. Harden was furious. He had been first at the window where cables were received, and he demanded his rights.

"Beck," he told the manager, "this is your last day as manager of the cable office in Hongkong."

"How come?" asked the manager.

Harden wrote out a cable message to the general manager of the cable office in London, explaining the circumstances and demanding the immediate discharge of Manager Beck because of his arbitrary action.

"I'll not send that," said Beck. "It's not a press dispatch."

"You will send it and here is the money to pay for it," Harden replied.

The quarrel continued, until Beck finally agreed that Harden's message should go first. Then Harden took another precaution. The press rate was $1.10 a word, there was a faster commercial rate at $3.30 a word, and an urgent rate at $9.90 a word. This was an unheard of cable toll for a press message, but Harden marked his dispatch "Urgent." Beck refused to accept it, saying that no newspaper would pay such a rate.

Harden had $500 in gold in his pocket. He produced the money and paid for the message himself. Beck had no alternative. The dispatch went "urgent."

The Dewey message carried by Flag Lieut. Brumby was sent first. Brumby had marked it "Repeat" to insure against error. This meant that at every cable station the message was taken off the wire and repeated back to the preceding station to make sure there was no mistake. So long as there was only one cable line along the route from Hongkong to New York, Brumby's message continued ahead. But when the message reached a point where there were two cables, Brumby's was held up for a check-back, while Harden's "urgent" went on ahead on another wire.

Harden had been financial editor of The Tribune when he departed on his world cruise, but, while in Hongkong, he had also arranged to cover the Pacific front of the Spanish war for the New York World. When his cable reached New York, it was sent to the World newsroom, where Farmer Murphy, correspondent of The Tribune, had an office. It was 4:20 a. m. New York time, too late for the World, which had published all its editions. Farmer Murphy wasted no time getting the message to The Tribune in Chicago, where it arrived at 3:25 a. m., Chicago time.

• • •

The Tribune's city edition was already on the presses, and the editors and writers were stretching their legs and preparing to knock off for the night. For almost a week, they, like the rest of the world, had awaited news from Dewey. But not even the President, or the navy department had received a single authentic report.

It was about 3:22 a. m. when the first advance notice of the big scoop was received from Murphy. It was a brief, telegraphed warning: "Message coming thru from Harden, Manila."

During the next two hours The Tribune was in a storm of excitement. The 12,000 copies of the city edition already printed were "killed." The page 1 form was cleared, the typesetters rallied, the presses were made ready, black headline type was plucked from the cases.

In the newsroom as the message came in and passed on down to the comping room, James Keeley, the managing editor was on one telephone, City Editor E. S. Beck on another, both talking to Washington.

"I don't care, get 'em up!" the managing editor was shouting. "Of course they're asleep, but I've got news from Dewey at Manila!"

A few moments later he had given the message to President McKinley, who had been roused from his bed. John D. Long, secretary of the navy, and Russell A. Alger, secretary of war, likewise received the first details of the great victory from The Tribune in Chicago. Thru the rest of that morning The Tribune correspondent in Washington gave the news to the members of the cabinet, and to many of the senators and members of congress.

• • •

The Tribune's handling of the Harden dispatch that morning is indicated by the reproduction in this section. The following day the newspaper was flooded with telegrams of thanks and congratulation, from President McKinley's secretary, from the secretaries of war and navy, from scores of senators and congressmen, and from readers and even rival editors.

"Scoop!" read the wire from John Addison Porter, secretary to the President. "It was a great stroke of journalistic enterprise, useful to the government as well as the people."

Said the telegram from Gen. Nelson A. Miles: "Congratulate you upon being the first to bring the glad tidings of one of the most brilliant naval victories in history."

Commented Finley Peter Dunne of the Chicago Journal: "It was the greatest beat in my newspaper experience."

Commodore Dewey's own dispatch did not arrive in New York until 9 a. m., and then, since it was in code, it had to be deciphered. As a result, Harden beat even the official communique by six hours.

A short time later, Mr. Harden returned to the Philippines as a special commissioner for the United States government. Upon his arrival in the United States some months after, President McKinley sent for him.

"He received my reports," Mr. Harden recalled, "and in the course of our conversation he told me how he 'padded down the hall in his nightshirt and slippers' to get over the telephone my report of the battle."

On his return to Chicago, Mr. Harden became editor of the Journal. In 1905 he entered the brokerage business, and he now has offices in New York. His home is in Scarborough, N. Y.

MAKE THE MOST OF MEAT!

Extra Care Will Pay Dividends

By MARY MEADE

WITH a shortage of meat in prospect, it's important that we make the best use of what meat we have. We must prepare our roasts, stews, and other meat dishes with more than usual care, and use all of the meat we buy, down to the last ragged scrap.

We've been almost porkless for a good many weeks now, and it's encouraging to know that fall and winter will bring a record pig crop, with probably all the pork we can eat for some time. The beef picture isn't quite so pleasant, but there'll always be some good kind of meat available. We'll just use the kind which is most plentiful and prepare it as attractively as we can.

Next time you come by a handsome, thick piece of round steak, try it this way, with a red wine sauce which makes it appear an extremely aristocratic dish. The wine isn't expensive, and the flavor it gives is tantalizing.

SWISS STEAK IN RED WINE
(Serves eight)

- 3 pound round steak, cut 1½ inches thick
- ½ cup flour
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¾ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ cup cooking fat
- 3 medium onions
- 1 sliced green pepper
- 1 cup celery, cut in pieces
- 1½ cups claret, Burgundy, or any red table wine
- 1 cup tomato juice

Dredge steak in flour to which salt and pepper have been added. Pound with meat pounder or edge of a saucer. Brown on all sides in hot fat. Add onions, green pepper, celery, and ¾ cup of wine. Cover and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for half an hour. Add rest of wine and tomato juice and continue baking for an hour longer, or until meat is very tender.

• • •

The steak may be prepared on top of the stove in a heavy skillet with a tight cover. Keep heat low enough so that the meat barely simmers, after the initial browning. Add the wine and tomato juice at intervals as the liquid cooks down.

TODAY'S PRIZE RECIPE

FROZEN BUTTERSCOTCH PECAN PIE
(Sugar-saving—Serves six to eight)

- ½ cup brown sugar
- ½ cup boiling water
- 2 eggs separated
- 1 tablespoon butter
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ cup pecan meats, chopped
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- 12 vanilla wafers, rolled fine

Melt brown sugar in heavy pan or skillet over low heat. Add boiling water and cook until sugar is again dissolved. Cool and pour over well beaten egg yolks, stirring well. Cook over hot water, beating constantly, until thick and light. Fold in butter and salt and cool. Stir in vanilla. Fold in nut meats, stiffly beaten egg whites, and whipped cream. Line freezing tray with waxed paper and sprinkle with half the wafer crumbs. Cover with caramel mixture and sprinkle with remaining crumbs. Freeze until firm. Very finely crushed nutmeats may be substituted for the wafers if desired or the mixture may be frozen without crumbs entirely.—MRS. NELLE HARE, 79 E. Ridge Road, Beloit, Wis.

HOW TO ENTER THE PRIZE RECIPE CONTEST

1—Choose your best recipe.
2—Type or write it legibly and completely, listing ingredients in order of use and giving standard level measurements.
3—Include such helpful information as number of servings, time for baking, size of pan.
4—Send one recipe at a time.
5—Address it to Recipe Contest, Chicago Tribune.

THERE'S A $5 PRIZE DAILY!
(All entries become the property of The Chicago Tribune)

Meat salads are grand dishes for using up leftover meats. There are some unusual combinations in meat salads, too. Take this one for example:

PORK APPLE SALAD
(Serves five)

Toss together 2 cups cooked pork strips, 1 cup diced celery, 1⅓ cups diced apples, 1 cup thinly sliced carrot, and 1 cup fresh blueberries. Serve with mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing mixed with thick sour cream.

Chopped pickle and cubes of cheddar cheese may also be added to this salad, which may be made with veal instead of pork. Serve it with hot cornmeal muffins for lunch.

Here's another piquant combination, this time using lamb.

LAMB AND FRUIT SALAD
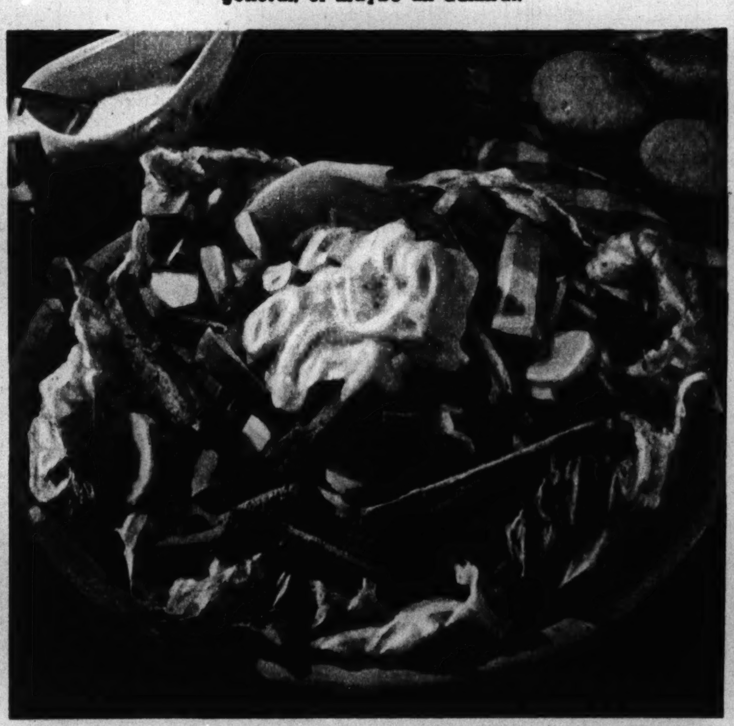
(Serves three)

- 2 cups cubed leftover roast lamb
- 1 cup French dressing
- 1½ cups cubed fresh peaches or pears
- 1 tablespoon chopped chives
- ⅓ cup thick sour cream
- ⅓ cup mayonnaise

Marinate lamb in French dressing for hour, in refrigerator. Drain and add fruit, chives. Combine sour cream and mayonnaise. Toss with lamb mixture. Arrange on shredded lettuce.

Ham cubes make a good meat salad with almost any fruit and celery. Diced ham, cooked macaroni, celery, chopped pickle, and onion seasoned dressing make a hearty meat salad.

Swiss steak baked in tomato and red wine sauce is a dish fit for a general, or maybe an admiral.



One way to use leftover meats is in salads. Cold pork, veal, ham, or lamb blends with fruit and dressing.

Morgan Lewis

MORGAN LEWIS, soldier, jurist, and politician, was born in New York City Oct. 16, 1754, a son of Francis Lewis, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He was educated at Elizabethtown academy and the College of New Jersey (now Princeton), being graduated from the latter institution in 1773.

Upon leaving college he entered the office of John Jay as a student of law, but the outbreak of the Revolutionary war in 1775 caused him to put aside his studies in favor of military service.

After a few months of volunteer service in the campaigns around Boston and New York he was, in the early spring of 1776, made a major of the Second New York regiment. From June of that year until the close of the conflict he was deputy quartermaster general of the New York department. He served also as chief of staff of Gen. Horatio Gates at Ticonderoga and Saratoga.

When the war ended Lewis resumed his legal studies and was admitted to the bar. His marriage in 1779 to a daughter of Robert R. Livingston, noted jurist and Revolutionary patriot, proved of considerable assistance to him in his public career. In 1789-'90 and again in 1792 he served in the New York state assembly, was attorney general for the state for a short while in 1791, and associate justice of the state Supreme court from late in 1792 until Oct. 28, 1801, when he was elevated to chief justice.

In 1804 he defeated Aaron Burr for the governorship of New York, but in 1807, when he again ran for that office, he was beaten. Lewis was elected to the state senate in 1810, but in May, 1812, he returned to the military service as quartermaster general. The following year, as a major general, he saw service on the Niagara frontier, and in 1814 he was in command of the region around New York City.

Despite certain errors charged to him in politics and not infrequent misfortunes which overtook him in his political career, he was in many respects a man of high principles and generous nature. During the War of 1812 it is said he used his own private funds for the aid of American prisoners of war and remitted rents on his estates for tenants who had rendered military service.

He was president of the New York Historical society from 1832 to 1836, president general of the Society of Cincinnati from 1839 to 1844, and one of the founders of New York university. He died in New York City April 7 (some biographers say May 7), 1844.

HOW WE ACQUIRED OUR NATIONAL TERRITORY

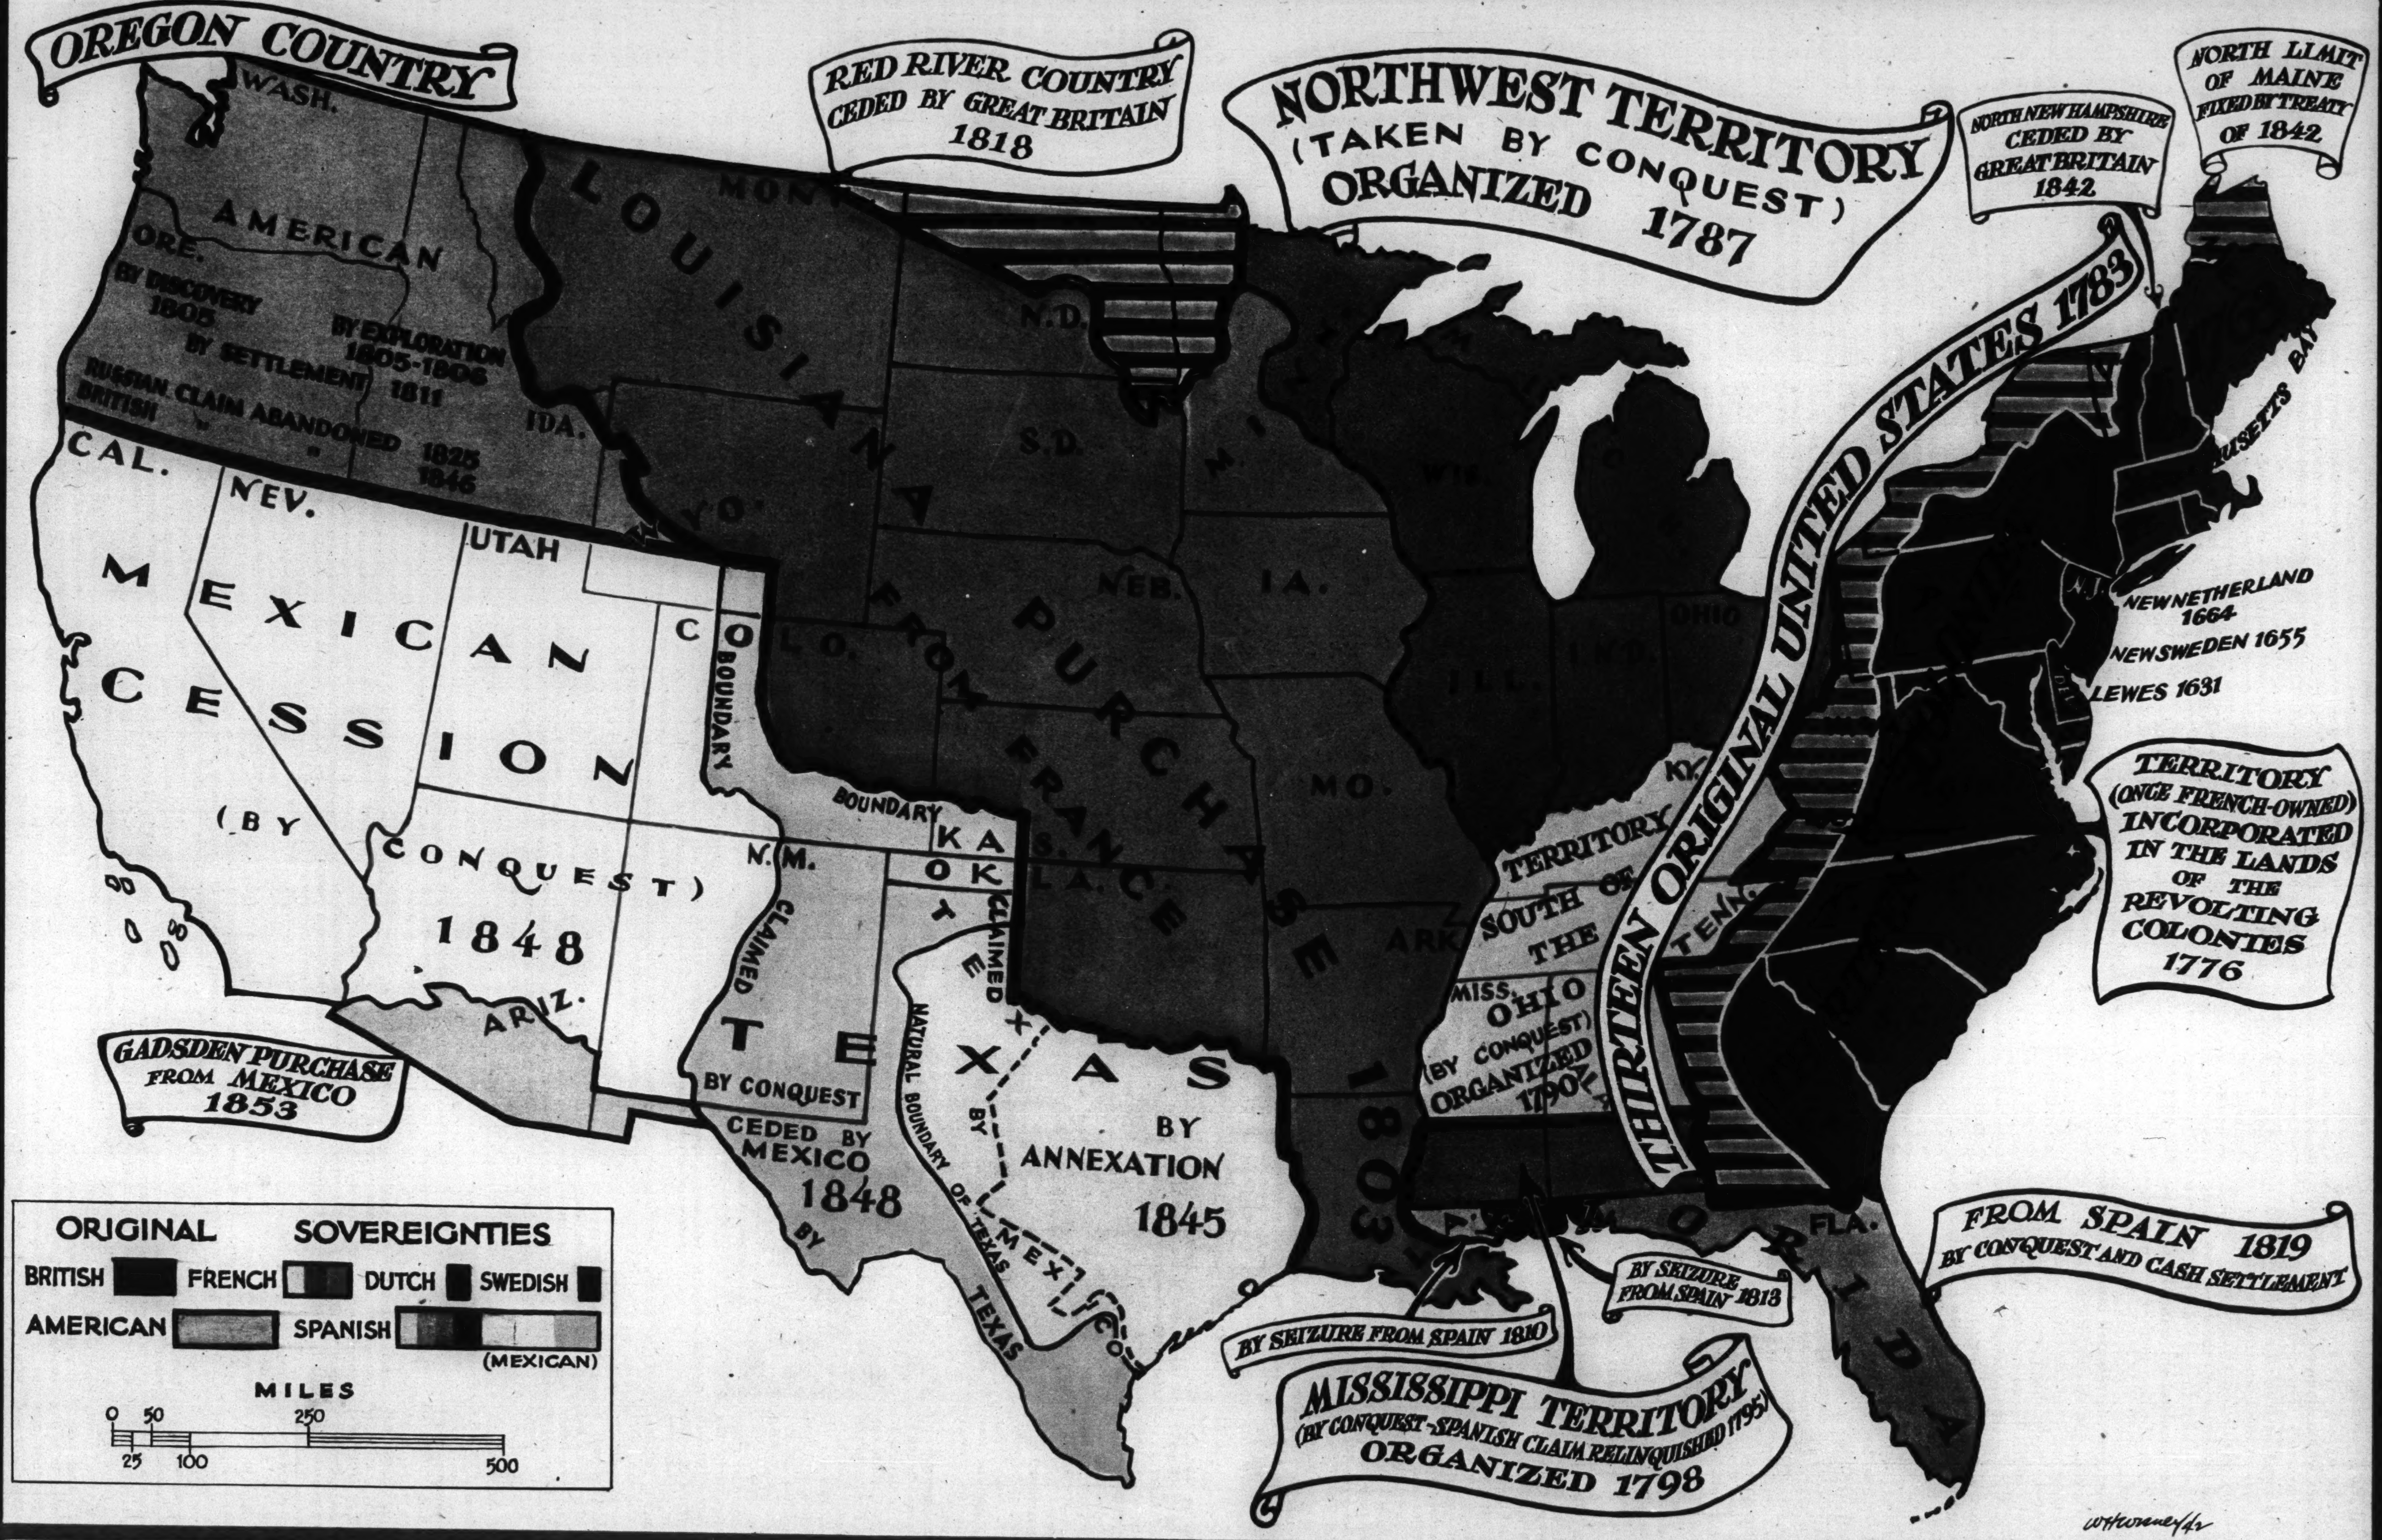
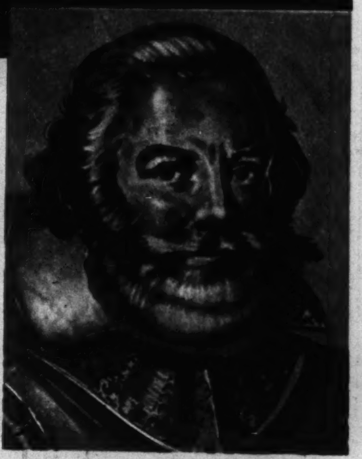
By Robert R. McCormick



• THIS IS THE ABSORBING STORY OF HOW OUR COUNTRY ACQUIRED THE TERRITORY IT NOW HAS, FROM THE EARLIEST DAYS OF ITS HISTORY UP TO THE RECENT ACQUISITION OF NAVAL AND AIR BASES ALONG THE ATLANTIC COAST AND IN THE CARIBBEAN. IN CHRONOLOGICAL ORDER IT DESCRIBES THE DEVELOPMENT OF AMERICA'S VARIOUS GEOGRAPHIC SECTIONS, AND HOW THEY WERE WELDED INTO THE MIGHTIEST NATION IN THE WORLD. IT REVEALS IN FAMILIAR LANGUAGE MANY AN UNFAMILIAR FACT IN THE PAGEANT OF OUR COUNTRY'S EXPANSION—AN EXPANSION THAT BEGAN IN FAILURE IN THE SIXTEENTH CENTURY AND HAS ENDED ONLY IN OUR OWN DAY. THE MAP ABOVE DEPICTS THIS SAME EXPANSION IN GRAPHIC FORM, AND IS AN INVALUABLE REFERENCE FOR ALL STUDENTS OF AMERICAN HISTORY. THE STORY STARTS IN THIS SPECIAL SECTION, AND WILL BE CONCLUDED IN ANOTHER SIMILAR SECTION NEXT WEEK, SO THAT BOTH MAY BE SAVED FOR FUTURE USE.



CAPT. JOHN SMITH

Foreword

About a year ago the idea occurred to me to explain over a radio network the historical circumstances which stamped upon the Middle West its distinctive character. This brought out that all the Middle West did not flow from the Northwest Territory, that some of it was in the Louisiana Purchase.

I re-read the history of this fairly familiar transaction and was carried on into the history of the coast states, into the annexation of Texas, which brought on the Mexican War and which, in turn, involved the annexation of the far west, from the present Mexican to the present Canadian boundaries.

War impending, I carried my research into the American islands of the Pacific, and Alaska, Panama, and the Atlantic bases.

Finally ending at the beginning I wrote the history of the early settlements which became states, thus producing, I believe, an entirely novel historical volume. I have rearranged this material into chronological form and offer it at a time when knowledge of our country is vastly more important than it ever has been. R. R. McC.

VIRGINIA

TO COMPREHEND the settlement of Virginia, it is necessary to understand world conditions at the time.

It was just as King Ferdinand was completing the conquest of Granada that Columbus discovered America. The Spanish soldiers, who according to the universal custom of the day had been plundering their foes, were now faced with the alternative of pursuing the infidel into sterile Africa, where he was still strong and virile, or to follow Columbus and find other softer and richer infidels in America. They chose the latter, and soon were sending back to Spain the gold of the Incas and the Aztecs.

The Spanish galleons were a temptation too strong to resist at a time when the line between naval seamen, merchant seamen, and pirate was faint and constantly crossed, especially as the title to the cargoes was only the title of any common bandit. The Spaniards robbed the Indians, Dutch, English, and French freebooters, the famous Frobisher, Hawkins, Drake, and Raleigh, "hijacked" the Spaniards, in the language of prohibition days.

• • •

Sir Walter Raleigh was the first Englishman to look beyond the doubtful and dangerous occupation of finding and taking Spanish treasure ships at sea and to seek a treasureland of his own. He received from Queen Elizabeth a feudal title to found a settlement, and sent expeditions under Grenville and White, which landed at Roanoke Island in Pamlico sound, but when another expedition was sent to join them, the settlers had all disappeared.

The first official permanent settlement of America was made in the reign of King James I., not under the feudal system, but under a company similar to the one organized to trade with Muscovy in the time of Edward VI. and the one to trade with and plunder India, formed at the close of the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

The king appointed thirteen citizens to direct two companies —one organized in Plymouth and one formed in London—and, in turn, to appoint directors to rule those companies in Virginia.

The Plymouth Company sent Raleigh Gilbert to settle in northern Virginia. He built a fort on the Kennebec river, but failing to find gold returned home to assume a title which he had inherited from an older brother.

The charter of this company then lay dormant for many years.

The London Company sent out a colony in 1606. While at sea, the company was under command of Capt. Christopher Newport. Arrived in Chesapeake bay, a sealed order was opened naming six governors, including the famous John Smith. These were instructed to make a settlement, trade with the natives, search for treasure, and explore the land to find a passage to the orient.

Altho ruled by an oligarchy, the expedition was military in character as was necessary for defense from the Spaniards and aggression against the natives.

That adventure rather than labor was the motive of the party is shown by the quality of the members. There were thirty-five gentlemen, in a day when the term described men who could honorably fight and steal, but not work, and there were only six carpenters, two bricklayers, one mason, one blacksmith, one sailor, one drummer, one tailor, one barber, twelve laborers, four boys, and thirty-eight unclassified, to do the labor incidental to the main enterprise.

Centuries before Karl Marx, certain operations were carried on along communistic lines: armies, where peril and hardship were expected to be shared equally, and therefore the plunder shared equally; pirate organizations not dissimilar from the military organizations of the day; the quest of treasure, because the efforts of all were necessary and luck would decide which one would stumble upon the reward; and religious organizations in which service of the Lord was the motive—not profit.

The original adventurers who went out to Virginia expected hardship and peril and they expected reward to come from luck or spoil of war. They found no Incas or Aztecs. They found no galleons, no gold mines, no passage to the east, only American Indians under the leadership of Powhatan, from whom they could plunder nothing but a little corn, and who proved more formidable than the more civilized Incas and Aztecs.

In waters teeming with fish and forests swarming with game, in clearings where the aborigines with only the implements of the stone age were able to grow corn and potatoes and tobacco, these worthless adventurers were unable to support themselves. When they were set to work on the communistic system, many of them idled from the beginning, and others ceased working when they found that the reward of their efforts was divided equally with their ne'er-do-well companions.

• • •

The settlers and the governors quarreled and fought with each other and with the Indians; robbed the Indians, and were robbed in turn; and existed only upon insufficient supplies irregularly brought from England.

Because it was the first official settlement in America, great interest has attached to its adventures. That is why every child has learned of the capture of John Smith, of his being saved from execution by Pocahontas, and of Pocahontas' marriage to John Rolfe.

The first Virginia Company, however, was a complete failure; most of the settlers died; the survivors abandoned their settlement and started home. The evacuation had proceeded as far as the mouth of Chesapeake bay when it met a relief expedition sent over by a second company.

In considering the failure of the first Virginia Company, it is to be borne in mind that long before, fishermen had landed at Newfoundland and on the New England coast to be as far as possible from Spanish interference, and had conducted their settlements successfully.

As in the first company, the original government of the second company was to be by a council appointed by the king, but vacancies were to be filled by election of the stockholders.

• • •

To avoid the inefficiency and factionalism of the first organization, the government of the settlers was entrusted to a governor with dictatorial powers. Property and profits were to be shared in common. The communistic principle was popular with the poor of England who migrated to Virginia only to find themselves under a system of grinding slavery. The most capable and brutal of the governors, Sir Thomas Dale, used capital punishment and even torture to enforce his rule and compel labor. Even these extreme measures failed to obtain results and he was finally constrained to allow the settlers to own and work their own land.

When scope was finally given to private enterprise, settlers began to raise tobacco so that they began to be self-supporting by exchanging this for supplies which still came from England.

In spite of years of expense without return, interest in the Virginia settlement continued to grow in London, as it began to appear that instead of treasure profitable trade with the settlers would develop.

In 1612, six years after the original charter, a third charter was obtained, which provided for regular meetings of the members as well as of the council. The company was now independent of both king and parliament, and as many of its members were also members of parliament, exercised great political influence in the kingdom. The leaders of the company were of a faction attached to parliamentary government as opposed to royal government. What they believed was good for England, they also thought was good for Virginia, and in 1619 they granted Virginia the right to elect a lower house. With the right of private property and the right of franchise, the Virginia Company was developing into a government.

In this year was introduced slavery upon which in one hundred and fifty years was to grow the greatest intellectual aristocracy in history and in another century ruin and downfall.

All kinds of settlement from England were encouraged: men who bound themselves to labor for their passage; men who paid cash for their passage; capitalists who were given large grants of land upon which to plant settlers. Virginia became a cross-section of England without a nobility at the top and with slavery at the bottom.

Concerning the nobility, a relative of my family, Hugh Blair Grigsby, once said:

"The Cavalier was essentially a slave to the King. I look with contempt on the miserable figment which seeks to trace the distinguishing points of the Virginia character to the influence of those butterflies of the British aristocracy."

Altho it does not appear that the stockholders in the company which held monopoly trading rights in Virginia used their influence as members of parliament to enrich themselves as members of the company, jealousy arose among nonmembers, and for the first time was heard the complaint so constantly repeated thru our history that the company had too much power. There were charges that the company was mismanaged, and denials by the company officers and by the House of Burgesses. There were also factions within the company which eventually divided them into advocates of royal authority and advocates of parliamentary supremacy.

The wars of the Roses and the Henrys had broken the power of the feudal aristocracy. Under Elizabeth and James, a new class of merchant princes and tradesmen had arisen and was challenging the power of the king.

When these proved the more numerous and conducted the affairs of the company in defiance of the king's expressed desires, the attorney general proceeded against the company with the writ of quo warranto.

The company appealed to parliament, but parliament would not make an issue with the king over a matter in which only a fraction of its members were interested. King James controled his judges and the company's charter was forfeited. The rights of the company were taken over by the crown.

Virginia had evolved all the way from a private corporation for profit to a self-governing dominion, with free, property-owning citizens and with its own legislature to enact laws subject to the king's consent. The transformation from a company for profit into a government was completed.

How Virginia became an independent state; how Virginia led in creating the American nation and extending its territories across the continent, are beyond the scope of this volume.

NEW ENGLAND

We have seen that Virginia was founded as a communistic adventure, under an autocratic government, and grew into a self-governing commonwealth with private property, private enterprise, and free suffrage.

Let us next look into the religious movements which developed the states of New England.

Toward the end of the sixteenth century, there arose a religious cult in the town of Scrooby, England, under the leadership of one Brown. After suffering from persecution, some of the members sought asylum in Holland and finally settled in Leyden. Here they earned their thrifty living; a few of them became citizens; and they obtained a building in which to worship according to their tenet. Here they were not persecuted, but they saw their children growing up to be Dutch and probably to espouse the religious beliefs of their neighbors. For these reasons they decided to seek a home overseas.

After studying various plans for migration, they made an agreement with the owners of the Pierce Concession from the Virginia Company to form a settlement in Virginia. The agreement provided that all property and profits should belong to the corporation and that each subscriber of 10 pounds and each settler should receive one share of stock. Settlers who were also able to invest would hold two shares.

We all know how the Mayflower sailed with the Speedwell and how the Speedwell had to abandon the voyage. We also know from the romantic tales of the Pilgrims that Priscilla Mullens was on board, as was John Alden to take care of the beer barrels.

Land was sighted at Cape Cod and we are told that because of unfavorable winds and currents, the ship entered Cape Cod bay, that a landing was made at Provincetown, and a settlement made at Plymouth. Whether this landing in Massachusetts was due to a wily captain, who thereby saved a thousand miles of voyage for which he had been paid, or whether the settlers wanted to be away from the authority of the Virginia Company, or whether it really was an accident, is not known.

Of the one hundred and eight people of the Mayflower, thirty-eight were separatists from the Church of England, and they met before going ashore and made the following agreement:

"In the name of God, Amen. We whose names are underwritten, the loyall subjects of our dread soveraigne Lord, King James, haveing undertaken, for the glorie of God, and advancemente of the Christian faith, and honour of our king and countrie, a voyage to plant the first colonie in the Northern parts of Virginia, doe by these presents solemnly and mutually in the presence of God, and one of another, covenant and combine our selves togeather into a civill body politick, for our better ordering and preservation and furtherance of the ends aforesaid; and by vertue hearof to enacte, constitute, and frame such just and equall lawes, ordinances, acts, constitutions, and offices, from time to time, as shall be thought most meete and convenient for the generall good of the Colonie, unto which we promise all due submission and obedience."

The Mayflower Company has been widely celebrated as the first agreement among men for self-government. This may be questioned, as there was a republic in Greenland in the eleventh century, altho it is likely that it had no written constitution.

Like all of the early settlers, the Pilgrims suffered from malnutrition and from disease and from unfamiliarity with the wilderness, but they were disciplined and industrious. Their settlement was never threatened with failure and their losses were made up by accretions from England.

They came from the lower classes of Englishmen and were glad to elect William Bradford governor and obey him—the only man in the colony of gentle rank.

Some years before the migration of the Pilgrims, one Capt. George Weymouth kidnaped some Indians from the vicinty of Cape Cod as evidence of his voyage and brought flattering accounts of the country back to Plymouth, England.

At that time a certain Ferdinando Gorges was in command of the garrison at Plymouth. This gentleman dreamed ambitious dreams of an aristocratic settlement in the new world. He obtained and revised the charter of the Plymouth Company and enlisted the support of many of the nobility and higher aristocracy. With such a membership he found it easy to obtain wide powers for his company, and either by coincidence or great wisdom, provided that the inheritance of land should be by all of the children of the owner, rather than by primogeniture. Thus this very august company had provided the groundwork for a more democratic state than Virginia where property was entailed to the eldest son.

Gorges was responsible for a number of expeditions and settlements in the country, which Capt. John Smith had now mapped and named New England. Gorges' settlers and the nonseparatist members of the Mayflower party had no cohesion and were made subordinate or driven out by the Pilgrims, who by astute management obtained from Gorges' company a confirmation of their title, and acting under their Mayflower agreement exercised the powers of government, even to the extent of executing an offender.

Whatever a lawyer of that time might have thought of their exercise of assumed authority to take a human life, we may say today that it was certainly preferable to the lynch law to which their successors, lacking organized government, later resorted in the far west.

The Civil war was now building up in England, based upon both political and religious antagonisms. The king and the established church, united and determined, were in control and pursued their opponents vigorously and vindictively.

A party of Puritan fishermen from Dorchester were among the settlers in New England on the Gorges grant. A number of their fellow citizens, discouraged as to the Puritan future in England, decided to move to America and join the Dorchester colony now at Salem; and receiving a grant of land from Gorges' Council, sent out a party under John Endicott.

• • •

The plans of the partners in England now took on greater scope. They obtained a royal charter creating a corporation under the title of the "Governor and Company of Massachusetts Bay in New England." The affairs of this corporate body were to be managed by a governor, deputy governors, and a council of eighteen assistants to be elected annually by the company. They were empowered to make such laws as they liked for their settlers, provided they did not contravene the laws of England.

Intending to take the company charter to America to avoid the fate of the Virginia Company, they surreptitiously avoided stating the location of the government and they avoided any reference to religion both because they did not want to be bound to the Church of England and because they wished to dominate religious worship in their new country.

When all their plans were made, a meeting of twenty-one out of the hundred members voted to take the charter to America. An expedition of six ships carried the migrants to America and settlements sprang up all around Cape Cod.

Just what their religious intentions were at the time the company was formed is obscure. Some authorities believe that they had intended to remain within the Church of England with some modifications in the service and that upon arriving in America were persuaded by the Pilgrims to adopt the congregational principle. At all events they and the Pilgrims assimilated each other and swamped all other settlers by force of numbers.

The evolution of the government in Massachusetts from a company to a state came about by a variety of coincidences. At first the affairs of the community were conducted by the assistants, elected by all of the company. Originally they were elected once a year, but for convenience in the wilderness the plan was changed and they were elected for good behavior.

In 1631 these assistants levied a tax to pay for frontier fortifications. The settlement of Watertown protested the tax on the ground that English freemen cannot be taxed save by their own consent. To settle the tax question, two deputies were sent from each settlement to advise the board of assistants, and the practice of electing the governor and assistants every year was resumed.

• • •

Two years later the General Court was established in which at first the deputies sat with the assistants. The General Court not only enacted laws but sat as a court of review.

In a long and complicated lawsuit between a poor widow and a rich settler over the alleged stealing of a pig, a majority of the whole court held with the widow altho a majority of the assistants held against her. After this the assistants insisted on sitting by themselves, and thus a bi-cameral legislature was set up.

Previously, two clergymen who had tried to conduct services according to the Anglican ritual had been sent back to England, and membership in the prescribed church made requisite to citizenship.

North of Massachusetts we know lie New Hampshire and Maine. Settlements were made on their shores before the Puritans arrived in America; Maine, under the authority of Gorges; New Hampshire under his devisee, Mason. Refugees from Puritan oppression calling themselves Antinomians came later and engaged in religious quarrels with the first comers.

While King Charles was at the height of his aristocratic rule they obtained authority from him to hale Massachusetts before his court on a writ of quo warranto, but his power waned before this could be executed and Massachusetts in retaliation extended her rule over these settlements, but was unable to enforce religious conformity in them. The descendants of the early settlers were unable to resist this Massachusetts aggression but continually petitioned parliament and the king for relief with the result that in 1769 the colony of New Hampshire was created, with governor and council appointed by the king, and an assembly elected by the people.

Maine did not obtain its independence from Massachusetts until long after the War of Independence.

The Puritans could enforce their doctrines in Massachusetts colony but they could not prevent dissenters from leaving it. A sect more strict than the Puritans settled at New Haven; less strict sects made the settlements of Connecticut; and Roger Williams, the greatest figure of colonial history, formulated the doctrine in Rhode Island. He also formulated the theory that the king had no right to grant the Indians' lands to white men, so these settlements acquired their rights by purchase from the Indians. In 1644 Rhode Island received a charter from parliament with no reference to religious qualifications.

In 1645 the towns of Connecticut adopted a state constitution which made no reference to any super authority which was substantially confirmed by parliament later.

Rhode Island and Connecticut were unlike all of the other thirteen colonies in that they did not originate in England and that they established their own governments before receiving charters from abroad. While not admitting the right of freedom of worship in her original boundaries, Massachusetts suffered it among her smaller neighbors, and united with them in the Confederation of New England for mutual aid against the Indians and Dutch.

The Confederacy provided for two representatives from Massachusetts, Plymouth, Connecticut, and New Haven. It finally broke down because Massachusetts, with more population and wealth than all of the other colonies combined, refused to be bound by the majority vote of the council.

We can find in the Confederacy the precedent for the Continental Congress of a hundred and fifty years later where each state had one vote, and for the equal vote of the states in the United States Senate. By trial and error New England contributed her share to a free and practical government, as only we in the United States know it.

NEW YORK

French traders made a settlement and built a fort at Albany in 1540, but abandoned it as they abandoned Florida and the Carolinas.

It was in 1609 that Hendrik Hudson, employed by the Dutch East India Company, tired of his vain quests for the northeast passage, disobeyed his orders to seek once more for that passage, sailed westward, found the narrows of New York harbor and drifted up the salty Hudson which he thought was the northeast passage until he was stopped by the falls at the site of present day Troy.

To excuse his violation of instructions, Hudson painted glowing pictures of the riches of the country around the river to which he attached his name. A number of individual Hollanders took advantage of this information, came to the river, traded with the Indians, and built houses on Manhattan Island.

• • •

To legalize this occupation, the ordinance of 1614 was passed by the States General, giving a monopoly in trade to the settlers for three years. Under this charter, Adrian Block and Cornelius May explored the coast, Block giving his name to "Block Island" and May his name to "Cape May." To the waters between the Hudson river and Long Island sound, they gave its Dutch name "Hellegat" meaning passage, which has been retained in English as "Hell Gate." Most people think it is so named because of its dangerous currents.

The merchants now obtained a charter under the style of the United New Netherlands Company and laid claims to all the territory between Block Island and Cape May at the mouth of the Delaware river.

The western limit was not defined. Their explorations stopped at the head of navigation, which was also the boundary of the powerful Iroquois tribe with whom they made a treaty of alliance.

Before the charter of the New Netherlands Company expired in 1618, there had been a political revolution in the Netherlands. Maurice of Nassau had come into power with the first of the assassinations and massacres which were to stigmatize his house for several generations.

Lawyers and capitalists of the party in power set to work on the organization of a great West India Company in which they tried to interest the Pilgrims then residing in Leyden. When the Pilgrims decided to embark upon an adventure of their own, under charter of the English Virginia Company, the Dutch West India Company was organized and offered stock for sale.

The government of the company was as complicated as the government of the Netherlands themselves, but Amsterdam, with eight of the nineteen directors of the executive board, was in practical control.

The expedition of the West India Company arrived just in time to eject a French expedition which had raised the fleur-de-lis as a preliminary to assertion of their rights created by their settlement in 1540.

This landing marks the transition from a mere trading post to a settlement, for not only were many families of Walloon refugees landed, but also domestic animals, and a governor in the person of Cornelius May who had explored the coast.

May was succeeded by Peter Minuit who made the famous purchase of Manhattan Island from the Indians for goods equivalent to one hundred and twenty dollars. He it was who built Fort Amsterdam.

• • •

While fur trading was the prime purpose of the New Netherlands Company, it was found necessary to encourage immigration in order to strengthen the Dutch hold upon New Netherlands.

When the company was unsuccessful in this undertaking, it created a feudal system in which patroons who provided fifty or more settlers were given feudal privileges. That the feudal system was sometimes called upon in the settling of North America by the kings of England and France causes no surprise, and it worked until the free atmosphere of the new country caused it to be disregarded and to disappear. The establishing of a feudal aristocracy by the Dutch republic was incongruous, yet it set a precedent in New York state, which has lasted to this day, for men who have become rich in trade to borrow the false plumes of aristocracy.

The patroon system proved a failure. The only patroon to succeed economically was Van Rensselaer. He succeeded so well that he threatened to set up an independent state and to levy taxes on all traffic on the upper Hudson, and did not desist until threatened with military action.

Fur trading was so much more remunerative than farming that the patroons were soon bootlegging furs. Governor Minuit was accused by the company of undue leniency to the patroons and ordered home. He was succeeded by one Van Twiller, under whose governorship frictions arose with the English, both as to the boundary between New Netherlands and New England, and even to the claim of the English of a right to trade on the Hudson river and in Delaware, which are told in the stories of those respective colonies.

Van Twiller was succeeded by William Kieft. During his administration a bloody Indian war was fought. During his administration, also, all restrictions on settlement and manufacture were removed. The company merely retained a monopoly of transportation to and from the colony.

Kieft was removed upon complaint of the citizens and was succeeded by the famous Peter Stuyvesant.

That the government of the colony should have been retained by the company in Holland at the beginning when the stockholders had furnished all of the capital was to be expected; and that they should have delegated their authority to a single executive for the period that was tantamount to a military occupation was entirely proper. But after the immigrants had become settlers, had acquired property, and become part of a little state, it was natural that they should demand representation in their government. It was no less natural that their governors who had been ship captains and army officers should look upon all political activity as mutiny. Thus politically the relations between the Dutch settlers and their governors entered upon the same course of conflict as the relations between English settlers and their governors which finally culminated in the Revolutionary war.

It is surprising that the Dutch West India company, residing in a republic, did not have the foresight of the Virginia company, residing in a monarchy, to give their settlers an assembly. It is also surprising that New Amsterdam, springing from Holland, where the exercise of religion was free, should have imposed a harsh and brutal persecution against all professions of religion other than the Dutch church.

It is for this persecution that the last governor, Peter Stuyvesant, should best be known, but legend has turned him into a funny old duffer with a wooden leg.

Peaceful, prosperous, free Holland gave her citizens no occasion for emigration. England, on the other hand, with her civil wars, her war with Scotland, and her war in Ireland, furnished plenty of occasion for her citizens to escape hardship and oppression.

Massachusetts men drifted south and west and began pressing more and more severely on the Dutch settlements on both sides of Long Island sound.

It was in vain that Stuyvesant made the treaty of Hartford in 1650, establishing substantially the present boundary between New York and Connecticut and a boundary on Long Island from Oyster bay to the ocean.

• • •

Voracious New Englanders crowded over the boundary and kept New Amsterdam in turmoil. It was during this period that the wall was built which gave its name to the former financial capital of this country.

In 1664, when the Dutch had been in possession of the land for 50 years, King Charles II. purported to give to his brother, James, all of the lands between the Connecticut river and the Delaware, extending westward to the Pacific ocean.

To make good his aggression, he sent a fleet of four frigates and 500 regular troops under one Col. Nicolls.

Nicolls stopped first at Boston where he found a cold welcome from the people, who preferred the Dutch republic to the English king, but among the people of Connecticut, New Haven, and Long Island, he received a warm welcome and reenforcement of a thousand men.

Bringing his regular troops on shipboard, and sending his colonials to march overland, Nicolls entered New York harbor and, promising to respect the Dutch in all of their rights and property, demanded the surrender of the colony.

Stuyvesant was inclined to resist, but with only 20 guns in his fort, an army of 120 men, and a population thoroly disloyal, he found himself powerless and raised the white flag.

Col. Nicolls, the first English governor, is looked upon as an exemplary autocrat. He kept his promises to the Dutch, and such changes as he made in the laws and the administration were in the direction of liberty. He renewed the alliance with the Iroquois and obtained the assistance of that powerful federation in the coming struggle with France.

Under the grant, the whole of Long Island passed to New York. The dispute with Connecticut over their conflicting boundaries was adjudicated at the present line. How the territory between the Hudson and the Delaware was disposed of will be told in the histories of New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

• • •

In retaliation for this aggression the Dutch sailed up the Thames and burned Sheerness, burned shipping, and bombarded Chatham. But when the peace was made they accepted Guiana in South America in exchange for New Amsterdam.

Nicolls returned to England to die gallantly in battle and was succeeded by Francis Lovelace.

Lovelace is known as the man who started the postal service to Boston, the first regular communication adopted in the colonies.

After eight years of English rule, war broke out again between Holland and England. A Dutch fleet, after destroying merchant vessels in Chesapeake bay, entered New York harbor, and reannexed to the Dutch possessions all of the territory from the boundary of the Hartford Treaty to the Delaware river and for good measure took all of Long Island.

New Amsterdam, the Hudson river settlements, and New Jersey, including the Puritan settlement, accepted the new régime, but the Connecticut English and the Long Islanders did not and planned a New England federation to resist the Dutch dominance and especially the efforts of the Dutch to tax the Long Island settlers without their consent.

Facing opposition in America from a population far greater than that in the colony under his charge, the new governor, Anthony Colve, a captain of infantry, determined not to face such a fate as had overcome Stuyvesant and Lovelace. He built a fortress of great strength, mounting 190 guns, but his efforts were in vain, not that a force strong enough to overcome his fort was sent against him by New England, now thoroly hostile, nor from Europe, but because by the treaty of peace concluded at Westminster in 1674, New Netherlands was receded by the United Provinces to England. Its vicissitudes were at an end and it remained an English colony until the revolution.

PENNSYLVANIA, NEW JERSEY, DELAWARE

We have seen in the history of the founding of New York that the New Netherlands were captured in 1664 by a fleet sent out by King Charles II. This conquest included the territory which subsequently became the states of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware.

The entire territory was given to the duke of York, who in turn gave New Jersey to Lord Berkeley and to Sir George Carteret. Berkeley sold his interest to one Edward Byllynge for £1,000. Byllynge in turn conveyed it to a number of Quakers of whom William Penn was the most important.

The Quaker owners and Carteret divided New Jersey by a line running from Little Egg harbor on the coast to the Delaware river just north of the water gap.

After the Dutch had reconquered New Netherlands and then receded it to Charles II. at the treaty of Westminster, the courts held that the Dutch conquest had extinguished all rights of the proprietors and that the land now belonged to the king. The king and the duke of York then, with complete honesty, confirmed the titles of the proprietors.

Andros, who became governor of New York after its return to English ownership, asserted that this was a gift of land only and did not include the governing power. The dispute was referred to Sir William Jones, an eminent lawyer, who decided in favor of the proprietors. The Quakers then established a government, guaranteeing religious liberty, universal suffrage, abolishing imprisonment for debt, and providing for an assembly of 100 members.

Dutch settlers and Swedish settlers, to whom we will refer when we come to discuss Delaware, were given the rights of citizenship and, delighted with their treatment, far more liberal than they had received under their own governments, aided all the immigrants who therefore suffered none of the privations of pioneering. Honest and liberal in their dealings with the Indians, they were spared savage warfare.

The first English settlers of eastern New Jersey were Puritans from New Haven, who had resented the annexation of that state to Connecticut. They moved to lands around Elizabeth and received titles from Gov. Nicolls who was unaware of the gift of New Jersey to Berkeley and Carteret.

When he received his reconveyance from the duke of York, Carteret established his government at Newark, with an appointive council and an elective assembly. On attempting to collect rents from the New Englanders, these latter revolted, deposed him as governor, and proceeded to confiscate the property of all those who sided against them. This civil war lasted for three years before the former New Englanders yielded to the duke of York and the king, but litigation over land titles continued for centuries.

After Carteret died in 1680, East Jersey was sold to William Penn and Quaker associates for £3,400.

They now decided to make it a refuge for Scotch covenanters, then frightfully persecuted at home, and also for French Huguenots. But actually, more Quakers came to East Jersey than Scotch and French combined, and Englishmen from Virginia and Long Island settled in the neighborhood of Cape May.

When the duke of York became king as James II. and determined to consolidate New Jersey, New York, and New England into one government, the proprietors gave up their political rights to retain their real estate holdings. Royal governors and judges were now appointed, and New Jersey entered upon a long series of controversies with the royal authority, which continued until the Revolutionary war.

Welcome as the Jerseys were as refuges for the dissenters who settled there to escape persecution, these were disturbed by the misconduct of the royal governors and the royal judges. Penn concluded it would be necessary to found a colony of which he would be the proprietor and governor.

• • •

His father, Admiral Penn, who captured Jamaica for Cromwell, had made a large fortune in the admiral business, as was customary at that time. When he saw the English republic failing, he was the first to desert to Charles, and lent him £16,000 in his time of need. In repayment of £16,000, Charles II. conveyed the land which in its final form became the state of Pennsylvania.

This was the first colony to be formed which did not touch the sea. In order to guarantee his property an outlet to navigable water, Penn obtained a lease for 1,000 years, from the duke of York, of the territory which eventually would become the state of Delaware.

For the charter, which he wrote himself, Penn drew largely upon that of Maryland, but with two vital differences. Where laws passed by the assembly in Maryland needed only the assent of Lord Baltimore to become effective, those passed by Pennsylvania required the assent of the king. In Maryland the charter provided that parliament should levy no taxes within the colony, but in Pennsylvania the right of parliament to levy taxes there was expressly maintained. On the other hand, absolute freedom of conscience was guaranteed to every body, and it was stated that government should exist for the sake of the people and not the people for the sake of the government.

• • •

In a colony to be composed predominantly of Quakers and other dissenters, King Charles provided expressly for the toleration of the Episcopal form of worship.

The criminal code was far more mild than elsewhere. The death penalty was to be inflicted only in cases of murder and high treason, as compared with 15 capital crimes in Massachusetts.

The charter provided for the customary parliament to be elected by the people, and for council to be appointed by the proprietor. In practice, the council became moribund, and a unicameral legislature made the laws of Pennsylvania.

Immigrants to a rich land already settled were easy to obtain. In the first year 3,000 passengers went out. Penn followed them the following season and uttered words as true today as then:

"Oh, how sweet is the quiet of these parts freed from the anxious and troublesome solicitations, hurries and perplexities of woeful Europe."

In this season Penn made his famous treaty with the Indians at Shackamaxon, of which Voltaire was to say that "It was the only treaty between savages and Christians that was never sworn to and that was never broken."

At the outset there was considerable friction between the settlers and Penn's governor. To settle the differences a new charter of nine articles was issued in 1701.

The first article guaranteed liberty of conscience to all who confessed and acknowledged the Almighty God. The right to hold office was restricted to people who professed to believe in Jesus Christ.

The assembly was to be chosen yearly by the freemen and to consist of four persons or more from each county. The freemen were required to nominate two or three people for the position of sheriff or coroner or other court officers from whom the governors would appoint the actual jobholders.

An innovation in criminal law permitted criminals to have the same privileges of witnesses and counsel as their prosecutors.

Cases concerning property were to be decided by courts of justice and not by the governor or council. They forbade the forfeiture of the estates of suicides or intestates, prohibited any law contrary to charter without the consent of the governor and six-sevenths of the assembly, and pledged the proprietor to observe inviolably the first article concerning liberty of conscience.

And finally the proprietor bound himself and his heirs not to destroy the liberties of the charter and declared such actions, if attempted, to be of no force or effect. This last formed the precedent for the policy of the Supreme court of the United States, which prevailed until the last year or two, to declare void laws which violated the Constitution.

Penn's reputation as a Quaker has drawn attention away from his skill as an administrator and even from his greatness as a statesman. Penn's charters were the greatest documents for human freedom before the adoption of the American Constitution.

• • •

We have seen the efforts Penn had made to obtain Scotch settlers in New Jersey. He was even more successful in attracting these people to Pennsylvania. Swiss Waldenses from France and Germans from the Palatinate, fleeing from religious persecution and from the ravages of war, became the celebrated Pennsylvania Dutch. The race sometimes termed Ulster-Scotch, sometimes Scotch-Irish, escaping from the political and economic hardships imposed upon them by King William III. and Queen Anne, were settled in western Pennsylvania and were to become the terrible Morgan's riflemen in the Revolutionary war. Here also Catholics and Jews were protected in their religion.

Penn himself laid out Philadelphia. He was the first city planner, and in spite of tremendous competition can lay claim to being as bad as any of his successors.

He then traveled extensively to New York, to Long Island and then to Maryland in effort to settle the boundaries with New York and Maryland. Even as he was doing this, La Salle was discovering the mouth of the Mississippi; the French had already founded Pittsburgh as Fort Duquesne, for possession of which the second French and Indian war would be fought.

Penn was far more successful than any of his predecessors in obtaining immigrants. To him, unlike New York, New England, and Virginia, there were no unwanted peoples. With his fine tolerance, with the shrewd commercial strain, every immigrant enriched him.

Unlike the early settlers, the Pennsylvania arrivals of this period had few adventures, but they could have had a miracle. A certain Mrs. Morris, embarrassed for lack of food, was surprised to find her cat bringing in a fine rabbit in a moment of need.

Hudson discovered Delaware bay. The exploration of Hendrickson led to the planting of a Dutch colony near Lewes, which was massacred by Indians. In 1624 a Swedish Company, including Dutch stockholders, was formed. In 1631 Germans were allowed to join, and in 1640 the Dutch were bought out by the Swedes.

There had been a Dutch fort on the river before these arrivals but it had been abandoned. They therefore claimed the territory and when another Dutch fort was built, they captured it. Therefore, Gov. Stuyvesant marched a sufficient force from the Hudson and annexed the Swedish settlement to New Netherlands.

Following the conquest of New Netherlands, the Duke of York took possession of the Swedish settlement, establishing his capital at New Castle, now Wilmington.

In order that no other settlements should encroach upon this capital, a boundary was drawn in the form of an arc with a radius of twelve miles from the Delaware river to its intersection with Mason and Dixon's line. This point, in turn, became the western limit of Delaware.

In his effort to gain access to the sea for his colony, Penn first persuaded the duke of York to rent Delaware to him. He later persuaded the duke to give it to him in fee. When the populations of Delaware and Pennsylvania showed themselves incompatible, Penn permitted separate legislatures for Pennsylvania and Delaware, but there was one governor for both until the Revolution.

MARYLAND

The founding of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware were related in the previous chapter because of their connection with New York.

Maryland was founded before any of them and was the first of the proprietary governments. The form was that of the Palatinate of Durham, a feudal estate with practically regal powers created in the Middle Ages to enable the lord to defend the border of a kingdom. It has been said that this form was used in America by a medieval-minded king to make the colony in America strong against hostile attack. That was a subterfuge. Under English law at that time no crown colony could tolerate the Catholic church.

George Calvert, Lord Baltimore, wished to establish a refuge for Catholics in America. He had himself named Palatine of Avalon in Newfoundland, where the American military bases are now situated, with power to regulate the religion of his Palatinate. It was his intention to establish complete religious toleration in his domain.

The climate was so severe that Calvert took his followers to Virginia. From there he returned to England, and obtained a transfer of his interest from Newfoundland to the site of North Carolina; he was moved from there to the eastern shore of Chesapeake bay to resist the encroachments of the Dutch and Swedes now settled on the Delaware river. Virginia and various traders protesting that his grant took property of theirs, he received two more charters, the last of which after litigation became Maryland. The charter was the same as that of Avalon except that his feudatories were held in the modern form of socage instead of knight's fee.

• • •

Maryland was practically a self-contained, limited monarchy with the provision that the English parliament could levy no taxes there.

The original expedition consisted of twenty gentlemen adventurers and about three hundred laborers. They landed on the St. Mary's river where a tribe of Algonquin Indians, persecuted by the Iroquois, were glad to sell in order to move away. Thus they obtained their land from willing sellers and obtained cleared land and seed corn.

They named their settlement St. Mary's.

We learn that two dishes which we associate with Negro cooking—pone and hominy—were learned from the Indians. They bought salted codfish from New Englanders, and they purchased cattle and swine from Virginia.

The first assembly was convened in 1635. The first act of the assembly was to draw a body of laws for the Palatine's assent. This he refused. In turn he sent out a body of laws to the assembly which it refused to pass. The inevitable struggle between the people and the foreign executive had begun.

Before they could find leisure for their quarrel the Marylanders had first to dispose of a doughty Virginian who claimed the land upon which they were settled. This was the great trader, William Claiborne.

This man founded a settlement on Kent Island, far up Chesapeake bay. Baltimore was willing that Claiborne should possess the land, but as a part of the Palatinate, subject to its jurisdiction. At this time Charles I. appeared to uphold the claim of Virginia and Claiborne to Kent Island.

There now ensued a number of skirmishes on the land and in the bay, in which Claiborne finally prevailed in a pitched battle in the harbor of Great Wighcocomoco. However, Claiborne was now compelled to return to England to defend a lawsuit and his successor in charge, one Evelyn, surrendered the island to Calvert. Then in 1638 a board of commissioners for the Plantations awarded the island to Baltimore.

After Charles I. was defeated at Marston Moor, Claiborne in alliance with one Ingle recaptured Kent Island while Ingle took St. Mary's. Calvert had to take refuge in Virginia. In 1647, with the assistance of Gov. William Berkeley of Virginia, Calvert drove Claiborne and Ingle from Maryland.

• • •

In 1649 Maryland earned immortality by passing the famous statute known as the "Toleration Act," as follows:

"Be it therefore also by the Lord Proprietary, with the advice and consent of this assembly ordered and enacted that no person or persons whatever within this province professing to believe in Jesus Christ shall from henceforth be in any ways troubled, molested, or discountenanced for, or in respect to, his or her religion."

During the rule of parliament Claiborne came back and dominated the colony, but did not seize Kent Island.

Cromwell restored Calvert to power.

William III. of England, from whose rule the Scotch-Irish fled.

government thoroly aristocratic in concept led to an aristocratic economic system. There were large estates called manors. There was an abundance of land obtainable, so that tenants were men who preferred that status —not men who were compelled to accept it.

By migration from New England, a majority of the population became Puritans, but the power of the Palatine, exercised with tact and firmness, was great enough to maintain religious tolerance until the Revolution, by which time the principle had become one of American public policy.

THE CAROLINAS AND GEORGIA

The last of the 13 colonies to be settled or captured by the English were the Carolinas and Georgia. The reason was that the Spaniards had settled in St. Augustine in 1584, and had extended their system of missions and presidios as far north as Cape Fear and as far west as Tallahassee and Pensacola.

After Virginia was founded in 1607, they still claimed all of the country up to the Virginia boundaries. They had planted a colony on the Cape Fear river, which they later abandoned. The French also had planted a colony on the Cape Fear river, but, remembering the massacre of St. Augustine, had deserted it.

Ambitious colonizers of whatever nationality were loath to risk attack by the Spanish soldiers already on the ground, even after the sea power of Spain had waned.

The first settlers in the Carolinas were Virginians, the most restless and the least law abiding of that colony. They drifted south across the frontier and squatted along the Chowan river as early as 1660 without a charter or color of title, introducing to history that element of the population known as frontiersmen, which existed down to the present century.

Later there were accretions migrating south and as far west as the Appalachian mountain valley.

In the beginning the principal article of export was the hides of deer, anticipating the buffalo robes of the plains and cowhides of California.

They preferred to deal with New England traders who offered better terms than the English merchants who took advantage of their legal monopoly. Because of the storms of Hatteras and the dangerous sands of the coast, Albemarle, which became North Carolina, had little commerce and became a democratic country of individual landowners.

When William Drummond was chosen to set up a government of the Chowan river settlement, he proceeded to the settlement and called a general assembly in 1665. It is significant that the first act of this assembly was to denounce the system of government imposed upon them.

The settlement beginning at the Chowan river developed neither the picturesque institutions nor the political and economic importance of Charleston. They were a people who wished to till the soil themselves.

Eventually Carolina divided into separate colonies, North Carolina and South Carolina. North Carolina was to be the least slave-holding of the slave states, and South Carolina the most slave-holding; North Carolina the most democratic of them, as South Carolina was to be the proudest; North Carolina the last state to leave the Union in 1861, as South Carolina was to be the first in 1860.

Three years after the Chowan river settlement a man named Heath obtained a charter from the king and sent out exploring expeditions to the Carolinas, but made no settlement. A party of Bostonians made a brief descent upon the Cape Fear river, but soon abandoned their town.

The plans which led to the eventual government of South Carolina arose in Barbados. Many of the settlers there were dissatisfied, with both the political and the economic conditions on the island. Among them were Sir John Colleton, Sir William Berkeley, and Sir Thomas Modyford, who conceived the idea of founding a colony on the mainland of America south of Virginia.

As they were without sufficient influence to obtain a charter by themselves, they interested the duke of Albemarle and the duke of Clarendon, Lords Craven, Shaftesbury, Carteret, Berkeley, and Sir John Colleton to join with them in seeking it. With the aid of these influential lords, they obtained a charter to form a colony of Carolina modeled after the Palatinate of Durham.

We have seen how Lord Calvert had founded Maryland as a single Lord Palatine. We have seen how Jersey was given to Lord Berkeley and Sir George Carteret and how these two proprietaries had divided the colony between them into East and West Jersey; how William Penn had founded Pennsylvania and Delaware. In all of these cases the authority had come into the hands of one man who exercised it on the ground.

The Palatinate of Carolina was to be ruled by all eight of the proprietaries, all of whom would have representatives on the ground. After receiving their charter, they obtained an opinion from the privy council that any rights of Heath and of the Bostonians had lapsed.

A number of the settlers at Barbados now asked the Palatines for a grant of land and for political rights, similar to those enjoyed by the city of Exeter, providing among other things for freedom of conscience, freedom of trade, and a freely elected assembly, forbidding monopolies and taxation without consent of the taxed, and prohibiting the proprietaries from repealing their charter. The request for this charter was refused by the proprietaries, who had an entirely different conception of the government of the colonies which they termed concessions.

The following year a party of 85 Barbadosians settled on the Cape Fear river under vague promises of fair treatment. Finding that a free government was not to be accorded them, they began to drift away, some to Virginia, some back to Barbados, some to New England. At the end of three years the settlement was abandoned.

In the year 1669 an expedition of 92 men sailed from England. At Barbados they picked up some 60 additional settlers. After putting in at Bermuda, they landed at Port Royal, where they were instructed to settle, but abandoned it and made a settlement 22 miles up the Ashley river, which in turn they abandoned to occupy the present site of Charleston. The population grew slowly, composed mostly of religious refugees.

In 1670 the Bahamas were added to Carolina. The first parliament met in 1670.

The proprietaries now determined to send out a settlement from England and to organize for it a government of feudal type. They drew up the Fundamental Constitutions, giving to themselves and their heirs forever the rights of proprietaries and a number of high-sounding titles, among which we find "high admiral" and "chamberlain." Each of them was to have large ownership of land, never to be broken up but to be passed on under the law of primogeniture. Below them was to be an hereditary nobility of landgraves, a title known in northern Europe; and below them caciques, the name given by Spaniards to Indian chiefs.

There were to be counties, seignories and baronies for the nobility, and precincts for the small landowners. Landowning was to be a feudal tenure with the classes grading all the way down to men bound to the soil. As inducement to settlers, they provided for religious toleration, trial by jury, and local self-government.

The strongly aristocratic constitution never became, in its entirety, a working system for the colony. It probably could not have been enforced even in an established community, much less in a sparsely populated frontier, but it is important in the history of the colony. Certain portions of it were put into operation.

The Palatine court became a reality and played an important and interfering part in Carolina's life. Each proprietor named his deputy and some of the later proprietors resided in the colony and there exercised proprietary rights.

Twenty-six landgraves, beginning with 1671, and 13 caciques, beginning with 1678, were created, forming an hereditary nobility, with a right to sit in the governor's council, a right to which the assembly took sharp objection later, listing it as a grievance. Some of the former retained their titles, as did Landgrave Thomas Smith, to the end of their lives. In a few instances, as in the case of the Bellingers, the title descended to the second and third generation. Some crossed the water and for good or evil identified themselves with the colony's affairs.

By order of the Palatine court, in England seignories, baronies, and manors were provided for, tho apparently no seignory or barony ever contained more than 12,000 acres. The earliest seignory was that of Shaftesbury himself on the upper Ashley river. In 1678 Gov. West was instructed to locate on the Wando river, the western branch of the Tin Cooper river, 12,000 acres "as a Signorie" for Sir Peter Colleton. This estate became the family seat of the Colleton family, the only family of an original proprietor to reside in Carolina and the only one to acquire during this early period as many as half a dozen properties.

The third and last of the seignories was that of Seth Sothell, who in 1690, while governor, received 12,000 acres in Colleton county on the Edisto, but the grant seems never to have got beyond the paper upon which the warrant was written.

The seignories of both Shaftesbury and Colleton are usually classed as baronies. In addition, Edmund Bellinger had two baronies, Tomotley and Ashepoo; Thomas Smith had two, Winyah and Wiskinboo; and the Colletons three besides their seignory, Okalee, Cypress, and Wadboo.

Three other individuals had one barony each. There were a few plantations called baronies, granted to landgraves or caciques. In 1718, after the Yamassee war had opened up the country to the southward, the proprietors ordered that four baronies be surveyed in lower Granville county, at that time called Port Royal county, which with six others, planned but never perfected, were to aggregate 119,000 acres.

Besides the seignories and baronies there were manors.

The proprietors for more than thirty years attempted to persuade the colonists to adopt the Fundamental Constitutions by act of assembly. They began with the original version, "our excellent model," as Shaftesbury called it, and later substituted a modified and shortened form, meeting each rebuff with instructions to the governors to come as nigh to the Constitutions as they could. Apparently they realized very early that the scheme was too ponderous for an infant colony and were willing temporarily to go along under much simpler working arrangements, until the population should have sufficiently increased to provide material for landgraves and caciques and for the very cumbrous system of council and courts. When, however, it became evident that the assembly was entirely unwilling to give formal approval of the Constitutions or to make them the law of the province, the proprietors again gave way, declaring in 1693 that the Constitutions "are now ceased" and instructing Governors Ludwell, Smith, and Archdale to approach "as near as possible" to the sacred and unalterable formulae. When they heard that the assembly was appointing a committee "to draw up a system of government for the future" they could only reply "but of what use this can be, we know not, since they have so disrespectfully refused our Excellent Constitutions."

While the Fundamental Constitutions were never adopted in South Carolina, the pseudo titles of nobility had been created and a more aristocratic concept of society was established than in any other colony, with large landholders at the top and, instead of serfs, black slaves at the bottom.

The settlers of Charleston found themselves in a unique geographical situation. All of the other colonies were founded on more or less narrow strips of land between the Atlantic ocean and the Appalachian mountain range. West of Charleston, the Atlantic plain ran down to the Gulf of Mexico and to the Mississippi river. This furnished them a large trading area of easy access, and also threw them into competition with both Spanish and French traders, for the French had followed the Mississippi river to its mouth in 1682.

The Carolinians had better goods to offer the natives than their competitors and were better merchants. While Charleston remained the capital of the colony in which the rich merchants and planters lived, a trading station in the neighborhood of Augusta became the Indian trading center. Rice and indigo cultivated by slave labor in the Carolina swamps throve for many years.

• • •

By 1680 Charleston had become the port both of export and import of all of this area, the most important port south of Philadelphia. The French and Spaniards held the southern coasts.

South Carolina came into conflict with the Spaniards and altho the British navy was predominant on the oceans, because of the inefficiency of the proprietaries, she had to look out for herself and thru the entire existence of the Palatinate. A Scotch settlement was established at Port Royal in 1683, and was destroyed by the Spaniards in 1686. In 1706 Charleston repulsed a Spanish and French invasion and in the same year a South Carolina force burned St. Augustine, but failed to take the fort. So arose that proud, independent commonwealth, the most independent of the 13 colonies, and the most separatist of all of the states in the Union.

The last of the colonies that were to become states was Georgia, named for George II. The motives for founding this colony were three-fold: To make a buffer state between Carolina and Spanish Georgia; to furnish another asylum for the oppressed in religion; and to make a refuge for debtors.

A proprietary government was created, and an expedition of English, German, Piedmontese, Highlanders, Swiss, Portuguese, and Jews was sent out under Gov. Oglethorpe.

The first settlement was made at Savannah, and an army post erected at Frederica. This post repelled a Spanish attack in 1742 and in the following year Oglethorpe was repelled at St. Augustine.

In the following two years, Col. Moore took the war inland. He defeated the Spanish and Indians in battle and drove out their missions and haciendas around Tallahassee.

Titles to free or cheap land being made available, there followed a rush of immigrants from Virginia and the Carolinas. These numbers and the generalship of Oglethorpe were too strong for the Spaniards. After the battle of Frederica in 1742, the Spanish menace began to fade into the American menace. The new colony started with two ideals, prohibition and no slavery, but they were not in keeping with the times. When the proprietors gave way to royal government, rum and slavery came in hand in hand.

GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER PRESENTS "One of Our Aircraft Is Missing"

1 Returning from a bombing raid over Stuttgart, Germany, the six-man crew of the British plane is forced to bail out over Holland. At dawn five of them meet and plan a search for the sixth.

2 The flyers are discovered by school children, who recognize their RAF uniforms and offer to take them to the school teacher who understands English.

3 After testing them thoroly to prove they are not Germans, the teacher (Pamela Brown) feeds them and reveals a plan for their escape. They are to be disguised and sent to a church near the North Sea.

4 During the service Nazi storm troopers enter the church and reveal that the missing flyer's parachute has been found. The five men, however, escape detection.

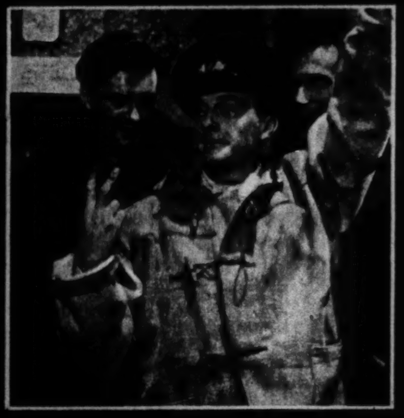
5 At the home of the burgomaster the refugees plan their escape. The village's Quisling attempts to discover their identity, but the burgomaster thwarts him.

6 That night they are met by Jo de Vrieg (Googie Withers), who furnishes them with a boat.

7 Before they leave she also produces the lost flyer, whom she had been protecting since she found him stunned. An air raid alarm is sounded and the men cast off during the confusion.

8 After a perilous trip thru the foggy sea they come upon a German rescue buoy. One of their men has been wounded by a Nazi coast patrol.

9 Aboard the buoy they overpower two German aviators who had been forced down at sea and are awaiting rescue. With the buoy's anchor cable cut, they start drifting toward Dover.



10 Toward morning two ships approach. They are British patrols, and an armed detachment is sent aboard the buoy. After discovering the lost flyers aboard, the British ships take the buoy in tow and the bombing squadron comes home by sea, with two prisoners! (THE END.)

2 SPRY SAVES MONEY
WHY HAVE UNEATEN PIECRUST TO THROW OUT? NO FAILURES, NO WASTE THE SPRY WAY

3 SPRY SAVES FLAVOR
TENDER, NUT-SWEET SPRYCRUST LETS YOU GET THE FULL DELICIOUSNESS OF THE FILLING

Try this delicious HARVEST APPLE PIE and you'll make all your pies the Spry way!

WHEN you see what extra tender, flaky crust you get—what compliments it brings—you won't go back to ordinary shortenings again. Don't wait. Get Spry now—make this wonderful pie today!

Harvest Apple Pie

1 recipe Spry Piecrust
6 large tart apples, sliced thin
3/4 cup sugar
1/3 cup honey
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter

Roll 1/2 of dough and line a 9-inch pie plate. Combine apples, sugar, honey, salt, spices and lemon juice. Fill pie shell with apples. Dot with butter. Moisten edge of pie with water. Roll remaining dough for top crust and cut a few slits to permit steam to escape.

Fit top crust over fruit and seal edge of pie. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) 50 to 60 minutes.

Spry Piecrust

Mix 2 1/4 cups sifted ALL-PURPOSE FLOUR and 1 teaspoon SALT. Measure out 3/4 cup SPRY and divide into two equal parts.

STEP 1 for Tenderness—cut in first half of Spry until as fine as meal.

STEP 2 for Flakiness—cut in remaining Spry until particles are size of large peas.

Add 5 tablespoons cold WATER (no more, no less), mixing thoroughly into a dough. Makes enough pastry for one 9-inch 2-crust pie.

Save this recipe, make all your piecrust Spry's easy 2-step way. Try Spry for lighter FULL FLAVOR cakes. Crisp, digestible fried foods.

HOW GOOD IS THE ZERO?

Foreword

Before publishing this story The Tribune submitted it to censorship at Washington. It was passed without question by the office of censorship, which said that it contained no violations of any censorship code and did not involve "security considerations." The office of censorship then passed the story on to the war department.

There it was reviewed by Capt. John W. Streeter of the bureau of public relations. Capt. Streeter in going thru the copy added a series of marginal notes which indicated that the army does not agree with the information as supplied by Johnston. Capt. Streeter's comments, which do not necessarily represent official statements on this subject, follow:

"No first line army fighter is as slow as the Zero." In reference to the ceiling superiority, he said: "Critical altitude, not ceiling, is what counts." He added a sidelight to Johnston's remarks that the Japs were desperate fighters, saying: "With no armor or self-sealing tanks they have to be."

In reference to Johnston's statement that the Zero is quite unlike American or European planes, Capt. Streeter said: "No. Conventional in all ways except lack of strong structure and safety devices." He denied that the Zero's air-cooled engine is of Japanese origin, writing that they are "pure Pratt & Whitney and Wright in a normal mixture," and said that their 1,500 horse power engine "in radial is virtually equal to 1,325 in cleaner P-40." As to the range of the Zero with exterior bomb-tank, Capt. Streeter wrote: "Such range is only significant for ferrying. American fighters fly to Europe by stages. That's all that's needed."

In reference to Johnston's statement that the Messerschmitt Me 109E weighs 5,520 pounds, Capt. Streeter noted: "Nearer 7,000."

In the paragraph where Johnston said the navy's fighter pilots told him the Zero could show its heels to the Grummans, the P-40s, and the Airacobras, Capt. Streeter wrote: "Current P-39s (the Airacobra) are definitely faster than Zeros in level flight."

Commenting on Johnston's reference to a combat in which a Zero and Airacobra might be circling each other to get into firing position, he wrote: "If the P-39 and the Zero were turned with the same 'G' (gravity loading) on the pilots—edge of the blackout—and the same speed, they would describe the same circle." Where Johnston quoted navy pilots on Japanese air tactics, telling that they "used violent aerobatics at slow speed in combat," Capt. Streeter said. "The Americans are going faster while this is going on."

Johnston said the navy attributed the maneuverability of the Zero at slow speeds to the oversized ailerons with which it is equipped. Capt. Streeter, however, says that "at high speeds the size of ailerons is unimportant."

With reference to the Japanese proclivity for violent aerobatics in their fights as Johnston reported, Capt. Streeter said: "Snap rolls, for example, have little combat usefulness and do not strain structure badly."

Johnston's closing statement that the light weight of the Zero had not been gained at the expense of strength, Capt. Streeter said: "Absurd."

"The experiences seem to be based on sad times obsolescent navy planes—carrier based—have had, rather than high performance land based planes largely referred to in text," he concluded.

By STANLEY JOHNSTON

THE HARD experience of war has shown that the Japanese in their Mitsubishi Sento K1-00-1 single-seater navy combat fighter have what is undoubtedly one of the world's finest pursuit airplanes. At any rate our army and navy pilots who have met Zeros in action rate it as the top fighting weapon of its type now in service in the Pacific and Australasian areas.

"The Zero was so good that it should win every time," Lieut. Noel Gayler, the quiet, broad-shouldered young man who now is the United States navy's ranking ace (eight confirmed victories), said after he came out of the hot fighting of the Coral sea battles of last May.

"The Zero has in combination two elements of performance that are superior to any other fighter anywhere," said Lieut. Comm. Jimmy Thach, one of the navy's outstanding fighter plane experts and himself a veteran of the Pacific sea-air war. "These are its ability to turn and its rate of climb."

As compared with the Airacobra, the P-40, the Grumman F4F series of army and navy fighters, the Zero, according to the men who have met and fought these Japanese types, is superior in all the following characteristics:

1. Speed.
2. Rate of climb.
3. Ceiling (ultimate height to which it can climb).
4. General maneuverability.

Furthermore, as the navy's fighter pilots will testify, the Japanese are excellent airmen, well trained, maintain splendid air discipline, have great courage, and are fully aware of the advantages their airplanes possess and invariably use these advantages well in combat. The Japanese are "cunning and desperate fighters," I was told repeatedly.

By all reports the Japanese were only good copyists, were incapable of creating anything original for themselves. The Zero disproves this completely, for this airplane is quite unlike any American or European plane of the past or present. It appears to be an original conception that has proved to be a superb weapon. This applies also to the Zero's engine if reports coming out of Germany are correct, for the Zero is said to have a 14-cylinder air-cooled radial of pure Japanese origin and development that delivers 1,500 horsepower or better.

• • •

The most radical difference between the Zero and any American or European plane is the Japanese decision to keep it light in weight and give it a very large wing. The American and European trend is toward heavy planes with very small wings. The two conceptions are direct opposites.

First, the Zero's weight, 5,140 pounds gross. This compares with published weights of 6,000 pounds for the American P-40, with 6,500 pounds for the American Airacobra, and with more than 7,000 pounds for the American navy Grumman F4F fighter series.

Second, the Zero's wing area, 256 square feet. This compares with 260 square feet for the much heavier Grumman fighter, with 236 square feet for the heavier P-40, and with 213 square feet for the Airacobra.

Third, the Zero's power, 1,500 horsepower. This compares with 1,325 horsepower in the latest Allison engines used in the P-40 and Airacobras and the 1,300 in the Grummans.

These three comparisons give the essential clews to the Zero's performance. They account for the superior speed, superior climb, and superior turning ability of the Zero. That big wing with its great carrying capacity also accounts for the fact that by adding a belly tank, streamlined into the shape of a bomb, the Zero can be given a range of 1,600 miles, or 10 hours' cruising at the relatively slow speed of 160 miles an hour. None of the three American fighters has as yet been equipped with sufficient fuel to give it 10 hours' cruising at a comparable speed.

Let us compare the Zero with the European fighters. The German Messerschmitt 109E, a very much smaller plane, weighs 5,520 pounds and has only 176.5 square feet of wing. The British Spitfire, weighing 6,250 pounds, has 242 square feet of wing.

The ratios between weight and wing area are expressed in another way—wing loading. This breaks down the total weights and total wing area into an expression of the amount of weight each single square foot of wing area is bearing in flight. A comparison of all these airplanes gives us the following table:

| Plane | Wing loading in lbs. |
|---|---|
| Zero | 20.2 |
| P-40 | 25.4 |
| Spitfire | 25.9 |
| Grumman | 27.0 |
| Airacobra | 30.4 |
| Messerschmitt 109E | 31.2 |

The exact speed of the Zero is not known, but the navy pilots say that the Japs certainly were able to do 360 miles an hour. They were able to show their heels at any time to the Grumman, to the P-40, and to the Airacobra, which British semiofficial aviation magazines report has a 356-mile-an-hour speed. The British claim 375 miles an hour at 16,500 feet for the Spitfire, and they also say the Messerschmitt will do 380 miles an hour.

High-speed airplanes like all these fighters have a tendency to continue in the direction in which they are heading. This is due to their velocity and mass, as any physicist will tell you. To make a turn at high speed requires a good grip on the air. An airplane grips the air with its wings, and the more wing available the better the grip. Hence it is that the Zero with its big wing and small loading for each square foot of wing surface can turn in a smaller circle than any other fighter.

• • •

In combat this is of the utmost importance. Suppose you are circling on the tail of a Zero. Your Airacobra, we will say, is banked up to a near vertical angle and you are horsing back on the stick as hard as you dare to prevent yourself from becoming unconscious as the centrifugal force exerted on your body pulls the blood away from your brain.

In spite of the best flying you can do or your airplane can do, the Zero will turn so much faster that within two full turns the Zero will be behind you and in position to shoot you down. That is what maneuverability means.

The American, British, and German planes are built for fast straight flying or diving. They dive in, make one pass, and continue their dive. The Jap wants to dogfight and to turn and circle and maneuver. He wants to stunt his plane, because it will outstunt anything else in the skies. The navy flyers said they saw some wonderful aerobatics by the Japanese flyers in their dogfights, some high-speed rolls and loops that proved the sound training of these men as well as the capabilities of their airplanes.

A favorite stunt based on the super climbing ability of the Zero—it will swoop upward at 4,000 feet a minute, or nearly double the climbing speed of the heavier American and British planes and considerably faster than even the light Nazi fighter—is to allow an enemy to attack from the rear. The Jap pilot immediately zooms upward, pulling away from the attacker because of the superior climbing ability of his craft. At the top of his zoom the Jap flops his ship over backward and immediately is in a diving attack and in firing position, completely turning the tables. Here again is maneuverability.

The earliest reports on the Zero were that it was powered by a two-row radial air-cooled motor of about 1,000 horsepower. Capt. Haruo Yoshikawa of the Japanese navy, tracing development of naval aviation in his country in an article written in recent weeks in Berlin for the German periodical Luftwissen, indicated that engines of this power were installed in fighters and bombers used in China in 1937. Current fighter and bomber models are powered with engines of larger piston capacity, developing from 1,500 to 1,800 horsepower, he said.

Coming from this authoritative source, the information is of considerable interest. Our navy airmen had been puzzled over the speed of the Zero and of the newest Japanese land-based bombers used in the Pacific areas. They felt that the Zero must have more than 1,000-horsepower engines, and said the bombers certainly had larger engines, because they were extremely fast.

Armament of the Zero has followed German practices almost exactly. The current Zeros have two 20-mm. shell-firing cannon—one in each wing, firing outside the propeller—and two .25-caliber machine guns mounted in the nose and synchronized to fire thru the propeller. Latest models are said to have more guns and machine guns of heavier calibers.

• • •

To obtain superlative performance in their Zeros the Japanese sacrificed self-sealing tanks for fuel in the airplane and armor protection for the pilot. Both of these items are considered absolute necessities for any tactical airplanes built in Europe or the United States.

In the Pacific most Japanese planes well hit by machine gun fire have burned.

From Australia, however, have come reports that the newest fighters, probably Mitsubishi O1 models, a year later than the Zeros, have both self-sealing tanks and armor. And these new fighters still retain the edge in speed, climb, and maneuverability over our much heavier and less powerfully engined fighters.

Japanese pilots are remarkably good at aerobatics, our navy fighter pilots report. They constantly use tactics that involve inverted flight, high-speed rolls and loops. They also are notably careful of their engines in combat and are taught to use the speed of their planes sparingly. They do not dive recklessly into a fight, but like to ease up into firing position slowly and carefully against enemy planes that are slower and less agile.

"The Japs never overran us," a scout plane pilot told me. "They would hang back, use just enough throttle to get within firing range, and then fire. Afterward they would slow down, drop back, and then make another firing approach.

"They constantly used the throttle for speed control and commonly dropped the legs of their retractile landing gear and lowered their flaps to slow down. The extended gear and flaps would reduce their speed rapidly; they would then raise both gear and flaps and come on in for another pass at us.

"They were particularly cunning in fighting two-seater planes. They liked best to make several feints at us, hoping to get our rear seat gunners to fire out a belt or drum of ammunition. If this happened they would make their own firing runs as soon as the gunner commenced trying to change to a fresh belt. The purpose, of course, was to be able to close in without his having a shot.

"Altho they seldom needed to do it, they often lowered their flaps in a dogfight to slow down and to make smaller circles in turning and to enable their planes to be thrown around in violent aerobatics that are impossible at higher speeds."

The navy pilots said that the extreme maneuverability of the Zero in banking and rolling was probably due in a large measure to the oversized ailerons on the wings. These control surfaces are virtually double the areas for ailerons given our own fighters.

Do not believe reports that the Zeros are so lightly built that they fail in the air. The Zero is an all-metal plane that can take a lot of punishment and still fly. The Japanese have reported instances where their fighters have lost five feet of a wing tip and still come home safely. As our own pilots indicate, the Japs stunt these Zero fighters even more violently than our planes can be stunted, and do this as a regular part of their fighting tactics. The light weight of the Zero has not been gained at the expense of strength.

Q. Does Friskies provide a well-rounded diet?
A. Yes! A complete dog food, Friskies contains 19 essential ingredients, including meat meal, liver meal and meat scraps, with specially prepared cereals, dried skimmed milk, minerals and Vitamins A, $B_1$, D, E, G and K—in ample amounts.

Q. Will my dog like eating Friskies?
A. Dogs love Friskies—the result of more than ten years of actual "taste-tests" in the Friskies laboratory kennels at the famous Carnation Farm. In its compressed cube form Friskies is easy for dogs to digest, too.

Q. Can I afford to feed Friskies?
A. Yes. Friskies is economical because it's 90% solid food, only 10% moisture. There's no waste, no refrigeration problem. No other food need be fed with Friskies.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS By BOB BECKER

Billy Collins, 9 months old, and McTague's Betty Co-ed, a six month old particolored cocker spaniel, owned by Mrs. J. W. McTague, Elmhurst.

THE dog fanciers in this country might just as well get the first place ribbon ready for the cocker spaniel, because this lovable little breed is going to finish the year as the most popular dog on the basis of American Kennel club registrations. And the cocker also will win the popularity race by a big margin if judged by the demand for them as pets in the home.

One look at the A. K. C. registration figures during the first six months of 1942 shows how far out in front the little spaniel is. Owners registered 14,714 cockers from January 1 to July 1, 1942. The beagle hound was in second place with 3,581, and the Boston terrier was in third place with 3,369.

This is a marked change from the career of the cocker in very early days and also in the Victorian era. Originally bred as a busy, good natured, smart little woodcock dog, the cocker later was in considerable demand as a pet and living symbol of elegance in the Victorian era. Then the cockers were low-backed, low-legged dogs, hardly to be compared with the beautiful specimens bred today. But the aristocrats considered it the correct thing to have cocker spaniels around the house. At that time the breed was not one for the common people who wanted an affectionate, playful pet in the home.

• • •

Altho the attractive feathering on the breed plus its long "marcelled" ears are two of its most striking physical features, owners all too often neglect to groom their pets and thus make these features a liability rather than an asset. For example, we receive many letters asking how to remove the patches of matted hair behind a cocker's ears.

These patches will develop on many spaniels that do not see a brush or comb very often. Matted patches of hair which have been neglected commonly have to be snipped off with a pair of scissors.

The ears of the cocker especially need care because they are so long they may get into the food dish and thus present quite a problem in dog care. Fortunately there are food dishes so made that they can pretty much eliminate this hazard. These dishes are made narrow on the top and fairly wide at the bottom. When the cocker puts his head down to the dish to eat his ears will fall outside of its opening and thus stay clean.

Cockers (and other dogs) which grow much hair around their toes will bring less dirt into a home if this growth is trimmed off occasionally. We have seen some cockers kept as pets which had hair an inch or more long on their feet.

Know Your Camera

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

(Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine.)

AFTER judging many thousands of amateur pictures I find that the most frequent fault of these pictures is complete disregard for selecting a proper background and foreground. It seems as if most inexperienced photographers are so busy watching their main subject that they forget to observe the other things which their picture is bound to include.

Wherever the background is needed in a picture to supply atmosphere, confusing details can be subdued with the aid of "selective focusing." This means simply that the focus is adjusted to show the main subject sharp and the background somewhat blurred.

The sad consequence of this attitude is that the pictures show numerous background objects which should not be there, and that the foregrounds are bare and empty, wasting valuable picture space on a stretch of lawn or road which adds nothing to the composition.

There are two general types of background treatment, depending on what the purpose of the picture is. If you want to show your subject together with its surroundings you naturally want to include background detail. If, for instance, you snap a friend on a trip or in the park, you want the picture to show the spot where it was taken. In such cases you must pose the subject against the background in such a manner that the background objects do not interfere with the outlines of the main figure. Furthermore, you must give the main subject sufficient size and such a position in the picture space that there can be no doubt about what the picture is supposed to show, your friend or the Lincoln memorial.

The second type of picture, taken not as a record snapshot but for its pictorial value, calls for as simple a background as possible. Outdoors this would mean posing the subject against the sky, a plain wall, a dark group of bushes, or some other background lacking distracting detail. Indoors such pictures use plain walls, back drops of cloth or paper, or simply a doorway leading into a darkened room, giving a black background. The main considerations are simplicity and sufficient difference in tone from the main subject.

The type and amount of background showing in your picture is influenced by the position of the camera and by lighting. As to camera position, by moving closer to the subject you can exclude much of the background. By raising or lowering the camera or by moving it to one side you can change the relationship of background objects to your main subject. For instance, if the top of a fence or a picture frame on the wall seems to cut right thru the head of your subject, raise or lower the camera so that the horizontal lines appear above or well below the head of the subject.

Amateurs often make the mistake of placing their subjects too close to a background. This becomes especially disturbing if there is not enough contrast between the colors of subject and background. In the case of portraits leave several feet of space between subject and background. If there is insufficient contrast between the two, create such a contrast with lighting. This can be done by shining a light on the background, thus making it brighter than the subject; or by letting the background go dark and by placing a light behind the subject and turning it toward the camera so that a rim of light is created around the outlines of the subject.

While it is usually best to use backgrounds which contrast in color with the main subject, sometimes it creates dramatic effect if the subject's clothes merge with a dark background; spotlighting faces and other details to be emphasized in the picture.

If you leave enough space between subject and background you can subdue the latter with the aid of selective focusing. This means simply that you can adjust the focus of your lens in such a manner that the subject will appear sharp and the background blurred, thus subduing unwanted and distracting detail.

In the case of outdoor backgrounds, especially if you use the sky as a background, you cannot exercise the same lighting control as indoors. But instead of shifting lights you can put a filter over your lens and darken the sky sufficiently to contrast your subject against it.

For long-distance shots use human figures, doorways, trees, or other objects in the foreground. They will form natural frames within the picture and will help to give it a feeling of great depth.

PARTY FOR NAVY

By

ELEANOR NANGLE

THE young men newly arrived at the U. S. Naval Reserve Midshipmen's school at Abbott hall, Northwestern university, are pretty much confined to quarters during their first week in Chicago, a state of affairs which forbids acceptance of the lavish hospitality the city habitually extends to our future naval officers. So, since they can't go to parties, it's now the custom for Abbott to throw a party for them their first week-end in town.

The last one was an informal dance for a new shipment of 400 men just up from their indoctrination course at Notre Dame. Mrs. William Faurot, the hostess, and Recreation Officers Ensigns Verling Pierson and Robert Hilker, arranged the shindig, complete with a dance orchestra, a hometalent floor show AND 350 attractive girls.

War decorously makes a monkey of the old convention that a girl shall not dance or speak with strangers. Under the rather special conditions that govern entertainment for the midshipmen, the mere presence of a boy and a girl constitutes an introduction. Each girl received, with her invitation, a white round name tag which was to be prominently worn, and an anti-gate crashing slip which was turned in on arrival at the dance.

• • •

It's a strictly "no-date" affair; the men march smartly to the dance in platoon formation. The girls arrive singly or in groups, present their identification and go up to the dance floor. And when the party is over there is no such thing as seeing Nellie home. The boys return to quarters and the girls must find their way alone.

But if you think there is constraint under such circumstances you're quite wrong. Boy meets girl as she steps off the elevator and asks her to dance. If there's a shade of shyness on either side, Mrs. Faurot or one of her assistants introduces them and gets them off to a good start. From that point on there are no wallflowers of either sex and at least once during the evening there is a mixer, when girls line up on one side, boys on the other, and, via an informal grand march formation, step off with the partner who arrives simultaneously at the break of the two lines.

The party was a merry one, with food, soft drinks, and good music. Capt. Benyaurd Bourne Wygant, commanding officer of the school, was as enthusiastic over the floor show as any of his young charges and their pretty dancing partners. Eddy Duchin, now a lieutenant and a resident of Tower Hall, popped in to play the piano. His smash hit, for which all stood and sang lustily, was the old navy favorite, "Anchors Aweigh."

The boys were impressed. They come from all over the country, from small colleges and big sophisticated ones, but from the first day of school they all have two things in common: Love for the navy and appreciation of Chicago's hospitality, which by all reports is unequaled anywhere in the country.

BANGS ARE BOOMING!

By Antoinette Donnelly
(Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

AFTER your stay at home summer, it's almost a relief to get into your first autumn frock and try a new hairdo. While we have no argument with the feather cut and pompadours, we do believe that there is an end to all good things, if only to break the monotony. One prominent hair stylist presents a new treatment for fall. He believes that patriotic restrictions needn't keep fashions from becoming colorful and gay, and undeniably there is an air of our allied fashion trends about.

• • •

This French coiffeur decrees new, long bangs. He accents hairdos with sleek bangs, rather long, almost covering the forehead, Chinese influence. But that does not mean long hair. Quite the contrary, he belongs to the school of French artists who like sleek, chic lines. He believes, after a summer of wind blown tresses, it's time for sleek, well groomed coiffures. He insists that short hair is here for the duration, but it must have a well behaved look.

The precious secret of keeping hair in line lies in correct shaping to the contour of the head, with no short ends. The hair is cut 3½ to 4½ inches. The soft, brush permanent is a "must." This hairdresser is one of those rare individuals who always are on time, give you a brush permanent in one hour and 40 minutes, complete. How? One of his time saving devices is to eliminate the shampoo prior to the permanent. He tells us (and proves it, too) that the natural oils in the hair are essential to a soft wave. That is why he is especially insistent when doing extra fine, delicate hair that it is not to be shampooed before the wave.

• • •

As refreshing as an autumn breeze is the stylist's new vogue for long, sleek bangs. It will seem different to wear bangs, but he insists they are most practical as, due to their length, they may be combed back into a different hairdo with a flick of the comb. If you like a hairdo that's perfection, sleek, well groomed, here is a happy fashion. Wear bangs, tuck a huge comb in your hair, presto, it's a señorita fashion, a "good neighbor" hair style for going places and doing things.

One hairdresser decrees hairdos with sleek bangs, rather long, almost covering the forehead.

Long bangs do not mean long hair. Rather, sleek, chic lines are the vogue.

SO MUCH MORE SUDS"

Mrs. Mabel Quinlan of Hicksville, New York didn't take our word about more suds and longer-lastin' suds. She made the "milk-bottle suds test" described below and saw for herself. We hope you will, too.

● For years and years women 've been sayin': "What's needed to really ease up washing troubles is more suds and longer-lasting suds." Guess all us soap makers 've known that's what they wanted. Goodness knows, women have kept asking for that kind of "more-suds" soap. Trouble was, more suds was hard to get. But we kept after it and after it and now we've got it... more suds in Super Suds!

They're longer-lasting suds, too—richer suds with extra gumption. Oh, yes, that's easy to say, you may think—but, ladies, we don't just say it. We prove it. In the simplest way you can imagine, just with two milk-bottles. Won't you please do this test yourself? It's sure worth it.

LADIES, PLEASE MAKE THIS EASY "MILK-BOTTLE SUDS TEST"...IT PAYS!

Put two teaspoons of your present wash-day soap and a glass of water, even hard or cold water, into a milk-bottle. Do the same with new sudsier Super Suds in another milk-bottle. Shake 'em up. See if you don't get much more suds and longer-lasting suds from Super Suds.

PERFECT POEMS

DICKENS IN CAMP

By FRANCIS BRET HARTE

Above the pines the moon was slowly drifting,
The river sang below;
The dim Sierras, far beyond, uplifting
Their minarets of snow.

The roaring campfire, with rude humor, painted
The ruddy tints of health
On haggard face and form that drooped and fainted
In the fierce race for wealth;

Till one arose, and from his pack's scant treasure
A hoarded volume drew,
And cards were dropped from hands of listless leisure,
To hear the tale anew;

And then, while round them shadows gathered faster,
And as the firelight fell,
He read aloud the book wherein the Master
Had writ of "Little Nell."

Perhaps 'twas boyish fancy,—for the reader
Was the youngest of them all,—
But, as he read, from clustering pine and cedar
A silence seemed to fall:

The fir trees, gathering closer in the shadows,
Listened in every spray,
While the whole camp, with "Nell," on English meadows
Wandered and lost their way.

And so in mountain solitudes—o'ertaken
As by some spell divine—
Their cares dropped from them like the needles shaken
From out the gusty pine.

Lost is that camp, and wasted all its fire;
And he who wrought that spell?—
Ah, towering pine and stately Kentish spire,
Ye have one tale to tell!

Lost is that camp! but let its fragrant story
Blend with the breath that thrills
With hop vines' incense all the pensive glory
That fills the Kentish hills.

And on that grave where English oak and holly
And laurel wreaths entwine,
Deem it not all a too presumptuous folly,—
This spray of western pine.

THE VICTORY OF THE CONSTITUTION OVER THE GUERRIERE, AUG. 19, 1812: FROM A PAINTING EXECUTED EXPRESSLY FOR THE TRIBUNE BY JAMES M. SESSIONS OF CHICAGO

OLD IRONSIDES

By OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES

One hundred twelve years ago this month (on Sept. 14, 1830) Oliver Wendell Holmes' famous poem appeared in the Boston Advertiser. It had just been reported that the historic Constitution had been pronounced unseaworthy and condemned to be broken up. But such a flame of public clamor was kindled by these fiery verses that the old frigate was saved to become a symbol of patriotism for posterity. It was during the Constitution's 25-minute battle with the Guerriere that its crew, seeing shot rebound from its stout oak sides, gave it the name of "Old Ironsides." The ship was restored for a fourth time by public subscription, 1927-'31.

Ay, tear her tattered ensign down!
Long has it waved on high,
And many an eye has danced to see
That banner in the sky;
Beneath it rung the battle shout,
And burst the cannon's roar;—
The meteor of the ocean air
Shall sweep the clouds no more.

Her deck, once red with heroes' blood,
Where knelt the vanquished foe,
When winds were hurrying o'er the flood,
And waves were white below,
No more shall feel the victor's tread,
Or know the conquered knee;—
The harpies of the shore shall pluck
The eagle of the sea!

O, better that her shattered hulk
Should sink beneath the wave;
Her thunders shook the mighty deep,
And there should be her grave;
Nail to the mast her holy flag,
Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the god of storms,
The lightning and the gale!

Don't Let Wartime Living Get You Down!

IT ISN'T SURPRISING that Pete feels all "done in"! Look at how he lives these war days. Long hours, exacting work, irregular sleep—his whole life's different. Specially his eating. Meals are rushed, not properly balanced—and he neglects the important matter of "bulk"!

GETTING ENOUGH "bulk" would make a big difference to Pete. For lack of it is one of the common causes of wartime constipation.* Medicinal laxatives that give only temporary relief don't get at the cause. The answer to Pete's lack of "bulk" is eating regularly a delicious, golden cereal—KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN—and drinking plenty of water.

CRISP, CRUNCHY ALL-BRAN eaten regularly will correct the cause of constipation due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. Why not try this grand-tasting cereal yourself? It's more important now than ever that you do everything to keep yourself fit to do your wartime work at full speed! Have you tried ALL-BRAN lately? It's golden-soft, doubly delicious.

A HIGHLY NUTRITIVE FOOD, TOO

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is more than a source of needed "bulk." It contains valuable carbohydrates, proteins, minerals and vitamins. Every one-ounce serving supplies, in addition to 7% of an adult's daily need of vitamin $B_1$, 2½ times as much iron as whole wheat, 4 times as much phosphorus and 4 times as much niacin!

WASH DAY in Keijo, Korea.

Men 17 to 50 not yet in uniform How will YOU answer these 10 Navy questions?

1 What are you doing to protect your home, your family, your freedom?

It's your country. It has been pretty good to you. It has given you the right to do what you want to do, go where you want to go, live the kind of life you like. Now your country is at war. It's fighting for your freedom. What are you willing to do to help win this fight? Is there any job that you can do which is more important than the job waiting for you right now in the United States Navy?

2 Are you fed up with taking it—ready to dish it out?

Are you sick and tired of reading about "another U. S. ship torpedoed without warning"? About women and children being cast adrift in lifeboats? Are you through with just talking about what should be done? Okay. Here's your chance to do something—to blast the Nazi subs out of the seas—to kick the Japs off our islands. The Navy is ready to dish it out, and it needs your help to do it.

3 Do you want expert training in a skilled trade?

It's a big job, and to do it right you've got to have the training. The Navy will give you that training—make you an expert electrician, metalsmith, photographer, torpedoman, gunner—any of nearly 50 skilled trades. More than 50% of Navy men hold Petty Officer ratings. You can be one of them!

You draw pay while you learn in the Navy. You get your first pay increase in approximately two months, upon completion of recruit training. And by the end of your first enlistment, you can earn up to $138 a month, plus liberal allowances for dependents and for special duties. Promotions come rapidly. And each one means more responsibility. In the Navy you play an important part on a team where every man is important.

5 Would you like $133 worth of uniforms and clothing free?

That's what you'll get in the Navy—complete outfits for both winter and summer. Everything you need, everything from cap to shoes, from whites to blues. They're the kind of uniforms you'll be proud to wear. They mark you as a man who is doing a big job for his country.

You must be in normal good health, but you don't have to be a perfect physical specimen to get in the Navy. After only a few weeks of Navy life you will be in top-notch trim. Figures show that many men become 93% stronger during their preliminary training. That's what Navy physical conditioning does. It makes men. Rugged, husky, fighting men who can take it—and dish it out!

7 Would you like good food—and plenty of it?

You'll get real man-size meals in the Navy. The finest food a fellow could ask for. Three square meals a day, prepared by expert cooks trained in the country's best restaurants and hotels. Wholesome, hearty meals that stick to a fellow's ribs—the kind of meals you need to do a man's job. And all the "seconds" you want!

8 Would you like travel, adventure, action?

In the Navy you go places on the finest ships afloat. You meet people, visit exciting ports most men only read about. And you get action! The kind of action that helped smash the Japs at Midway Island, that knocked them for a loop in the Coral Sea. The kind of action that thrills a he-man right down to his toes!

9 Do you want to step into a well-paid job after the war?

Men make the Navy—and the Navy makes men! Trained men who are doing great things now, who will be ready to step into important positions in civil life when the war is won. You can have no better recommendation than to be able to say, "I have had Navy training."

10 Do you want to choose your service while you can?

Before this war is over, you know you're going to be in it some way. Be fair to yourself and choose your service now before it is too late. If you're 17 to 50 and in normal health, get all the facts you need to help you decide. Ask your nearest Recruiting Officer for "Men Make the Navy."—free, 48-page, illustrated book. There's no obligation.

You know in your heart the right answers. And you can do something about it today. Call, write or phone for "Men Make the Navy" at your nearest Navy Recruiting Station.

FREE 50¢ PACKAGE OF VITAMINS!

LOOK FOR THIS SPECIAL COMBINATION PACKAGE AT YOUR DRUGGIST'S

$2.25 VALUE . . . ONLY $1.69

WHY THIS FREE OFFER? This offer is made solely to get you to try this new low-cost way of getting vitamins and minerals—at once. If it does induce you, and millions of others, to get the vitamins and minerals you may need, it will be a great thing for you—a great thing for wartime America. Vimms have already won friends by thousands. You'll stay with Vimms, too—once you've tried them.

U. S. Government experts say 3 out of 4 need more vitamins.

Chances are 3 to 1 that means you! Rich or poor, it makes little difference. And how much you eat may not change the picture. This war needs all of us at our best. Yet millions are vitamin-starved . . . "half-alive" . . .

Why be "half-alive"? It's your fault if you're vitamin-starved—tired, nervous, a pushover for colds. Vimms will help give you back your old pep—help build your resistance to colds.

6 vitamins are needed all year round. That's what U. S. experts say. And Vimms give these very 6 vitamins in the right amounts. And Vimms give you 3 minerals that belong with the vitamins.

Vimms—a complete balanced team. Vimms give you all 3 essential B Complex vitamins ($B_1$, $B_2$, P-P)—and more! 3 other critical vitamins (A, C, D)—and more! 3 vital minerals (Calcium, Phosphorus, Iron). That's a championship team of 9 top players, a good team to have on your side. Remember, products that give you only 1 or 2 vitamins may leave out the very ones you need most!

More for your money. Vimms have brought the cost of all-round vitamin-mineral protection tumbling down—ker-plunk! We don't know of any vitamin-mineral product that gives you so much for so little. And we've looked all over these United States. Yes, we're so sure Vimms give you more we're backing that with a money-back guarantee.

Start Vimms today. They're little, white tablets. Easy to swallow. And so good youngsters say, "They taste like candy!" That's a great help if you've had to make little Willie take yeasty or fishy-tasting vitamins. Start your family on Vimms today. It's great to feel fit! (P. S. Vimms are non-fattening—no calories!)

AND YOU GET A MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE

Buy the special Vimms trial offer. Compare Vimms with all other vitamin products regardless of price. If you are not completely satisfied that Vimms are better, you get your money back! Just mail the large package unopened and the unused portion of the regular size—with your name and address and reason for not preferring Vimms—to Lever Brothers Company, Pharmaceutical Div., Cambridge, Mass.

Compare ALL . . . and you'll buy Vimms

2 good vitamins—but 6 are needed!

You pay no more for these in Vimms!

No need to buy this separately!

Without these, Vitamin D is practically "unemployed."

Makes Vimms more complete than many costlier products.

The American Medical Profession has adopted as a standard for acceptance the U. S. Government's minimum daily requirements for vitamins. Vimms meet or exceed these requirements—for all six vitamins recognized as essential. Vimms give you three vital minerals, too. No other product at any price can match ALL Vimms advantages.

GET THEM ALL IN VIMMS

BUCKS McKALE
MR. OSTERMAN'S PLAN WORKED TO PERFECTION. ON THE STROKE OF MIDNIGHT A STRANGE FIGURE CARRYING A SHOVEL APPEARS IN THE GRAVEYARD AND STARTS DIGGING IN THE GRAVE WHERE MRS. DE PUNK AND THE DE PUNK FAMILY JEWELS ARE SUPPOSED TO BE BURIED. WAITING THEIR CHANCE BUCKS AND HIS FRIENDS, AIDED BY THE POLICE, CAPTURE THE GRAVE ROBBER. WE FIND THEM AT POLICE HEADQUARTERS WHERE THEY HAVE TAKEN THE PRISONER FOR QUESTIONING.
WHY WERE YOU AT THAT GRAVE TONIGHT?
ISN'T IT TRUE YOU STOLE THE FAMOUS DE PUNK PEARLS AND WERE AFTER THE OTHER JEWELS SUPPOSED TO BE THERE?
NOTHING IS VERY CLEAR IN MY MIND—I'M ALL MIXED UP—I SEEM TO BE IN A TRANCE OR UNDER SOME SORT OF A SPELL
A SPELL?
HE DOES ACT PECULIAR!
EARLIER THIS EVENING I MET A MAN— HE HAD THE MOST PECULIAR EYES I HAVE EVER SEEN —
THE LAST THING I REMEMBER HE SAID HE WAS GOING TO HYPNOTIZE ME—AND I MUST DO HIS BIDDING!
AND THAT WAS TO GET THE JEWELS FROM THAT GRAVE?
YES—THAT'S RIGHT!
DO YOU THINK HE'S TELLING THE TRUTH?
YES I DO
SO DO I!
IT'S 4:00 A.M. RIGHT NOW!
WHO WAS THIS MAN?
-AND WHERE IS HE NOW?
I DO NOT KNOW WHO HE IS—BUT I WAS TO MEET HIM IN THE ABANDONED HOUSE NEAR THE GRAVEYARD AT 5:00 A.M.
OKAY!—YOU'LL MEET HIM AS PLANNED—BUT NOT ALONE!!
BUT I MUST HAVE THE JEWELS OR HE WILL NOT RELEASE ME FROM THIS SPELL HE HAS OVER ME.
SAY—THAT'S RIGHT!
YOU'LL HAVE THE JEWELS—WE'LL GO BY MY APARTMENT AND GET THEM OUT OF MY SAFE!
DON'T MISS THE MEETING AT THE ABANDONED HOUSE

BOTTLED UP

SOME weeks ago Ginky the mouse pushed the Dunce into a sugar bowl. The Dunce couldn't crawl up the smooth side of the bowl, and he was there for some hours before the Teenie Weenies found him and pulled him out.

The Dunce was very angry with the mouse for that trick, and he watched for a chance to get even.

One day the Dunce and Gogo had gone to the dump, where the big folk throw away their trash, to look for anything that might be useful to the Teenie Weenies.

They discovered a pint vinegar bottle from which they removed the metal screw top, for the Chinaman was in need of a new wash tub, and bottle tops make excellent wash tubs and cooking pots.

While the two Teenie Weenies were removing the bottle top, the Dunce happened to see Ginky peering around a piece of broken dinner plate. The Dunce never let on that he had seen the mouse, but he began to think of some trick to play on Ginky. Suddenly an idea popped into his head and he whispered to Gogo.

"Y'all had bettah leave that mouse alone," Gogo whispered back. "We allers get into trouble when we're sociable with him! That mouse is a bad luck mouse if they evah was one!"

"Well, he can't go pushin' me into sugar bowls and get away with it," argued the Dunce.

The two Teenie Weenies dropped the top onto the ground and pretended to be interested in something inside the bottle. The Dunce crawled into the neck of the bottle, and pulling a piece of peanut about the size of a garden pea from his pocket, he threw it into the empty bottle.

He then crawled out, dropped to the ground and, motioning Gogo to follow, the two little chaps pretended to wander off. But they really hid behind a tin can near by.

Presently, they heard Ginky, who is very curious, come from behind the broken plate and move toward the bottle. Then the Dunce saw the mouse climb up and crawl into the bottle.

"Come on!" he whispered to Gogo. "We'll put that top on the bottle before Ginky has a chance to get out."

The two Teenie Weenies dashed to the bottle and, before the mouse discovered them, they had the top half screwed on.

"There!" shouted the Dunce as he made a face at the frantic mouse. "Now you'll see how it feels to be a prisoner!"

The next morning, while the Teenie Weenies were at breakfast, the Dunce told how he had bottled up Ginky.

"Was the top screwed on tight?" asked the Doctor.

"Sure!" laughed the Dunce.

"Well, we'd better get there quick and remove that top," said the Doctor. "That poor mouse may be a goner!"

"Goner?" gasped the Dunce.

"Why, certainly," answered the Doctor. "Nothing can live without fresh air!" Snatching up his tiny medicine case, he started toward the dump on the run.

The mouse was unconscious, but he still breathed.

"Get him out of here!" ordered the Doctor.

Several men lifted the mouse up to the neck of the bottle, and then they pulled him out by his long tail.

The Doctor gave Ginky first aid treatment, and presently he opened his eyes.

He was quite weak, but soon he was able to walk, and he went off after giving the Dunce a nasty look.

The General saw that the Dunce was sorry for what he had thoughtlessly done. He felt, though that the Dunce ought to have some slight punishment, so he ordered him to carry a lead pencil stub on his shoulder 15 times around the shoe house.

"Just to help you remember that it's a very unwise thing to try to get even with a foolish mouse," the General said.

She's lovely! She uses Pond's

MARILYN'S RING is a sparkling, blue-white solitaire set with fine simplicity in a plain gold band.

Very much of a live-wire American girl, Marilyn is up to her ears in war work in hectic Washington, where she is on call for Canteen Duty, and busy with the Motor Corps. She's hardly time even to dream about her wedding.

WEEK-END REUNION at the University of Virginia before the Rotunda Ball. Courtland introduces Navy friends to Marilyn on the promenade of the beautiful Jefferson Library. He is a 2nd-year medical student and when he graduates, hopes to go directly into the U. S. Medical Corps.

"When there's such a lot to do, your face can't help looking tired sometimes" —she says. "I'm surely thankful we are not asked to give up Pond's Cold Cream. Nothing seems to give my skin such a clean, soft, fresh feeling."

She pats Pond's carefully, with gentle little pats, over her face and throat to help soften and release dirt and make-up. Tissues it off well—then "rinses" with more Pond's and tissues off again.

Use Pond's her way every night—and for daytime clean-ups. You'll see why war-busy society leaders, like Mrs. John Jacob Astor, and Mrs. W. Forbes Morgan are Pond's users, too. And why more women and girls all over America use Pond's than any other face cream. Buy a jar at your favorite beauty counter. Five popular-priced sizes—the most economical the lovely big jars.

A Virginian's exquisite bride-to-be, Marilyn Bauer of Washington, D. C. Her engagement to Courtland Davis, Jr., of the prominent Alexandria family was announced in June

It's no accident so many lovely engaged girls use Pond's!

N. U. TAKES WAR 'INVASION' IN STRIDE

DEWEY-WALKER BATTLE ONE OF CITY'S HOTTEST

Able Campaigners Set for Fierce Fight.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

The attempt of Irving N. Walker, Democrat, to unseat Charles Dewey, G. O. P. representative of the 9th, or near north side district, is developing into one of the hottest congressional election battles in the Chicago area.

Both men have the support of strong political organizations. Both are resourceful, vigorous and able, with sufficient financial means to add much to the regular organizational efforts in their behalf. Both have planned their strategy carefully, and have saved their main oratory for the closing weeks of the campaign that will end with the Nov. 3 election.

Dewey Is Hard Worker.

Congressman Dewey, one of the hardest working legislators in Washington, is at something of a disadvantage because he is sticking close to his job in Washington, where in less than one term he has become known as one of the ablest financial authorities in congress. Meanwhile Walker, who recently quit after two years as vice president of the Chicago Board of Education, is devoting his full time to his effort to rewin the district for the Democrats.

Walker began his personal campaigning even before the April primary, in which his nomination was a foregone conclusion. Ever since then he has taken much time from a successful law practice to make actual contacts with the men and women he expects will vote for him in November. These contacts already include all the Democratic precinct captains in the district, about half the Democratic judges and clerks of election, and the audiences at numerous political and civic meetings.

He has built up a group of volunteer workers who are adding considerably to the regular organization efforts. These include numerous woman workers, and representatives in most of the large apartment buildings, particularly those along the east side of the district, which includes the gold coast.

Volunteers Aid Dewey.

In Dewey's absence, his preliminary work is being handled largely by the volunteers he began assembling in 1938 when he ran unsuccessfully against Congressman James McAndrews. These include a woman's section headed by Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher, and a men's section of which Edward A. Pool is chairman. A Dewey for Congress headquarters is maintained at 2800 Sheridan road.

Dewey supporters have been busy thruout the summer inducing all unregistered Republican voters in the district to qualify for the November election. In this endeavor they were aided by volunteers in hotels and apartments, which furnish much valuable information on removals and new arrivals.

Dewey Helps Get Contracts.

Because it is of longer standing than Walker's, the Dewey volunteer setup is larger and considered more efficient, a difference the Walker camp is striving to equalize.

Dewey, who was an important cog in the administration of President Coolidge, was aided in his fight to unseat Congressman McAndrews by his promise to help bring more defense contracts to Chicago, a pledge he has since worked hard to fulfill. As a congressional freshman, he wielded much greater influence in Washington than most new representatives, because of acquaintances he made while he was assistant secretary of the treasury.

North Shore District.

In the 10th [north shore] district, former Congressman Ralph E. Church buzzed about the territory in his first congressional campaign since 1934 that has not been complicated by his attendance in congress, in which he achieved a perfect six year score.

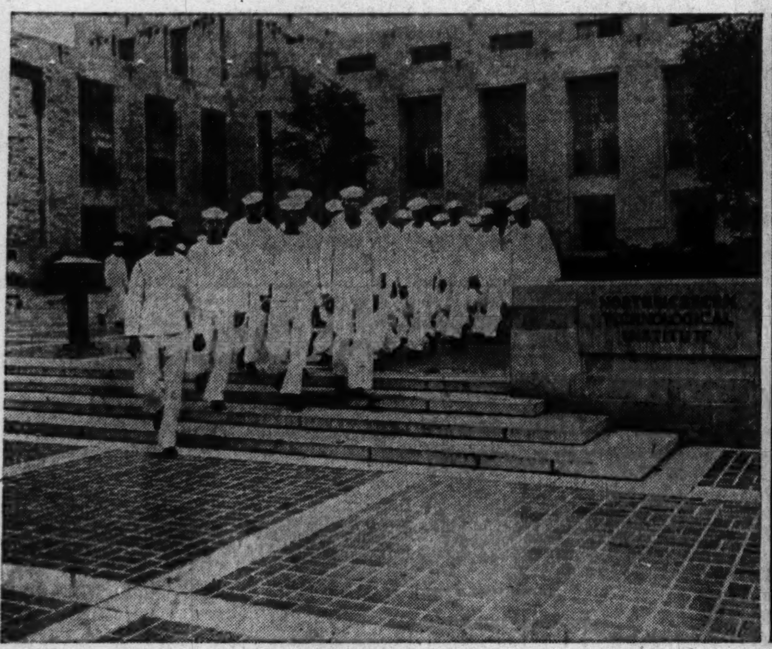
Equally busy was Church's Democratic rival, Corporation Counsel Jack Bairstow of Waukegan. The Chicago city hall machine is sending men high on the Democrats' state and county slates to Bairstow meeting to help swell attendance.

Bairstow announced last week that Church had declined an invitation to appear on the same platform with Bairstow at a meeting of the Grant Civic club in Fox Lake, on the ground that his campaign budget would not permit a required $25 contribution. Church subsequently ignored the club's offer to waive the $25 expense item if he would appear, Bairstow said.

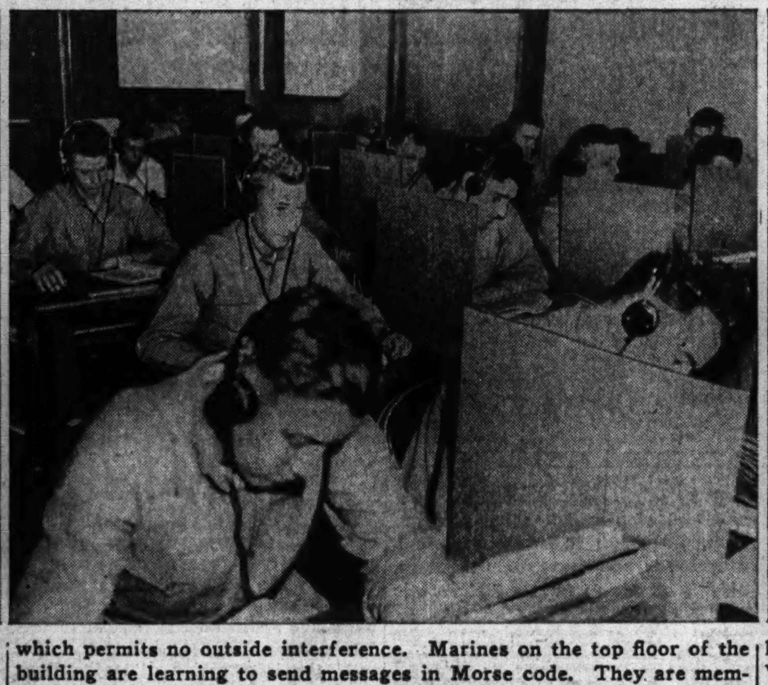
SPONSOR HORSE SHOW SUNDAY TO AID SERVICE MEN

A horse show for the benefit of the Chicago Service Men's center will be held on the polo field at Harms and Golf roads in Morton Grove starting at 12:30 o'clock next Sunday, it was announced by A. B. Cameron, sponsor. There will be 15 classes, including jumping events, harness classes, three and five gaited classes and a stock horse class. The 1943 transportation class is open to horse drawn vehicles of all descriptions. Defense stamps will make up the cash prizes in all events.

Soldiers, Sailors, and Marines Are Getting Training in Classes at Northwestern University



Northwestern university contributes to the nation's war effort! A thousand sailors from every state in the union study radio communications in the gigantic technological institute. On campus each weekday these young men can be seen marching the two blocks between the institute and Lunt hall. The sailors have "chow" in the basement of Lunt, which formerly housed the administration offices of the university.



Men of the army signal corps also study in Tech institute. Here they practice the art of aligning a radio receiver and signal generator for maximum performance. They work in a unique, all copper room which permits no outside interference. Marines on the top floor of the building are learning to send messages in Morse code. They are members of the navy radio operators' school. The downtown medical school has put into operation a nurses' training program in co-operation with Wesley Memorial hospital. These young women are receiving instruction in how to care for fractures, a common war injury.

BROTHERS, A SOLDIER AND SAILOR, MEET BY CHANCE IN HAWAII

Robert Lindell.

Russell Lindell.

Russell and Robert Lindell, the sons of Swan Lindell, 1100 North Dearborn street, met in the Hawaiian Islands last month for the first time in more than two years. Russell, 23 years old, a private first class in the army, enlisted in 1940. Robert, 21, also enlisted in 1940, but in the navy. He is now a fireman first class. The meeting came as a complete surprise to both boys and to their father, who just learned of it by mail.

Stores to Open Monday Nights in Evanston

Beginning tomorrow most of Evanston's stores will remain open on Monday nights instead of the usual Saturdays. Monday's store hours will be from 9:30 a. m. to 9:30 p. m. and next Saturday will become an ordinary eight hour shopping day. The Thursday night store hours will be the same as usual.

This precedent breaking move came about last week when the merchants' division of the Evanston Chamber of Commerce voted to abolish the long familiar Saturday evening business and substitute Monday instead.

Will Ease Transportation.

In announcing the change, Stedman Willard, chairman of the merchants' division said that Monday night opening will relieve acute week-end transportation problems and will give employés longer week-ends with Saturday nights off.

"Saturday night is more of a time for play than for shopping, hence customers would probably prefer to have stores open on an extra week night," he added.

Success in West.

Altho Evanston has taken the lead among north shore communities in substituting Monday for Saturday night business, the idea already has been tried with success elsewhere in the country. The plan has been particularly successful on the Pacific coast and in such congested war plant centers as Detroit. Transportation is heavily taxed Saturdays in the Chicago area because of service men going into the city on week-end leaves, Willard said.

Bahai Temple Steps Will Be Finished Soon

Work on the final contract for the outside of Bahai temple in Wilmette has been started. Circular steps leading to the nine outside doors are expected to be completed in December, Horace Holley, Bahai secretary, said. This work will complete the exterior of the temple.

The steps are being made of the same architectural concrete as the temple. There will be 18 circular levels, broken into 900 units with each weighing 1,800 pounds. The total cost of the steps has been approximated at $40,000.

Prewar Purchase.

Preliminary designs for the steps were made a year ago and the materials were purchased before the war.

Approximately $660,000 has been spent on the exterior of the temple, which was started in 1932. After the completion of the steps, work will be stopped on the temple for the duration of the war, Holley said.

Meetings are being held in the foundation hall, but there are still four or five more years of work to be done on the interior. It originally was expected to have been completed by 1944.

Started in 1912.

The three million dollar project was started in 1912 when the grounds were dedicated. The foundation was laid in 1921 and the dome ornamentation was finished in 1934. The temple was designed by the late Louis J. Bourgeois, who was associated once with Louis Sullivan, Chicago's world famous architect.

It has nine sides which represent totality in ancient Arabic times before the cipher was added to mathematics. The temple is located at Lincoln avenue and Sheridan road, opposite the Bourgeois home.

8 FROM EVANSTON TO GO TO POLICE CHIEFS' PARLEY

Eight members of the staff of the Northwestern University Traffic institute and the safety division of Evanston of the International Association of Chiefs of Police will attend the association's annual convention tomorrow thru Wednesday in New York City.

The convention program, compressed to three days instead of the usual four, will be devoted to consideration of war duties of police officers and methods of procedure resulting from the war.

Those attending are Robert E. Raleigh, Paul M. Fulcomer, Jack Trimble, Daniel G. Reynolds, Gordon H. Sheche, Dr. David G. Monroe, Robert E. Clark, and Mary Lou Wiley.

Indian Boundary Club.

Members of the Indian Boundary Mothers' club will give their first fall luncheon at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Indian Boundary park fieldhouse.

CATHOLIC GROUP OF NORTH SHORE MEETS TUESDAY

The art and literature department of the North Shore Catholic Women's league will sponsor a book review at 2 o'clock Tuesday in the Winnetka Community house. The book will be "The Song of Bernadette" by Franz Werfel.

The league will have its opening fall meeting Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 13, in the Community house. There will be a reception for new members. Margaret Selleck, Des Plaines artist, will present "The Story of Illinois." Historic costumes will be modeled by members of the league.

Mrs. Francis Bonner is club president and Mrs. Albert Mahone is the program chairman.

HAVE HAY FEVER? EXHIBIT SHOWS WHAT CAUSES IT

Calling all hay fever victims! The Museum of the Chicago Academy of Sciences in Lincoln park is displaying an exhibit of what causes the affliction. There's ragweed — dwarf and giant — burning bush, pigweed and Russian thistle. Presented thru the coöperation of Dr. O. C. Durham of Abbott Laboratories and Anna Pedersen Kummer, honorary curator of botany, the exhibit also demonstrates the methods by which pollen surveys and counts are made. A chart shows the ragweed pollen content of the air on a day-to-day basis.

URBAN LEAGUE CONVENES FALL PARLEY FRIDAY

The Chicago Urban league will hold its annual fall conference on Negro problems Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the Bowen Country club in Waukegan. North shore residents from Evanston to Milwaukee are expected to attend, members of the planning committee report.

Topics to be discussed are "Problems of Negroes in Suburban Areas," "The Negro in Industry," "The Negro and Public Relations," "Housing Problems of Negro Citizens," and "Neighborhood Problems and Law Enforcement."

The Chicago Urban league was organized during the last war when large numbers of Negroes were migrating to northern cities and needed help adjusting themselves to northern city life. It has been active since that time, and now its leaders are trying to meet new problems rising out of the war.

St. Elizabeth Hospital Unit Serving Dinner Thursday

The Women's auxiliary of St. Elizabeth hospital, 1431 North Claremont avenue, is sponsoring a chicken dinner and card party Thursday noon in the Assembly hall, 1430 North Oakley boulevard. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Math Holzmer, 3910 North Hoyne avenue, or with Mrs. Frank Kiesgen, 3934 North Hermitage avenue.

24 Countries Have Seats at Nuptial Vows

It could only happen in America! Twenty-four nationalities met last week in the Assyrian Congregational church, 4447 Hazel street, when Miss Marie L. Newey, daughter of the church pastor, the Rev. Paul S. Newey and Mrs. Newey, was married to Pvt. First Class John G. Loskey, 4732 Beacon street, now stationed in Jefferson Barracks, Missouri.

Parents of the bride were born in Iran. Charles Loskey, father of the bridegroom, is of German descent, and his mother is of Norwegian descent. Attendants of the couple represented seven national groups—Irish, Iranian, Irakian, Assyrian, Norwegian, Russian, and Swedish. The wedding march was played in duet with an Englishman as organist and a German at the piano.

Among the many wedding guests were persons of Italian, French, Armenian, Bulgarian, Dutch, Lithuanian, Canadian, Danish, Finnish, Syrian, Polish, Turkish, and Czecho-Slovakian extraction.

The Neweys and Loskeys are proud of their children's "international" marriage. "We're glad," they said, "that we are a part of the United States—the one country in the world where all peoples meet and intermarry to make up the great democracy which every one loves and is willing to give up his life to preserve."

STARS TO APPEAR IN BOND SHOW AT TEATRO DEL LAGO

Gracie Felds will appear with other stars of stage, screen, and radio at an all-star bond show tomorrow evening in the Teatro del Lago at Wilmette. Admission to the show will be by purchase of a $50 bond during September. These bonds must be bought in Wilmette, Kenilworth, Winnetka or Glencoe.

Among the notables present will be Ben Bernie, Russ Brown, Jack Fulton, the Denning sisters, and Dean Murphy, whose imitation of President Roosevelt led to a command performance at the White House.

Manager Sam Meyers announces that doors will open at 7:30 and the show will start at 8 o'clock.

TALK ON HEALTH WILL BE HEARD BY SWIFT PTA

"Health Hints for Present Day Living" will be the subject of a talk by Mrs. A. Borg Abelman, Red Cross staff assistant, at the first meeting of the Swift Parent-Teacher association at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow in the school building. Mrs. Abelman also is North Side council chairman of health. Mrs. William Tivy, chairman of home making, and Mrs. J. C. Adamson, chairman of health and hygiene, will assist in the program to be built around these subjects.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

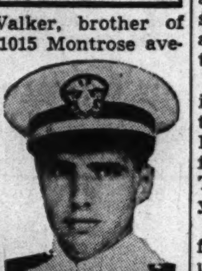
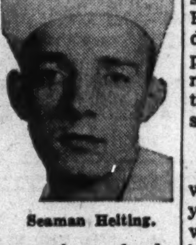
Frederick R. Walker, brother of Ralph A. Walker, 1015 Montrose avenue, and Richard G. Pycke, 1512 Cornelia avenue, won their wings and were commissioned ensigns in the naval reserve last week following completion of their flight training in Pensacola, Fla., the "Annapolis of the Air." Walker is a graduate of the University of Illinois, while Pycke studied at Wright Junior college.



Ensign Walker.

Ensign Pycke.

Robert J. Heiting, 1048 Foster avenue, has been graduated from recruit training as honor man of his company at the Great Lakes naval training station. Heiting quit his job several weeks ago to enlist as an apprentice seaman. Thru a series of aptitude tests given the 130 men of his company, he was selected to attend one of the navy's service schools. Heiting attended Tilden Technical High school, where he was a member of the ROTC. His wife and 10 weeks old daughter live at the Foster avenue address.



Seaman Heiting.

Pvt. Vincent P. Bongiovanni, 816 Sedgwick street, has been admitted to the army air forces' noncommissioned officer physical training instructor school in Miami Beach, Fla. Bongiovanni will be qualified after graduation to teach physical training in the air forces.

Two north siders were among the 600 officer candidates who graduated from the ordnance school in Aberdeen proving ground, Maryland, early this month. They are Second Lieut. Leonard E. Lawrence, Winnetka, and Second Lieut. Robert G. Nixon, Glenview.

John G. Nichols of Evanston is a proud father these days. He has received word that his son, John Jr., who had never shot a gun before, went out on the rifle range at Fort Monmouth, N. J., and shot 189 out of 200. For this feat, which only eight out of 100 can do, he will receive a markmanship medal.

From Fort Sill, Okla., comes word that Andrew F. Raab, 1448 Irving Park road; William T. Mock, Evanston, and Lance Thorson, 6549 Newgard avenue, have been commissioned second lieutenants in the field artillery.

STUDY, HOUSING FEEL IMPACT OF NAVAL TRAINING

Even President Has New Quarters.

Northwestern university begins its 87th year of classes Thursday with a campus geared to war.

Returning students will find new uniforms added to the traditional saddle shoes and sweaters. They'll discover "Navy Campus" with old Lunt and Swift engineering converted into barracks for bluejackets. Laboratories in Technological institute will be filled with men studying for the army signal corps or civilian war work.

In their fraternities, sororities, and open houses these young college students will elect air raid captains and lieutenants. Signs on campus will direct them to university air raid shelters.

ROTC Grads in Navy.

But Northwestern's first contributions to the war effort began long before these evidences on campus. They started back in 1926 with the inception of the naval ROTC unit. Today a high percentage of the 367 men graduated with the rank of ensign are serving aboard destroyers, aircraft carriers, and torpedo boats. And this year, with the ROTC program greatly expanded, 350 men are expected to enroll.

In September, 1940, the university offered the navy the facilities of its newly erected Abbott hall on the Chicago campus for a midshipmen's school. To date 4,145 men have been graduated, and the number of future officers entering this month has been stepped up to almost double the number in previous classes.

June of this year saw the first real navy invasion of the Evanston campus. Immediately after the closing of school, a contingent of 250 sailors arrived to attend the navy radio operators' school. By July 1 the navy was serving chow in the basement of Lunt, and within two weeks more administration offices had been moved either to the business offices building or to Pearsons hall, formerly a men's dormitory.

Even President Moved.

President Franklyn B. Snyder, who had hung his hat in Lunt since 1909, first as an instructor of English, then as a professor, dean of the graduate school, dean of faculties, and finally as university president, was one of the evacuees.

Now more than 1,000 sailors bunk in Lunt and Swift engineering. Under the supervision of Commander Smith D. A. Cobb, USN, retired, university faculty members hold classes in the Technological institute to train these young men as naval radio specialists.

In order to help older men prepare for entrance into war industries, the university is offering tuition free technical courses. These college level courses provide training in the fundamentals of industrial engineering. About 40 hours of classroom and laboratory work are required of each student each week.

Foster Now Infirmary.

Providing living quarters for the 100 men being trained in the army signal corps school has meant the requisitioning of another dormitory—Haven house, while Foster hall, third of the dorms to be put to war use, now houses a navy infirmary.

The roster of faculty members has suffered because of the war effort. Fifty-eight doctors and dentists left the Chicago campus in February to serve with the Northwestern General Hospital unit destined for overseas duty. From the Evanston campus approximately 140 faculty members are missing. All are filling posts with the federal government or with the services.

Housing Problems.

Northwestern's contribution to the war effort will be apparent to all this year. Remaining faculty members will feel it in increased scholastic burdens. The administration will be aware of it when trying to adjust housing, classroom, and laboratory facilities to the expanding needs.

And with tars in Lunt, signal corps students in Tech, aspiring young journalists in the Science building and President Snyder ensconced in the Clark street business offices—Northwestern students will not forget its university has gone to war.

NORTH CHICAGO DRUG WORKERS WIN E PENNANT

Employés of the Abbott Laboratories at North Chicago will receive the army-navy E production award at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on the grounds of the main plant at 14th street and Sheridan road.

Rear Adm. John Downes, commandant of the 9th naval district, and Col. Frederick C. Rogers, commanding officer of Fort Sheridan, will make the presentation. S. De Witt Clough, president, will reply, while James Hopkins of Waukegan and Miss Lorraine Henderson of Lake Forest, two employés, will accept the award. The navy band will play and a color guard will assist in raising the E pennant.

The E pennant is given as a merit award to corporations who have had outstanding production records in filling orders for the army and navy.

BANQUET OPENS WHITNEY RACE ON NORTH SIDE

Uptown - Edgewater Area to Have Hot Fight.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

About 1,000 guests attended a banquet last week which officially launched the campaign of Emerson C. Whitney for state senator in the 31st [Uptown-Edgewater] district. As Republican nominee and 48th ward committeeman, Whitney is up against Milton D. Smith for the seat vacated by Harold G. Ward, Democrat elevated to the Superior court.

A struggle for the office is certain. Sen. Ward was the legislative spokesman for Mayor Kelly, and the Democratic organization choice as his successor is a former assistant state's attorney with a record of prosecution in famous murder trials. On the other hand, Gov. Green is determined to add the seat to the G. O. P. list since his senate majority is slender and threatened with possible losses elsewhere.

Watkins Presides at Dinner.

This responsibility did not appear to weigh heavily on Whitney at the banquet in the La Salle hotel. The 32 year old nominee is supervisor of complaints for the state department of registration and education.

Proceeds of the dinner at $5 a plate are to be used to aid his campaign.

Ferre Watkins, president of the Union League club, was toastmaster. In part, Watkins described the guest of honor as "writer, poet, playwright, actor, and singer." John T. Dempsey, chairman of the Cook county Republican central committee, said that after years as a precinct captain, Whitney had taken the helm in the 48th ward and given Republicanism there an upward trend.

"His ability is particularly suited to the senate, where he will have a brilliant career," Dempsey said. "I also admire his personal characteristics of clear thinking and hard hitting methods. He has provoked a good deal of comment and thought."

Others Bestow Praise.

Others who heaped praise upon Whitney included Dr. John A. Lapp, chairman of the Chicago Civil Liberties committee; Ralph E. Church, former congressman seeking to regain that office, Dr. Max Thorek, and former Judge Edgar A. Jonas, whom Whitney a week earlier sought to put on a coalition ticket.

Dr. Lapp said he would like to split his ticket in November to help Whitney, and Church described him as "the answer to chaos on the north side."

Dempsey was the only one of the scheduled principal speakers able to attend the affair. Gov. Green and Lieut. Gov. Cross had to attend a state defense council meeting; National Committeeman Werner Schroeder was in Kankakee, and Hill Blackett, former national committeeman, had business elsewhere.

However, the throng was great, seated at more than 125 tables in the Grand ballroom and even included one of Whitney's eight primary rivals, Lionel G. Thorsness.

Applause Greets Candidate.

Whitney's speech was the main event of the evening. Coming last, it provoked not only applause but cheers from his followers.

"I've been working hard to try to keep up with the Kelly-Nash politicians. They usually are able to get at least two terms, one in office and one in jail," Whitney quipped.

"I am proud that the Republican party in Illinois is a party responsible to no machine. I am proud of the liberal leaders who came to this Republican affair tonight, and of the organizations and the things they represent. They represent the ideas for which we are fighting today."

Whitney said this nation was founded by "fighting radicals," and said that this war is a fight for "the economic freedom of the entire world."

Now in progress, he said, is "an amazing, magnificent revolution in science, farming, medicine, engineering, and ideas" and we must "ride the whirlwind or be sunk by it."

FIRST DISTRICT

In this district, including the downtown area as far north as the river, Hobart E. Neff, Republican nominee for senator, is reported to be making important headway by obtaining hundreds of jobs in private industry for men and women who are eager to work. Lawrence E. Dowd, handbook attorney, is the Democratic nominee.

Neff's efforts to nullify Democratic results of the old-fashioned tax supported political patronage system are drawing considerable attention. The hustling newcomer is working with Bernard S. [Bun] Black, 1st ward leader of the Business Men's committee, to stir up Republican potentialities here.

This is the gist of remarks being made to citizens in meetings by Neff.

Rep. Ernest A. Greene, a Republican Negro member of the house, predicted that his party will elect Neff and two out of three representatives.

"It's the first time in my 10 years in politics that any one has done anything for these people," Rep. Greene said.

Industry Gains Workers.

Several large companies, including a railroad, have found that Neff and Black will go to a lot of trouble to find the man power—and woman power—they need. A University of Chicago graduate, Neff said he is devoting twice the two hours a day to the task which he promised primary voters he would put in if nominated.

Sen. Daniel A. Serritella, defeated by Neff in the primary, told THE TRIBUNE last week that he is all thru with Democratic deals. The Republican 1st ward committeeman pointed out that the Democrats hadn't aided him in April and said he would "take off my coat and go to work for the whole G. O. P. ticket."

Rep. Greene is teamed with Edward A. Welters, business man and former dentist, against Rep. Daniel M. Flanigan and Corneal A. Davis. Both Flanigan and Davis are Democratic pay rollers, in addition to their $5,000 a biennium elective offices.

Build Steps to Bahai Temple

Construction work on the circular steps approaching Bahai temple in Wilmette has been started. The project will complete the exterior of the nine sided shrine. Four or five years' work remaining on the interior has been postponed for the duration of the war.

Wilmette Betrothal

Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Gonzalez of Wilmette have announced the engagement of their daughter, Lois Audrey Gonzalez, to Stanley D. Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Fisher of Glencoe. The young couple is planning a November wedding.

ACCIDENTS SHOW 5 INTERSECTIONS ARE HAZARDOUS

Motor Club Lists Spots on North Side.

Five intersections on the north side are particularly hazardous, engineers of the Chicago Motor club reported to the North Area council at its meeting in the Edgewater Beach hotel last week. The report was based on the number of accidents during the first seven months of 1942.

The intersections listed as dangerous were Irving Park road and Western avenue; Lawrence, Lincoln, and Western avenues; Addison street and Ashland avenue; Clybourn and Damen avenues at Diversey parkway, and Ashland and Foster avenues.

Hazard for Pedestrians.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, pointed out that at one of these intersections, Lawrence-Lincoln-Western, eight of the 23 injury accidents involved pedestrians, indicating that the complexity of the crossing layout creates a special hazard for pedestrians. He adds this problem may be caused in part by persons heedlessly dashing thru traffic while transferring from one street car to another.

Figures, secured from Leslie J. Sorenson, city traffic engineer, also indicate that there were eight rear-end collisions and four right-angle collisions, which, according to council members, show lack of attention and excessive speed on the part of motorists.

At the intersection of Irving Park road and Western avenue four of the injury accidents involved pedestrians. At Addison street and Ashland avenue only two of the injuries were to pedestrians. Twenty accidents with 11 driver or rider injuries was the seven months' total at this corner.

12 Mishaps at Ashland-Foster.

Council members decided, after studying the 12 accidents at Ashland and Foster avenues, that traffic signals facing southbound or westbound travel are hidden frequently by natural obstacles, parked trucks or other vehicles.

It was also announced at the meeting by Joseph J. Butler, superintendent of streets, that "slow" signs at Wolcott avenue and Roscoe street would be raised in order to make them visible from all directions.

Those attending the meeting were Harry W. Delano, North Avenue Business Builders' association; William C. Calvert, North Central association; Walter E. Carlson, North Town Improvement association; Charles R. Drake, Ravenswood Kiwanis club; Harry Porter Jr., traffic engineer, state highway department; L. S. Sanders, Northwestern university; George Seebacher, North End Improvement association of the 45th ward, and James M. Wing, Edgewater-Uptown Civic council.

Move Hospital Unit.

Northwestern university's General hospital No. 12, which was stationed at Camp Custer, Mich., beginning in February, has been transferred to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis, Ind.

HOMES LOCATED FOR DOUGLAS AIR PLANT OFFICIALS

Families of supervisors and executives of the Douglas Aircraft company who will come here from California to work in the new plant under construction south of Des Plaines are practically assured of finding homes to rent or buy, according to George H. Hazel, 850 Lake Shore drive, who is in charge of the company's home placement service.

"It's a lot of work finding places for them," Hazel said last week, "but we have found them. Many vacancies in Chicago and environs are created by service men's families who leave this area."

About 60 California families have already settled here, Hazel said, representing approximately 20 per cent of the number expected in the executive position classification. Monthly rentals paid by them range from $40 to $200, Hazel reported. Homes were found in Arlington Heights, Prospect Heights, Park Ridge, Edison Park, Des Plaines, Glenview, Evanston, and surrounding territory.

Des Plaines has the largest group so far, Hazel reported. "We received a warm welcome from Mayor Charles Garland of Des Plaines, and from other city and civic bodies," he said. The coöperation of officials and citizens there has made his job a pleasant one, Hazel added. He has two assistants in his office.

To give incoming California families an idea of what types of homes are available, the Chicago real estate board has taken 72 pictures of typical homes. They will be included with other information in a brochure to be sent west.

Mission 65 Years Old.

The Pacific Garden mission at 630 South State street will celebrate its 65th birthday with daily meetings beginning today and continuing thru Saturday.

SORORITY GROUP TO HEAR REPORT OF CONVENTION

Kappa Alpha Alumnae to Meet in Winnetka.

Evanston and north shore alumnae of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority will meet for a 1 o'clock luncheon Wednesday in the home of Mrs. D. H. McMaster, 32 Warwick road, Winnetka. Mrs. Clarke F. Smaha, president, will open the first fall meeting of the year with a report on the national convention held in June in Chicago.

Mrs. W. M. Branch will be luncheon chairman and Mrs. John B. Phillips will give a short musical program.

Mrs. Arthur L. Reinske, second vice president, and Mrs. Herbert W. Stoetzel, social chairman, have planned the monthly meetings. On Oct. 14 the alumnae chapter will assist the Theta Mothers' club in giving a tea for new Northwestern pledges and their mothers in the home of Mrs. William O. Campbell, 12 Milburn park, Evanston.

Movies of the Glacier National park will be shown at the luncheon meeting Nov. 18 when Mrs. Richard F. Norton of Glencoe will entertain. Founders' day will be celebrated in January and a dessert bridge party is scheduled for Feb. 10 at the Theta house.

C. D. Wagstaff will talk on landscape gardening at the March 10 meeting in the home of Miss Helen Sargent of Evanston. Mrs. Robert R. Glenn will present a book review on April at the luncheon meeting in the home of Mrs. Charles Carey of Glencoe. The final meeting will be May 12 in the home of Mrs. William F. Horsting of Wilmette. A program of readings will be presented by Miss Beverly Taylor.

The Theta war relief sewing group which has had bimonthly meetings during the summer will continue as a unit during the winter under direction of Mrs. William J. Lavery.

Lambda alumnae chaper of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority will open its season with a fashion show at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the chapter house in Evanston. The show has been arranged by Mrs. Charles S. Cline, 1545 Glenlake avenue, program chairman, and the models will be undergraduate and alumnae members.

Mrs. Edward F. Schmidt, 1334 Birchwood avenue, is president. Officers assisting her are Mrs. Charles S. Cline, vice president; Mrs. Mahlon Mowery, 1314 Elmdale avenue, secretary; Mrs. Walter Everhart of Glen Ellyn, treasurer; Mrs. Earl B. Terrill, 4207 North Kedvale avenue, social chairman; Mrs. Elmer D. Oberg of Wilmette; Mrs. Kelvin Booty, Evanston, camp chairman; Mrs. J. C. Butler, 6269 North Knox avenue, publicity chairman, and Miss Helen Heggie, 3500 Lake Shore drive, editor.

Evanston alumnae of Alpha Chi Omega sorority will meet tomorrow with Mrs. Wayman C. Jackson at the Three Arts club, Chicago. Mrs. Harry S. Keller of Evanston will be the assistant hostess.

Helen Cashion Wed to Lieutenant

Miss Helen Marie Cashion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Cashion of 1046 Loyola avenue, recently became the bride of Lieut. John W. Hawekotte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Hawekotte, 7619 Sheridan road. The ceremony was performed at Fort Knox, Kentucky, after Lieut. Hawekotte's graduation from army officers' training school. The bride was graduated from Mundelein college and her husband is an alumnus of Loyola university. They are now residing in Palm Springs, Cal., where Lieut. Hawekotte is stationed. [Carlos Photo.]

CATHOLIC CLUB TO HEAR WORKER IN DISASTER AID

Wilmette Women Open Year Wednesday.

Mrs. Charles Krutchoff, Chicago chairman of the Red Cross disaster relief closet, will be the guest speaker at the opening meeting of the Woman's Catholic club of Wilmette, Wednesday. The meeting will begin at 2 o'clock in the Woman's clubhouse.

Mrs. A. C. Shepanek. [Merrill Chase Photo.]

Music will be provided by the Operatic Trio composed of Miss Cleonice Montrare, soprano; Daniel Cobb, baritone, and Max Rudolph, accompanist.

Mrs. Anthony C. Sepanek is program chairman for the club year. She has arranged for Dr. Paul Minter of Northwestern university to address the club on Oct. 23 when he will show a film from the library of the American Medical association. William E. McBride will talk about "The Pursuit of Happiness Thru "Education" at the Nov. 27 meeting. Piano selections will be played by Jerome Herrick.

Talk on Careers.

The program meeting for Feb. 26 will include a book review by Mrs. O. C. McGiveney and selections by the club trio, Mrs. Robert Fontham, Mrs. Frank Haye, and Mrs. Frank Rothnic. On March 26 Lester Schloerb will address the club, "The Important Factors in Choosing a Career."

Welles Park Woman's Club.

The Welles Park club will give a victory luncheon at 12:30 o'clock, Sept. 30, in the home of Mrs. W. P. Joyce, 4874 North Paulina street. The proceeds will be donated to the Officers' Service club.

Married Recently

Miss Barbara Ahlquist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ahlquist, 1608 Sherwin avenue, is the bride of Frank Louis Savage, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Savage, 7412 North Oakley avenue.

EVANSTON YOUTH SET EXAMPLE IN COLLECTING TIN

Juvenile tinplate collectors in Evanston are setting a record for themselves. Altho a contest sponsored by the playgrounds ended three weeks ago, boys and girls of the city have continued their salvage hunt, gathering more than 600 pounds since Sept. 1.

Approximately 2,700 children between 8 and 15 years old took part in the "win with tin" salvage program which the Evanston playgrounds sponsored. Activity points toward playground letters were awarded according to the pounds each collected.

Boltwood Park Leads.

Youngsters of Boltwood park led with 725 pounds. The grand total of all the parks was 2,200 pounds. In a similar contest with rubber earlier in the summer 800 pounds were collected—half of it by the Boltwood park boys and girls. A certificate was awarded to the champion park by the local Office of Civilian Defense.

Except for several softball games yet to be played, the summer program of athletics, dramatics, and craft has ended. Plans are now under way for the fall and winter. Players from the 80 adult and junior softball teams will climax their summer league schedule with a banquet early in October.

Schedule Touch Football.

Touch football for boys between 8 and 15 years is expected to start in October, Charles T. Byrnes, playground superintendent, has announced. Other activities expected to be in full swing soon will be soccer, ping-pong, and the usual educational tours to the city fire department, police stations, water works, and other civic points.

There also will be a Halloween celebration, club work, and hikes. Each park has several clubs and separate programs are planned for each.

Aiding Benefit

Mrs. Ben Higgins, 731 Colfax avenue, Evanston, is president of the Evanston's King's Daughters who are sponsoring an annual bridge book review benefit Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 30. Proceeds from the benefit will go to a home for underprivileged girls which the group has maintained for 40 years. [Toloff Photo.]

CANNING SCHOOL AIDS EVANSTON THRIFTY WOMEN

Offer Free Instruction at Consumer Center.

For the conservation conscious housewife in Evanston there's a special service available to teach her all the tricks in preserving food. Every Tuesday from 9 to 4 o'clock the home economics room in Nicholas school is available for all Evanstonians who want to learn to can and dry fruits and vegetables.

Sponsored by the Consumer Information center of Evanston, the canning school is directed by Mrs. John Walker, a local woman who has had many years' experience in preserving fruits and vegetables. Equipped with two pressure cookers and a tin can sealing device with which she demonstrates, Mrs. Walker welcomes any one who wants to take her produce to the school and learn how to can it. Others who are interested in learning but don't have anything to can may come and watch.

20 Women Aided.

Since the school started last month Mrs. Walker has helped 20 women put up about 100 quarts of vegetables and fruits. The majority of the women are young housewives who have never preserved food before.

Mrs. Walker, who advocated the preservation of food long before the war, has put up as many as 46 gallons of strawberries and 14 bushels of tomatoes in one season. Her friends and family well know how tasty her jams and jellies are for she always gives away her surplus to neighbors and relatives. For several years Mrs. Walker has offered to teach Evanston women to can but until this year no organization had taken advantage of her offer.

She has lived 20 of her 58 years in Evanston and before that made her home in other suburban villages which also were close to farms and spacious gardens. She still has the 35 gallon brass kettle which she and her mother used in making apple butter when she was a girl.

Other Services Offered.

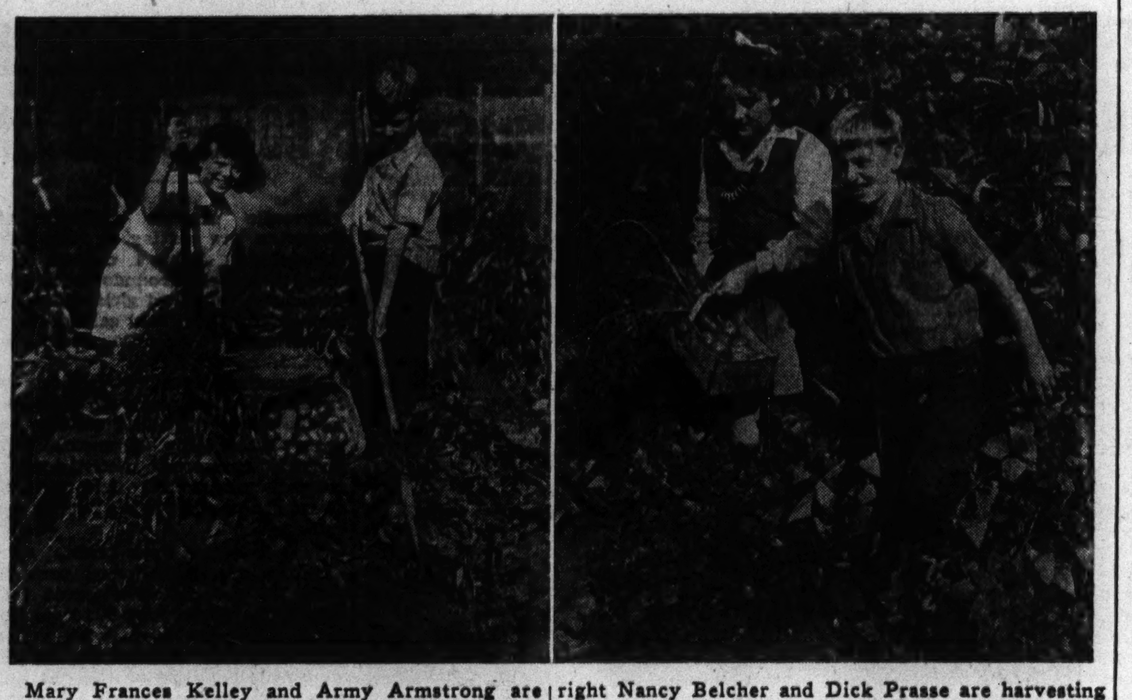
The canning school is only part of the service offered by the consumer information center. A hall in the Evanston public library filled with pamphlets and books on consumer conservation is open every day from 9 to 5 o'clock and on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings from 7 to 9 o'clock.

There also are regular group meetings with lectures and demonstrations on a variety of subjects. A few of the topics discussed in the past were "Honey as a Substance for Meal Planning," "Inflation and Price Fixing," "Significance of Labeling," "Budgeting," "Buffet Entertaining" and "Vegetable Cookery."

The meetings have been held every Wednesday but beginning soon they will be held on the first and third Monday afternoons of each month. Miss Ellen McGuire is chairman of the center. Mrs. Rolla Pribble and Mrs. Arthur Gill are in charge of the canning school.

Other women who assist with the center's activities are Mrs. Isadore Braun, Mrs. Harry Lippincott, Mrs. D. P. Busse, Mrs. M. N. Rose, Mrs. W. R. McMillan, Mrs. J. C. Blaylock, and Mrs. Margaret Brodt.

Children Have Part in War Garden Exhibit



Mary Frances Kelley and Army Armstrong are among the 24 youngsters taking part in the two day Junior Victory Garden show in Winnetka. They are sharing the harvest from their vegetable plots in the Winnetka community gardens, a project for youngsters who do not have garden space at home. At the right Nancy Belcher and Dick Prasse are harvesting a healthy crop of carrots and tomatoes from their gardens in the community project. They also are taking part in the victory garden show which is being directed by seven neighboring garden clubs.

YOUNG WINNETKA SHOWS PRODUCE OF WAR GARDENS

Twenty-four ambitious youngsters, all between the ages of 8 and 13 years, have on exhibit in the Winnetka Girl Scout rooms the fruits of their summer labors. The garden show which began yesterday and will continue until 10 o'clock tonight is a display of the beans, tomatoes, beets, corn, onion sets, and lettuce which they planted and weeded this summer in the Winnetka community gardens.

In addition there are the displays by other young horticulturists who have tended gardens at home. Parents have added basket arrangements of vegetables which they have grown and canning exhibits.

The show, however, is primarily for children. Prizes of war stamps are being awarded for two classes of exhibits. One classification calls for a variety of vegetables and flowers and the second is for displays of three of a kind. Adults are receiving ribbon prizes for their basket arrangements.

The community gardens from which most of the show's produce has come are supervised by Agate Martin under the auspices of the children's community garden committee of the local office of civilian defense. The average plot is 10 feet square altho some are as large as 20 by 40 feet. The community gardens are for those who do not have room to grow gardens at home. The children tending some of the larger plots are being assisted by their parents.

The show is under the direction of Mrs. Stephen Gregory Jr., chairman of the victory garden club committee. She also represents the Winnetka Garden club. Assisting her are representatives of six neighboring clubs.

They are Mrs. Will Kelley, garden division of the Winnetka Woman's club; Mrs. John F. Manierre, Winnetka Weeders; Mrs. Horton Conrad, Northfielders Garden club; Mrs. Arthur Moulding, Woodley Garden club; Mrs. L. M. Hamburger, North Shore Garden club, and Mrs. Thomas Knox, Garden guild.

The Brazilian state has not paid interest coupons dated from Sept. 1, 1931, thru March 1, 1934, and Sept. 1, 1937.

LENDING TO UNCLE SAM.

Do you have any late figures on how much American banks have invested in United States government obligations?—T. W.

Answer: Banks in this country had $9,752,605,000 invested in federal issues at the end of 1940, a gain of $641,379,000 since last June 30.

FORT KNOX'S GOLD.

I would like to know how much gold is buried at Fort Knox, Ky.?—P. F.

Answer: According to a recent estimate, the vaults at Fort Knox hold 14 billion dollars of gold, or about one-half of the world's monetary gold.

"Is this a good investment?"—this question and variations of it were addressed to the Investors' Guide department of the Chicago Tribune 11,267 times in 1941.

In 11,267 letters, business men, widows, bank presidents, school teachers—men and women in all walks of life—sought the Chicago Tribune's counsel and advice about securities, investments and insurance.

Inquiries of public interest were answered in the Investors' Guide column. The rest were answered by direct reply to the inquirants—making a grand total of 468,476 such replies which the department has given since its founding in 1914.

The Investors' Guide is only one of many helpful service departments which the Tribune maintains for the benefit of its readers.

Its record over the years indicates the confidence reposed by readers in the Tribune. It reflects the close, personal relationship which exists between readers and the Tribune—a relationship which accounts for the greater returns obtained by Tribune advertisers.

KOL NIDRE RITES TONIGHT USHER IN YOM KIPPUR

North Siders to Observe Day of Atonement.

Kol Nidre services will usher in Yom Kippur, the day of atonement, at Congregation B'nai Shalom, 3245 Ainslie street, at 7 o'clock this evening. Rabbi David Graubart will officiate, assisted by Cantor Moyshele Soorkis and the choir. Subject of his sermon will be "Into Thy Sanctuary."

Yom Kippur day services will be held tomorrow, beginning at 7 o'clock in the morning and ending at sundown. At the Yizkor memorial service at 11:15 o'clock tomorrow morning Rabbi Graubart will preach on "Saving Our Own Souls—the Message of Jewish Education." The synagogue will hold four major services, all under the auspices of Congregation B'nai Shalom.

The solemn notes of the Kol Nidre will usher in the Yom Kippur services at Temple Sholom at 8 o'clock tonight. Dr. Louis Binstock, rabbi, will preach on "An Act of Faith." Tomorrow morning services will begin at 10 o'clock and continue thruout the day. Rabbi Abraham Hirschberg, rabbi emeritus, will talk on "The Faith That Cannot Die." Children's services will be conducted tomorrow noon. Dr. Binstock will preach on "Falling in Love with One's Self." At 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon memorial services will be held and the sermon subject will be "Shadows of the Past."

The primary and elementary departments of the religious school will begin their 1942-'43 session at 9:45 o'clock this morning.

Yom Kippur services will begin at sunset this evening at the Agudas Achim North Shore congregation, 5029 North Kenmore avenue. The services will be chanted by Cantor Aaron Kritz and the choir under the direction of Jack Goldman. Rabbi Jacob B. Agus will speak on "Ways of Piety." Yom Kippur services will continue tomorrow morning. Preceding Yizkor, which will be held at 10 o'clock, Dr. Agus will speak on "Views of Life."

Emanuel congregation, 701 Buckingham place, will hold its Yom Kippur services at the Uptown temple, 941 Lawrence avenue, at 8 o'clock this evening. Rabbi Felix A. Levy will speak on "How to Return to God." Services tomorrow will begin at 10 o'clock. The sermon will be on "Spiritual Priorities." Memorial services will begin at 3 o'clock, when Dr. Levy will speak on "Lest We Forget." Special services for the children will be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow.

For atonement eve Dr. Jacob Singer, rabbi of Temple Mizpah, will talk this evening on "Seeking and Finding the Path of Life." On atonement morning he will discuss "A War for an Enduring Peace." At 1:30 o'clock during the children's service his topic will be "Clean Lives and Faithful Hearts." "Sunset and Evening Star" will be the subject of the concluding service tomorrow evening.

The North Shore Women's auxiliary of the B'nai B'rith will hold its meeting of the year at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Rogers Park Masonic temple, 1716 Lunt avenue. Mrs. Florence Bourke Ellis, commentator and reviewer, will speak on "Our Neighbors to the North—Canada."

Evanston YWCA to Hold Fall Leadership Parley

Miss Lilace Reid Barnes, president of the Chicago Young Women's Christian association, will be a guest tomorrow evening when the Evanston center holds its annual fall leadership conference. The year's program and the association's part in the Evanston community chest campaign will be discussed.

Mothers of St. George High Have Program Tomorrow

St. George High School Mothers' club will begin its fall program with a book review by Dorothy Posey at 2 o'clock tomorrow in the school library. A crystal tea to commemorate the 15th anniversary of the school will be served in the social room.

Makes New Home in Philadelphia

[Stone Photo.]

Mrs. Donald Williams MacAllister, 6829 Greenview avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Patricia, to Robert Lee Mueller in the chapel of the First Methodist Church of Evanston. Mrs. Mueller attended the University of Illinois. Her husband, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mueller of Anthony, Kas., received his master's degree from Illinois Institute of Technology. He now is serving with the signal corps at Philadelphia, where the couple will make their home.

OLD ST. JOSEPH'S PARISH HOLDING REUNION TUESDAY

Many of Church Join Annual Fete.

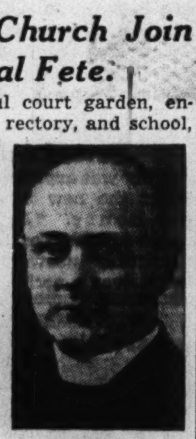
In the beautiful court garden, enclosed by church, rectory, and school, old St. Joseph's parish, 1107 Orleans street, will hold its annual picnic Tuesday afternoon and evening.



The Rev. Paul Schlimm.

Several thousand former parishioners, graduates of St. Joseph's school, are expected to attend this outstanding social event in the church. The Rev. Jerome Walsh, who recently left the parish to become prior of St. Bede's abbey in Peru, Ill., plans to return for the day. The Rev. Paul Schlimm and his assistant, the Rev. Michael Callahan, will be on hand.

Has New Members.

Once a flourishing German parish, St. Joseph's has become cosmopolitan in its membership. It is now seeing an influx of new members from the nearby Frances Cabrini homes for war workers. The first church building, erected 96 years ago, was located at Chicago avenue and Cass street. After the Chicago fire which destroyed the property, the present church was built in 1874. It is Gothic in style and widely known for its Munich stained glass windows.

Feature of the picnic day will be the chicken dinner which women of the parish will serve from 5 to 8 o'clock.

Committee members in charge of the dinner are Mrs. Creszenzia Streicher, Mrs. Agnes Doyle, Mrs. Margaret McCarter, Mrs. Anna Monroe, Mrs. Mary Kappelmeier, Mrs. Anna Hotaling, Mrs. Clara Schoentgen, Mrs. Anna Meyer, Mrs. Margaret McMannomen, Mrs. Leon Boydens, Miss Rose Kavarek, Mrs. Kate Culloton, Mrs. Frances Hackler, Mrs. Bernice Gremo, Mrs. Mildred Streicher, Mrs. Margaret Corriere, and Miss Eleanor Esposito.

More on Committees.

The grocery booth will be managed by Charles Schmal, Miss Mary Spreitzer, Miss Collette Harrington, Miss Catherine Rethington, and Robert A. Roth.

Members of the novelty booth committee are Miss Lorraine Streicher, Miss Josephine Quartuccio, Miss Mary Porto, Miss Mary Ellen Martinez, Miss Veronica Meier, and Miss Catherine Dodd.

In charge of the utility booth will be Mrs. Elizabeth Henricks, Mrs. Mary Meier, Mrs. Marie Whipps, Miss Katherine Mueller, and Mrs. Elsie Meier.

Miss Catherine Pauly and Miss Margaret Kelly are handling donations.

The refreshment committee includes William Fritsche, Barney Dodd, Edward McCarter, John Tekip Jr., John Meyer, Henry Gremo, and Joseph C. Meier.

Mrs. Nell Roth, 1137 North Franklin street, has been releasing publicity for the event.

To Take Joliet Job.

C. B. Evans, 2701 Harrison street, Evanston, will be transferred to Joliet Oct. 1 as assistant manager of the wholesale division of the Standard Oil company of Indiana. He formerly was assistant manager of the wholesale sales division in Chicago.

LEAVES, CHANGES AFFECT 42 NORTH SIDE TEACHERS

Three Enter War Service; 36 Away for Study.

Forty-two changes have resulted in north side public school teaching staffs this fall because of three military leaves, three teacher transfers, and 36 sabbatical leaves, the board of education has announced.

Military leaves were given to M. Dean David, former Lane Technical High school teacher, who is a captain in the army motor transport; William J. White of Washburne Trade school, who has entered the navy, and Joel F. Walters of the Stockton lower vocational center, who became a draftsman in the United States ordnance office, Washington, D. C.

Three Change Schools.

Teacher transfers were as follows: Vina C. Fenton from Orr vocational center to Jenner vocational center; Myrtle M. Mills from Barry to Alcott school, and Margaret K. Stringer from May to Stewart school.

Evanston Business Women Open Session Tomorrow

Members of the Evanston Business and Professional Women's club will resume their fall meetings at 6:15 o'clock tomorrow in the First Methodist church house. Delegates will discuss the state B. P. W. convention held in Peoria early in the summer and plans for the fall club program will be discussed.

Attend Golden Wedding Band Session

Mr. and Mrs. Arba Andrus and their grandson, Jack Weigel, all of Waukegan, were guests at the recent National Golden Wedding Band convention. The couple has been married 52 years. Mrs. Andrus is holding a 250 year old Bible which was brought to this country by one of her ancestors, Capt. John Calder, at the time of the Boston tea party.

MAJ. R. E. HANLEY TO BE ACADEMY ALUMNI SPEAKER

Maj. Richard E. Hanley, United States marine corps, and former football coach at Northwestern university, will be the guest speaker of Northwestern Military and Naval academy alumni when they hold a special dinner at 6 o'clock Tuesday in the Union League club.

Maj. R. E. Hanley.

Lieut. Col. Carleton Hill, marine corps, also will attend, and other guests will include Maj. F. L. Beals, former commandant of Northwestern academy, Lake Geneva, Wis., and now assistant superintendent of schools, Chicago; Bishop Wallace E. Conkling; A. B. Lewis, academy superintendent; the Rev. James Howard Jacobson, assistant superintendent, and Lieut. Col. M. A. Joyce, newly appointed professor of military science and tactics.

Marines will demonstrate how their latest training will make the Japs "Remember Pearl Harbor." Novelty and professional acts are on the evening's program. Willett Miller, 111 West Washington street, alumni president, has charge of reservations.

Welles Park Club.

Welles Park Woman's club will meet Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. W. P. Joyce, 4874 North Paulina street.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS TALKS PLANNED AT LAKE FOREST

Lake Forest college will offer a series of night lectures this winter called the institute of public affairs. A reading background and consultation periods with the college faculty will precede each of the meetings.

The speakers will include Max Lerner, professor of government at Williams college; Helen Kirkpatrick, foreign correspondent; Lieut. Comm. Carlos Faller, former chief of staff of the Colombia navy; Hallett Abend, foreign correspondent, and Robert Kazmayer, radio news commentator.

The topics to be discussed will be "The Citizen's Intellectual Responsibility," "Problems of the Postwar World," "Pan-American Relations," "The United States and the Far East," and "America's Future."

Altenheim Auxiliary Giving Anniversary Tea Saturday

The Junior auxiliary of Altenheim, German Old People's home, will hold its 13th anniversary tea at 2 o'clock Saturday at the home of Mrs. Emil J. Dirks, 211 Central avenue, Wilmette. Altenheim, located at 7825 Madison street, in Forest Park, is the residence of some 300 elderly persons.

Block to Stage Dance to Buy First Aid Kits

Block 4 of zone 6, community 17, will give a street dance and party Saturday evening to raise money to purchase first aid kits for each of the streets by which it is bound—Clark street, Greenleaf avenue, Ravenswood avenue, and Estes avenues.

WOMEN CHANGE THEIR DIET FOR 2 GOOD REASONS

Women are growing accustomed to limited use of sugar, automobiles and aluminum, but some north shore women are going a step farther. They are conserving calories and considering it part of the war effort. Miss June Wilson, a tearoom hostess on the north side, says women's tastes in diet have changed. Salads are taking the place of creamed chicken dishes and fresh fruits are gaining popularity over pastries.

"Dieting has become more than merely a fad during these critical war days," she said. "They are dieting not only so their Red Cross and civilian defense uniforms will fit them flatteringly, but also because calories saved by civilians are calories saved for the armed forces. They are avoiding fried meats, pork, potatoes, beans and lima beans and taking more of salads.

Conscious of the threatened meatless days ahead, however, Miss Wilson reported, many of the women customers are skipping meat on the menu and are asking for vegetable plates instead. Eggplant steak is becoming one of the favorites with Miss Wilson's women customers.

FOR SHOW WITH SPIRIT TRY 'ON STAGE, CHANUTE'

W-G-N Presents Airmen Tuesday Nights.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

One of the brightest of the many soldier and sailor shows that ride the kilocycles nowadays comes from the USO center in Rantoul, down in the midst of Illinois' cornfields. It's called "On Stage, Chanute," and if your aren't listening to it at 7:30 p. m. Tuesdays on W-G-N you're missing some of the best band music and choral singing on the air.

It's all provided, of course, by the men of the air forces at big Chanute field, which overshadows little Rantoul. Busy as they are training for flying servies the men devote a lot of time and energy to broadcast the shows. It takes a lot of planning and long hours of rehearsal to develop these entertainments and put them together. We found that out by visiting Rantoul.

Many Problems Encountered.

Producer Morrison Wood and Francis Coughlin, who writes the script, spend about half the week on these shows. Coöperating with Maj. M. F. Ranney, in charge of public relations, and Capt. Francis E. Hammond, in charge of music, they recruit the talent well in advance. Wood and Coughlin had already conducted preliminary rehearsals when we arrived.

And Max Bear, W-G-N engineer, and Announcer Lee Bennett [formerly a singer with Jan Garber's orchestra] were on hand for final rehearsals. Incidentally, an engineer gets a terrific workout on such shows put on from "remote" spots more than a hundred miles from the studio. Each week he has to lug down a lot of heavy special equipment. And he encounters a lot of knotty problems the studio technician escapes altogether.

In fact such impromptu shows are tough work for the producer, the announcer, the musical director, and it requires the closest coöperation among all to bring forth the smooth shows they do.

The flavor of the Chanute shows comes mainly from the fine musical groups that have been developed there. There's the really top band, with a nucleus of alumni from the great University of Illinois band. Band Leader Eugene Dieter gives a Sousa march a master touch. A half dozen men have been taken from the personnel of the band lately and been made army bandmasters elsewhere.

Choral Singing Featured.

You won't hear any better choral singing anywhere than that of the Chanute Wing chorus, directed by Capt. Hammond. Loudest applause for its performance came from Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production, who was a guest at the broadcast. In fact, after the show MacGregor joined some of the men in a little impromptu close harmony session. Stuart Piggins, who plays the piano for this group, was formerly an accompanist for Gladys Swarthout and the director of the Sunday Evening Hour chorus on CBS.

The Four Techs, composed of Sergt. Johnny Oliver, Privates Alex Drazba, Joe Bianco, and Ben Lorry give out the kind of rhythm that would be recognized as A1 in any swing circle.

Chanute seems to have everything in the realm of music. Sergt. Jay Froman and Pvt. Joseph Guervo really know what to do with grand opera.

The weekly interviews with soldiers help to give prospective airmen a glimpse of what goes on at Chanute. Last Tuesday Technical Sergt. Paul B. Van Horn got down to business on the subject of propellers.

A rousing medley of World War I. tunes, with Lieut. Norma Brooks of the army nurse corps as soloist, tied the show all up in a bow.

SEN. BROOKS' SAFETY ADDRESS ON W-G-N TONIGHT

An address by Sen. Wayland Brooks on "Safety in Peace and War" will be broadcast at 11:30 o'clock tonight by W-G-N and the Mutual network from a civilian defense rally at Moline, Ill. The rally will be held by the Illinois State Council of Defense. Sen. Brooks will urge safety in war factories and on the highways.

W-G-N TO AIR NEW SERVICE MEN'S NIGHT CLUB SHOW

A new program for service men will make its debut on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Wednesday, when the Service Men's show is broadcast from the eighth floor night club of the Chicago Service Men's center at 176 West Washington street.

The musical novelty group, the "Hoosier Hot Shots," and the comedy team of "Tom, Dick, and Harry" will be regular attractions of the program and are scheduled to be heard each week along with visiting guest artists. The object of the program will be the entertainment of the service men who will be attending the night club at the service center.

First guest artist on the new weekly program will be Edna O'Dell, W-G-N singing star. Many singing stars of stage and radio are scheduled to appear as guests on the program.

The "Hoosier Hot Shots" are well known to the listening audience as a featured attraction of the National Barn Dance program for many years and as guest artists on numerous network programs. The novelty group features Frank Kettering, bass player who is heard on W-G-N supplying the bass background for Hugh Carson. Others in the musical combine are Gabe Ward, clarinet; Hezzie Trietsch, musical washboard, and Ken Trietsch, guitar.

Period Furniture.

Andy was explaining to Amos [CBS] about the new furniture he had in his house. "Period furniture?" asked Amos. "Yes, indeed, it is period furniture," answered Andy, "I pay for it over a period of years."

PLAYING ENEMY TARGETS IS CAP SQUADRON DUTY

125 Amateur Pilots Give Sky Harbor Service.

Approximately 125 north shore men and women are playing the part of enemy targets and don't mind a bit. Equipped with planes these amateur flyers and civilian pilots spend from three to six hours in the air at a time—all for the benefit of the gunners and airplane spotters at Fort Sheridan.

This group of patriotic civilians makes up the 611-1 squadron of the civil air patrol stationed at Sky Harbor. Each day Frank Hlavacek or Dick Howell tow targets over the gun range of Fort Sheridan while others patrol planes for tracking by the anti-aircraft guns.

Altho the squadron has lost 25 per cent of its personnel to the army air corps, it maintains an average unit of 100 men and 25 women. Only 27 of the flyers own their planes. The others rent theirs. So far their services have been voluntary and as one flyer puts it:

"Since so many of us are past the air corps age limit we are donating our time the best way we can."

1917-'18 Flyers Enrolled.

Many of the men were flyers in the first World war. They are all business men coming from various trades and professions. One is an undertaker, another a florist. Many others have offices in the loop. Many of the women are married and have families. They are all doing their utmost to help win the war.

In addition to flying every day they have undertaken an extensive educational program and go on special flying missions for the army. For target flying they tow a large canvas sack 12 feet long and three feet in diameter. The target is attached to the plane by a 1,800 foot long sash cord.

The squadron takes its work seriously. The squad members wear the official uniforms of the civil air patrol and have the insignia stamped on their planes. The educational program includes three night classes a week and Saturday and Sunday lectures. Two nights a week they attend classes on the Northwestern university campus and other classes are held at the airport.

Intensive Training Given.

After completing their course in aviation meteorology they will study communications. Other courses include defense against gases, first aid, interior guard duty, army, navy, and air corps organizations, navigation, maneuver drills, and aerial photography. After they finish the prescribed courses new ones will be added.

The target towing ship was donated by Harold Mattis and Parnell S. Billings. The plane is a Travelair biplane with a 225 horse power motor. Other parts of their equipment are a first aid and crash truck and an aerial ambulance, donated by Norman Scott and H. G. Garvey.

One of the biggest events during last month was a week-end maneuver to Lake Delton airport in Wisconsin. Fifty-two airplanes and more than 100 civil air patrol members participated. Ground crews were on hand to direct and stake down the ships as they arrived and military police were furnished by each squadron and assigned to guard duty under an officer of the day. Squadron staff photographers recorded the maneuvers.

Squadron Officers Listed.

E. H. Darrell, a flyer with 3,000 hours to his credit, is the squadron commander. His officers are R. E. Howell, executive officer; Ed Seipp, adjutant; G. G. Button, personnel; Dr. Joseph Zabokrtsky, medical; George Dunlap, intelligence; Kenneth Dennett, public relations; Milton Friend, training; Frank Hlavacek, operations; W. L. Cratty, equipment and supplies; Garvey, transportation, and B. L. Frost, communications.

The deputy officers are P. H. Fieberg, Dorothy Doty, Marshall Doty, Harold Sagert, John Wineman, and Jack Bobera.

The 611-1 squadron at Sky Harbor is one of three on the north and west sides of Chicago. The other two are located at Elmhurst and Palwaukee. The civil air patrol is organized into 48 wings, one for each state. The Illinois wing has eight groups and Chicago is one of them.

The Illinois wing commander is Robert K. Belt. There are approximately 3,000 members in Illinois, of whom 60 per cent are pilots. About one-sixth are women.

Builds Annex to His Trailer for Duration

William Kennedy pauses before his "trailer-house," the first, he says, in the country. Beginning in May Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy built the Skokie village cottage, making their trailer a part of it. The trailer, which forms the back side, is felted and sealed to the house, resulting in perfect insulation. But still, Mr. Kennedy assures his friends, it has been so constructed that the trailer can be driven away after the war.

SIGN A PROMISSORY NOTE, PAY IT WITH VOTE, G. O. P. IS ASKING

A promissory vote campaign, in which voters are being asked to sign notes payable by their voting in the Nov. 3 election, has been launched by the New Trier Republican club, it was announced by the president, Edmund W. Burke. The plan was originated by Kenneth S. Ramsay, chairman of the committee in charge, aided by Edward C. Hintzpeter. It has the approval of Werner W. Schroeder, national G. O. P. committeeman, and Ben L. Berve, chairman of the Republican state central committee, who said it may be used thruout the state.

The notes are being distributed thruout the township and copies are being sent all servicemen from the four New Trier villages—Wilmette, Kenilworth, Winnetka, and Glencoe. Return calls to all signers will be made just before election to remind them of their pledges.

The note reads: "On Tuesday, Nov. 3, 1942, after date, I promise to vote in order to maintain the freedom for which our sons are fighting and to fulfill my duty to my country as a citizen at . . . Value received—honest and intelligent men in public office."

JUNIOR SCHOOL FRIENDS TO MEET AT KENILWORTH

The third annual garden luncheon of the Evanston Friends of the Chicago Junior school will be held at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home of Mrs. Howard D. Schaeffer, 212 Raleigh road, Kenilworth.

The luncheon, marking the beginning of the society's monthly fall meetings, will be highlighted by a talk on China by Mrs. Kenneth D. McAfee of Wilmette. Dressed in a Chinese costume she will tell about her experiences there and describe the gardens and how they influence Chinese philosophy. The program will be supplemented by piano selections played by the hostess's 12 year old daughter, Betty.

The club expects to collect $60 from its members for the school's scholarship fund. Each year the club contributes $3,000 or more to the school's fund and maintenance. This money is collected from the members' contributions, rummage sales, and other benefits sponsored by the Evanston Friends. The Chicago Junior school, an elementary school for approximately 50 boys who come from broken homes, is in Elgin. Preliminary plans are now under way for the six groups to sponsor a concert by the St. Louis Symphony in November.

30 New Autos for City Police Lead Week's Ration Allowance

Permits for purchase by the police department of 30 new cars boosted total car permits for the north side to 66 in the week ending Sept. 12, according to rationing board records. Sixty-five individuals were allowed one car each. Forty-six permits were allowed the previous week.

Eighty-two persons and companies received permits for 243 truck and passenger tires and tubes, including 53 passenger tires, 84 passenger tubes, 73 truck tires, and 33 truck tubes.

TRAILER NOMADS TOSS OUT ANCHOR TILL WAR'S OVER

Use House on Wheels as Nucleus of Cottage.

Grounded for the duration! This is the fate of native American nomads—those ex-salesmen, skilled tradesmen, farmers, bankers or brokers who've been roaming the land in trailers.

But it is not the hardship one might suspect. Most trailerites have covered the wonders of America and chosen their favorite sites. Now they are content to settle down on them until the war is over, with just one reservation—that they may go on living in their trailer homes.

Trial and Error Home.

The Kennedys are like that. Native Chicagoans, they have traveled the highways from Chicago to Texas, thru Arizona to Mexico, thru the ghost towns of California to Washington and Oregon. They've followed the Gulf coast and camped in Florida's de luxe trailer parks. Now they're at home, close to friends and family, on Golf road, a few miles west of Evanston, in the country's first trailer-house.

William Kennedy and his wife began construction of their permanent war quarters in May of this year. Neither one had had any previous experience in building, and so they built by the trial and error method.

The idea originated with Mr. Kennedy. He thought, "Why not build a small cottage and make the trailer a part of it?" Husband and wife found an ideal corner of land, shady with old trees, and arranged to rent it. The hard work of planning began. For a time one problem seemed insurmountable! How to build the little wooden house around an apple tree standing square in the middle of the clearing. After much computation, the problem was solved.

Seal Trailer Windows.

Every nail in the new house, which the couple moved into in August, was pounded in either by Mr. or Mrs. Kennedy. They consulted no builders or architects. By what Mr. Kennedy calls his "patented process," the door of the trailer and its two windows which open into the living room were felted and sealed so that the entire unit is weatherproof.

On the cottage side are living room and bedroom. The trailer portion houses the dining room, kitchen and dressing room. Morning glories, carefully nurtured by Mrs. Kennedy, climb the walls of the white and green cottage.

"Even after the war" say the confirmed trailerites, "it will be good to have our own trailer-house when we're tired wandering."

NEW YORK TENOR WILL BE GUEST ON MELODY HOUR

Mario Berini to Sing with Miss Claire.

Mario Berini, young New York tenor, will make his network debut Saturday, singing opposite Marion Claire, soprano, on W-G-N and Mutual's "America Loves a Melody" program to be aired from 8 to 9 p. m.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Berini, a newcomer to the concert world, has recently completed a successful concert tour of the east. He will have three solo selections on the program, singing Romberg's "Your Land and My Land," Campbell Tipton's "A Spirit Flower," and Lehar's "Yours Is My Heart Alone."

Miss Claire will offer four solo selections, Romberg's "The Same Silver Moon," "Il Est Doux, Il Est Bon" from Massenet's "Herodiade," Foster's "The Americans Come," and "The Lost Chord" by Sullivan.

Musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra conducted by Henry Weber and by the chorus under direction of Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production, will be the producer.

The chorus will offer two selections, Lieurance's "By the Waters of the Minnetonka" and Steininger's "Marching Along Together." The orchestra will play Délibes' "Czardas" from "Coppelia Ballet," and Herbert's "Indian Summer."

Two of the selections, "By the Waters of the Minnetonka" and "Indian Summer" will be accompanied by dramatic playlets drawn from $25 prize winning letters written by the radio audience telling true stories behind their favorite songs.

North Shore Alpha Delta Pi Alumnae Meet Tomorrow

Members of the North Shore Alumnae of Alpha Delta Pi sorority will meet at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for a luncheon with Miss Tish Ramey, 1625 Hinman avenue, Evanston. Bridge will be played in the afternoon.

Assistant ROTC Instructor Appointed at Lake View

Sergt. John N. Siefert has been named from the staff of Col. William F. Morrison of the Chicago public schools to be assistant military instructor at Lake View High school. Master Sergt. Alford D. Lee is instructor.

NURSING SCHOOL GETS U. S. GRANT FOR EXPANSION

St. Francis Nursing school in Evanston will receive a government grant toward expenses for the expansion of its physical and educational facilities. The grant was announced by Sister M. Gertrudis, director.

Because of the increasing army and navy calls for nurses, the school decided to accept 76 new enrollees this year, as compared with the 1941 class of 41.

But before the largest class in the school's history could begin training, it was necessary to provide expanded living quarters, enlarged classrooms, and a larger staff of instructors.

The new nursing arts classroom will accommodate 62 students. The dietetics laboratory, transferred to the hospital ground floor, will accommodate 16 instead of 12 students as formerly. An echoproof ceiling has been installed in the general classroom. Expansion of the living quarters has not been completed, and the girls are "doubling up." More adequate housing should be available by the end of the month.

Sister M. Regis and Florence Larson will direct clinical instruction and supervision this year. Sister M. Gertrudis will be assisted by Miss J. Blanche Payne, who is also instructor in the social and biological sciences.

Academy Mothers to Hear De Paul University Head

If you have, why kindly call the Skokie Valley Laundry. We lost it last week and Mr. Jones is hotter than a basted turkey. It seems like this particular pair of red socks had become an intimate part of Jones' very soul. Every time he put them on, the squirrel fever (romantic urge) in him went 50% above parity. Being one of the few eligible bachelors still remaining (A. D. After Draft) he wanted to extract the last drop of red dye from them before donning the khaki of Uncle Sam.
During this same week, Skokie Valley Laundry handled approximately 485,000 pieces of linen and clothing. Because of a Magic system of identification, we successfully laundered, packaged and delivered these thousands of items to their owners with a minimum of loss. This in itself was a miracle of organization. Of those pieces lost some have been returned (as we're hoping Jones' red sock will be). Those items not returned will be quickly replaced or a satisfactory settlement made. We don't claim perfection—only 99½%.

HERE ARE SOME HINTS ON CARE OF YOUR FLOORS

Old Surface Can Be Made to Look Like New.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[We've prepared a leaflet on some popular types of floor finishes, and some Do's and Don'ts for proper floor refinishing. Please send a stamped, addressed envelope to this department if you wish leaflet.]

If you have a wood floor that is soiled and spotted it may be that:

1. A good paint and varnish remover will put the surface in shape for varnish, wax, or one of the new and beautiful penetrating finishes.

2. A good bleach will transform it to a blondness as modern as it is attractive.

3. Or a rented sanding machine have a new wood surface for what treatment we wish.

4. And an oxalic acid treatment can be counted on to rid a floor of dark stains and also to lighten the wood.

Prepare Old Surface.

If you wish a new floor, the chances are it can be laid over the old one, if the surface of old floor is properly prepared. There are:

1. Damp proof linoleums, asphalt tiles, dyes, and paints for basement floors; 2. linoleums for all rooms in the house and beautiful, actual wood floors in parquet block and mosaic patterns that can be laid like a rug over an existing wood floor.

If you wish to prevent surface scratching and prolong the life of the floor coating you should wax the floor frequently. It never pays to let an old floor coating become worn thru before revarnishing.

Worn spots on varnished or shellacked floors can be touched up by carrying the renewed finish to the edge and ends of the boards to make any contrast between old and new less noticeable.

Remove Old Paint Coating.

If a floor finish is to be changed from paint to stain, the old paint coating must be removed with paint and varnish remover. This is a process where directions should be followed carefully, and then when surface is clean the wood should be washed by a cloth soaked in turpentine. Then the stain can be applied and the finish coat of shellac, varnish, or wax applied.

Sometimes, but not always, it is necessary to use a paste wood filler after the paint and varnish remover, in cases where the wood is open grained. A paste wood filler can be applied directly to bare wood, according to directions on packages. Excess can be removed by rubbing coarse cloth against the grain of the wood after the filler has been on for the length of time specified.

Sand Surface Down.

If a floor finish is to be changed from stain to paint, the surface must be sanded down and well dusted and the knot holes coated with thin shellac. Sappy streaks also can be treated in this way, so there is no danger that the pitch will bleed thru to the final finish.

Then before the actual finish is to be applied the wood can be primed with one or two coats of enamel undercoater and then sanded lightly. A good grade of floor enamel can be applied for the finishing coat, and then this coat well waxed. If a painted floor is kept properly waxed it can be cleaned easily by wiping with occasional cold water.

If a floor is to be revarnished or reshellacked it should be thoroly washed, rinsed, and dried.

Tin Can Depots Established for Suburban Towns

Eight district depots, serving a total of 44 communities, have been designated as tin can collection centers outside Chicago, in territory under jurisdiction of William L. McFetridge, Chicago area salvage director.

Other depots will be set up to serve 64 more communities. This work is retarded, however, because response has been slow from community salvage chairmen asked to supply can collection data on forms furnished by the area office, McFetridge said.

To get at least 15 tons of cans a month, each depot should serve a population of about 30,000. Collection districts will be organized on this population basis when possible, salvage officials said, altho few districts designated so far are that populous.

Railroad cars used for can transport usually have capacity for 20 tons of cans and the roads refuse to take less than 15 tons in a car. A ton contains about 8,000 cans.

First monthly collections were scheduled for August in several towns, but the Winnetka district, including Wilmette, Kenilworth, Glencoe, and Northfield was the only one to make a shipment to the Gary detinning plant to which all cans in this area are destined. Winnetka shipped 40,000 pounds Aug. 12.

Several other centers are said to be nearing their minimum.

District depots have been established in communities with railroad freight facilities. Communities to contribute to each district depot are listed with the key centers:

Downers Grove—Lisle, Belmont, Fairview, Westmont, and Liberty Park.

Elmhurst—Villa Park, Itasca, Bensenville, Addison, Wooddale, and Yorkville.

Highland Park—Lake Forest, Highwood, Deerfield, Bannockburn, and Lake Bluff.

La Grange—Clarendon Hills, Western Springs, Hinsdale, La Grange Park, Brookfield, Riverside, and North Riverside.

Blue Island—Evergreen Park, Oak Lawn, and Crestwood.

Harvey—Flossmoor, Hazel Crest, and Homewood.

River Grove—Elmwood Park, Schiller Park, and Franklin Park.

Winnetka—Wilmette, Kenilworth, Glencoe, and Northfield.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 21.

Keep careful watch on plants to be used for indoor decoration. Bring them into the house immediately to avoid checking from exposure to cold nights and frost. Cacti should be removed indoors even tho many of them are entering their resting period and need reasonably low temperatures.

All plants that are growing in beds outdoors and are for indoor use should be carefully lifted and potted. See that good drain is placed in the pots, and, when potting, use a soil consisting of two parts good garden loam, one part decayed manure, and sufficient sand to provide porosity.

Cacti may be planted in half sand and soil. Do not overpot or the soil may be overwatered, with subsequent injury to the root system. Leave space for water at the top.

Tuesday, Sept. 22.

Mealybugs on house plants are among the most difficult to kill due to their protective covering of white woolly material. Many can be knocked from the plants by a stream of water under pressure, some may be lifted from the axils of the leaves with a toothpick, or washed off. Wrap a small amount of cotton on the end of a toothpick, dip it in alcohol, touch the bugs, and they will die.

Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Winter injury of evergreens is frequently caused by failure to water the plants, and permitting them to pass thru the winter in dry soil. Give the soil a good soaking if it needs it. Protect annuals that are blooming, against freezing. Transplant pansies into cold frames.

Mulching materials should be collected for use after the ground freezes to a depth of 5 or 6 inches. By waiting, and then applying the mulch, rats cannot dig in the ground at the base of the plants. By covering the ground with mulching materials, the frost will be kept in the ground during spring thaws, preventing heaving and subsequent injury.

Thursday, Sept. 24.

Shrubs and other hardy material should be obtained as soon as the nurseries can ship them, for early planting gives the plants time to become established before freezing weather. Many plants make a root growth in fall and should be planted early if possible. They will remain in the ground without injuring if planted late, but they will need mulching to prevent loosening by storms.

Friday, Sept. 25.

Plow vacant lots; sow rye, vetch, or other good cover, and turn it under in spring. This is a fine method of incorporating humus in the soil. When a bundle of shrubs is received from the nursery it should be examined, and, if dry, place the bundle in a tub and pour water on until it is soaked thru. Then plant.

If the place for the plants is not ready and the work must be delayed for a week or more, remove the plants from the packing and heel in the garden. They will keep indefinitely. When planting have each hole large enough to accommodate the roots. Firm the soil around the roots. All mutilated roots should be cut back to clean wood.

Saturday, Sept. 26.

The entire garden area within the lot line, or wherever the garden is located, should have a thoro cleaning up. Destroy all vegetation that harbors insects. Trim out dead wood from trees and shrubs, tie up vines to prevent their swaying in the wind, with the likelihood of breakage to the stems.

Plant bulbs for indoor use and remember that potted bulbs must be thoroly rooted before bringing to the light window. Arrange feeding stations for birds. Protect newly planted fruit trees against the attacks of rodents seeking food.

PUPILS LIKE 18c VICTORY LUNCH IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Government Gives Menu, Some of Supplies.

Victory lunches at 18 cents, replacing last year's 15 cent student specials in Chicago high school cafeterias, are proving popular, administrators reported after the first full week in which the lunches were offered.

Food prices have risen during the summer but the added three cents pays for more food, not merely for increased costs, Director F. D. Washam said. Student specials were planned for dietetic balance, but this year's victory lunches go a step further. Their nutrition value is measured according to a national nutrition yardstick laid down in Washington.

Supplies from Government.

The schools are getting some supplies from the federal surplus commodities administration to aid them in providing a meat or meat substitute for each meal along with raw fruit or raw vegetables, eggs three times a week, enriched or whole wheat bread, butter and milk.

Yellow vegetables are stressed for they contain vitamin A, which government bulletins say helps to prevent colds and night blindness.

Frown on Two Hamburgers.

Last year's student special included meat, potatoes, vegetables or salad and bread and butter.

Hamburgers are still available, of course. But the youth who insists on two hamburgers and a bowl of chili for lunch draws frowns.

Mr. Washam manages the cafeterias, but the victory lunches are planned by Dietician Mary Kavanaugh.

G. O. P. HELPS WORKERS TO QUIT RELIEF

BROOKS' STROKE RALLIES NEGRO VOTERS TO G.O.P.

Congress Nominees Cheered in 1st, 3d.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Intensification of G. O. P. effort in the 1st and 3d congressional districts of the south and southwest sides followed the news last week that election results in Maine and other points in the nation show a strong Republican resurgence. This same swing to the G. O. P. has been increasingly evident in the Cook county congressional districts now held by the Democrats, leaders have reported.

There was special jubilation in the 1st district, where the bulk of the city's vote is concentrated. This high optimism sprang from the immediate response shown by colored voters to congressional passage of the soldier vote bill containing an amendment exempting soldiers from eight southern states from payment of poll taxes to qualify as voters.

The poll tax amendment was introduced and fought to passage in the senate by Sen. Wayland Brooks, over the frantic protests of administration bigwigs. Colored spokesmen in the 1st district expressed their conviction that the Brooks strategy had defeated the Democrats' intention to let the poll tax issue die of inattention.

King Praises Amendment.

Former State Sen. William E. King, the Republican nominee for congress from the 1st, declared that the Brooks poll tax amendment, while it applies to all races, will most benefit colored voters who heretofore have been kept from the polls by the poll tax provisions.

"My people look upon the Brooks amendment as the first congressional redress of Negro disfranchisement in many, many years," King said. "They have seen too many token moves by the Democrats die by default to believe that anything but powerful Republican sponsorship could have forced this provision's passage.

"The amendment was a master stroke by a real statesman and an astute parliamentarian. It absolutely assures what previously was a strong likelihood—that the 1st district will return decisively to the Republican column in November."

Prescott Adds Acclaim.

Another colored leader in the 1st who hailed the Brooks amendment as a boon to his race which will boost Republican stock among Negroes everywhere in the nation was Attorney Patrick B. Prescott Jr.

"The Brooks ban on the poll tax has created a sensation among colored people all over the country," Prescott said.

"It is the most important social and political document in the lives of the colored people since the 15th amendment. The right of free suffrage is the right of self-protection by the orderly processes of law.

"The amendment's passage means that Sen. Brooks will carry every colored locality in the state for the Republican party in November."

City Hall May Drop Dickerson.

Another straw in the fair G. O. P. wind in the 1st was the report that the city hall Democrats have decided to dump Ald. Earl B. Dickerson [2d] in next year's aldermanic elections. This was seen as a move inspired by former Ald. William L. Dawson, the Democratic congressional nominee who switched his party allegiance in 1939 to become Democratic committeeman of the 2d ward.

Dickerson is an old foe of Dawson and literally snatched the council seat from the latter in 1939. Thus released from his obligations to the machine, Dickerson will be free to swing his strong personal influence in King's favor, as he has done in other King-Dawson struggles, his friends pointed out.

Busbey's Chances Rise.

Fred E. Busbey, Republican nominee in the big 3d district that takes in most of the southwest side and nearby Cook county suburbs, also saw in the Brooks amendment a big boost of his excellent chance of unseating Congressman Edward A. Kelly this year.

Busbey, a leader in veterans' activities, told members of the 15th Ward Republican Women's club last Wednesday that he was in full hearted accord with a resolution by the Illinois Republican Service Men's league at its state convention in Springfield Sunday. The resolution which Busbey helped draft, indorsed the G. O. P. state platform, praised Gov. Green and urged the reëlection of Sen. Brooks.

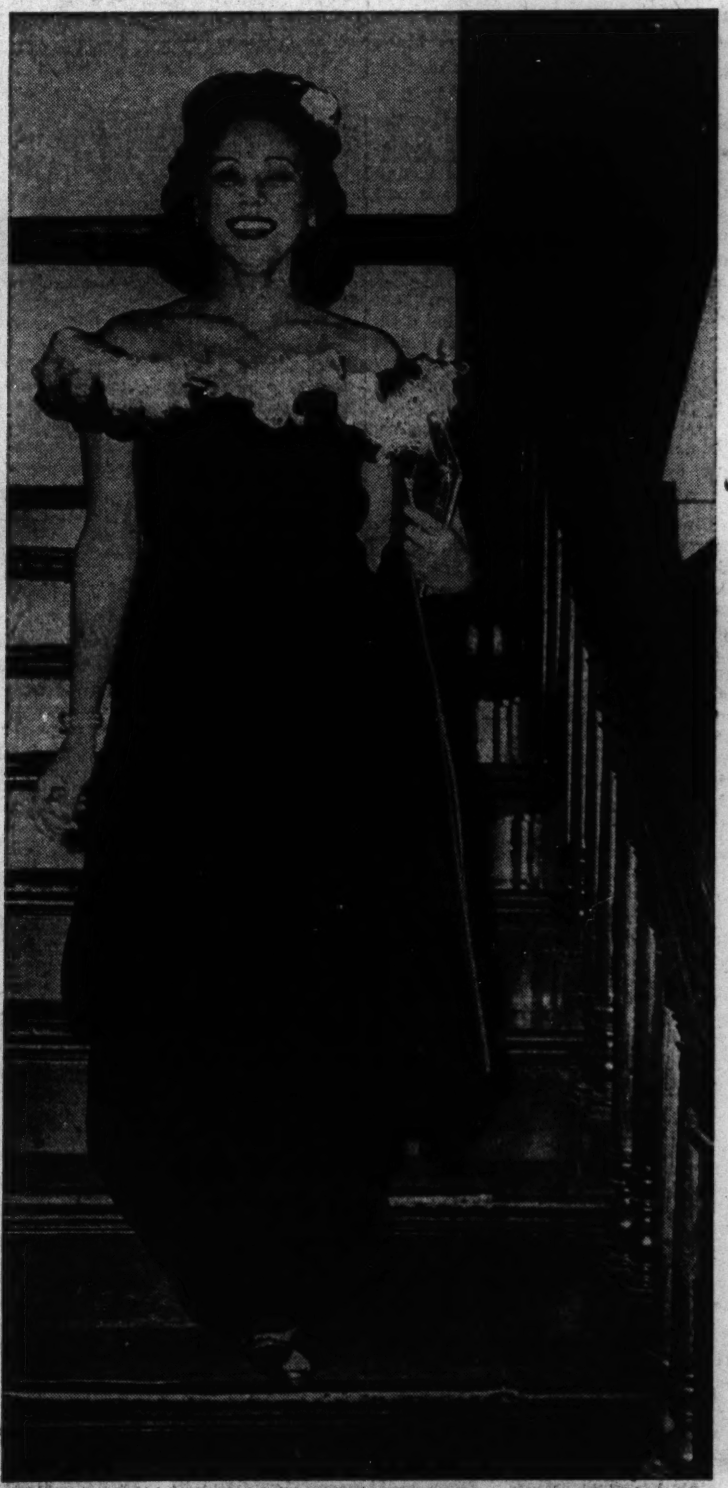
Busbey described Brooks and others high on the Republican slate as "Belleau Wood minded men" who can best act in the interest of our fighting forces because they know war from first hand experience. He emphasized a paragraph in the resolution that said, in part:

"As service men we ask our comrades in arms to examine the war records of the men who wrote the platform of the Democratic party—Kelly, Nash, Fisher, Sullivan, McKeough, Adamowski, Hodes—not one man with an honorable discharge for service to his country in time of war."

Success for Thomas J. Downs, G. O. P. nominee in the 2d district, who is running against Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] for the seat from which Congressman Raymond S. McKeough is retiring, was predicted in the August issue of The Republican, national magazine of the G. O. P. party.

Charm School Trains Delightful Hostesses for Colored Soldiers, Sailors, and Marines

Bachelor of Hostess Technique was the degree conferred upon these young women when they were graduated from what is believed to be the only school of its kind in the country—a charm school which gives a six weeks' course to hostesses at the Chicago Service Men's Center auxiliary, 5111 Calumet avenue. The motto of the school is No Wallflowers, and its purpose is to provide a good time for visiting soldiers, sailors, and marines. Miss Mildred Davis, director of the center, is presenting the diplomas. Behind her are four members of the charm school faculty: Mrs. Frances Taylor Moseley, originator and dean of the school; Miss Mary L. Hagen, Capt. Euclid Taylor, and Miss Anne T. Wolfolk. In the front row of graduates are: Beatrice Gordon, Dorothy Gibson, Evelyn Prim, Eleanor Graves, and Medora Morgan. The back row, left to right, are Gertrude Pease, Kathryn Ellison, Mary Gregory, Ann McKinney. and Vivian Lockett.



Miss Mary L. Hagan, charm school instructor, teaches the final lesson to the students in poise, personality, and fun. Her lecture is titled, "The Finished Hostess," and here as she makes the traditional ballroom entrance she demonstrates the role of the "finished hostess."

Charm School Has 200 Grads Aiding Morale

The auxiliary service men's center at 5111 Calumet avenue, has instituted a "charm school," where girls who qualify as hostesses are taught how to entertain the armed forces at center parties. Two hundred colored girls have been graduated from this college of romantic knowledge.

Motto of the school is "no wallflowers." When the young women complete the six weeks of lessons under outstanding beauticians, dancing teachers, clothiers, and even a captain from the army itself, they are given the degree of "bachelor of hostess technique."

School for Cinderellas.

At the commencement exercises, the hostesses wear white mortar boards. There are now thousands of colored soldiers and sailors in the Chicago area, and these boys, homesick for relatives and sweethearts down in Alabama or in other parts of the country, find the Calumet center a good antidote for the blues.

"Cinderella didn't have a better transformation than some of our girls received," Miss Mildred Davis, 27 year old head of the center, says in speaking of the charm school. "While food and music are essentials for a recreation center like this, the biggest thing we can offer a service man is a young lady to talk, dance, and sing with him. That is what the boys appreciate most.

"So, just like we wanted to serve the best possible food, we wanted to have the nicest possible hostesses. We picked them carefully. They had to have their applications signed by two references, one a clergyman. We tried to find girls with good personalities who were attractive in appearance.

100 Visit Fort Custer.

"But, in spite of our careful selection, we still found lots of girls standing around, while over in another corner would be a stag group of service men. Obviously, the girls in such a case weren't fulfilling their duties as hostesses. And then we decided to train our hostesses ourselves."

First big appearance of the charm school graduates was on a recent trip to Fort Custer, Michigan, when 100 girls traveled via two special railroad cars to a dance at the army post. The girls carried formal dresses with them, changed in the coaches at the end of their trip. The soldiers at the fort were astounded, then joyously appreciative at the descent of the five score of slim young maidens in formal gowns.

The girls, as previously instructed, refused to keep a partner for more than one dance. Consequently they danced with almost every colored service man at Fort Custer.

Six Parts in Course.

"The ideal hostess is attractive, courteous, responsive, well informed, enthusiastic, and attentive to all," reads the instructions issued to girls entering the college of romantic knowledge. To produce this result, the course is divided into six divisions: General health and physical education taught by a teacher from George Williams college; social

Posture and physical fitness are taught the hostesses by Miss Anne T. Wolfolk, public school physical education teacher, who here is going thru the exercises which foster a lithe, trim figure. Girls get instructions in class, but for results must carry out instructions at home daily. Two hundred young women have already completed the course, while 300 more are on the waiting list for enrollment. Students of charm are, left to right, Evelyn Prim, Kathryn Ellison, and Gloria Fairfax.

Of course, everybody knows one way to a man's heart, and here Hostess Medora Morgan, 6244 Champlain avenue, puts into practice what she learned in a charm school course on food preparation and service taught by Mrs. Lydia Beeler, a home economics instructor. The sailor was so busy being charmed, by both lunch and hostess, that he remained unidentified. He was one of a group of sailors from Camp Robert Smalls at Great Lakes Naval Training station.

"Just enough makeup to attract attention to you but not to it," is the sage advice of Instructor Mary Hagan to Hostess Phenita Ousley, 303 East 56th street, as she plies ancient feminine tools in the ultra-modern form of rascal red lip rouge. One hundred of these girls recently boarded a special train and journeyed to Fort Custer, Michigan, where they were guests of colored service men at a dance.

BLOCK TO HONOR 31 FIGHTERS AT SERVICES TODAY

A plaque bearing the names of 31 service men from one south side block will be dedicated, together with the raising of a flag, at 4 o'clock this afternoon at 85th place and Stony Island avenue. The flag and plaque were donated by William E. Keup, 8534 Blackstone avenue. A number of Scout and American Legion organizations will be present. John J. Maciejewski, 8437 Dorchester avenue, zone captain, is chairman.

Charity Card Party.

The annual charity card party of Columbanus circle of Daughters of Isabella will be held at 8 o'clock Friday at 6855 Wentworth avenue.

ILLINOIS TECH OPENS YEAR TOMORROW WITH RECORD ENROLLMENT

The third academic year of the Illinois Institute of Technology will begin tomorrow with formal registration for freshmen and other new students. Officials expect a record enrollment this term. Orientation of new students will be from Tuesday thru Friday, when returning students will register.

First year coöperative students will register Saturday. A heavy increase also is expected in evening class attendance. Classes will begin in both day and evening classes Monday, Sept. 28.

In both day and evening classes the institute has given war industry training to 18,000 persons. The institution also pioneered in giving war work training to women.

TWO SOUTH SIDE NURSES ENTER ARMY SERVICE

Two south side residents recently were appointed to the army nurses corps with the rank of second lieutenant. The appointees are Miss Bernice Newton, 2716 Prairie avenue, and Miss Hildred B. Ames of 426 East 51st street.

Miss Newton, who will be assigned to Fort Wayne, at Detroit, Mich., was graduated from Mercy hospital, Janesville, Wis., in 1941. Since graduation she has practiced at Mercy hospital, Chicago.

Miss Ames will be assigned to Fort Huachuca, Tombstone, Ariz. She was graduated from Provident hospital this spring and has been practicing there. She is a member of the Provident Alumnae association and the Illinois State Nurses' association.

NEFF CAMPAIGN BASED ON JOBS OUT OF POLITICS

Sends Industry New War Man Power.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

"Get off of relief and be your own boss when you vote."

Hobart E. Neff.

Suiting their action to this advice, Republicans in the 1st [near south] legislative district in the last few weeks have obtained hundreds of jobs in private industry for men and women who were eager to work. and reports were that this new method of campaigning is nullifying Democratic gains based on old fashioned political patronage.

Hobart E. Neff, a hustling newcomer to politics, who won the G. O. P. state senate nomination in April, is working his way toward the Nov. 3 election with a program of usefulness. He and Bernard S. [Bun] Black, 1st ward leader of the Business Men's committee, appear desirous of aiding the community, which has a large Negro population.

Lawrence E. Dowd, defense attorney for handbook operators, is the Democratic nominee.

Greene Sees Victory.

Rep. Ernest A. Greene, a Republican Negro member of the house at Springfield, who won renomination independently but is giving all-out support to the ticket, predicted that his party will elect Neff and two out of three for the house. The 2d ward will go Republican by 2 to 1 and the 1st ward will be held about even, he said.

"It's the first time in my 10 years in politics that any one has done anything for these people," Rep. Greene said.

A couple of weeks ago Neff and Black were asked by a company to send 50 men for jobs, and soon were able to recommend 25. Because the results were good, the company asked for 200 more, then another 200. Other companies have coöperated, and Neff said that soon the record will show that 1,000 jobs have been obtained.

Seeks Jobs Every Day.

"In the primary I told the voters that if nominated I would give two hours an afternoon to helping them get jobs," said Neff, a graduate of the University of Chicago. "Actually, I've been putting in at least twice as much time every day. It fits my philosophy to help connect a man wanted with a job wanted."

In the meetings Neff is preaching the gospel of independence to his listeners.

"Who wants to stay on relief and be told how to vote?" he says. "Get off relief and be your own boss when you vote. At the Democratic meetings they say they'll give you free beer. That beer isn't free—your taxes pay for it. But come to our meetings and get a job and you'll be able to buy your own beer i' you want it."

Serritella Falls in Line.

Primarily, of course, it is the fact that this talk is backed up by deeds which accounts for its reported effectiveness.

Sen. Daniel A. Serritella, 1st ward committeeman who was defeated in the April primary by Neff, declared last week that he will "be with the Republican organization 100 per cent." He said that he has recovered from the illness which handicapped him during the primary and is taking gym work each afternoon.

"I think the Republicans have got a tough fight to elect a senator and two representatives," Serritella said. "I also think that I've got the balance of power."

Thru With Democrats.

As evidence that he has no deal with the Democrats, Serritella pointed out that they did nothing to help nominate him last April. The aged Democratic 1st ward leader, Ald. Michael Kenna, is not the power he used to be.

"All I ever got from the Democrats was the lack of a fight," Serritella said. "Kenna would say, 'Go out and get yours and I'll get mine.' I don't owe them a damn thing. Whatever there was with the Democratis is all over.

"All the gain is on the Republican side. It's best to be regular. Gov. Green needs help from the 1943 legislature and I'm going to take off my coat and go to work."

Other Republican observers were even more optimistic. In 1938 the Democratic primary vote was twice as large as that of the Republicans, whereas this year the lead was only 5 to 4. Serritella was last elected senator in 1938, when his Democratic opponent withdrew.

Greene, Welters Teamed.

Teamed with Rep. Greene is Edward A. Welters, who is widely known from his former dental practice and his toothpaste manufacturing business. Greene, who had a tremendous lead over all other primary house candidates, is telling the voters to mark the ballots for Welters and Greene jointly. He does not want the Republicans to lose a house seat because of lopsided division of the vote.

This is the first time within mem-

DEDICATE FLAGS IN EIGHT BLOCKS AT RITES TODAY

Mass Ceremony to Climax Grand Crossing Fete.

The eight blocks of zone 15 of the Grand Crossing defense community will hold a mass dedication of block flags today beginning at 2:30 o'clock.

The dedication will open with a parade led by the American Legion and the De La Salle High school band, starting at 73d street and South Park avenue. The parade will proceed to each of the blocks for the dedication. The sites of the individual dedications and the block captains follow:

Block 1, Joseph E. Behm, 7334 Vernon avenue, its flag to be dedicated at 73d street and Vernon avenue; block 2, John Katzmark, 7312 Eberhart avenue, dedication at 73d street and Eberhart avenue; block 3, Fred Smith, 7315 Eberhart avenue, dedication at 73d and Eberhart avenue, opposite flag of block 2.

Rites at Block Captain's Home.

Mothers to Take Part.

Mr. Shapiro is in charge of arrangements for the complete ceremony. As the parade makes its way from block to block, the flags will be dedicated, in some instances by mothers of men in services, by Boy Scouts, or by service men on leave.

A platform will be erected at the end of the parade, 74th street and St. Lawrence avenue. Ald. Ray Olin [8th], and Walter Feldhoff, Grand Crossing community commander, will be included among the speakers.

Another block activity recently provided $422 to buy gifts for the 40 men in military service from the east side of Lake Park avenue from 47th to 49th streets. The civilian defense organization, headed by J. C. Kennedy, block captain, held a block party on the lawn of 4749 Lake Park avenue.

Kennedy reported that a complete list of names of the men in service from the block had not been compiled. A partial list of beneficiaries of the party include: Franklin R. Smith, Burdette Storck, Otto Schiavitti, George Allan, Robert Harrison, Roy H. Bradberry, George N. Haug, Ralph Wagleigh, William J. O'Keefe Jr., Gerald C. Brinhall, R. H. Cahill, John Quish, Owen K. Rossi, George Larson, Robert H. Weaver, Theodore Harrison, Robert Weir, Gilbert Dunn, George Dunn, Arnold Schweitzer, and John T. Schweitzer.

A wooden flagpole which originally stood in the old White Sox ball park and was replaced by a steel pole in 1926, will bear the flag to be dedicated today at 3 o'clock at 600 East 89th street. The pole and flag were donated by William College, 606 East 89th street, brother of Ephriam "Sharkey" College, clubhouse boy for the Sox for 35 years. Block Capt. Harold Olson, 637 East 88th place, is in charge of arranging the ceremony.

Speakers will include Patrick Noonan, Chesterfield community commander; Ald. Roy Olin [8th]; Michael J. Mulcahy, ration commissioner of Chicago; the Rev. Joseph King of St. Joachim's church; the Rev. Martin Carlson of St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran church, and the Rev. Joseph Yemm of the Methodist Episcopal church.

NEFF FINDS JOBS FOR WORKERS TO AID WAR EFFORT

ory when the Democrats went out for two house seats in the district, which was traditionally Republican until the New Deal began "buying votes with the people's money," as G. O. P. speakers charge. In recent years the Democrats have been content with the seat occupied by Rep. Daniel M. Flanigan, clerk in the court of domestic relations, and the part-time friendship of Rep. Arthur T. Broche, nominal Republican, who was defeated in April.

Flanigan is teamed with Corneal A. Davis, also a pay roller. The Republicans say that it is not surprising that many Cook county members of the legislature do whatever the Kelly-Nash machine tells them to do about making laws in Springfield.

Enlarges Tribune Cartoon for All to See

Mrs. Walter Miles of 325 East 55th place recently commissioned an artist to make a life size reproduction of a cartoon by Joseph Parrish, Tribune artist. The cartoon, "Loyalty, She Has Taught Them Well," was made into two parts in color. They are placed in Mrs. Miles' yard, which is overlooked by the elevated, and hundreds of people have observed the work. Mrs. Miles commented that she felt the cartoon would help the morale of the neighborhood.

CHARM SCHOOL'S 200 GRADUATES AIDING MORALE

Colored Girls Trained as Hostesses.

graces by a sister of Mrs. Joe Louis Barrow; serving food by a former domestic science teacher; clothing by the owner of a woman's shop; personal appearance by a beautician, and finally an examination of the nature of a modern soldier by an army captain.

Dean of the charm school [her actual title is senior hostess and president] is Mrs. Frances Taylor Moseley, a teacher in the Forestville school. Mrs. Moseley has been active in civic affairs for a number of years, and the Artists and Models ball and the Children's Theater group have been developed with her aid.

Need Dependable Girls.

"On our hostess list we needed loyal and dependable girls who would serve as a well-knit working unit, for we have a definite job to do—entertain the serviceman," Mrs. Moseley said. "In line with this aim, we have brought in outside speakers who emphasize the important rôle the hostesses should play in the country's war program. Among the speakers were Lieut. Comm. Daniel W. Armstrong, head of the Camp Smalls unit at Great Lakes, and Frayser T. Lane, civic director of the Chicago Urban league. J. P. Morgan, health and sanitation director of the center, has also been of invaluable aid."

The first course, general health, teaches the girls how to keep their vim and vigor, how to keep a slim figure or acquire one, and how to dance. Dancing includes lessons from a professional who has even developed a new dance for the hostesses to teach the service men.

This new dance is called "The service man's hop," and already is being executed with increasing frequency all over the city. Inventor of the step is Herman DeLavallade, colored dance instructor. The physical education component of this lesson is taught by Miss Ann Wolfolk, who has studied at Columbia, Michigan State, and Indiana State universities.

Warm Heart, Cool Head.

In the second lesson, social graces, the by-word is "a warm heart with a cool head." Girls are urged to study the city, so as to be able to answer questions concerning population, lake front, history, or tall buildings, and then are shown tours where they might serve as guides for out of town service men. They are taught suitable topics of conversation, and learn such games as Black Magic and Wink that act as ice breakers at parties. This is under the supervision of Mrs. Marie Moore, sister-in-law of Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, and Mrs. Mary Patten, formerly with the Chicago Recreation commission.

Mrs. Lydia Beeler, former domestic science teacher, tells them what sort of food should be served, and how to avoid causing the service man to have to balance a cup and saucer on his knee — that ancient torture of parties. Wearing the most advantageous, but inexpensive, clothing is the subject of lectures and demonstrations by Mrs. Clotilde Dent.

Expert Makeup.

"Make your makeup attract attention to you, not it," is the theme of the course in wielding the powder puff to please the service man. This is the fifth section of the charm school, and is taught by Miss Mary L. Hagen, attractive secretary.

Last lesson in the course is a lecture by Capt. Euclid Taylor from the local army staff. He explains the life of service men, how they live and work in camp, the insignia they wear, things most of them like to talk about, other subjects that should not be discussed.

Some Try Too Early.

"Take a look at them laughing out on the lawn, or singing in the music room, or the rug cutters in the ballroom—that's the charm school's graduates in action. The effect is miraculous. Our only problem is to turn out twice our present two hundred, and then some," Miss Davis says.

"We have plenty of applicants," adds another enthusiastic staff member, Mrs. Ruth Allen, "and 500 girls are now on the waiting list—not counting a few hundred girls we rejected because they were only 12 or 14 years old."

COTTAGE GROVE HEIGHTS HOLDS FESTIVAL TODAY

Plaque Dedication Opens Outdoor Program.

Contests for all ages have been planned for the homecoming and field day of the Cottage Grove Heights area today at the community recreation field, 97th street and Greenwood avenue. The homecoming is sponsored jointly by the civilian defense organization and the Cottage Grove Heights Improvement association.

The events will begin at 1:30 o'clock. There will be a flag raising ceremony accompanied by the dedication of a service flag and honor plaque for 22 men from the area now in service. Five of them, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Dawe, 9607 Greenwood avenue, are brothers. Bernard, Patrick, and Oliver are in the army; Nicholas is in the army air corps awaiting call for training, and Phillip is in the navy.

Races and Contests.

Prize for the contests and athletic events will be war stamps. There will be foot races, roller skating events, and bicycle races for the youngsters. For older persons there will be walking races, horse shoe pitching, and other less strenuous events. In the early afternoon a baton twirling contest will be staged for boys and girls. Very small children will be entertained by a clown, a magician, and a marionette show.

Speakers will include Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th]; Leslie V. Beck, divisional OCD commander, and Sheldon W. Govier. Frank W. Cole will be the master of ceremonies. Patriotic numbers will be sung by George W. Kiehn, a tenor from the Carnegie Illinois Steel company.

Demonstrate First Aid.

After induction of block captains and air raid wardens a first aid demonstration will be presented under the direction of Dominic Rodighier. There will be a dance in the evening. Admission will be obtained by a pack of cigarets which will be sent to the men in service from the community.

Catholic Club's Red Cross Unit to Meet Wednesday

Members of the South Side Catholic Woman's club who headed the club's Red Cross unit during World War I. have reorganized the unit for more war work. Its first meeting will be held Wednesday at the Southmoor hotel, 67th street and Stony Island avnue. The World War I. workers who reorganized the unit are Mrs. Edward E. O'Reilly, 7919 May street; Mrs. William Lusson, 7135 Woodlawn avenue, and Mrs. Christopher Reilly, 7930 Morgan street.

MEETING RULES STUDY IS CUT TO ONE DAY BY PTA

War Activities Restrict It to Tomorrow Only.

Increased activity of women in all phases of civilian war activity has led to a condensation of the usual five day course in parliamentary procedure given by the first district PTA organization. Tomorrow beginning at 10 o'clock a one day course will be offered at the Woodlawn branch library.

The course, designed to give the essentials necessary to conduct a local association meeting, has been arranged by Mrs. Lewis W. Mann, 2402 East 75th street, district assistant in legislation and citizenship. She has been a leader in parliamentary procedure in the district for the last six years. The course is planned to meet the needs of new presidents and officers, altho others are welcome to attend.

Mrs. Mann is co-author with Mrs. Newton Turney, 8145 Merrill avenue, now state radio chairman, of a satirical skit, "If the Shoe Fits, Put It On," which is based upon the mistakes commonly made by new officers.

The parliamentary course is the first of a series of study courses offered by the first district during the coming season. Questionnaires have been sent out by Mrs. M. M. Shaw, 6221 Ellis avenue, chairman of publication and study courses, to each elementary and high school association in the district offering the choice of the following courses: PTA organization; high school parent education; library service; publicity; and nutrition and consumer education.

Shakespeare—The Shakespeare PTA will open its fall program at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow in the school auditorium when Miss Judith Waller, educational director for the national broadcasting system, discusses the theme for the year, "Educating Parents to Understand Their Child," in its relation to radio.

South Shore High—The program of the South Shore High school PTA meeting at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday in the assembly hall will consist of discussion of the departments of the school by faculty members. The program is designed to be of special interest to parents of new pupils.

Bradwell—The Bradwell school PTA will meet in the school auditorium at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow. The program will consist of community singing, introduction of the new board of managers, and a motion picture, "About Faces," presented in conjunction with a talk on dental hygiene. Mrs. Herbert A. Smith, former vice president, recently was named president of the organization after Mrs. David Frank resigned on her removal to Charleston, W. Va. Mrs. Eli Rubens was named first vice president.

Dixon—Opening meeting of the Dixon School association will be at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow at the school auditorium. Mrs. S. F. Bradel, newly elected president, will be in charge of the meeting. Mrs. Curtis Snyder, membership chairman, will speak.

Bride at Home

Miss Margaret Glover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Glover of 6901 Oglesby avenue recently became the bride of Harlan G. Bogie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Bogie of Pontiac, Mich. Mrs. Bogie was graduated from James Milliken university, Decatur, and her husband is a graduate of Michigan State college. They are making their home at 6901 Oglesby avenue.

ST. STANISLAUS KOSTKA MARKS DIAMOND YEAR

St. Stanislaus Kostka church, Noble street and Evergreen avenue, the mother church of Polish Catholicism in Chicago, is celebrating its diamond jubilee this month with three weeks of special observances. One hundred fifty Polish families formed the nucleus for the church's establishment in 1867 by the Resurrection Fathers.

The Rev. Bronislaus Lazarowicz.

Next Sunday will mark the highlight of the three week period when an anniversary mass will be celebrated by Bishop Stanislav Bona of Grand Island, Neb. Archbishop Stritch will preside. The jubilee banquet will be held at 6:30 o'clock Sunday evening in both the upper and lower halls of the church auditorium. About 1,000 persons are expected to attend, and many church dignitaries will be present.

Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Barzynski, commanding officer of the Chicago quartermaster depot, will deliver an address. He is a nephew of the Rev. Vincent Michael Barzynski, pastor of the parish from 1874 to 1899, whose memory is revered by American Poles.

The Rev. Ladislaus Zapala, now a missionary in the United States, and former head of the Resurrection Fathers, will speak at the anniversary banquet. Father Zapala is participating in the two week mission now in progress at the church, which will close next Sunday.

1. QUALITY MATERIALS
The kind of shingles Hines recommends weigh 240 lbs. to the 100 sq. ft. We know that in lighter weight roofings you get too much slate—and not enough asphalt and felt to give the roof lasting qualities.

2. QUALITY WORKMANSHIP!
Hines makes no profit on labor. You deal directly with the men who work on the job, and thus get the most for your money. Hines is interested in the sale of quality material only, and in providing work for our many contractor customers whom we know as reliable, conscientious men.

Use HINES Budget Plan
It only costs a little more each month to buy a good roof which will give years of satisfactory service. Terms can be arranged on Hines-FHA Budget Plan to suit your convenience. You can always depend on Hines quality materials! Why be satisfied with less!

FOR SHOW WITH SPIRIT TRY 'ON STAGE, CHANUTE'

W-G-N Presents Airmen Tuesday Nights.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

One of the brightest of the many soldier and sailor shows that ride the kilocycles nowadays comes from the USO center in Rantoul, down in the midst of Illinois' cornfields. It's called "On Stage, Chanute," and if your aren't listening to it at 7:30 p. m. Tuesdays on W-G-N you're missing some of the best band music and choral singing on the air.

It's all provided, of course, by the men of the air forces at big Chanute field, which overshadows little Rantoul. Busy as they are training for flying servies the men devote a lot of time and energy to broadcast the shows. It takes a lot of planning and long hours of rehearsal to develop these entertainments and put them together. We found that out by visiting Rantoul.

Many Problems Encountered.

Producer Morrison Wood and Francis Coughlin, who writes the script, spend about half the week on these shows. Coöperating with Maj. M. F. Ranney, in charge of public relations, and Capt. Francis E. Hammond, in charge of music, they recruit the talent well in advance. Wood and Coughlin had already conducted preliminary rehearsals when we arrived.

And Max Bear, W-G-N engineer, and Announcer Lee Bennett [formerly a singer with Jan Garber's orchestra] were on hand for final rehearsals. Incidentally, an engineer gets a terrific workout on such shows put on from "remote" spots more than a hundred miles from the studio. Each week he has to lug down a lot of heavy special equipment. And he encounters a lot of knotty problems the studio technician escapes altogether.

In fact such impromptu shows are tough work for the producer, the announcer, the musical director, and it requires the closest coöperation among all to bring forth the smooth shows they do.

The flavor of the Chanute shows comes mainly from the fine musical groups that have been developed there. There's the really top band, with a nucleus of alumni from the great University of Illinois band. Band Leader Eugene Dieter gives a Sousa march a master touch. A half dozen men have been taken from the personnel of the band lately and been made army bandmasters elsewhere.

Choral Singing Featured.

You won't hear any better choral singing anywhere than that of the Chanute Wing chorus, directed by Capt. Hammond. Loudest applause for its performance came from Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production, who was a guest at the broadcast. In fact, after the show MacGregor joined some of the men in a little impromptu close harmony session. Stuart Piggins, who plays the piano for this group, was formerly an accompanist for Gladys Swarthout and the director of the Sunday Evening Hour chorus on CBS.

The Four Techs, composed of Sergt. Johnny Oliver, Privates Alex Drazba, Joe Bianco, and Ben Lorry give out the kind of rhythm that would be recognized as A1 in any swing circle.

Chanute seems to have everything in the realm of music. Sergt. Jay Froman and Pvt. Joseph Cuervo really know what to do with grand opera.

The weekly interviews with soldiers help to give prospective airmen a glimpse of what goes on at Chanute. Last Tuesday Technical Sergt. Paul B. Van Horn got down to business on the subject of propellers.

A rousing medley of World War I. tunes, with Lieut. Norma Brooks of the army nurse corps as soloist, tied the show all up in a bow.

W-G-N TO AIR NEW SERVICE MEN'S NIGHT CLUB SHOW

A new program for service men will make its debut on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Wednesday, when the Service Men's show is broadcast from the eighth floor night club of the Chicago Service Men's center at 176 West Washington street.

The musical novelty group, the "Hoosier Hot Shots," and the comedy team of "Tom, Dick, and Harry" will be regular attractions of the program and are scheduled to be heard each week along with visiting guest artists. The object of the program will be the entertainment of the service men who will be attending the night club at the service center.

First guest artist on the new weekly program will be Edna O'Dell, W-G-N singing star. Many singing stars of stage and radio are scheduled to appear as guests on the program.

The "Hoosier Hot Shots" are well known to the listening audience as a featured attraction of the National Barn Dance program for many years and as guest artists on numerous network programs. The novelty group features Frank Kettering, bass player who is heard on W-G-N supplying the bass background for Hugh Carson. Others in the musical combine are Gabe Ward, clarinet; Hezzie Trietsch, musical washboard, and Ken Trietsch, guitar.

The comedy team of "Tom, Dick, and Harry" is also a network favorite. Last year the boys were featured on a W-G-N and Mutual half hour evening program and they have also appeared as guests on "Plantation Party" and other network shows. The boys were also an early morning team presenting a weekday song session for housewives.

"Tom" in the "Tom, Dick, and Harry" team is Bud Vandover, W-G-N comedian who conducts the 7 to 8 a. m. "Record Reveille" program which is a Monday thru Saturday feature. Marlin Hurt, who gained radio fame for his creation of "Beulah" and "Mrs. Rabinowitz" on network radio shows, is "Dick" in the team, while Norman Luboff has replaced Gordon Vandover as "Harry."

The program will be produced by Ed Simmons.

105 MOTORISTS ON SOUTH SIDE GET NEW TIRES

Boards Allot 171 Casings and 19 Car Permits.

Permits for tires and tubes were allowed 105 persons and companies on the south side for the week ending Sept. 12, ration boards reported. This was a sharp drop from the 163 permits given the previous week, with corresponding declines in number of units rationed.

The list showed permits for 73 passenger tires, 188 passenger tubes, 98 truck tires, and 73 truck tubes, or a total of 261 passenger permits and 171 truck permits.

Nineteen car permits were given compared with 26 the week before. An order for 30 cars for the Chicago police department was the largest single car ration of the week.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Richard W. Phelps, 7945 Prairie avenue, recently was commissioned a second lieutenant in the army air forces upon graduation from the Victorville flying school, Victorville, Cal. He is to remain at the field as a bombardier instructor. He enlisted in the air corps March 24. Lieut. Phelps was graduated from Tilden Technical school in 1938 and attended evening classes at Armour Institute of Technology. Before entering service he was employed in the drafting department of an electrical company.

Lieut. Phelps.

Howard S. Lees of 7420 Euclid avenue recently received the commission of second lieutenant of infantry when he was graduated from the officers candidate school, Fort Benning, Georgia.

Capt. Rankin Roberts IV. and Pvt. John Gaither Roberts, sons of Mrs. Rankin H. Roberts, 4520 Woodlawn avenue, recently spent a week-end in Chicago. Capt. Roberts is on foreign assignment with the army air forces and Pvt. Roberts is taking basic training at Camp Robinson, Arkansas.

Two south side residents recently were graduated from the quartermaster school at Camp Lee, Virginia, and commissioned second lieutenants in the army. The graduates are: Clifford F. Bailer, 7148 Jeffery avenue, and Ferdinand C. Barnett of 3619 Calumet avenue.

Clifford O. Sherry, 7534 Prairie avenue, recently was graduated from the air force advanced flying school, Williams field, Chandler, Ariz. He was commissioned a second lieutenant and will serve as a bombardier. Other south side residents on the air front include four new arrivals at the Scott field reception center. They are: Niels M. Hansen, 59, of 1424 East 71st place; Emmett Beltz, 34, of 4249 Drexel boulevard; William J. Cook, 21, of 650 East 79th street, and Raymond H. Jenen, 7727 Rhodes avenue.

Lieut. Sherry.

Norman H. Armour, 6858 Paxton avenue, recently was promoted to sergeant at a west coast artillery post. He attended Morgan Park Junior college and the University of Illinois.

Lieut. N. H. Newhouse, son of Mrs. Rae H. Newhouse, 4940 East End avenue, recently reported to Will Rogers field for duty as assistant post engineer. He was commissioned in August. Lieut. Newhouse attended Armour Institute of Technology.

Pvt. Frank W. Jones, husband of Mrs. Frank W. Jones, 4641 Woodlawn avenue, recently was promoted to technician, 5th grade, at Camp White, Oregon. He was inducted last January at Camp Grant. He attended Hirsch High school and before entering the army was employed by a steel company. He was assigned to Camp White in July.

WAR ADDS NEW SCHOOL COURSES IN CALUMET AREA

42,000 Start Term in 4 Indiana Cities.

Approximately 42,000 public school children in the four Indiana cities of the Calumet region last week began their first year of studies under war conditions. They returned to their class rooms to find an increased emphasis on physical fitness for all grades and on mathematics, physics, and aeronautics in senior high school.

Of the four cities—East Chicago, Gary, Hammond, and Whiting—only East Chicago schools showed a marked change in enrollment figures from last year. For the first time in 10 years there was an increase in the kindergarten. It jumped from about 550 to 690, an increase of 25 per cent. There was a decrease of 50 students in the senior high school, the first time a decrease was recorded in the last several years. High school enrollment is 1,952. Total enrollment is about 8,500.

Small Increase at Whiting.

Slight increases were recorded in all departments of the Whiting school system. Figures follow: Senior high school, 585, an increase of 55 students; junior high school, 354, an increase of 22, and elementary, 653, an increase of 31. Hammond figures, officials reported, are approximately the same as in 1941. They are: Elementary, 7,269; high school, 3,899, and kindergarten, 873. Gary enrollment figures are: Elementary, 13,057, an increase of 256; high school, 5,516, a decrease of 27, and kindergarten, 1,219, a decrease of 143.

Superintendents of all systems report that courses of study in senior high school have been rearranged to conform to requests of military officials concerning training young men for the armed forces. Preaviation cadet training is given in the high schools.

Expand Whiting Facilities.

The preaeronautics courses were given in Hammond and Whiting high schools last year. Later this year the Whiting system plans to add courses in aeronautical and marine mathematics.

Extensive repairs have been made in Whiting Junior and Senior High school laboratories and work shops to promote their program of vocational education. The changes, at a cost of $8,000, include a remodernization of the physics and chemistry laboratories plus addition of new equipment; enlarging the print shop; shifting the sewing room from the junior high school to the senior high school, and refurnishing biology laboratories.

Stress Physical Fitness.

All schools have expanded their physical fitness programs. Emphasis has been placed on fitting the older youths for military service. However, the health and fitness program extends in modified form to the elementary grades. The program has meant the introduction of more formal drill work in the physical education departments and officials are following the recommendations of military authorities.

All superintendents reported that vacancies caused by teachers entering military service or war industry had been filled but indicated a possibility of a shortage later in the year.

NEW YORK TENOR WILL BE GUEST ON MELODY HOUR

Mario Berini to Sing with Miss Claire.

Mario Berini, young New York tenor, will make his network debut Saturday, singing opposite Marion Claire, soprano, on W-G-N and Mutual's "America Loves a Melody" program to be aired from 8 to 9 p. m.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Berini, a newcomer to the concert world, has recently completed a successful concert tour of the east. He will have three solo selections on the program, singing Romberg's "Your Land and My Land," Campbell Tipton's "A Spirit Flower," and Lehar's "Yours Is My Heart Alone."

Miss Claire will offer four solo selections, Romberg's "The Same Silver Moon," "Il Est Doux, Il Est Bon" from Massenet's "Herodiade," Foster's "The Americans Come," and "The Lost Chord" by Sullivan.

Musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra conducted by Henry Weber and by the chorus under direction of Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production, will be the producer.

The chorus will offer two selections, Lieurance's "By the Waters of the Minnetonka" and Steininger's "Marching Along Together." The orchestra will play Délibès' "Czardas" from "Coppelia Ballet," and Herbert's "Indian Summer."

Two of the selections, "By the Waters of the Minnetonka" and "Indian Summer" will be accompanied by dramatic playlets drawn from $25 prize winning letters written by the radio audience telling true stories behind their favorite songs.

SEN. BROOKS' SAFETY ADDRESS ON W-G-N TONIGHT

An address by Sen. Wayland Brooks on "Safety in Peace and War" will be broadcast at 11:30 o'clock tonight by W-G-N and the Mutual network from a civilian defense rally at Moline, Ill. The rally will be held by the Illinois State Council of Defense. Sen. Brooks will urge safety in war factories and on the highways.

West Lawn Group.

MISSION CHURCH IN ROSELAND TO MARK 60TH YEAR

Homecoming Services to Be Held Sunday.

A homecoming of former parishioners and Bible school students will be held next Sunday at the Roseland Evangelical Mission church, 11032 Indiana avenue, as a feature of the church's 60th anniversary. Invitations have been sent to more than 1,500 former members in all parts of the country. Services will be held at 3 and 7:30 o'clock.

The church's 20 members who have gone to war will be honored with the dedication of a service plaque. Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], a former Sunday school pupil, will take part in the service. Another speaker will be Dr. H. A. Ironside, pastor of the Moody Memorial church. Don Hustad and the young people's choir will provide the music.

Seminary Director to Talk.

At the 7:30 service, Dr. Ernest Smith, director of religious education at the Northern Baptist Theological seminary, will be the guest speaker. T. J. Bittikofer will sing and direct the senior choir. Mrs. Dan Ertner will preside at the organ. The Rev. Eugene Wernberg is pastor of the church.

The church and Sunday school were founded in 1882. The Sunday school's organizer and first superintendent was Tobias Tronstad, who secured a first enrollment of three pupils by a house to house canvass.

79 Attend Regularly for 10 Years.

Seventy-nine gold medals have been awarded for 10 years' perfect attendance at the school, and five diamond medals for 20 years' perfect attendance. In 1931, medals were awarded to persons with five years' perfect attendance. To date, 25 of those have been given. Thorsten Acherstrom is the present superintendent of the school.

Tronstad held the post for 32 years, and Emil Weeden, also a former superintendent, served 20 years. Other superintendents were Oscar Dallin, Victor Person, Oliver Swanson, Harold Anderson, Arthur Anderson, and Norman Carlsen.

HERE ARE SOME HINTS ON CARE OF YOUR FLOORS

Old Surface Can Be Made to Look Like New.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[We've prepared a leaflet on some popular types of floor finishes, and some Do's and Don'ts for proper floor refinishing. Please send a stamped, addressed envelope to this department if you wish leaflet.]

If you have a wood floor that is soiled and spotted it may be that:

1. A good paint and varnish remover will put the surface in shape for varnish, wax, or one of the new and beautiful penetrating finishes.

2. A good bleach will transform it to a blondness as modern as it is attractive.

3. Or a rented sanding machine have a new wood surface for what treatment we wish.

4. And an oxalic acid treatment can be counted on to rid a floor of dark stains and also to lighten the wood.

Prepare Old Surface.

If you wish a new floor, the chances are it can be laid over the old one, if the surface of old floor is properly prepared. There are:

1. Damp proof linoleums, asphalt tiles, dyes, and paints for basement floors; 2. linoleums for all rooms in the house and beautiful, actual wood floors in parquet block and mosaic patterns that can be laid like a rug over an existing wood floor.

If you wish to prevent surface scratching and prolong the life of the floor coating you should wax the floor frequently. It never pays to let an old floor coating become worn thru before revarnishing.

Worn spots on varnished or shellacked floors can be touched up by carrying the renewed finish to the edge and ends of the boards to make any contrast between old and new less noticeable.

Remove Old Paint Coating.

If a floor finish is to be changed from paint to stain, the old paint coating must be removed with paint and varnish remover. This is a process where directions should be followed carefully, and then when surface is clean the wood should be washed by a cloth soaked in turpentine. Then the stain can be applied and the finish coat of shellac, varnish, or wax applied.

Sometimes, but not always, it is necessary to use a paste wood filler after the paint and varnish remover, in cases where the wood is open grained. A paste wood filler can be applied directly to bare wood, according to directions on packages. Excess can be removed by rubbing coarse cloth against the grain of the wood after the filler has been on for the length of time specified.

Sand Surface Down.

If a floor finish is to be changed from stain to paint, the surface must be sanded down and well dusted and the knot holes coated with thin shellac. Sappy streaks also can be treated in this way, so there is no danger that the pitch will bleed thru to the final finish.

Then before the actual finish is to be applied the wood can be primed with one or two coats of enamel undercoater and then sanded lightly. A good grade of floor enamel can be applied for the finishing coat, and then this coat well waxed. If a painted floor is kept properly waxed it can be cleaned easily by wiping with occasional cold water.

If a floor is to be revarnished or reshellacked it should be thoroly washed, rinsed, and dried.

Tin Can Depots Established for Suburban Towns

Eight district depots, serving a total of 44 communities, have been designated as tin can collection centers outside Chicago, in territory under jurisdiction of William L. McFetridge, Chicago area salvage director.

Other depots will be set up to serve 64 more communities. This work is retarded, however, because response has been slow from community salvage chairmen asked to supply can collection data on forms furnished by the area office, McFetridge said.

To get at least 15 tons of cans a month, each depot should serve a population of about 30,000. Collection districts will be organized on this population basis when possible, salvage officials said, altho few districts designated so far are that populous.

Railroad cars used for can transport usually have capacity for 20 tons of cans and the roads refuse to take less than 15 tons in a car. A ton contains about 8,000 cans.

First monthly collections were scheduled for August in several towns, but the Winnetka district, including Wilmette, Kenilworth, Glencoe, and Northfield was the only one to make a shipment to the Gary detinning plant to which all cans in this area are destined. Winnetka shipped 40,000 pounds Aug. 12.

Several other centers are said to be nearing their minimum.

District depots have been established in communities with railroad freight facilities. Communities to contribute to each district depot are listed with the key centers:

Downers Grove—Lisle, Belmont, Fairview, Westmont, and Liberty Park.

Elmhurst—Villa Park, Itasca, Bensenville, Addison, Wooddale, and Yorkville.

Highland Park—Lake Forest, Highwood, Deerfield, Bannockburn, and Lake Bluff.

La Grange—Clarendon Hills, Western Springs, Hinsdale, La Grange Park, Brookfield, Riverside, and North Riverside.

Blue Island—Evergreen Park, Oak Lawn, and Crestwood.

Harvey—Flossmoor, Hazel Crest, and Homewood.

River Grove—Elmwood Park, Schiller Park, and Franklin Park.

Winnetka—Wilmette, Kenilworth, Glencoe, and Northfield.

Catherine Steadman Married

Before her recent marriage Mrs. Thomas Hickey was Miss Catherine Steadman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Steadman, 322 West 52d place. Her bridegroom is the son of Thomas Hickey, 8123 South Morgan street. The ceremony was solemnized in St. Anne's church.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 21.

Keep careful watch on plants to be used for indoor decoration. Bring them into the house immediately to avoid checking from exposure to cold nights and frost. Cacti should be removed indoors even tho many of them are entering their resting period and need reasonably low temperatures.

Tuesday, Sept. 22.

Mealybugs on house plants are among the most difficult to kill due to their protective covering of white woolly material. Many can be knocked from the plants by a stream of water under pressure, some may be lifted from the axils of the leaves with a toothpick, or washed off. Wrap a small amount of cotton on the end of a toothpick, dip it in alcohol, touch the bugs, and they will die.

Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Winter injury of evergreens is frequently caused by failure to water the plants, and permitting them to pass thru the winter in dry soil. Give the soil a good soaking if it needs it. Protect annuals that are blooming, against freezing. Transplant pansies into cold frames.

Thursday, Sept. 24.

Shrubs and other hardy material should be obtained as soon as the nurseries can ship them, for early planting gives the plants time to become established before freezing weather. Many plants make a root growth in fall and should be planted early if possible. They will remain in the ground without injuring if planted late, but they will need mulching to prevent loosening by storms.

Friday, Sept. 25.

Plow vacant lots; sow rye, vetch, or other good cover, and turn it under in spring. This is a fine method of incorporating humus in the soil. When a bundle of shrubs is received from the nursery it should be examined, and, if dry, place the bundle in a tub and pour water on until it is soaked thru. Then plant.

Saturday, Sept. 26.

The entire garden area within the lot line, or wherever the garden is located, should have a thoro cleaning up. Destroy all vegetation that harbors insects. Trim out dead wood from trees and shrubs, tie up vines to prevent their swaying in the wind, with the likelihood of breakage to the stems.

Plant bulbs for indoor use and remember that potted bulbs must be thoroly rooted before bringing to the light window. Arrange feeding stations for birds. Protect newly planted fruit trees against the attacks of rodents seeking food.

PUPILS LIKE 18c VICTORY LUNCH IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Government Gives Menu, Some of Supplies.

Victory lunches at 18 cents, replacing last year's 15 cent student specials in Chicago high school cafeterias, are proving popular, administrators reported after the first full week in which the lunches were offered.

Food prices have risen during the summer but the added three cents pays for more food, not merely for increased costs, Director F. D. Washam said. Student specials were planned for dietetic balance, but this year's victory lunches go a step further. Their nutrition value is measured according to a national nutrition yardstick laid down in Washington.

Supplies from Government.

The schools are getting some supplies from the federal surplus commodities administration to aid them in providing a meat or meat substitute for each meal along with raw fruit or raw vegetables, eggs three times a week, enriched or whole wheat bread, butter and milk.

Yellow vegetables are stressed for they contain vitamin A, which government bulletins say helps to prevent colds and night blindness.

Frown on Two Hamburgers.

Last year's student special included meat, potatoes, vegetables or salad and bread and butter.

Hamburgers are still available, of course. But the youth who insists on two hamburgers and a bowl of chili for lunch draws frowns.

Mr. Washam manages the cafeterias, but the victory lunches are planned by Dietician Mary Kavanaugh.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK AIDE TO TALK AT BEVERLY YMCA DINNER OCT. 6

Col. M. Thomas Tchou.

Col. M. Thomas Tchou, former secretary to China's Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, will speak Tuesday, Oct. 6, at the sixth annual dinner of the Beverly YMCA, at the Morgan Park Methodist church, 110th street and Longwood drive. Byron Sommers is chairman of the dinner committee. Lou H. McCormick, 9634 Winchester avenue, will be toastmaster. On the committee are J. W. Crafton, Mrs. Walter Elsner, E. N. Hendricks, R. A. Pascoe, George B. Miller, and Herbert W. Thompson. This will be Col. Tchou's second appearance before the YMCA members. In 1938, he addressed the third annual dinner. His topic next month will be "The Outlook in the Orient."

BOARD MEETS FEW SOUR ONES IN DOLING SUGAR

Appeal to Patriotism Ends Grumbling.

"Only one pound of sugar for my jam? Is that all I get?"

A dozen times a day, six days a week, that's what the staff hears at the 21st ward sugar rationing board, 1854 South Ashland avenue. Residents of Polish, Bohemian, and Italian extraction, many with a well developed sweet tooth, know that a pound of sugar a person won't make for a larder well stocked with preserves and jellies.

But a pound apiece is all they are allowed for spreads, and the interviewers are patient in their explanation of why it must be so. They have to speak in Bohemian, or Polish, to get the idea across to the older people who understand very little English. But before the callers leave the office, they realize that giving up a few peach preserves and grape jellies is a pretty small part of a much bigger job. And, as a rule, they are anxious to do anything they can to help.

Canning Needs Keep Them Busy.

Principal task of the board at the moment is making out requisitions for sugar to be used for canning purposes. Earlier it was for strawberries and cherries; now it's for the peaches and pears that are coming on the market.

Mrs. Violet Kletka, 2237 Cullerton street, is in charge of board 40-21, as it is officially known. She is assisted by Mrs. Lorraine Velek, 3007 South Millard avenue; Miss Mary Florian, 4246 Cermak road, and Miss Margaret Flynn, 3149 South Canal street, all full time paid workers.

The language problem is not as acute at board 40-21 as it might be. Mrs. Kletka speaks Polish, and Mrs. Velek can converse fluently in Bohemian. They do have difficulty, however, in deciphering many of the signatures written in foreign script. Even so, the jobs are the most interesting they've ever had, they declare.

Elderly Woman Complains.

A little old lady, bent and toothless, hobbled in to get her allotment for canning. She's on relief, but some one had promised to give her half a bushel of peaches, and she needed sugar to can them. While being interviewed, she registered her complaint about not getting enough sugar for everyday use. There was much waving of hands, while the little lady described excitedly the large amount of coffee she drank each day. Without sugar for it she would become very ill, she declared. The interviewer reminded her that "too much coffee isn't healthy," and went on making out the canning requisition, allowing one pound for every four quarts of fruit the woman plans on canning.

There are belligerent individuals who come storming into the office demanding their "rights as citizens," the rights in this case being an extra pound or two of sugar. They are always disappointed.

One of the functions of the board is to issue new ration cards to persons who have lost their original cards, or who failed to obtain one during the first registration period. One housewife came in for a new card, telling that her husband had not only deserted the army, but had come back to Chicago, collected a number of her valuables, including her ration book, and then proceeded to desert her too. Her claims proved true, and she was issued a new book.

This Plea Turned Down.

Another girl demanded a new book because she had left home and refused to return for the ration card. The board turned down her request.

More and more of the cards are coming back to the office each week. A mother or a wife comes in, bringing the card of a man called to the service. In the event of his discharge, the card would be reissued. If he comes home on furlough, he is fixed up with a temporary card to provide ample sugar for his stay at home.

One of the more complicated jobs of the board is to care for the small grocers and delicatessens in the ward which also are rationed in the amount of sugar they may sell. Mrs. Kletka estimated that there are more such small business men in the 21st ward than in almost any other ward in the city.

A number of callers at board 40-21 are surprised to find the service is free. Then there is the classic story of one indignant woman who verbally flailed a grocer when he demanded payment for the 10 pounds of sugar she received for canning. "Why do you think I stood in line at the sugar board for an hour? Here's the little slip they gave me. It says right here I can have 10 pounds!"

4 YMCA Branches Open Fund Drive in October

Four YMCA's on the west side will launch their 1942 membership campaigns in October. Chairmen have been selected, and campaign organizations completed, with the following leaders: Austin YMCA, Martin W. Rapp, 1424 North Waller avenue, and George A. Hepburn, 2343 Roosevelt road; Duncan YMCA, E. W. Quackenbush, 429 South Ashland avenue; Maxwell street YMCA, Earl Joyce, 1445 Hastings street, and Sears YMCA, P. O. Voss, 2540 Cermak road. The city-wide goal is 10,000 members.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Pvt. Benia.

A west sider, the first United States army enlisted man to enroll in an army institute course, has been awarded a certificate of proficiency for completion of the preparatory course in radio, telephony, and telegraphy. He is Pvt. Joseph A. Benia, son of Mrs. Ann Belorit of 643 18th street, now stationed in Chicago with the signal corps.

Capt. W. N. Rider, 305 North Grove avenue, Oak Park, an insurance salesman in Chicago until he was called to active duty June 1, has been named housing officer for the army air forces' technical school's No. 2 unit, formerly the Congress hotel.

Lieut. Rubin.

Lieut. Alfred Rubin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rubin of Naperville, left recently for a midwestern post. He graduated last spring from the University of Illinois, where he had been a captain in the university ROTC. He received his commission as a second lieutenant in the cavalry on May 23.

Francis R. Williams, son of Mrs. Teresa M. Williams, 909 Pleasant street, Oak Park, has been promoted to technical sergeant at the army air forces' technical school at Madison, Wis.

Edward Gillespie, 3132 Monroe street, was graduated recently from officer candidate school at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and commissioned a second lieutenant in the field artillery. Lieut. Gillespie, son of Mrs. Kathryn Gillespie, reported to Fort Sill from Camp Forrest, Tennessee, and will be stationed at Camp Adair, Oregon.

Fourteen young men from the west side enlisted recently as aviation cadets in the navy. They include Earl Brown, 410 South 19th avenue, Maywood; Ralph Kalal, 3830 Powell avenue, Riverside; Edward Fiorella, 315 South Sacramento boulevard; George Lantz, 610 North Stone avenue, La Grange; George Mather, 1230 South 12th avenue, Maywood; Burling McElroy, 2832 South Wisconsin avenue, Berwyn; Charles Wright Jr., 1343 South Harlem avenue, Forest Park; A. G. Delestowicz, 5340 30th street, Cicero; Charles Engman Jr., 6930 30th street, Berwyn; William St. Louis, 2319 North 77th avenue, Elmwood Park; Arthur Toman, 2621 Kenilworth avenue, Berwyn; James Hogan, 16 South Spaulding avenue; William McKie, 606 South Washington street, Wheaton, and Harlon Harvey, 9010 Sheridan avenue, Brookfield.

Frank Edward Kalal, son of Edward Joseph Kalal, 2231 South Kedzie avenue, was advanced to staff sergeant at the air force bombardment base, Will Rogers field, Oklahoma. He has been on duty there since Sept. 5, 1941, as a platoon leader.

Capt. Hubert Binkley, commanding officer of the 74th surgical hospital, Fort Francis E. Warren, Wyoming, has announced the promotion of two west side men who are assigned to the 74th hospital unit. They were Jack S. Waller, son of Mrs. Mary Waller, 1654 South Avers avenue, to technician 4th grade, and Francis P. Mallon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mallon, 4343 Monroe street, to technician 5th grade.

Pvt. Miles Fleischman, son of Mrs. Rebecca Fleischman, 4516 Jackson boulevard, has arrived at the air force technical school at Scott field, Illinois, to receive an intensive course in radio operating and mechanics to fit him for duty as a member of a fighting bomber crew.

Capt. Joseph V. Bolton, 1211 Rossell avenue, Oak Park, was graduated recently at the army air forces' technical training command school at Miami Beach, Fla. He is prepared to take over executive duties in air forces maintenance.

RECORD NUMBER TO START YEAR AT ILLINOIS TECH

The annual trek to one of the west side's most famous educational institutions will begin tomorrow when Illinois Institute of Technology begins it 1942-'43 school year with a record enrollment.

Formed two years ago by the merger of Chicago's two oldest engineering institutions, Lewis on the west side and Armour on the south, Illinois Tech is opening its third academic year. The institute's humanities and home economics curriculum is centered at the Lewis campus, at Madison street and Damen avenue. Formal registration day for freshman and new students will be tomorrow, and orientation days will continue thru Friday.

Returning students will register Friday, and first year coöperative students on Saturday. Instruction in both day and evening classes will begin Sept. 28. Illinois Tech has more new students matriculated in advance of its formal registration day than it enrolled during the entire first semester last year. An all-time enrollment record, of 2,300, was established then.

Keeping Babies Well Is Purpose of Melrose Park Infant Welfare Clinic

Seven months old Claude Jewell is the personification of the Keep Well Babies Well motto of the Melrose Park Infant Welfare clinic. His mother, Mrs. W. E. Jewell, brings him to the clinic regularly. The clinic is held in the city library from 10 to 12 a. m. every other Tuesday, under the guidance of Miss Corrine Ray, R. N.

There is a demonstration of the complete range of infant emotions whenever the mothers gather at the Melrose Park Infant Welfare clinic. Some of the babies are placid thruout the session, others howl lustily from start to finish. In the center of the circle is Mrs. Willard Kinippenberg and Gerald of Melrose Park. Directly behind her is Miss Elinor Suchy, R. N., who has just been telling the mothers about the proper diet for their babies and the older children in the home. Reading clockwise from Miss Suchy, there are Mrs. Charles McComb and Judith Lynn, Mrs. Stanley Reschik and Bernice, Mrs. John Gallina and Patricia, Mrs. Luther Bates and Johnnie, Mrs. W. E. Jewell and Claude, Mrs. Emmett Mulligan and Ronald, and Mrs. Ernest Canestrini and Emma. Barely visible in the lower right corner are Mrs. Leroy Schrader and Roger Lee.

Wide eyed Ronald Mulligan is the first son born to Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Mulligan, tho he has two older sisters, 10 and 11. His father is a pay roll clerk in the Proviso factory of the American Can company.

Ruling Lets Veterans Keep Making Pianos

Defying the machine age during the years when those about them were swept into its speedy pace, 12 elderly gentlemen in a west side factory still have work for their skilled hands to do because of a twist in wartime rulings.

Last week an order came thru from the director general of operations for the WPB, granting the Charles Frederick Stein Piano company, 3047 Carroll avenue, permission to continue fabrication of pianos at the rate of 10 each month, until Dec. 31. A ruling several months ago, halted all piano manufacturing. The exception was made for the Stein company "to provide employment for elderly workers," and because no machinery was involved which might have been converted to armament manufacture.

Ten pianos a month would't be a drop in the bucket for any other piano manufacturer. But for the Stein company, it is a sufficient number to keep the plant in operation. The stubborn refusal of the Stein personnel to turn to mass production has made it a unique organization.

Everything Done by Hand.

There isn't a machine in the entire plant, unless the typewriter in the business office could come under that classification. From the varnishing of the cases, thru the hand-fitting of the sound board installation, to the final oiling off, every process is done entirely by hand.

Charles F. Stein, president of the company, could build an entire piano with his own hands. He was born in Chicago 61 years ago, and began working in a piano factory when he was 13. Today he designs all his own instruments. For the past 18 years he has operated his factory on the west side, employing 16 craftsmen who have a total of more than 600 years of service in the industry.

Over in one sunny corner is Frank Malecha, 1358 South Kedvale avenue, painstakingly varnishing the legs and side pieces of upright pianos. Frank is 73, and has had 52 years' experience as a finisher. He has the craftsman's pride in a product well made,

EVERY ONE IN BERWYN TO SEND CHRISTMAS GIFTS TO THEIR YANKS

"A gift from every one in Berwyn to every Berwyn man in military service" is the motto of the Berwyn army and navy Christmas fund project. Mrs. Henry T. Boss is chairman of the executive committee now engaged in raising funds and planning for the buying, packaging, addressing and mailing gifts to more than 1,700 men. The number of gifts will be three times that sent last year.

Mayor Anton Janura is honorary chairman of the executive committee. Other members are Mrs. Bess Haralik, secretary; the Rev. Gilbert Bremicker, treasurer; Mrs. H. B. Bragdon, packaging and mailing chairman; Mrs. Anton Dvorak, publicity chairman; Mrs. Lucile Fillmore, purchasing chairman; Mrs. Edward C. Reif, mailing list chairman; George Sluka, variety show chairman; and Mrs. B. R. McHugo, ticket chairman.

The main fund raising event will be a variety show to be held in the Morton High school auditorium.

George Sluka, variety show chairman, has asked that those wishing to volunteer features for the show contact him at the recreation department offices in the Berwyn city hall. Auditions for musicians, dancers, and other performers will be arranged.

TRADE CHAMBER SPONSORS FETE IN FOREST PARK

Forest Park will be in gala attire this week as the merchants division of the Forest Park Chamber of Commerce holds its 10th annual fall festival. Another week of fun has been arranged by the Forest Park fire department, Sept. 26 to Oct. 3, for the benefit of its new fire truck.

Thrill rides have been set up on the grounds at Madison street and Des Plaines avenue and the committee has planned special features that will be of interest to youngsters of the village.

Melrose Park Clinic Keeping Babies Healthy

The customary quiet of the small library in Melrose Park is shattered every other Tuesday morning, when babies are trundled in for a checkup at the Melrose Park Infant Welfare clinic. Babies from six weeks to two years old are examined. Since its opening last spring, the clinic has done a good job of upholding its motto, "Keep Well Babies Well."

Mrs. Herman Weiss, president of the Melrose Park Welfare, started plans early last spring to organize the clinic. Working with Miss Corrine Ray, registered nurse assigned to the Maywood-Melrose Park Health center, she secured the coöperation of the Melrose Park Welfare, the Kiwanis club, and the village of Melrose Park.

Loyola Students Assist.

Assisting Miss Ray and Dr. Vincenti temporarily in the work of the clinic have been Miss Dorothea Kemper, R. N., and Miss Elinor Suchy, R. N. Both are students at Loyola, and are taking their field training period at the clinic to qualify as public health nurses.

The babies taken to the clinic are those in good health, and it is the aim of Miss Ray and her staff to see they are kept that way. The doctor checks the baby for any disorder, makes recommendations for changes in feeding, and advises that any irregularities be discussed immediately with the parents' physician. In turn, the nurses interpret the doctor's recommendations, and if necessary, make trips into the home to aid in the preparation of a formula, or to demonstrate some practice new to the mother.

For the most part, the fathers of the babies are employed in the large industrial plants in Maywood, Melrose Park, and surrounding suburbs. Claude Jewell's father, W. E. Jewell, is an electrician at the Buick plant, and has resided in the village for 12 years. Roger Lee Schrader's father is a truck driver for Midwest Transfer, and has always made his home in Maywood.

Use Christmas Seal Fund.

When village residents buy Tuberculosis seals each Christmas, the proceeds are turned over to the Maywood-Melrose Park Health center. A portion of these funds is used for maintenance of the clinic, which gets further aid from the Melrose Park Welfare, the village of Melrose Park, and the Kiwanis club. The Lions club at Melrose Park donated $25 recently for a cod liver oil fund, to aid in payment of cod liver oil for families unable to afford it.

Today the nurses at the center are going beyond the field usually covered by an infant welfare station. They are seeking to inform the mother of a proper nutrition program for the entire family.

DAR IN GLEN ELLYN TO SEE 'FIRST LADIES' IN COSTUME PAGEANT

Mrs. J. Earl Daniells.

Anan Harmon chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution has extended invitations to state officers, the fourth division director and the fourth division regents to attend its opening meeting, a colonial reception and a tea, Friday, at the home of Mrs. H. R. Mardorf, 675 Main street, Glen Ellyn.

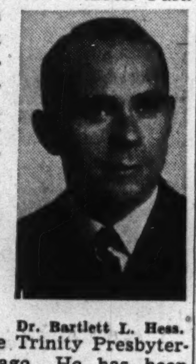
Mrs. J. Earl Daniells, regent, Mrs. C. Glenn Whitlock, organizing regent, and Mrs. H. A. Mardorf will receive.

Mrs. George M. Kendall, program chairman, in coöperation with Mrs. S. A. Denison, Mrs. R. W. Mogle and Mrs. D. C. McIntire, has arranged a program on women of the White House. Members of the chapter will appear in costumes as nearly authentic as possible to represent the following:

Martha Washington, Mrs. L. J. Hiatt; Dolly Madison, Mrs. W. G. Kaiser; Mary Todd Lincoln, Mrs. M. C. Palmer; Frances Falsom Cleveland, Mrs. E. L. Young; Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, Mrs. C. P. Bentno, and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, Mrs. R. D. Robertson.

Mrs. R. W. Mogle will be narrator. Irene Baethke Grimshaw, violinist, and Ruth Sanderson Phillips, concert pianist, will provide music in keeping with the periods.

Father to Help Install Son as Cicero Pastor



Dr. Bartlett L. Hess.

Dr. Bartlett L. Hess will be installed as minister of Warren Park Presbyterian church, Cicero, at 7:30 o'clock tonight in ceremonies in which both his father and father-in-law will participate. He succeeds the Rev. Stuart S. Pratt, who has been assigned special duties in Oakland, Cal.

Dr. Hess has been pastor of the Trinity Presbyterian church, Chicago. He has been preaching since he was 19 years old, but found time also to take degrees from Park college, the University of Kansas, and the Presbyterian Theological seminary, Chicago. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

The installation will be conducted by a special committee of the presbytery with the Rev. Howard Johnston, father of Mrs. Hess, acting as moderator. The Rev. Mr. Johnston has been pastor of Faith Presbyterian church, Chicago, for the last 23 years.

The Rev. John L. Hess, organizer of 12 churches in western United States and father of the new pastor, will give the charge to his son.

The Rev. Homer F. Roberts of Clement Presbyterian church, Cicero, will ask the invocation; the Rev. James Dudycha, retired Czecho-Slovakian minister of the Warren Park church, will read the scripture; prayer will be offered by the Rev. Ernest R. Armstrong, pastor of Brighton Park Presbyterian church, and the installation sermon will be preached by Dr. Wilbur M. Smith of Moody Bible institute.

The Rev. Paul S. Johnson, executive secretary of the Chicago presbytery, will give a charge to the congregation and the new pastor will close the service with benediction. Combined choirs of Warren Park Presbyterian and Calvary Reformed churches will sing.

TRAFELET SEES FLOW OF CASH ON ELECTION EVE

Says Token Checks Evade Law.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Raymond E. Trafelet of Berwyn last week accused administration leaders of deliberately withholding more than 300 million dollars in accumulated service men's dependency allowances until just before the Nov. 3 election in an effort to make votes for their candidates. Trafelet is the Republican nominee for congressman from the 6th district against former Congressman Thomas J. O'Brien, retiring sheriff who is seeking his old seat.

The young Berwyn attorney painted both O'Brien and his colleague, Congressman A. F. Maciejewski, as administration yes men who are part and parcel of a political group that does not hesitate to make political use of public funds, regardless of the hardships it works.

Speaks at G. O. P. Club.

Speaking before the West Suburban Women's Republican clubs in La Grange, Trafelet declared that the dependents' allowances are being held back "in spite of the law that requires that they be paid immediately to make it possible for these suffering people to live."

"A few straggling payments have cleared out of Washington," Trafelet said.

"Most of these were merely for newspaper display, so that the letter and not the spirit of the law would be complied with. The complaint that went up from the suffering dependents of our fighting heroes was so great that Washington had to revise the law.

"Nevertheless, these politicians are now using billions of dollars to purge congress of men who dare to fight for individual rights, of which the dependency payment delay is a glaring example.

Cites "Election Week" Payments.

"A Republican majority in congress and strong senatorial gains will put an end to such scandals.

"This is not the first time the administration has used public money for its own selfish ends. In 1938 and 1940 the Agricultural Adjustment administration and the Works Progress administration paid out accumulated grants and benefits in October that should have been distributed earlier. In many agricultural counties the 1940 AAA payments were given out on the Friday and Saturday preceding the Tuesday election.

"These practices happen too regularly to be called coincidences. The doling out of huge sums in the fall of off-election years demonstrates how Washington and its rubber stamp congressmen and senators are playing politics with American lives.

"The record of my opponent is complete in its showing of his subjection to everything the bosses order—he is the hand picked candidate of Boss Nash.

"The record he has established as sheriff is branded a national disgrace, so his chiefs have slated him for a position they believe their political machine can control for him. Honest voters have it within their power to show that this belief is wrong.

Calls Him "Voice of Nash."

"The people of western Chicago and the adjacent suburbs are entitled to their vote in congress. Election of my opponent will leave them represented by the voice of one that is solely the voice of his masters—Nash and his gang."

Trafelet's candidacy has been indorsed by the newly organized Republican Club for Men and Women of Oak Park, Inc., headed by Joseph Coyner, delegate to the national G. O. P. convention in 1940. Louis A. Bowman is secretary and Harry C. Meyers is treasurer.

"This club reaffirms its faith in the patriotism of the founding fathers," says the club's declaration of principles. "Today our government is facing its severest test. The theory of some has been advanced that personal liberty has become incompatible with economic security. . . .

"We Republicans contend that if this theory is right, then the master minds of our great Washington and Lincoln were wrong and Hitler, Hirohito, and Mussolini are right."

PLEDGE DINNER TO BE SERVED BY CHURCH AT LISLE

A membership and pledge dinner will be held Wednesday night in the basement of the newly remodeled Lisle Congregational church, Ogden avenue and Joliet road, Lisle. The fellowship dinner will be served by the Ladies Aid society of which Mrs. Ed Vana is president.

Lisle Congregational church, founded in 1842, dedicated its new church structure last January, following its remodeling after having been partially destroyed by lightning.

The Rev. Olaf A. Stoeve, part time pastor since last November, became full time pastor in June. The Rev. Mr. Stoeve is a native of Swift Current, Saskatchewan, Can., and received his education at Concordia college, Moorhead, Minn., and the University of North Dakota, as well as Chicago Theological seminary.

G. O. P. FIGHTING UPHILL BATTLE AGAINST DALEY

But Andrew Toman Is Out for Victory Nov. 3.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Despite gains, Republicans cannot be blamed if they are somewhat grim as they tackle the assignment of unseating State Sen. Richard J. Daley of the 9th district, comprised of parts of Wards 11, 12, 13, 21, 22, and 25.

Andrew Toman, who was an alternate delegate to the 1940 Republican national convention, has drawn the task of opposing Daley. Born in Poland in 1896, he is said to be quite adept as a spellbinder in the Polish language, and this nationality factor in the district has become more important in recent years.

"I'm going to pitch in and fight for a Republican victory Nov. 3," Toman vowed. "Not even the Democrats can deny there has been an improvement in our prospects."

Primary Reflects Gains.

Sen. Daley was elected in 1938 by an 11 to 4 margin over the Republican nominee. That primary the Democratic tide of votes for this office overwhelmed the G. O. P. by 10 to 1. In the primary this year, however, the Democrats' edge was reduced to about 6 to 1.

The Republican primary vote for senator increased 25 per cent while the Democratic fell 23 per cent.

Sponsored by Committeeman William S. Finucane of the 11th ward, Toman resides in the 12th ward at 3822 South Winchester avenue. He is a member of the 12th ward organization of Hector Broulliet rather than the regular party group headed by Committeeman Felix Kucharski. The latter's comments on Toman's chances were pitched accordingly.

Toman, a stockyards employé for 24 years, is having pamphlets printed assailing Sen. Daley for holding two public jobs [Toman says he would be satisfied with one], and for wearing civilian clothes. Toman has been doing some speaking at neighborhood flag raisings, and signs are being posted for him.

Member of American Legion.

Toman is a member of the American Legion and of the American Federation of Labor.

"He is going to give Daley quite a run," Committeeman Finucane promised.

With an eagerness that makes his facial expression younger than his 36 years, Sen. Daley has been one of the most active junior legislators. This has given him quite a record of accomplishment for his two years as a representative and four years as senator.

The outstanding item is the tax preajudication bill to give small taxpayers reductions such as are obtained by large taxpayers with counsel to protest illegal assessments. Twice he has been a leader in achieving passage; once the law was nullified by the Illinois Supreme court, next the bill was vetoed.

"This bill must be passed again," Sen. Daley said. "Democracy must be made to apply to the rights of taxpayers, rich or poor. Next session I will try two approaches—one which has not yet been ruled on by the Supreme court, and a new angle, from the legalistic standpoint."

Pledges Reapportionment Light.

Sen. Daley also pledged his efforts to overcome the 40 year deadlock between Cook county and downstate on reapportionment of the state to give the Chicago area its just share of representation according to the state constitution. The constitution will have to be amended to neutralize downstate objections to any change in the present lopsided division of power, he said.

While working at the stockyards he attended the De Paul university law school, obtaining his degree in 1933. Earlier he attended the Nativity parochial school, where his mother had been a pupil and where his eldest daughter trots to classes nowadays. He is deputy controler of Cook county.

With his wife and four children ranging from 6 months to 6 years in age he lives at 3536 Lowe avenue.

There is no contest Nov. 3 for the district's three house seats. Only three candidates were nominated in April—William S. Finucane [R.] and William J. Gormley and Peter P. Jezierny, Democrats, who already occupy the offices.

Maywood Pastor to Talk to Youth of Oak Park

The Rev. Roy Merrifield, pastor of Plymouth Congregational church, Maywood, will speak on "Experience of a Chaplain" at the fall meeting of the Oak Park and River Forest Youth federation at 6 o'clock this evening at the First Congregational church, Lake street and Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park.

Oak Park Librarian.

Miss Marcella Klein has been named children's librarian of the Oak Park public library, it is announced by Miss Elsie McKay, head librarian.

Block Dedicates Flag to 31

With 31 men in the armed forces, block 6 of zone 2 in the North Lawndale ODC community has ample reason to be proud of its service record. In recognition of those servicemen, a flag and honor roll were dedicated recently on Whipple street, just off Roosevelt road. Fillmore street and Sacramento avenue are the other boundaries of the block. Present for the dedicatio ceremony were, left to right, Mrs. Frieda Del Regno, assistant block captain; Joseph Ferraro, block captain; Mrs. Joseph Keller, who is acting zone captain in the absence of her husband, who is employed in a defense plant in California; Staff Sergt. Isadore Caisman, former block resident now stationed at Camp Beal, California, and Miss Rose Kleiman, assistant zone captain.

Area commanders will be in charge of approximately 500 solicitors. Those willing to take part in the campaign are urged to get in touch with their commanders or with the Community Chest office, 6728 Windsor avenue, telephone Berwyn 6477.

SORORITY PARTY TO AID OAK PARK SCHOOL KITCHENS

To help equip emergency kitchens in the eleven elementary schools in Oak Park, Alpha Theta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will stage a fashion show and card party at 2 o'clock Saturday at the Oak Park club.

Civilian defense is the study theme for the sorority for the season. The first project is assisting in the purchase of the kitchen equipment so large quantities of food can be prepared in event of an emergency.

Mrs. B. S. Hone of Alpha Theta chapter; Miss Violent Christin of Alpha Lambda, and Miss Mildred Oakes of Delta Psi chapter are in charge of arrangements.

Married 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Lindelsee celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently at their home, 4947 Congress street. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lindelsee have resided in Chicago for more than 70 years. For the 17 years prior to their retirement in April, 1940, they were "Grandpa" and "Grandma" to the hundreds of children who attended the May school across the street from their delicatessen and school supply store. They have two children, six grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

B. B. COONS, oldest business man in Maywood and a resident of the suburb for 31 years, recently observed his 80th birthday. Mr. Coons was born in a log house in Canada, near Ottawa, and at the age of 15 began teaching school. Coming to the United States in 1884, he engaged in railroad work having to do with service, transportation, and accounting departments. He now represents the Commercial Union Assurance Co., Ltd.

B. B. Coons.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Bowler, 4457 Wilcox street, are the parents of a daughter, Madeleine Marguerite, born at Oak Park hospital. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Catherine Bowler and Mrs. Joseph F. Claval, formerly of Maywood.

HARRY JOHN BROWN, son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Brown, 735 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park, left last week for Rochester, N. Y., where he will enter the Eastman School of Music. A graduate of Oak Park-River Forest High school last June, Harry John conducted the Oak Park-River Forest Junior Symphony orchestra and was active in school dramatic and musical organizations. He attended the National Music camp at Interlochen, Mich., during the summer months and there conducted the college division orchestra in one of his own compositions, the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow" suite. He received a scholarship to the Eastman school in recognition of his selection as outstanding college camper of this year's session.

DIARY OF CZECH SOLDIER IS VIVID CHAPTER OF WAR

Safe in Berwyn, He Hopes to Join U. S. Army.

A Czech soldier who stole thru Hitler's lines in a midnight boat trip, made a three day stand with the French foreign legion in northern France, and only recently escaped from a Vichy French labor battalion in the Sahara desert, is now impatiently waiting at a friend's home in Berwyn for permission to join the American forces.

He is Anton Pospisil, 27, a native of Prostejov in the province of Moravia, Czecho-Slovakia, who fled the country by the underground network of allied agents after German troops marched into his home town when Czecho-Slovakia was forced to surrender. His diary, kept in the marshes of Hungary, on the jolting, Syria bound Oriental express, and in the heat of the African desert, is a vivid chronicle of the battering forces in a world at war.

Draft Officials Take Up Case.

Unable to speak English, Pospisil found his way to Berwyn draft board No. 1, and there found an able conversant in Capt. Adolph F. Matejek, chief clerk. Capt. Matejek has accepted his request to join the army, and as soon as the case is approved by state selective service officials, Pospisil once more will be in a fighting force with the avowed aim of wiping out the axis. Until then he is at the home of friends at 1829 South Gunderson avenue, Berwyn.

"The radio began broadcasting warnings to the people at 5 o'clock this morning," Pospisil's diary begins on March 15, 1939. "Soon the Germans must have seized the stations, for they now issued instructions for all to remain quiet, that German troops would soon enter the city [Prostejov] and that order would be restored.

"There was no disorder, and when the trucks of German troops rolled in at 9 o'clock, their faces couldn't conceal their chagrin at finding everything orderly. They came in two columns converging on the city, and consisted only of trucks and tanks. There was no artillery, and they needed none, for our people could offer no resistance."

Name Street for Goering.

Pospisil's diary for the next day reveals that life is going on much the same under German military rule; altho a rush for food has cleared the shelves of the shops, and the Germans have already taken down the street signs. Namesti Svobody [Liberty Square] has been renamed Goering Place.

"Tonight is the night," his diary goes on in scribbled pages. "We meet a newsboy at the foot of the bridge, and he will have a boat there to cross the Morava river into Hungary. All has been arranged by agents from the French foreign legion. There are five going—Josef, Stanislav, Jaroslav, Jaromir, and myself. We need good luck."

The five found good luck, for they succeeded in crossing into Hungary, and on to Budapest and thence to Jugo-Slavia, where the French agents, who were recruiting thruout the occupied countries in defiance of the Germans, had tickets on the Oriental express for them. They were sent to Bierut, Syria, then a main induction center for refugees entering the foreign legion. After a boat trip to Marseilles, they became the Czech legion of the French army.

French Army in Confusion.

"We are approaching the northern front, and will soon see our first Huns," the diary reads on June 10, 1940. "All about us is confusion, and the general movement of the French regulars seems to be away from the front, directly opposite of our course. We are only equipped with old French rifles with long bayonets. The guns are taller than we are. They are only single shots.

"Now we are on the Marne front," the diary read a few days later. "We are hidden in the marsh. We can occasionally see Germans moving about a mile or so away. Nobody seems to be doing anything."

There are no entries in the diary for the next month. According to Pospisil, on the third day the Germans, who had evidently been reorganizing, suddenly swept down on the French forces who were still decidedly unorganized. In their haste to evacuate the territory, the French blew up the bridges over the Seine river before all of their own troops had crossed. This caused the units to become even more disorganized, in the wild flight to cross the river, Pospisil became separated from his four companions. He has never heard from them since.

Reaches Unoccupied France.

He fell in with some French regulars and stuck with them until they reached lower France.

"I am working in the Sahara on the Trans-Sahara railroad," an entry later in the summer reads. "The Vichy government has assumed control and the refugee troops are being given harsh treatment, probably at the demand of the Germans. We have no soap, we wear only rags, and we break rocks and carry ties 10 hours a day.

Flees to Safety in Morocco.

Pospisil and a friend fled across the desert into Spanish Morocco early in July, and from there he communicated with an aunt in this country. The aunt asked the state department to intercede, and the consul-general in Spanish Morocco arranged passage to this country on a Portuguese steamer. He arrived in Baltimore July 30.

Capt. Matejek of the Berwyn draft board where Pospisil applied for entry into the army, said that Pospisil volunteered as a nondeclarant alien. Special papers were filled out and sent to the state director of selective service for approval.

"The sooner the better," Pospisil told reporters, and the calm smile on his face pledged that none of his adventures had lessened his determination to get back in the struggle. "Perhaps this time I might even have something better than an 1872 French musket for arms."

Young Corporal Gets Riflery Tip

Returning recently from Camp St. John's, Delafield, Wis., were two boys from west side suburbs who had spent the last eight weeks as members of the military academy's summer drill class there. Charles Staufenberg (left) was color sergeant of Camp St. John's, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Staufenberg, 715 Revere road, Glen Ellyn. He won a silver medal and the trophy in riflery while at camp. Here he is explaining a point to James Mills, corporal, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Mills of St. Charles. He won a first place medal in the junior conservation corps.

HISTORY GROUP HOLDING REUNION NEXT THURSDAY

The annual reunion of the Lawndale-Crawford Historical association will take place at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night at its headquarters, the John Toman branch library, 4005 27th street, it is announced by Larned E. Meacham, president. The program is being prepared by the committee headed by Mrs. Nellie A. Hempenius.

An exhibit of 800 pictures and relics of the early days of the community has been arranged by Miss Marie Melberg, secretary-historian. Included in the exhibit will be photos of early school buildings, the vehicles of early Chicago, old business streets, and the digging of the drainage canal.

Double Deck Street Car.

An oddity in the collection is the photograph of the only double deck street car ever operated in Chicago. It began traveling along 22d street in 1897, and a year later, when thousands of Chicagoans were flocking out to look at the drainage canal, it ran along Lawndale avenue from 22d street to the canal.

There are also many pictures of the early settlers and their homes. Among these are portraits of Peter Crawford and his wife, Sophronia, first permanent settlers in the community, and for whom Crawford avenue, now Pulaski road, was named. His farm, 160 acres in area, at $15 an acre, was located west of Pulaski, between 22d and 26th streets.

Leaders of Society.

Officers of the organization are Larned E. Meecham, president; Mary Newett Broadway, vice president; Marie Melberg, assistant librarian of Toman branch, secretary-historian; Peter B. Ritzma, principal of Farragut High school, and Miss Helena Hamel, librarian of Toman branch, director.

North Austin OCD Party.

The North Austin Civilian Defense organization will hold a card party at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in La Follette park.

'SKEETER' PLANES TO BUZZ AT WAR SERVICE FETE

Models Compete Sunday at Glen Ellyn.

The model airplane contest, to be held next Sunday in conjunction with the Du Page War Service day program, is expected to attract the most representative list of entries of any event to be staged in the Chicago district this fall, Loren Thompson, contest chairman, announced last week.

The celebration, for which Probate Clerk Bernard M. Long is general chairman, will be held at Roosevelt road and Park boulevard, Glen Ellyn. Gov. Dwight Green will be the main speaker on the program.

Gas Model Races.

Numerous requests for admission to the meet have been made by model airplane builders. There will be A, B, and C gas model events in open and junior classes, and an out cabin rubber powered plane event in both junior and open classes. There will also be a U control event. In U control flying, the operator controls the flight of the model by wires attached to it while the plane describes a circle around him. Some models in this type of flying have attained speeds of almost 60 miles an hour.

Kits and merchandise in addition to war bonds and stamps will be awarded the winners. The prizes are donated by the Du Page County Republican central committee, which is sponsoring the Du Page War Seervice day celebration.

Plan Closed Event.

Contestants who hesitate in entering a gas model flight for the first time will be allowed to fly their planes without competing against those with previous experience.

Applications for the contests may be obtained at hobby shops and at the offices of community newspapers. Contest Director Thompson, 210 West Front street, Wheaton, has requested that all applications be filed with him by Wednesday. Each contestant will receive five badges for the entry fee of $1 by return mail.

Four of the 25 cent badges are to be sold to friends and the other is to be worn on the day of the show. The $1 sent with each application will be turned over to the USO as will all proceeds from badge sales.

AMERICANS ALL! THAT'S GARIBALDI INSTITUTE CREED

636 of Italian Descent Learn Citizenship.

"If you had enough money, and you could make the trip, would any of you like to go back to your native country?"

As one, the 50 voices joined in a resounding chorus of "No!"

It was the citizenship class at Garibaldi institute, social center at 904 South Oakley boulevard, where 78 per cent of the attendance is Italian-American.

The instructor, Miss Mary Tancredi, knew the answer she would get before she asked that question. The effort her pupils have put into their attempts to earn their citizenship papers is answer enough. But they enjoy giving a more vocal expression to their feelings. Miss Tancredi, sent out by the board of education, conducts three classes each week at the institute, one for beginners, one for advanced students, and one for the students ready for their first papers.

Allegiance Only to U. S.

Americans of Italian ancestry are eager to show they hold no allegiance to their native land. Enrollment in the classes has flourished, and advancement of individuals depends entirely upon the amount of effort each puts into his work.

Even those men and women in their late '60s attend the classes regularly, and manage with great effort to learn to read and write their own names in English. They gradually familiarize themselves with the Constitution, the forms of government, and the other facts necessary to know before they can obtain their papers.

The citizenship classes are not the only activity at the institute, however. When it was started back in 1921, the Rev. Pasquale De Carlo, its founder and pastor, saw that crowded conditions of a city bred special perils. He believed that they could be counteracted by replacing antisocial activities with moral and educational activities. Therefore he began at the beginning, by starting a kindergarten, a Boy Scout troop, Mothers' clubs, and a bureau of information and employment. He centered them all under one roof, and called the composite Garibaldi institute, after the famous Italian liberator.

Take Over Old Mansion.

The first headquarters were at 1208 Taylor street. In 1936, an old mansion was taken over at 904 Oakley boulevard, and later the residence next door was acquired to care for the enlarged program of the institute.

There are 636 persons registered for that enlarged program today—the majority of them children. For them the institute provides a varied list of activities, from piano classes which include students as young as 5 years, to camping sessions attended by 61 young people from the community this summer. There is a doll library for the smaller girls, where they are taught how to care for the dolls and their clothes, and allowed to borrow dolls for a week at a time. A harmonica club is popular among the older boys, many with the talent for music born in so many Italians. The girls have their folk dancing classes.

Effect on Neighborhood.

The effect of the institute on the community is evident. The Mothers' club sings Italian songs as well as English numbers at churches and socials thruout the neighborhood. The institute is a meeting place for a number of clubs and social organizations in the community. The boys in the institute craft shop accomplished an ambitious cleanup program this spring when they distributed attractively painted ash cans and garbage cans to householders for blocks around.

Assisting the Rev. Mr. De Carlo in the work at the institute are Miss Dorothy Bayles, head resident; Miss Jean White, girls' club leader; Marvin Sussman, boys' club leader, and Miss Henrietta Newton, secretary and kindergarten leader. There are four maintenance workers, and a number of volunteer part time assistants. The institute is under the board of extension of the Presbyterian church.

Minister's Daughter Becomes Bride

Before her recent marriage, Mrs. Earl R. Blair was Clara M. Baumgaertner, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Louis Baumgaertner of Huntley, Ill., formerly of Chicago. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Blair of Maywood. The wedding took place in the Huntley Lutheran Trinity church, founded by the bride's grandfather, the Rev. J. E. Baumgaertner, over 100 years ago.

WHEATON OPENS WAR WORKERS' NIGHT CLASSES

Expect 250 to Enroll in Free Classes.

War workers in the area will be given the opportunity to take free evening courses at Wheaton college again this fall. Offerings at Wheaton under the engineering, science, and management war training program of the U. S. office of education have been increased to nine evening courses, according to Vice President Enock C. Dyrness, the institutional representative.

Wheaton college is one of six schools in the Chicago area selected for training of war workers and the schedule planned for this fall will begin tomorrow. Enrollment of about 250 war workers who are candidates for positions in war industries is anticipated.

Require High School Diploma.

All candidates must have at least a high school education or the equivalent, and several courses have special requirements which must be met by those wishing to enroll. There is no tuition charge and a certificate is issued to each candidate upon the satisfactory completion of a course. Courses in three general fields will be offered. All courses will run for 16 weeks, most of them meeting one evening a week for two hours, with the exception of those under the science division.

In the field of business administration, courses in cost accounting for war production, personnel managemen, production management, and statistical methods will be taught by men who are actively engaged in industry.

Give Radio Fundamentals.

Under the heading of science, the fundamentals of radio will meet three evenings a week for a total of nine hours a week. General chemistry for laboratory technicians will meet two evenings for a total of five hours a week.

Engineering courses, which are offered in coöperation with the Illinois Institute of Technology, will include mechanical drawing, metallurgy, and metallography, and principles of aeronautics for aircraft workers.

Marriage Announced

[Frazin Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Levin, 3631 Flournoy street, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Lillian, to Milton D. Rosenfield of the Blackwood hotel. The wedding took place Sept. 16.

Plan YMCA Campaigns.

Two northwest side YMCA's will begin their 1942 membership campaigns in October. Chairmen are Martin Callaghan, Division Street Y, and L. W. Schoepp, Irving Park Y.

DISCUSS CHANGE IN GOVERNMENT FOR FOREST PARK

Say Commission Form Not Representative.

Change of the form of government in Forest Park was considered at a recent meeting of a group of taxpayers and interested citizens of the suburb. Conviction that the commission form of government is not fully satisfactory for Forest Park has been held by many citizens of the community for several years. This type of government, it is contended, has not fulfilled the promises made for it when it was first voted into effect.

Among the objections to the commission form is that it does not represent the village as a whole. Thickly populated areas in the community can, it is claimed, elect the few representatives, while the less populated, but perhaps higher tax paying areas, receive no representation. Another objection is that too much power is placed in the hands of too few representatives.

Favor District Representation.

Those who would bring about a change insist that all sections of the village are entitled to representation, according to their populations. District representation was most favored.

A candidate for office on one side of the village, it is declared, should not be forced to make concessions to candidates from other sides of the village for the purpose of gaining a few votes. Nor, it is contended, should a candidate be controled by a political machine or a group for the purpose of trading jobs for votes in order to be elected.

Study Legal Opinion.

A candidate seeking election in his own district, it is pointed out, must necessarily find appeal with the voters as they are his neighbors and in a position to judge his capabilities.

Those interested in changing the village form of government have studied a legal opinion regarding the procedure necessary to abandon the present form.

Married at Camp

[Herzog Photo.]

In a recent ceremony in St. Mary's chapel at Camp Grant Miss Margueritte Langdoc, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arcade Langdoc, 4003 Adams street, became the bride of Sergt. Charles Peters of Grand Rapids, Mich.

HAPPY FIGHTERS TAKE THE CAKE AT RIVERSIDE FAIR

60 from Bakery Display Given to Center.

Among the winners at Riverside's recent town fair was the Chicago Servicemen's center which was sent donations of more than 60 cakes, boxes of cookies and cup cakes that had formed the fair's exhibit of bakery goods. In collecting the confections, Mrs. Henry Bleier and Mrs. Frank Zeman contacted neighbors on the telephone.

When the truck load of goodies reached the center, a detail of grateful service men carried them to the third floor canteen. Fifty women of the village contributed to the bakery display.

Mrs. Frank J. Mancl carried away more honors and ribbons than any one exhibitor at the fair. Her entries won 12 ribbons, one of them a special for red cabbage.

Two Tie for Second.

Frank Kovarik and E. H. Dodds, each receiving 11 ribbons, tied for second honors. Mr. Kovarik's offerings included a passion flower, a sunflower, a dahlia, asters, and marigolds. Mr. Dodd's trophies were awarded for exhibits of sage, corn, carrots, summer squash, and beets.

The list of winners of awards who helped make the 1942 community event a success includes Mrs. Ernest Brandner, vegetables and preserves; Mrs. R. G. Brooks, dinner table setting; Miss Ella Karanda, asters; John Busse, egg plant; Miss Josephine Sherman, zinnias, marigold and dahlias; Edward J. Muzik, delphiniums; C. C. Austin, dahlias; Mrs. George Schmitt, gourds and flowers.

Mrs. L. G. Wilkinson, cacti; M. R. Edgerton, egg plant; Carla Ann Jackson, asters; L. J. Emery, quince; Mrs. E. P. Eckmann, flower arrangements; John Carroll Smith, roses; Mrs. H. J. Hruza, preserves; Mrs. Mabel Johnson Fuller, arrangements of driftwood; Connie Cook, cabbages; Rudolph Miklas, salvia, balsam, peanut plant, honesty plant and vegetables; Mrs. G. P. Ellsworth, vegetables from Lawton road gardens.

Other Award Winners.

Mrs. J. W. Dvorak, preserves; Phillip Ellsworth Jr., 64-pound pumpkin; Mrs. William Bower, place setting; Mrs. A. J. Cuchna, zinnias; Mrs. Anne Cassil, roses and chrysanthemums; Mrs. E. H. Dodds, preserves; Mrs. E. A. Bower, hibiscus; Henry O. Kichner, Swiss chard; Mrs. J. S. Goddard, place setting; James W. Ivins, cabbage.

L. W. Klenk, dahlias; Mrs. R. T. Pritchard, flower arrangement; Mrs. E. P. O'Brien, flower arrangement; Mrs. Arnold Lund, flower arrangement; Mrs. F. N. Whitney, herbs and beets, sage, zinnias and sedum; Yvonne Stehly, flower arrangements; Mrs. R. D. Phelps, bride's table arrangement; Mrs. R. J. Cruzen, place setting; Mrs. R. D. Phelps Jr., place setting; Sally Cruzen, fruits and vegetables arrangement.

More Win Ribbons.

Mrs. V. P. Cipra, preserves; Mrs. A. I. G. Valentine, gourds and vegetable collection; Mrs. P. J. Burrill, roses, platacodium, daisies, marigolds and cookies; L. J. Van Cleve, coxcomb, dahlia and asters; Mrs. A. J. Norman, cake; W. F. Lewis, dahlias; Mrs. N. W. Willard, table arrangement; William Evans, eggplant and vine; F. G. Novak, lillies; A. A. Vickery, beets, tomatoes and kohlrabi; Carol Cruzen, arrangements; Mrs. Carl Miller, preserves.

George F. Rezek, peppers, tomatoes and eggplant; Claes L. Hultgren, grapes; Mrs. James J. Vesely, cookies; Mrs. James Shuss and Mrs. Edward Sluka, cookies and tarts.

Wins Singing Award.

Lois Gentile, 1510 North Leamington avenue, has won the Chicago Drama league singing scholarship for the second year in succession.

Late Summer Wedding

Before her recent marriage, Mrs. Louis Runge Jr. was Mary Jane Brogan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Brogan, 314 North Maple avenue, Oak Park. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Runge, 5821 Berenice street. After Oct. 1 the couple will be at home at 2848 Lockwood avenue. [Toloff Photo.]

FAMILY FETE MARKS GOLDEN WEDDING DAY OF KIBBY COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Kibby, residents of Chicago and its suburbs for the greater part of their married life, celebrated their golden wedding recently at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Savre, Palmer Kibby.

Mrs. Kibby.

1037 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park. Mr. Kibby is a cousin of "Uncle Joe" Cannon, speaker of the house for a number of years, and Mrs. Kibby is a descendant of Alexander Hamilton. The Kibbys have four children, James Palmer Kibby of Chicago, Gilbert Stivers Kibby of Cicero, Mrs. Jennie Newell of Lombard, and Mrs. Margaret Savre of Oak Park.

PLAN WAR BOND DRIVE LUNCHEON IN FOREST PARK

A luncheon Thursday for all who participate in the September war bond drive is planned in Forest Park. Admission will be a $50 bond, and efforts are being made to bring in purchasers for larger amounts thru contact with local factory heads.

The plan is patterned after the recent $1,000 bond dinner and similar events being held over the country. The feature of the luncheon will be the presence of Lana Turner and Pat O'Brien, screen stars.

Members of the committee in charge are Don Johnson, Lloyd Lehman, Frank Bertuch, Col. Joseph McCormick, Arthur Q. Dobbeck, Carl Castrup, Fred Becker, Ernest Reich, Emil Roehlke, Charles Meseke, Edmund Trage, and Claude A. Walker. Pledge cards are available at the Forest theater or the Forest Park Review.

WAR BOARD LETS PIANO VETERANS CONTINUE WORK

Exception Is Made for Stein's Old Timers.

and remembers with disdain how women invaded the industry during the last year. "They had to send all the pieces back to be done over," he grumbles.

Landen Is Dean.

Dean of the shop is Charles E. Landen, 78, 1423 Farragut avenue. His is the exacting task of preparing the laminated bridges and ribs, and setting them on the sounding board. They are then hand dressed to satin smoothness. Charlie has been doing that for 50 years. He doesn't play the piano himself, but he has a healthy respect for any one who does, and saw to it that his son took lessons.

Also silently at work at the benches around the big room are Oscar Justrom, 65, with 40 years of experience; Carl Freeberg, 65, in the business more than 40 years; Charles Stanek, 60, 30 years a piano builder; Gustav Millies, 69, with a 46 year service record; Walter Martin, only 45, but with 30 years of piano building behind him; Richard Pearson, 75, who has been teaching the other men how to do it for 52 years; Emil Marx, 48, who learned the trade 43 years ago; Edward A. Weise, 54, who began piano-making at the age of 14; and Frank Balter, 61, who has been at it for 43 years.

Fathers, Sons Work Together.

Alex Buchanan, 58, lives out at Crete, and drives into the city every day, just as he has been doing for 44 years. He saw to it that his son, Robert, now 29, took up the trade too, and for four years the pair has been working side by side, installing the actions in the pianos as they come down the line. They could build a piano by themselves, if they ever had to.

Another father-son pair working at the Stein plant is Charles Bartel and Charles Bartel Jr. Their banter provides entertainment for other workers day after day. The elder Bartel, 62, has been building fine pianos for 45 years.

Newest employé is Gustav Scheffler, 45, who has been with Stein for only two years. He came from Germany in 1925, and learned pianomaking 28 years ago from his father, who was a pianomaker in Berlin for more than 50 years.

Building a piano isn't a matter of just a few days—or even a few weeks. At least 120 days elapse between the first and final coats of the hand-rubbed finish. Sometimes it takes as long as 12 to 16 months to finish a single piano, which is often sold long before it is designed. The average piano takes three months to complete. The sounding boards, however, are aged for at least six years before they ever go into a piano. One "vintage" board still in the drying racks at Steins is dated 1929.

Can Run Another Year.

The plant won't get any more material now. But it has more than enough on hand to run until Dec. 31. Few of the materials on hand could be used in war industry. For instance, the metal plate used on a sounding board costs about $40, but would bring about $2 as junk. The bass strings alone cost $7, but would be worth only 60 cents as scrap metal.

What will happen after Dec. 31 no one knows. But if the machinery which made mass production pianos before the war should not be converted to civilian use for decades, these men could still produce the instruments for the Paderewskis and the Alec Tempeltons of the future.

Juana-Hennepin Isabella Ladies to Give Card Party

Juana-Hennepin council, Ladies of Isabella, will sponsor a card party for the benefit of the Christmas cheer fund Thursday evening at the Graemere hotel, 113 North Homan avenue. Miss Katherine D. Meyers, chairman, is being assisted by members of the council.

Garden Show to Close Tonight at Garfield Park

The garden show of the Sixth district garden department of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs will close this evening at the Garfield park conservatory. The exhibits will remain open until 10 o'clock.

94 West Siders Get Permits to Purchase New Tires, Tubes

Ninety-four west side persons and companies were allotted 49 passenger tires, 87 passenger tubes, 177 truck tires, and 135 truck tubes by rationing boards for the week ending Sept. 12.

Manzo Brothers, 16 South Water Market, with permits for 18 truck tires and 18 tubes, topped all others in number allowed. The United States postoffice was allowed 21 tires and 10 tubes.

West siders sharing in the rationing were:

"I MOVED CLOSER TO THE STORES"

"It's an easy walk now and we're saving the car and tires, too."

WOULD it be more convenient for you to take an apartment closer to shopping facilities? Are you going to have to move closer to your work?

Consult the Apartments to Rent columns in the Tribune want ad section. There you will find offers of attractive apartments grouped for ready reference by numbers of rooms and by locations thruout Chicago and suburbs. Because the Tribune prints more apartments to rent want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined, you have the largest choice of apartments available when you choose from these helpful columns. Review them today.

HOW TO SPEED HOUSEWORK

In these times, it pays to organize your housework as efficiently as possible.

Good, labor-saving appliances, such as those advertised in the Household Appliances column in the Tribune want ad section, can help you to do your work better and faster. Washers, ironers, vacuum cleaners and a variety of other appliances are made available thru these columns. Watch your opportunities to get the appliances you need thru these offerings.

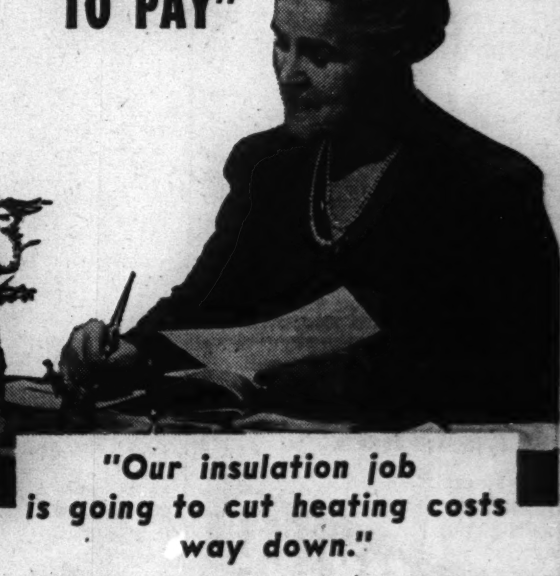
"AM I GLAD I TOOK THAT COURSE!"

"There are plenty of promotions around here for those with special training."

Are you in line for promotion? Do you have the training required to qualify for a better job?

Ambitious men and women are preparing themselves for today's big demand for trained workers by taking courses offered in the Instruction, Trade Schools, Musical and Dramatic, and Dressmaking and Millinery Schools columns of the Tribune want ad section. Select one of these regular or short courses today and get started on the surest route to quick advancement.

"HERE'S ONE BILL I'M HAPPY TO PAY"



"Our insulation job is going to cut heating costs way down."

Next winter will be no time to put up with drafty doors and windows or walls and ceilings that leak heat and waste fuel. Every householder who possibly can should make his home wintertight before fall.

For offers of insulation, storm sash, weatherstripping, heating equipment and other items you need to plug heat losses, consult the Building Materials column in the Tribune want ad section. You save doubly by taking advantage of these offerings—both on the cost of the materials you buy and in the fuel economies which they make possible. Watch this column in the want ad section.

"FIVE OF US DRIVE DOWN TOGETHER"

"We certainly are getting our money's worth in this used car."

If you need a car to get to work, you can choose from today's largest selection of used car values offered in the Tribune want ad section.

There is no ban on their sale. All you need is one-third down payment and you can handle the balance in 15 monthly instalments.

To get maximum value in a used car, watch the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in the Tribune want ad section. Because the Tribune prints more used automobiles for sale want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper, you have the largest choice when you follow these offerings. Turn to them now.

★Because they get better results, want ad users place more total want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

Get what you want and save time, energy and money with helpful TRIBUNE WANT ADS

FOR SHOW WITH SPIRIT TRY 'ON STAGE, CHANUTE'

W-G-N Presents Airmen Tuesday Nights.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

One of the brightest of the many soldier and sailor shows that ride the kilocycles nowadays comes from the USO center in Rantoul, down in the midst of Illinois' cornfields. It's called "On Stage, Chanute," and if your aren't listening to it at 7:30 p. m. Tuesdays on W-G-N you're missing some of the best band music and choral singing on the air.

It's all provided, of course, by the men of the air forces at big Chanute field, which overshadows little Rantoul. Busy as they are training for flying servies the men devote a lot of time and energy to broadcast the shows. It takes a lot of planning and long hours of rehearsal to develop these entertainments and put them together. We found that out by visiting Rantoul.

Many Problems Encountered.

Producer Morrison Wood and Francis Coughlin, who writes the script, spend about half the week on these shows. Coöperating with Maj. M. F. Ranney, in charge of public relations, and Capt. Francis E. Hammond, in charge of music, they recruit the talent well in advance. Wood and Coughlin had already conducted preliminary rehearsals when we arrived.

And Max Bear, W-G-N engineer, and Announcer Lee Bennett [formerly a singer with Jan Garber's orchestra] were on hand for final rehearsals. Incidentally, an engineer gets a terrific workout on such shows put on from "remote" spots more than a hundred miles from the studio. Each week he has to lug down a lot of heavy special equipment. And he encounters a lot of knotty problems the studio technician escapes altogether.

In fact such impromptu shows are tough work for the producer, the announcer, the musical director, and it requires the closest coöperation among all to bring forth the smooth shows they do.

The flavor of the Chanute shows comes mainly from the fine musical groups that have been developed there. There's the really top band, with a nucleus of alumni from the great University of Illinois band. Band Leader Eugene Dieter gives a Sousa march a master touch. A half dozen men have been taken from the personnel of the band lately and been made army bandmasters elsewhere.

Choral Singing Featured.

You won't hear any better choral singing anywhere than that of the Chanute Wing chorus, directed by Capt. Hammond. Loudest applause for its performance came from Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production, who was a guest at the broadcast. In fact, after the show MacGregor joined some of the men in a little impromptu close harmony session. Stuart Piggins, who plays the piano for this group, was formerly an accompanist for Gladys Swarthout and the director of the Sunday Evening Hour chorus on CBS.

The Four Techs, composed of Sergt. Johnny Oliver, Privates Alex Drazba, Joe Bianco, and Ben Lorry give out the kind of rhythm that would be recognized as A1 in any swing circle.

Chanute seems to have everything in the realm of music. Sergt. Jay Froman and Pvt. Joseph Cuervo really know what to do with grand opera.

The weekly interviews with soldiers help to give prospective airmen a glimpse of what goes on at Chanute. Last Tuesday Technical Sergt. Paul B. Van Horn got down to business on the subject of propellers.

A rousing medley of World War I. tunes, with Lieut. Norma Brooks of the army nurse corps as soloist, tied the show all up in a bow.

W-G-N TO AIR NEW SERVICE MEN'S NIGHT CLUB SHOW

A new program for service men will make its debut on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Wednesday, when the Service Men's show is broadcast from the eighth floor night club of the Chicago Service Men's center at 176 West Washington street.

The musical novelty group, the "Hoosier Hot Shots," and the comedy team of "Tom, Dick, and Harry" will be regular attractions of the program and are scheduled to be heard each week along with visiting guest artists. The object of the program will be the entertainment of the service men who will be attending the night club at the service center.

First guest artist on the new weekly program will be Edna O'Dell, W-G-N singing star. Many singing stars of stage and radio are scheduled to appear as guests on the program.

The "Hoosier Hot Shots" are well known to the listening audience as a featured attraction of the National Barn Dance program for many years and as guest artists on numerous network programs. The novelty group features Frank Kettering, bass player who is heard on W-G-N supplying the bass background for Hugh Carson. Others in the musical combine are Gabe Ward, clarinet; Hezzie Trietsch, musical washboard, and Ken Trietsch, guitar.

On Date Show

Frances Scully is the mistress of ceremonies on Your Blind Date show presented Sundays at 6 p. m over WCFL and the Blue.

NEW YORK TENOR WILL BE GUEST ON MELODY HOUR

Mario Berini to Sing with Miss Claire.

Mario Berini, young New York tenor, will make his network debut Saturday, singing opposite Marion Claire, soprano, on W-G-N and Mutual's "America Loves a Melody" program to be aired from 8 to 9 p. m.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Berini, a newcomer to the concert world, has recently completed a successful concert tour of the east. He will have three solo selections on the program, singing Romberg's "Your Land and My Land," Campbell Tipton's "A Spirit Flower," and Lehar's "Yours Is My Heart Alone."

Miss Claire will offer four solo selections, Romberg's "The Same Silver Moon," "Il Est Doux, Il Est Bon" from Massenet's "Herodiade," Foster's "The Americans Come," and "The Lost Chord" by Sullivan.

Musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra conducted by Henry Weber and by the chorus under direction of Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production, will be the producer.

The chorus will offer two selections, Lieurance's "By the Waters of the Minnetonka" and Steininger's "Marching Along Together." The orchestra will play Délibès' "Czardas" from "Coppelia Ballet," and Herbert's "Indian Summer."

Two of the selections, "By the Waters of the Minnetonka" and "Indian Summer" will be accompanied by dramatic playlets drawn from $25 prize winning letters written by the radio audience telling true stories behind their favorite songs.

SEN. BROOKS' SAFETY ADDRESS ON W-G-N TONIGHT

An address by Sen. Wayland Brooks on "Safety in Peace and War" will be broadcast at 11:30 o'clock tonight by W-G-N and the Mutual network from a civilian defense rally at Moline, Ill. The rally will be held by the Illinois State Council of Defense. Sen. Brooks will urge safety in war factories and on the highways.

Period Furniture.

Andy was explaining to Amos [CBS] about the new furniture he had in his house. "Period furniture?" asked Amos. "Yes, indeed, it is period furniture," answered Andy, "I pay for it over a period of years."

FIRST NIGHTERS RECALL ANOTHER MOSCOW ATTACK

A drama titled, "The Great Bell of the Kremlin," written by Edwin M. Marshall, will be presented on the First Nighter show tonight at 7 o'clock over W-G-N.

The play concerns an episode in the lives of a Russian family during Napoleon's march on Moscow. Les Tremayne will be cast as Nicholas, an escaped captive from Napoleon's army, who has returned to Moscow to see his sweetheart, Anna, played by Barbara Luddy. Napoleon, like Hitler, stood at the gates of Moscow.

Moscow was to burned and the signal was to be the ringing of the great bell of the Kremlin. The heroism of the two leading characters is a thrilling explanation of the failure of Napoleon's march.

Eric Sagerquist and his First Nighter orchestra will supply the music.

HERE ARE SOME HINTS ON CARE OF YOUR FLOORS

Old Surface Can Be Made to Look Like New.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[We've prepared a leaflet on some popular types of floor finishes, and some Do's and Don'ts for proper floor refinishing. Please send a stamped, addressed envelope to this department if you wish leaflet.]

If you have a wood floor that is soiled and spotted it may be that:

1. A good paint and varnish remover will put the surface in shape for varnish, wax, or one of the new and beautiful penetrating finishes.

2. A good bleach will transform it to a blondness as modern as it is attractive.

3. Or a rented sanding machine have a new wood surface for what treatment we wish.

4. And an oxalic acid treatment can be counted on to rid a floor of dark stains and also to lighten the wood.

Prepare Old Surface.

If you wish a new floor, the chances are it can be laid over the old one, if the surface of old floor is properly prepared. There are:

1. Damp proof linoleums, asphalt tiles, dyes, and paints for basement floors; 2. linoleums for all rooms in the house and beautiful, actual wood floors in parquet block and mosaic patterns that can be laid like a rug over an existing wood floor.

If you wish to prevent surface scratching and prolong the life of the floor coating you should wax the floor frequently. It never pays to let an old floor coating become worn thru before revarnishing.

Worn spots on varnished or shellacked floors can be touched up by carrying the renewed finish to the edge and ends of the boards to make any contrast between old and new less noticeable.

Remove Old Paint Coating.

If a floor finish is to be changed from paint to stain, the old paint coating must be removed with paint and varnish remover. This is a process where directions should be followed carefully, and then when surface is clean the wood should be washed by a cloth soaked in turpentine. Then the stain can be applied and the finish coat of shellac, varnish, or wax applied.

Sometimes, but not always, it is necessary to use a paste wood filler after the paint and varnish remover, in cases where the wood is open grained. A paste wood filler can be applied directly to bare wood, according to directions on packages. Excess can be removed by rubbing coarse cloth against the grain of the wood after the filler has been on for the length of time specified.

Sand Surface Down.

If a floor finish is to be changed from stain to paint, the surface must be sanded down and well dusted and the knot holes coated with thin shellac. Sappy streaks also can be treated in this way, so there is no danger that the pitch will bleed thru to the final finish.

Then before the actual finish is to be applied the wood can be primed with one or two coats of enamel undercoater and then sanded lightly. A good grade of floor enamel can be applied for the finishing coat, and then this coat well waxed. If a painted floor is kept properly waxed it can be cleaned easily by wiping with occasional cold water.

If a floor is to be revarnished or reshellacked it should be thoroly washed, rinsed, and dried.

Tin Can Depots Established for Suburban Towns

Eight district depots, serving a total of 44 communities, have been designated as tin can collection centers outside Chicago, in territory under jurisdiction of William L. McFetridge, Chicago area salvage director.

Other depots will be set up to serve 64 more communities. This work is retarded, however, because response has been slow from community salvage chairmen asked to supply can collection data on forms furnished by the area office, McFetridge said.

To get at least 15 tons of cans a month, each depot should serve a population of about 30,000. Collection districts will be organized on this population basis when possible, salvage officials said, altho few districts designated so far are that populous.

Railroad cars used for can transport usually have capacity for 20 tons of cans and the roads refuse to take less than 15 tons in a car. A ton contains about 8,000 cans.

First monthly collections were scheduled for August in several towns, but the Winnetka district, including Wilmette, Kenilworth, Glencoe, and Northfield was the only one to make a shipment to the Gary detinning plant to which all cans in this area are destined. Winnetka shipped 40,000 pounds Aug. 12.

Several other centers are said to be nearing their minimum.

District depots have been established in communities with railroad freight facilities. Communities to contribute to each district depot are listed with the key centers:

Downers Grove—Lisle, Belmont, Fairview, Westmont, and Liberty Park.

Elmhurst—Villa Park, Itasca, Bensenville, Addison, Wooddale, and Yorkville.

Highland Park—Lake Forest, Highwood, Deerfield, Bannockburn, and Lake Bluff.

La Grange—Clarendon Hills, Western Springs, Hinsdale, La Grange Park, Brookfield, Riverside, and North Riverside.

Blue Island—Evergreen Park, Oak Lawn, and Crestwood.

Harvey—Flossmoor, Hazel Crest, and Homewood.

River Grove—Elmwood Park, Schiller Park, and Franklin Park.

Winnetka—Wilmette, Kenilworth, Glencoe, and Northfield.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 21.

Keep careful watch on plants to be used for indoor decoration. Bring them into the house immediately to avoid checking from exposure to cold nights and frost. Cacti should be removed indoors even tho many of them are entering their resting period and need reasonably low temperatures.

Tuesday, Sept. 22.

Mealybugs on house plants are among the most difficult to kill due to their protective covering of white woolly material. Many can be knocked from the plants by a stream of water under pressure, some may be lifted from the axils of the leaves with a toothpick, or washed off. Wrap a small amount of cotton on the end of a toothpick, dip it in alcohol, touch the bugs, and they will die.

Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Winter injury of evergreens is frequently caused by failure to water the plants, and permitting them to pass thru the winter in dry soil. Give the soil a good soaking if it needs it. Protect annuals that are blooming, against freezing. Transplant pansies into cold frames.

Thursday, Sept. 24.

Shrubs and other hardy material should be obtained as soon as the nurseries can ship them, for early planting gives the plants time to become established before freezing weather. Many plants make a root growth in fall and should be planted early if possible. They will remain in the ground without injuring if planted late, but they will need mulching to prevent loosening by storms.

Friday, Sept. 25.

Plow vacant lots; sow rye, vetch, or other good cover, and turn it under in spring. This is a fine method of incorporating humus in the soil. When a bundle of shrubs is received from the nursery it should be examined, and, if dry, place the bundle in a tub and pour water on until it is soaked thru. Then plant.

If the place for the plants is not ready and the work must be delayed for a week or more, remove the plants from the packing and heel in the garden. They will keep indefinitely. When planting have each hole large enough to accommodate the roots. Firm the soil around the roots. All mutilated roots should be cut back to clean wood.

Saturday, Sept. 26.

The entire garden area within the lot line, or wherever the garden is located, should have a thoro cleaning up. Destroy all vegetation that harbors insects. Trim out dead wood from trees and shrubs, tie up vines to prevent their swaying in the wind, with the likelihood of breakage to the stems.

Plant bulbs for indoor use and remember that potted bulbs must be thoroly rooted before bringing to the light window. Arrange feeding stations for birds. Protect newly planted fruit trees against the attacks of rodents seeking food.

PUPILS LIKE 18c VICTORY LUNCH IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Government Gives Menu, Some of Supplies.

Victory lunches at 18 cents, replacing last year's 15 cent student specials in Chicago high school cafeterias, are proving popular, administrators reported after the first full week in which the lunches were offered.

Food prices have risen during the summer but the added three cents pays for more food, not merely for increased costs, Director F. D. Washam said. Student specials were planned for dietetic balance, but this year's victory lunches go a step further. Their nutrition value is measured according to a national nutrition yardstick laid down in Washington.

Supplies from Government.

The schools are getting some supplies from the federal surplus commodities administration to aid them in providing a meat or meat substitute for each meal along with raw fruit or raw vegetables, eggs three times a week, enriched or whole wheat bread, butter and milk.

Yellow vegetables are stressed for they contain vitamin A, which government bulletins say helps to prevent colds and night blindness.

Frown on Two Hamburgers.

Last year's student special included meat, potatoes, vegetables or salad and bread and butter.

Hamburgers are still available, of course. But the youth who insists on two hamburgers and a bowl of chili for lunch draws frowns.

Mr. Washam manages the cafeterias, but the victory lunches are planned by Dietician Mary Kavanaugh.

EMPLOYE OF LAMSON COMPANY 50 YEARS IS FETED BY ASSOCIATES

James Hopkins, 41 North Lockwood avenue, one of the oldest and best known employés in Chicago's financial district, was honored with flowers, cake, a watch, and other tokens last week when he marked the 50th anniversary of his employment with Lamson Bros. & Co.

Altho he has been at work almost daily in the board of trade building since he was 13 years old, he is far from ready to quit, he said. At 63 he is a hearty specimen, standing 5 feet, 11 inches tall and weighing around 200 pounds. His age shows chiefly in his wavy hair, sprinkled with gray.

Hopkins began as an errand boy, but for the last 25 years has been in charge of the settlement department for Lamson Bros. Fellow employés gave him a watch, the firm gave him a gold commemorative plate, a huge cake was cut in the office, and congratulations and flowers came from dozens of associates in the area.

OAK PARK G. O. P. WOMEN TO HEAR BERTHA BAUER

FEW ACCIDENTS WIN 8 PLANTS SAFETY AWARDS

Two in Area Report Perfect Record.

Eight plants or branches in southwest Chicago and suburbs placed first in as many divisions of an industrial safety contest sponsored by the Greater Chicago Safety council for the first six months of 1942. Statistics were released just last week.

Perfect records were reported for the Visking corporation at Clearing, which worked more than a million man hours, and Knapp Brothers Manufacturing company, Joliet, which worked more than 63,000 man hours in six months. Each plant reported no accidents for the period.

Grouped According to Accidents.

Competing plants are grouped into four main divisions with respect to average accident rates in previous periods. Division 1 includes plants whose rates average 0 to 5 accidents per million man hours of work. Division 2 includes plants with a rate of 5 to 10 accidents per million man hours. Division 3 includes plants with average of 10 to 20 accidents per million man hours, and division 4, plants with more than 20.

Several subdivisions called groups are listed under each division, the groups being designated according to the average number of man hours worked. Division 1, group AA includes establishments with accident rates averaging between 0 and 5 per million man hours and in which total man hours is more than 5 million for six months. Division 1, group A includes plants with accident rates in the same bracket, totaling 1 to 5 million man hours for six months. Group B includes plants working 500,000 to a million man hours; group C, 300,000 to 500,000; group D, 100,000 to 300,000, and group E, under 100,000 man hours.

Get Plaques at Banquet.

Representatives of winning companies will receive plaques at the safety council's fall dinner meeting tomorrow in Hotel Sherman. Attendance of 1,000 is anticipated. Victor Short, president of the Institute of Human Science, New York, an expert on industrial relations and personnel, will speak on "Human Engineering and the War." Charles S. Craigmile, president of the safety council, will preside.

One hundred forty-one plants in the contest employ 209,190 workers who spent 243,864,773 man hours at work in the six months period, with 1,837 accidents counted. This is a rate of 7.5 accidents per million man hours of work. This was a tenth of a point below the average for the last six months of 1941.

List Division Winners.

Plants topping their divisions were as follows:

Division 1A—The Visking corporation at Clearing, averaging 1,090 workers totaling 1,120,031 man hours for six months, no accidents. Rate 0.

Division 1E—Knapp Brothers Manufacturing company, Joliet, averaging 61 employés, total of 63,963 man hours, no accidents. Rate 0.

Division 2AA — Western Electric company, averaging 18,943 employés and totaling 20,981,464 man hours, 82 accidents. Rate 3.9.

Division 2B—The Flintkote company, Chicago Heights, averaging 469 workers, totaling 517,437 man hours, 2 accidents. Rate 3.8.

Division 3AA — International Harvester company tractor works, averaging 5,881 workers, total of 6,103,691 man hours, 46 accidents. Rate 7.5.

Division 3D — Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation warehouse, averaging 133 workers, totaling 141,477 han hours. One accident. Rate 7.

Division 4A — Link-Belt company, Pershing road plant, averaging 1,547 workers, total of 1,523,153 man hours, 30 accidents. Rate 19.7.

Division 4D—Continental Scale corporation, averaging 115 workers, total of 132,470 man hours, 2 accidents. Rate 15.

ENGLEWOOD KIWANIS CLUB TO BE HOST AT DISTRICT CONVENTION

The Kiwanis club of Englewood will be host to Kiwanians from the Illinois-Eastern Iowa district Wednesday and Thursday at the Hotel Sherman, when the district holds its 25th annual meeting. Three hundred official delegates, augmented by Kiwanians and their families from metropolitan Chicago, are expected to swell the attendance to several thousand.

The meeting will start Wednesday morning with a breakfast for past governors of the district. A 6 o'clock dinner will serve as a get-together for all members. J. Ray Schutz, Kiwanis international trustee, will speak.

A ladies' reception at 5:30 o'clock will precede the dinner. Maj. Gen. John V. Clinnin, retired, will speak at a 12:15 o'clock luncheon Thursday. Raymond S. Blunt is Englewood's convention chairman. Working with him are Edgar F. Bradford, the unit's president; Harry S. Himmel, Stephen B. Balcam, William G. Donne, Arthur E. Sharp, Harold D. Welk, and William H. McDonnell.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Lieut. Gunderman.

Norman Gunderman, 6036 South Rockwell street, was commissioned a second lieutenant in the marine corps reserve recently, following his completion of a flight training course at the naval air station at Pensacola, Fla. Before entering the service, Gunderman studied at Wilson Junior college. Designated a naval aviator, Lieut. Gunderman will be on active duty at one of the navy's air operational training centers before being assigned to a combat zone.

A. G. Sharn Jr., 11109 Hoyne avenue, has been commissioned a lieutenant in the army's signal corps. He is stationed at Camp Edwards, Massachusetts. Until his entrance into the army last month, he was employed by the telephone company.

Jack Findlay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Findlay, 3532 West 66th place, recently completed the officer candidates' course at Fort Monmouth, N. J., and was commissioned a second lieutenant. He has been assigned to the signal corps for active duty.

Aviation Student Elmer A. Jouzaitis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Jouzaitis, 6634 South Campbell avenue, has completed two-thirds of his pilot training at the Georgia Aero Tech Training detachment, Augusta, Ga., and will report soon to one of the air force's advanced flying schools for his final flight instruction. At the completion of his course, he will be awarded his wings, a rating of flight sergeant and assigned to one of the army's tactical units for flying duty.

A promotion from private to corporal was given Carl Gustafson, 7135 Emerald avenue, at the field artillery replacement center at Fort Sill, Okla.

Among the 40 Chicagoans who arrived recently at Camp Wolters, Texas, to begin basic training as army infantrymen, were several southwest side residents. The following are assigned to a battalion stressing small arms training: Louis Joseph Mersk, 4201 South Rockwell street; Gordon W. Whitehead, 4550 South Halsted street; George F. Wiertel, 5625 South Christiana avenue; Edward V. Pekny, 3852 West 44th place; Clement W. Zuiker, 12010 Wentworth avenue; Walter Czaja, 2650 West 43d street; Robert Flanagan, 8106 Harvard avenue, and Henry S. Kedzior, 4813 Komensky avenue.

These soldiers are assigned to a battalion stressing specialist training: Lester Toner, 5635 Emerald avenue; Edward P. Oldfield, 203 West 26th street; Harold J. Barich, 7145 South Talman avenue; Theodore J. Tomaszek, 4442 South Fairfield avenue; David W. Helein, 6428 South Campbell avenue; Raymond Maza, 5308 South Campbell avenue, and Walter Miran, 754 Garfield boulevard.

EXPECT RECORD ENROLLMENT AT TECH INSTITUTE

The third academic year of the Illinois Institute of Technology will begin tomorrow with formal registration for freshmen and other new students. Officials expect a record enrollment this term. Orientation of new students will be from Tuesday thru Friday, when returning students will register.

First year coöperative students will register Saturday. A heavy increase also is expected in evening class attendance. Classes will begin in both day and evening classes Monday, Sept. 28.

In both day and evening classes the institute has given war industry training to 18,000 persons. The institution also pioneered in giving war work training to women.

Mercy Auxiliary to Greet Freshmen's Mothers at Tea

The Mercy High School Mothers' auxiliary will entertain the mothers of freshmen at a tea from 4 until 6 o'clock today at the school, 8100 Prairie avenue. Mrs. Joseph Zimmerman is chairman of the freshman reception. On Wednesday the club will sponsor the senior mothers' card party in the school auditorium. Mrs. Joseph Zeller will be chairman. The president of the mothers' auxiliary is Mrs. Joseph P. Brodie.

Englewood's Woman's Club Ready for an Active 47th Year

When the Englewood Woman's club starts its 47th year next month, these women will be at the helm: Mrs. C. Guy Hoover, vice president; Mrs. John Haeberlin, president; Mrs. Lester T. Harrison and Mrs. Thomas Glendon, vice presidents; Mrs. Harold Whitver, treasurer, and Mrs. Edward Harner, recording secretary.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

These are the club's two war presidents. Mrs. Charles S. Clark, seated, guided the unit thru World War I. Mrs. Haeberlin heads the organization now. It has 470 members, is a member of 3d district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

War work has played an important role in the club's program since before Pearl Harbor. Among its activities have been the investment of $5,200 of the club's funds in war bonds, and the sale of bonds totaling $8,000 to members. Among the war workers are Mrs. Charles E. Shearman, Mrs. James G. Wishart, and Mrs. Judson Lauderback.

The club has had 25 presidents in its 46 years. These women were among them. Seated are Mrs. William Hefferan, who served from 1911 to 1913; Mrs. Charles F. Weir, 1931-'33; Mrs. Charles S. Clark, 1917-'19; Mrs. D. Roy Kendall, 1935-'37. Standing are Mrs. Wilbur Blackford, 1929-'31, and Mrs. Charles Shearman, 1925-'27.

Three of the most active charter members are Mrs. J. A. Middleton, 80; Mrs. E. H. Thielens, 82, and Mrs. R. J. Roulston. They attend many of the meetings, and their memories are rich with the lore of club days gone by. Mrs. Thielens takes an especial interest in war service and Red Cross work because she has seven grandsons in the service.

Marquette PTA Board Plans Party for Room Mothers

St. Bridget Parish Carnival Continues Thru Wednesday

St. Bridget's church is sponsoring a carnival in the parish grounds, Archer avenue at Loomis street. It began last week and will continue thru Wednesday. Proceeds will go to renovate the parish buildings. The pastor is the Rev. Francis Glynn. The Rev. Joseph McCarthy is chairman of the carnival.

Christ the King Altar Guild Plans Luncheon Tuesday

The women's altar guild of Christ the King church will hold its sixth annual luncheon and card party at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday at the Christ the King assembly hall, 93d street and Hoyne avenue. The Rev. P. J. Gleeson is spiritual director, Mrs. John Schmidt is president of the guild.

Her Earrings Tell Story of Hero Husband

The earrings Mrs. Marion Bajarunas is wearing these days are the buttons from her husband's overseas cap. Her lapel pin is his insignia of membership in the Royal Canadian air force. She's wearing them in the aircraft division of the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing company, where she's working in the inspection office.

Marion's husband, Albert, volunteered for service with the Canadian force nearly a year ago, before the war began here and the United States air corps opened its arms to married men. Until then Mrs. Bajarunas was a housewife.

Owned Cub Cruiser.

She learned to fly and she and her husband spent their free time at the Rubinkam airport. They owned a cub cruiser, which they sold when Al went to war.

Al used to work at the West Pullman works of International Harvester company. He's always been interested in flying, and had his commercial license before he went into the service. He was responsible to a large extent for Marion's interest in aviation and probably one of the reasons why she has her private pilot's license. She doesn't fly so much now that Al's not around to fly with her. In his letters he chides her gently for this lapse.

Husband Proud of Her Work.

Since Al's been gone Marion's been living at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Zeller, 234 East 109th street. She started working two months ago, and when she wrote and told Al he wrote back and said he was proud of her. She went to school for two weeks and then started in as an inspector in the subassembly department at the air plant.

She likes the work she's doing now, but she wishes she were eligible for service with the WAAFS, the women's auxiliary air force, but she doesn't have enough hours in the air yet. She plans to remedy that, tho. Both she and her husband are graduates of Fenger High school. She finished in 1935; he, the year previous.

EVENING COURSES AT ENGLEWOOD Y OPEN NEXT WEEK

Beginning next week 10 fully accredited evening college courses will be offered at the Englewood YMAC, 6545 South Union avenue. They will be conducted by the Central YMCA college on an extension basis. The courses will be in accounting, engineering, drawing and blue print reading, contemporary novel, English, public administration, far east history, Latin American history, psychology, meteorology, and economics.

POLISH BUSINESS MEN HOLDING DANCE TO AID SERVICE MEN'S CENTER

A dance to benefit the Chicago Service Men's center will be staged by the Young Men's Athletic club in coöperation with Polish-American business men of the southwest side. It will be held Saturday at Pulaski hall, 1715 South Ashland avenue. Walter Piotrowski, 5245 South Bishop street, is chairman of the committee which numbers 75 persons. A program has been arranged in conjunction with the dance.

Walter Piotrowski.

ST. STANISLAUS KOSTKA MARKS DIAMOND YEAR

St. Stanislaus Kostka church, Noble street and Evergreen avenue, the mother church of Polish Catholicism in Chicago, is celebrating its diamond jubilee this month with three weeks of special observances. One hundred fifty Polish families formed the nucleus for the church's establishment in 1867 by the Resurrection Fathers.

The Rev. Bronislaus Lazarowicz.

Next Sunday will mark the highlight of the three week period when an anniversary mass will be celebrated by Bishop Stanislav Bona of Grand Island, Neb. Archbishop Stritch will preside. The jubilee banquet will be held at 6:30 o'clock Sunday evening in both the upper and lower halls of the church auditorium. About 1,000 persons are expected to attend, and many church dignitaries will be present.

Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Barzynski, commanding officer of the Chicago quartermaster depot, will deliver an address. He is a nephew of the Rev. Vincent Michael Barzynski, pastor of the parish from 1874 to 1899, whose memory is revered by American Poles.

The Rev. Ladislaus Zapala, now a missionary in the United States, and former head of the Resurrection Fathers, will speak at the anniversary banquet. Father Zapala is participating in the two week mission now in progress at the church, which will close next Sunday.

Cinema Club.

A four reel colored movie, "Behind the Cup," will be featured at 8 o'clock Wednesday when the South Side Cinema club convenes at the Hamilton park fieldhouse.

FIRST DISTRICT VOTERS PRAISE BAN ON POLL TAX

Call Brooks Action a Boon to Negro.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Intensification of G. O. P. effort in the 1st and 3d congressional districts of the south and southwest sides followed the news last week that election results in Maine and other points in the nation show a strong Republican resurgence. This same swing to the G. O. P. has been increasingly evident in the Cook county congressional districts now held by the Democrats, leaders have reported.

There was special jubilation in the 1st district, where the bulk of the city's vote is concentrated. This high optimism sprang from the immediate response shown by colored voters to congressional passage of the soldier vote bill containing an amendment exempting soldiers from eight southern states from payment of poll taxes to qualify as voters.

The poll tax amendment was introduced and fought to passage in the senate by Sen. Wayland Brooks, over the frantic protests of administration bigwigs. Colored spokesmen in the 1st district expressed their conviction that the Brooks strategy had defeated the Democrats' intention to let the poll tax issue die of inattention.

King Praises Amendment.

Former State Sen. William E. King, the Republican nominee for congress from the 1st, declared that the Brooks poll tax amendment, while it applies to all races, will most benefit colored voters who heretofore have been kept from the polls by the poll tax provisions.

"My people look upon the Brooks amendment as the first congressional redress of Negro disfranchisement in many, many years," King said. "They have seen too many token moves by the Democrats die by default to believe that anything but powerful Republican sponsorship could have forced this provision's passage.

"The amendment was a master stroke by a real statesman and an astute parliamentarian. It absolutely assures what previously was a strong likelihood—that the 1st district will return decisively to the Republican column in November."

Prescott Adds Acclaim.

Another colored leader in the 1st who hailed the Brooks amendment as a boon to his race which will boost Republican stock among Negroes everywhere in the nation was Attorney Patrick B. Prescott Jr.

"The Brooks ban on the poll tax has created a sensation among colored people all over the country," Prescott said.

"It is the most important social and political document in the lives of the colored people since the 15th amendment. The right of free suffrage is the right of self-protection by the orderly processes of law.

"The amendment's passage means that Sen. Brooks will carry every colored locality in the state for the Republican party in November."

City Hall May Drop Dickerson.

Another straw in the fair G. O. P. wind in the 1st was the report that the city hall Democrats have decided to dump Ald. Earl B. Dickerson [2d] in next year's aldermanic elections. This was seen as a move inspired by former Ald. William L. Dawson, the Democratic congressional nominee who switched his party allegiance in 1939 to become Democratic committeeman of the 2d ward.

Dickerson is an old foe of Dawson and literally snatched the council seat from the latter in 1939. Thus released from his obligations to the machine, Dickerson will be free to swing his strong personal influence in King's favor, as he has done in other King-Dawson struggles, his friends pointed out.

Busbey's Chances Rise.

Fred E. Busbey, Republican nominee in the big 3d district that takes in most of the southwest side and nearby Cook county suburbs, also saw in the Brooks amendment a big boost of his excellent chance of unseating Congressman Edward A. Kelly this year.

Busbey, a leader in veterans' activities, told members of the 15th Ward Republican Women's club last Wednesday that he was in full hearted accord with a resolution by the Illinois Republican Service Men's league at its state convention in Springfield Sunday. The resolution which Busbey helped draft, indorsed the G. O. P. state platform, praised Gov. Green and urged the reëlection of Sen. Brooks.

Busbey described Brooks and others high on the Republican slate as "Belleau Wood minded men" who can best act in the interest of our fighting forces because they know war from first hand experience. He emphasized a paragraph in the resolution that said, in part:

"As service men we ask our comrades in arms to examine the war records of the men who wrote the platform of the Democratic party—Kelly, Nash, Fisher, Sullivan, McKeough, Adamowski, Hodes—not one man with an honorable discharge for service to his country in time of war."

Success for Thomas J. Downs, G. O. P. nominee in the 2d district, who is running against Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] for the seat from which Congressman Raymond S. McKeough is retiring, was predicted in the August issue of The Republican, national magazine of the G. O. P. party.

G. O. P. FIGHTING UPHILL BATTLE AGAINST DALEY

But Andrew Toman Is Out for Victory Nov. 3.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Despite gains, Republicans cannot be blamed if they are somewhat grim as they tackle the assignment of unseating State Sen. Richard J. Daley of the 9th district, comprised of parts of Wards 11, 12, 13, 21, 22, and 25.

Andrew Toman, who was an alternate delegate to the 1940 Republican national convention, has drawn the task of opposing Daley. Born in Poland in 1896, he is said to be quite adept as a spellbinder in the Polish language, and this nationality factor in the district has become more important in recent years.

"I'm going to pitch in and fight for a Republican victory Nov. 3," Toman vowed. "Not even the Democrats can deny there has been an improvement in our prospects."

Primary Reflects Gains.

Sen. Daley was elected in 1938 by an 11 to 4 margin over the Republican nominee. That primary the Democratic tide of votes for this office overwhelmed the G. O. P. by 10 to 1. In the primary this year, however, the Democrats' edge was reduced to about 6 to 1.

The Republican primary vote for senator increased 25 per cent while the Democratic fell 23 per cent.

Sponsored by Committeeman William S. Finucane of the 11th ward, Toman resides in the 12th ward at 3822 South Winchester avenue. He is a member of the 12th ward organization of Hector Brouillet rather than the regular party group headed by Committeeman Felix Kucharski. The latter's comments on Toman's chances were pitched accordingly.

Toman, a stockyards employé for 24 years, is having pamphlets printed assailing Sen. Daley for holding two public jobs [Toman says he would be satisfied with one], and for wearing civilian clothes. Toman has been doing some speaking at neighborhood flag raisings, and signs are being posted for him.

Member of American Legion.

Toman is a member of the American Legion and of the American Federation of Labor.

"He is going to give Daley quite a run," Committeeman Finucane promised.

With an eagerness that makes his facial expression younger than his 36 years, Sen. Daley has been one of the most active junior legislators. This has given him quite a record of accomplishment for his two years as a representative and four years as senator.

The outstanding item is the tax preajudication bill to give small taxpayers reductions such as are obtained by large taxpayers with counsel to protest illegal assessments. Twice he has been a leader in achieving passage; once the law was nullified by the Illinois Supreme court, next the bill was vetoed.

"This bill must be passed again," Sen. Daley said. "Democracy must be made to apply to the rights of taxpayers, rich or poor. Next session I will try two approaches—one which has not yet been ruled on by the Supreme court, and a new angle, from the legalistic standpoint."

Pledges Reapportionment Light.

Sen. Daley also pledged his efforts to overcome the 40 year deadlock between Cook county and downstate on reapportionment of the state to give the Chicago area its just share of representation according to the state constitution. The constitution will have to be amended to neutralize downstate objections to any change in the present lopsided division of power, he said.

While working at the stockyards he attended the De Paul university law school, obtaining his degree in 1933. Earlier he attended the Nativity parochial school, where his mother had been a pupil and where his eldest daughter trots to classes nowadays. He is deputy controler of Cook county.

With his wife and four children ranging from 6 months to 6 years in age he lives at 3536 Lowe avenue.

There is no contest Nov. 3 for the district's three house seats. Only three candidates were nominated in April—William S. Finucane [R.] and William J. Gormley and Peter P. Jezierny, Democrats, who already occupy the offices.

Southwest Siders Get Permits to Purchase 754 Tires, Tubes

One hundred fifty-two individuals and companies on the southwest side received permits to buy 754 tires and tubes, and 23 cars were allotted to persons in this area for the period ending Sept. 12, according to rationing board figures.

Dealers' Transport company, 100 West 91st street, received the highest grant—23 tires and 64 tubes. The record showed permits for 119 passenger tires, 110 passenger tubes, 237 truck tires, and 288 truck tubes.

The largest car ration of the week in the city was for 30 cars for the Chicago police department.

CHICAGO HEIGHTS SEEKS TO CLEAR PROPERTY TITLES

Foreclosures to Settle Back Tax Bills.

Thirty-five owners have applied for foreclosure actions which will enable them to avoid payment of approximately $88,000 in taxes in Chicago Heights, according to estimates of Stanley Wilzcynski, attorney for six of the city's taxing agencies. Nearly $300,000 was owed on 270 parcels of property.

The foreclosure filings are largely a result of a campaign begun last spring either to collect back taxes or clear titles on delinquent property all over the city. Coöperating in the program are the city of Chicago Heights, Bloom township high school district, elementary school district 170, Chicago Heights park district, Bloom sanitary district, and Bloom township.

Pass Up Small Parcels.

These agencies hired the attorney to conduct the tax cleanup on delinquent properties which are assessed $40 or more taxes a year. Smaller parcels are not included.

The program's effect is to rehabilitate some of the property thru foreclosures, which erase the accumulated taxes after the properties have been offered at public auction to the highest bidder. In many cases former owners repurchase the property. The owner is often able to sell or otherwise use it after the load of back taxes is removed. This is advantageous during a war boom in business and building in Chicago Heights, it was said, even tho the city loses the taxes.

The program also has spurred payment of delinquent taxes by owners who feared foreclosures and in other cases the city is getting possession of delinquent properties where no effort is made to save them. These account for about a third of the total.

$180,000 Is Involved.

Among the larger tax losses are those on about 20 lots owned by the Chicago Heights Land association and those taxes unpaid on property of factories that have closed.

The campaign is expected to continue thru the winter, with prospects of clearing the tax muddle on about half the property on which action has not yet been started. This would erase or bring payment on $180,000 to $190,000 worth of taxes that formerly were on the books.

Vegetables to Crash Gate at Flower Show.

The social standing of the garden vegetable has risen to new heights. For the first time in the Beverly Hills Woman's club annual flower show and supper, it will vie with rare flowers for ribbon awards. The show will be held Thursday, from 3 until 10 o'clock at Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. Mrs. Richard E. Owen, 9609 Hoyne avenue, is general chairman.

This year's show will stress patriotism. The exhibits and decorations will hinge on a patriotic theme, and the show's proceeds will be given to the Grant Park Servicemen's Recreation center. Exhibits will be arranged around a wishing well. The coins tossed into the well will provide additional funds for servicemen.

A smörgasbörd supper will be served by the ways and means committee from 5:30 until 7:30 o'clock. Miss Maud Kirk, 9544 Longwood drive, is chairman. Working with her are Mrs. Charles M. Barnes, Mrs. Howard Gates, Mrs. W. H. Osborne. The club's philanthropies will benefit from the supper. Mrs. A. O. Schnura will be in charge of the garden photography exhibit. Other committee members are Mrs. W. G. Soldan, Mrs. C. F. Radden, Mrs. O. G. Raish, Mrs. J. J. Hurst, Mrs. William Hoffman, Mrs. Lloyd S. Faure, Mrs. Herman Becker, Mrs. R. J. Lawrie, Mrs. C. B. Van Antwerp, Mrs. Ansley Hitz, Mrs. Harry Bohnett, Mrs. William T. Church, Mrs. J. B. Mortenseon, Mrs. W. C. Heimbeck, and Miss Alice Howe.

Southtown Woman's Club.

Members of the club will gather with their new service chairman, Mrs. Ned U. Hohman, at Red Cross headquarters, 5949 South Halsted street, at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow. Eye bandages and other surgical dressing will be made. A luncheon and bridge will be sponsored by the club at 2 o'clock Tuesday in the English room at Marshall Field's. Mrs. Clifford C. Williams is in charge.

Fernwood Woman's Club.

The Fernwood Woman's club will open its season at 1:30 o'clock Friday at the Fernwood Methodist church, 101st and Wallace streets. Guests will be greeted by Mrs. W. M. Rennie, president of the 3d district; Mrs. B. I. Meyer, president of the Fernwood club; Mrs. Robert Gordon and Mrs. Harold Hazen, vice presidents; Mrs. James Hutchinson Jr., corresponding secretary; Mrs. Walter Minicus, recording secretary; Mrs. William Wagenhals, treasurer. The invocation will be given by the Rev. Herbert Dack of the Fernwood Methodist church. Olga Rosenova, a dramatic reader of modern plays, will entertain.

Tinley Park Woman's Club.

An Indian welfare program, in recognition of National Indian day, will be staged by the Tinley Park Woman's club at its opening meeting Wednesday in the Tinley park school auditorium. Nauquayouma, a Hopi Indian, will speak. Mrs. O. C. Ebenhack, program chairman of the Tinley Park Woman's club and 3d district Indian Welfare chairman, will present the program.

Forest Ridge Woman's Club.

The Forest Ridge Woman's club recently elected its officers to serve for the new year. They are Mrs. C. A. Carlson, president; Mrs. W. F. Berggren, Mrs. V. V. Pignatello, Mrs. F. X. Zermetz, vice presidents; Mrs. John Hartman, financial and corresponding secretary; Mrs. M. A. Hall, recording secretary, and Mrs. E. J. Prochaska, treasurer.

DEDICATE FLAGS IN EIGHT BLOCKS AT RITES TODAY

The eight blocks of zone 15 of the Grand Crossing defense community will hold a mass dedication of block flags today beginning at 2:30 o'clock.

The dedication will open with a parade led by the American Legion and the De La Salle High school band, starting at 73d street and South Park avenue. The parade will proceed to each of the blocks for the dedication. The sites of the individual dedications and the block captains follow:

Block 1, Joseph E. Behm, 7334 Vernon avenue, its flag to be dedicated at 73d street and Vernon avenue; block 2, John Katzmark, 7312 Eberhart avenue, dedication at 73d street and Eberhart avenue; block 3, Fred Smith, 7315 Eberhart avenue, dedication at 73d and Eberhart avenue, opposite flag of block 2.

Block 4, Plavene Wheeler, 7337 St. Lawrence avenue, dedication before block captain's home; block 5, Svente Backman, 7440 Vernon avenue, dedication at 75th and Vernon avenue; block 6, Vincent Gecewicz, 7400 Eberhart avenue, dedication at 74th and Eberhart avenue; block 7, Maurice O. Shapiro, 502 East 75th street, dedication at 75th and Eberhart avenue; block 8, LeRoy Erickson, 7433 Rhodes avenue; dedication at St. Lawrence and 74th street.

Mr. Shapiro is in charge of arrangements for the complete ceremony. As the parade makes its way from block to block, the flags will be dedicated, in some instances by mothers of men in services, by Boy Scouts, or by service men on leave.

A platform will be erected at the end of the parade, 74th street and St. Lawrence avenue. Ald. Ray Olin [8th], and Walter Feldhoff, Grand Crossing community commander, will be included among the speakers.

MISSION CHURCH IN ROSELAND TO MARK 60TH YEAR

A homecoming of former parishioners and Bible school students will be held next Sunday at the Roseland Evangelical Mission church, 11032 Indiana avenue, as a feature of the church's 60th anniversary. Invitations have been sent to more than 1,500 former members in all parts of the country. Services will be held at 3 and 7:30 o'clock.

The church's 20 members who have gone to war will be honored with the dedication of a service plaque. Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], a former Sunday school pupil, will take part in the service. Another speaker will be Dr. H. A. Ironside, pastor of the Moody Memorial church. Don Hustad and the young people's choir will provide the music.

Seminary Director to Talk.

At the 7:30 service, Dr. Ernest Smith, director of religious education at the Northern Baptist Theological seminary, will be the guest speaker. T. J. Bittikofer will sing and direct the senior choir. Mrs. Dan Ertner will preside at the organ. The Rev. Eugene Wernberg is pastor of the church.

The church and Sunday school were founded in 1882. The Sunday school's organizer and first superintendent was Tobias Tronstad, who secured a first enrollment of three pupils by a house to house canvass.

79 Attend Regularly for 10 Years.

Seventy-nine gold medals have been awarded for 10 years' perfect attendance at the school, and five diamond medals for 20 years' perfect attendance. In 1931, medals were awarded to persons with five years' perfect attendance. To date, 25 of those have been given. Thorsten Acherstrom is the present superintendent of the school.

'How Green Was My Valley' on Radio Theater Tomorrow

Maureen O'Hara, Walter Pidgeon, and Donald Crisp, stars of the screen epic, "How Green Was My Valley," will be featured in a radio adaptation of this show on the Radio theater over WBBM-CBS at 8 o'clock tomorrow. Cecil B. de Mille is featured on the show as narrator.

FOR SHOW WITH SPIRIT TRY 'ON STAGE, CHANUTE'

W-G-N Presents Airmen Tuesday Nights.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

One of the brightest of the many soldier and sailor shows that ride the kilocycles nowadays comes from the USO center in Rantoul, down in the midst of Illinois' cornfields. It's called "On Stage, Chanute," and if your aren't listening to it at 7:30 p. m. Tuesdays on W-G-N you're missing some of the best band music and choral singing on the air.

It's all provided, of course, by the men of the air forces at big Chanute field, which overshadows little Rantoul. Busy as they are training for flying servies the men devote a lot of time and energy to broadcast the shows. It takes a lot of planning and long hours of rehearsal to develop these entertainments and put them together. We found that out by visiting Rantoul.

Many Problems Encountered.

Producer Morrison Wood and Francis Coughlin, who writes the script, spend about half the week on these shows. Coöperating with Maj. M. F. Ranney, in charge of public relations, and Capt. Francis E. Hammond, in charge of music, they recruit the talent well in advance. Wood and Coughlin had already conducted preliminary rehearsals when we arrived.

And Max Bear, W-G-N engineer, and Announcer Lee Bennett [formerly a singer with Jan Garber's orchestra] were on hand for final rehearsals. Incidentally, an engineer gets a terrific workout on such shows put on from "remote" spots more than a hundred miles from the studio. Each week he has to lug down a lot of heavy special equipment. And he encounters a lot of knotty problems the studio technician escapes altogether.

In fact such impromptu shows are tough work for the producer, the announcer, the musical director, and it requires the closest coöperation among all to bring forth the smooth shows they do.

The flavor of the Chanute shows comes mainly from the fine musical groups that have been developed there. There's the really top band, with a nucleus of alumni from the great University of Illinois band. Band Leader Eugene Dieter gives a Sousa march a master touch. A half dozen men have been taken from the personnel of the band lately and been made army bandmasters elsewhere.

Choral Singing Featured.

You won't hear any better choral singing anywhere than that of the Chanute Wing chorus, directed by Capt. Hammond. Loudest applause for its performance came from Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production, who was a guest at the broadcast. In fact, after the show MacGregor joined some of the men in a little impromptu close harmony session. Stuart Piggins, who plays the piano for this group, was formerly an accompanist for Gladys Swarthout and the director of the Sunday Evening Hour chorus on CBS.

The Four Techs, composed of Sergt. Johnny Oliver, Privates Alex Drazba, Joe Bianco, and Ben Lorry give out the kind of rhythm that would be recognized as A1 in any swing circle.

Chanute seems to have everything in the realm of music. Sergt. Jay Froman and Pvt. Joseph Cuervo really know what to do with grand opera.

The weekly interviews with soldiers help to give prospective airmen a glimpse of what goes on at Chanute. Last Tuesday Technical Sergt. Paul B. Van Horn got down to business on the subject of propellers.

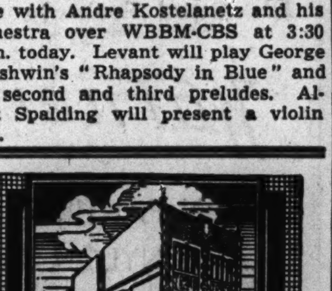
A rousing medley of World War I. tunes, with Lieut. Norma Brooks of the army nurse corps as soloist, tied the show all up in a bow.

SEN. BROOKS' SAFETY ADDRESS ON W-G-N TONIGHT

An address by Sen. Wayland Brooks on "Safety in Peace and War" will be broadcast at 11:30 o'clock tonight by W-G-N and the Mutual network from a civilian defense rally at Moline, Ill. The rally will be held by the Illinois State Council of Defense. Sen. Brooks will urge safety in war factories and on the highways.

Oscar Levant to Be Guest on Kostelanetz Program

Oscar Levant, pianist, composer, and wit, will make a guest appearance with Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra over WBBM-CBS at 3:30 p. m. today. Levant will play George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" and his second and third preludes. Albert Spalding will present a violin solo.



Some details may seem unimporant they are so small, but every detail, when the Blake-Lamb organization has charge, is important! Personal supervision given to everything!

On Date Show

Frances Scully is the mistress of ceremonies on Your Blind Date show presented Sundays at 6 p. m. over WCFL and the Blue.

NEW YORK TENOR WILL BE GUEST ON MELODY HOUR

Mario Berini to Sing with Miss Claire.

Mario Berini, young New York tenor, will make his network debut Saturday, singing opposite Marion Claire, soprano, on W-G-N and Mutual's "America Loves a Melody" program to be aired from 8 to 9 p. m.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Berini, a newcomer to the concert world, has recently completed a successful concert tour of the east. He will have three solo selections on the program, singing Romberg's "Your Land and My Land," Campbell Tipton's "A Spirit Flower," and Lehar's "Yours Is My Heart Alone."

Miss Claire will offer four solo selections, Romberg's "The Same Silver Moon," "Il Est Doux, Il Est Bon" from Massenet's "Herodiade," Foster's "The Americans Come," and "The Lost Chord" by Sullivan.

Musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra conducted by Henry Weber and by the chorus under direction of Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production, will be the producer.

The chorus will offer two selections, Lieurance's "By the Waters of the Minnetonka" and Steininger's "Marching Along Together." The orchestra will play Délibes' "Czardas" from "Coppelia Ballet," and Herbert's "Indian Summer."

Two of the selections, "By the Waters of the Minnetonka" and "Indian Summer" will be accompanied by dramatic playlets drawn from $25 prize winning letters written by the radio audience telling true stories behind their favorite songs.

FIRST NIGHTERS RECALL ANOTHER MOSCOW ATTACK

A drama titled, "The Great Bell of the Kremlin," written by Edwin M. Marshall, will be presented on the First Nighter show tonight at 7 o'clock over W-G-N.

The play concerns an episode in the lives of a Russian family during Napoleon's march on Moscow. Les Tremayne will be cast as Nicholas, an escaped captive from Napoleon's army, who has returned to Moscow to see his sweetheart, Anna, played by Barbara Luddy. Napoleon, like Hitler, stood at the gates of Moscow.

Moscow was to burned and the signal was to be the ringing of the great bell of the Kremlin. The heroism of the two leading characters is a thrilling explanation of the failure of Napoleon's march.

Rosanska Will Be Soloist on Radio City Music Hall

Josefa Rosanska, well known American pianist, will be the featured soloist on the Radio City Music hall today at 11:30 a. m. over WCFL-Blue. Others on the program will be John Herrick, baritone, and Frederick Wilkins, first flutist of the Radio City Music Hall Symphony orchestra, and a quartet composed of Jacques Gasselin, first violinist; David Novales, second violin; Leon Frengut, viola, and Gaston Dubois, cello.

PRESIDENT OF 2 BANKS IS MODEL DEFENSE CHIEF

Ability of Frank Rathje Amazes Colleagues.

Frank Rathje.

Civilian defenders remote from southwest Chicago, occasionally say, sometimes wistfully, they wonder how Rathje gets things done. Rathje is Frank Rathje, chief of civilian defense division 3, which encompasses 20 communities and nearly 1,000,000 persons in southwest Chicago. Rathje says that civilian defense works so well in division 3 because every one coöperates. He says that coöperation of the community commanders has been extraordinary. His coworkers say that this coöperation stems from the fact that he knows every one and they know him. They know they can count on him to do what he says, and they know too, that he expects them to do as they say.

Rathje devotes two hours to civilian defense in a day that begins at 8:30 o'clock in the morning and ends at 6 o'clock in the evening. He came to Englewood from a farm in Bloomingdale, Ill., in 1901, went to work as a messenger for the Live Stock National bank. In the succeeding 41 years, he became a lawyer, established his own law firm, and is the active president of two large southwest banks, the Chicago City National and the Mutual National.

N. U. Law Graduate.

Between his work at the Live Stock National bank, and later at the Chicago Title and Trust company, he attended St. John's Military academy, Armour institute, and Northwestern university law school. He was an order clerk in the contract department at the Chicago Title and Trust company for a time, and, after passing his bar examination in 1908, drew many of his early clients from contacts established there.

He became president of the Mutual bank in 1918, and in 1926 was chosen to head the Chicago City bank. In this latter position, he succeeded his cousin, the late Louis Rathje. Next year the bank will be 50 years old. It has had a Rathje at its head thruout that period. He hasn't done any actual law practicing in years, but maintains his law firm under his name. He likes law and its practice, but the business of banking hasn't left much time for courtroom appearances.

Raises Percheron Horses.

He spends much of his remaining time commuting between his farm at Palatine, Ill., his summer home at Phelps, Wis., and his Chicago home at 1724 East 54th street. He's president this year of the Percheron Horse Association of America. He raises these horses on his 350 acre farm, together with 250 head of hogs and other cattle. He's done a lot of hunting and fishing, and the mounted results of this hang on the walls of his home at Phelps. These latter activities have qualified him for membership in the Adventurers' club.

He's married, the father of four children, Theron L., Josephine, Franklin, and Shirley.

SOUTHWEST SIDE JUNIOR WOMEN NAME OFFICERS

Marquette Manor Junior Woman's club recently elected officers. Mrs. William Meehan was chosen president; Miss Carol Pollock and Mrs. Edward Schultz, vice presidents; Miss Pearl Zielinski, recording secretary; Miss Grace Segler, corresponding secretary; Miss Margaret Breen, treasurer; Mrs. Victor Rundle, publicity; Mrs. Robert Meehan, ways and means chairman; Miss Ethel Pollock, social chairman. The club's first meeting of the year will be held Thursday, Oct. 1, at the home of the Miss Pollock, 6451 South Whipple street.

Machine Job Not New to Her

This is Mrs. Anna Czech, one woman among 2,000 men at the Buda plant in Harvey. She's been working at the plant since 1924. Her two sons, Ted and Stan, are in the armed service. They worked at Buda for a time, too.

'BIG ANNIE,' LAST OF TRIO, STAYS ON HER JOB AT BUDA

Only Woman in Plant of 2,000 Does Man's Task.

The 2,000 men who work with Mrs. Anna Czech at the Buda company call her "Big Annie," a harkback to the days when they shared the third floor of building 26 with three Annies. They descriptively called one "little Annie," another "bowleg Annie," and Mrs. Czech, "big Annie." The other Annies have gone and Mrs. Czech remains the last reminder of Buda's Annie area.

She's the only woman at work today in the Buda plant in Harvey. She's been there since 1924, doing work that has been considered highly masculine. Her first job was operating a screw machine. Later she worked at the lathe and the drill press. Now she's doing bench work. It consists of filing gears, and she keeps right up with her male coworkers.

Likes Slacks for Work.

Annie works six days a week, and wears slacks while she's doing it. She's been working in trousers for just a few years and finds it's much safer. "There's not so much chance of catching trousers in the machinery," she said. "It saves stockings, too."

When Mrs. Czech was widowed she went to work to help support her two sons, both of whom are now in the armed forces. Ted, 26, is in Norfolk, Va., with the navy. Stanley, 23, is with the army at Fort Sill, Okla. Both attended college, and worked briefly at the Buda company. The company is 61 years old.

Joins 10 Per Cent Club.

Mrs. Czech is a member of the plant's 10 per cent club, and invests that percentage of her earnings in war bonds each week. She shares one of her co-workers' automobiles, under the car pool plan. She recently was selected to unveil the company's service plaque.

She lives in a little house at 173 West 155th street, Harvey. She bought it a few years ago and hopes to own it some day soon. She takes care of it, and of the lawn which surrounds it. She has a war garden, too, and it's yielded pickles and various fruits and vegetables.

Plans Luncheon

Mrs. Clifford C. Williams, 614 East 80th street, is social chairman of the Southtown Woman's club. As such she is in charge of its bridge luncheon Tuesday at Field's English room.

DEDICATE FLAGS TODAY IN BLOCK ON JUSTINE ST.

The block bounded by Garfield boulevard, Ashland avenue, 54th street, and Justine street will dedicate its service and American flags at 1 o'clock today at a ceremony in front of 5428 Justine street. A parade will precede the dedication.

One of its highlights will be the display of a propeller blade from a Japanese airplane, shot down at Pearl Harbor. It was brought back by Sergt. Lawrence Newman of the marines. The invocation will be given by the Rev. H. E. Brauer of St. Martini's Lutheran church. Addresses will be given by Judge Joseph B. Hermes and Ald. James J. McDermott [14th].

The Rev. Justinian Kugler of St. Augustine's church will present corsages to the mothers of the boys in service. Joseph B. Meegan, executive secretary of the Back of the Yards Neighborhood council, will be master of ceremonies. Daniel A. McIntyre is chairman of the program committee and Miss Mary E. McIntyre is block captain. Nine block residents are in the service.

W-G-N TO AIR NEW SERVICE MEN'S NIGHT CLUB SHOW

Edna O'Dell to Sing for Opening Wednesday.

A new program for service men will make its debut on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Wednesday, when the Service Men's show is broadcast from the eighth floor night club of the Chicago Service Men's center at 176 West Washington street.

The musical novelty group, the "Hoosier Hot Shots," and the comedy team of "Tom, Dick, and Harry" will be regular attractions of the program and are scheduled to be heard each week along with visiting guest artists. The object of the program will be the entertainment of the service men who will be attending the night club at the service center.

First guest artist on the new weekly program will be Edna O'Dell, W-G-N singing star. Many singing stars of stage and radio are scheduled to appear as guests on the program.

The "Hoosier Hot Shots" are well known to the listening audience as a featured attraction of the National Barn Dance program for many years and as guest artists on numerous network programs. The novelty group features Frank Kettering, bass player who is heard on W-G-N supplying the bass background for Hugh Carson. Others in the musical combine are Gabe Ward, clarinet; Hezzie Trietsch, musical washboard, and Ken Trietsch, guitar.

The comedy team of "Tom, Dick, and Harry" is also a network favorite. Last year the boys were featured on a W-G-N and Mutual half hour evening program and they have also appeared as guests on "Plantation Party" and other network shows. The boys were also an early morning team presenting a weekday song session for housewives.

"Tom" in the "Tom, Dick, and Harry" team is Bud Vandover, W-G-N comedian who conducts the 7 to 8 a. m. "Record Reveille" program which is a Monday thru Saturday feature. Marlin Hurt, who gained radio fame for his creation of "Beulah" and "Mrs. Rabinowitz" on network radio shows, is "Dick" in the team, while Norman Luboff has replaced Gordon Vandover as "Harry."

The program will be produced by Ed Simmons.

Vanderpoel PTA Room Mothers to Meet Friday

Newly appointed room mothers of the Vanderpoel PTA will be entertained by Mrs. John Owen, second vice president, Friday afternoon at her home, 9541 South Damen avenue. Among the room mothers are Mrs. Frank Lyons, Mrs. J. C. Armstrong, Mrs. Ralph Heil, Mrs. Frank Snyder, Mrs. George S. Denning, Mrs. Gerhard Koch Jr., Mrs. Wilbur L. Brattstrom, Mrs. Howard Pilditch, Mrs. James T. Silloway, and Mrs. Frank Farwell.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

FRANK G. KARTZKE, 514 West 117th street, a civilian defense block captain, has erected in front of his home a large flag pole and flag and a bulletin board on which he displays announcements of all block meetings and others of interest to the block's civilian defenders. The block residents coöperate with him. Its air raid wardens were selected recently. They are Cornelius Vanderbilt, Michael Krier, Wendall Adams, and Burton Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Smith, 7052 Stewart avenue, will observe their golden wedding anniversary with a family gathering at their home today. They've lived at the Stewart avenue address for 39 years. On the anniversary date, Sept. 22, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Garner, their son-in-law and daughter, will be married 14 years. Until his retirement 10 years ago Mr. Smith was a master mechanic for the Western Indiana railroad at its 51st street yard. He is the only living charter member of Equity Masonic lodge.

RECENT golden jubilarians are Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Wilsdon, 9658 South Winston avenue. They celebrated the anniversary at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Harry W. Olsen, 9144 South Damen avenue, where friends and relatives gathered to wish them well. Their other children were also on hand. They are Mrs. Robert Harper, Mrs. Albert Trebilcock, and Arthur J. Wilsdon of St. Louis, Mo.

JEAN GOODMAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Goodman, 5533 University avenue, has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Her appointment was announced at the opening chapel service at Wellesley college, Mass.

HERE ARE SOME HINTS ON CARE OF YOUR FLOORS

Old Surface Can Be Made to Look Like New.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[We've prepared a leaflet on some popular types of floor finishes, and some Do's and Don'ts for proper floor refinishing. Please send a stamped, addressed envelope to this department if you wish leaflet.)

If you have a wood floor that is soiled and spotted it may be that:

1. A good paint and varnish remover will put the surface in shape for varnish, wax, or one of the new and beautiful penetrating finishes.

2. A good bleach will transform it to a blondness as modern as it is attractive.

3. Or a rented sanding machine have a new wood surface for what treatment we wish.

4. And an oxalic acid treatment can be counted on to rid a floor of dark stains and also to lighten the wood.

Prepare Old Surface.

If you wish a new floor, the chances are it can be laid over the old one, if the surface of old floor is properly prepared. There are:

1. Damp proof linoleums, asphalt tiles, dyes, and paints for basement floors; 2. linoleums for all rooms in the house and beautiful, actual wood floors in parquet block and mosaic patterns that can be laid like a rug over an existing wood floor.

If you wish to prevent surface scratching and prolong the life of the floor coating you should wax the floor frequently. It never pays to let an old floor coating become worn thru before revarnishing.

Worn spots on varnished or shellacked floors can be touched up by carrying the renewed finish to the edge and ends of the boards to make any contrast between old and new less noticeable.

Remove Old Paint Coating.

If a floor finish is to be changed from paint to stain, the old paint coating must be removed with paint and varnish remover. This is a process where directions should be followed carefully, and then when surface is clean the wood should be washed by a cloth soaked in turpentine. Then the stain can be applied and the finish coat of shellac, varnish, or wax applied.

Sometimes, but not always, it is necessary to use a paste wood filler after the paint and varnish remover, in cases where the wood is open grained. A paste wood filler can be applied directly to bare wood, according to directions on packages. Excess can be removed by rubbing coarse cloth against the grain of the wood after the filler has been on for the length of time specified.

Sand Surface Down.

If a floor finish is to be changed from stain to paint, the surface must be sanded down and well dusted and the knot holes coated with thin shellac. Sappy streaks also can be treated in this way, so there is no danger that the pitch will bleed thru to the final finish.

Then before the actual finish is to be applied the wood can be primed with one or two coats of enamel undercoater and then sanded lightly. A good grade of floor enamel can be applied for the finishing coat, and then this coat well waxed. If a painted floor is kept properly waxed it can be cleaned easily by wiping with occasional cold water.

If a floor is to be revarnished or reshellacked it should be thoroly washed, rinsed, and dried.

Tin Can Depots Established for Suburban Towns

Eight district depots, serving a total of 44 communities, have been designated as tin can collection centers outside Chicago, in territory under jurisdiction of William L. McFetridge, Chicago area salvage director.

Other depots will be set up to serve 64 more communities. This work is retarded, however, because response has been slow from community salvage chairmen asked to supply can collection data on forms furnished by the area office, McFetridge said.

To get at least 15 tons of cans a month, each depot should serve a population of about 30,000. Collection districts will be organized on this population basis when possible, salvage officials said, altho few districts designated so far are that populous.

Railroad cars used for can transport usually have capacity for 20 tons of cans and the roads refuse to take less than 15 tons in a car. A ton contains about 8,000 cans.

First monthly collections were scheduled for August in several towns, but the Winnetka district, including Wilmette, Kenilworth, Glencoe, and Northfield was the only one to make a shipment to the Gary detinning plant to which all cans in this area are destined. Winnetka shipped 40,000 pounds Aug. 12.

Several other centers are said to be nearing their minimum.

District depots have been established in communities with railroad freight facilities. Communities to contribute to each district depot are listed with the key centers:

Downers Grove—Lisle, Belmont, Fairview, Westmont, and Liberty Park.

Elmhurst—Villa Park, Itasca, Bensenville, Addison, Wooddale, and Yorkville.

Highland Park—Lake Forest, Highwood, Deerfield, Bannockburn, and Lake Bluff.

La Grange—Clarendon Hills, Western Springs, Hinsdale, La Grange Park, Brookfield, Riverside, and North Riverside.

Blue Island—Evergreen Park, Oak Lawn, and Crestwood.

Harvey—Flossmoor, Hazel Crest, and Homewood.

River Grove—Elmwood Park, Schiller Park, and Franklin Park.

Winnetka—Wilmette, Kenilworth, Glencoe, and Northfield.

Catherine Steadman Married

Before her recent marriage Mrs. Thomas Hickey was Miss Catherine Steadman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Steadman, 322 West 52d place. Her bridegroom is the son of Thomas Hickey, 8123 South Morgan street. The ceremony was solemnized in St. Anne's church.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 21.

Keep careful watch on plants to be used for indoor decoration. Bring them into the house immediately to avoid checking from exposure to cold nights and frost. Cacti should be removed indoors even tho many of them are entering their resting period and need reasonably low temperatures.

Tuesday, Sept. 22.

Mealybugs on house plants are among the most difficult to kill due to their protective covering of white woolly material. Many can be knocked from the plants by a stream of water under pressure, some may be lifted from the axils of the leaves with a toothpick, or washed off. Wrap a small amount of cotton on the end of a toothpick, dip it in alcohol, touch the bugs, and they will die.

Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Winter injury of evergreens is frequently caused by failure to water the plants, and permitting them to pass thru the winter in dry soil. Give the soil a good soaking if it needs it. Protect annuals that are blooming, against freezing. Transplant pansies into cold frames.

Thursday, Sept. 24.

Shrubs and other hardy material should be obtained as soon as the nurseries can ship them, for early planting gives the plants time to become established before freezing weather. Many plants make a root growth in fall and should be planted early if possible. They will remain in the ground without injuring if planted late, but they will need mulching to prevent loosening by storms.

Friday, Sept. 25.

Plow vacant lots; sow rye, vetch, or other good cover, and turn it under in spring. This is a fine method of incorporating humus in the soil. When a bundle of shrubs is received from the nursery it should be examined, and, if dry, place the bundle in a tub and pour water on until it is soaked thru. Then plant.

Saturday, Sept. 26.

The entire garden area within the lot line, or wherever the garden is located, should have a thoro cleaning up. Destroy all vegetation that harbors insects. Trim out dead wood from trees and shrubs, tie up vines to prevent their swaying in the wind, with the likelihood of breakage to the stems.

Plant bulbs for indoor use and remember that potted bulbs must be thoroly rooted before bringing to the light window. Arrange feeding stations for birds. Protect newly planted fruit trees against the attacks of rodents seeking food.

PUPILS LIKE 18c VICTORY LUNCH IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Government Gives Menu, Some of Supplies.

Victory lunches at 18 cents, replacing last year's 15 cent student specials in Chicago high school cafeterias, are proving popular, administrators reported after the first full week in which the lunches were offered.

Food prices have risen during the summer but the added three cents pays for more food, not merely for increased costs, Director F. D. Washam said. Student specials were planned for dietetic balance, but this year's victory lunches go a step further. Their nutrition value is measured according to a national nutrition yardstick laid down in Washington.

Supplies from Government.

The schools are getting some supplies from the federal surplus commodities administration to aid them in providing a meat or meat substitute for each meal along with raw fruit or raw vegetables, eggs three times a week, enriched or whole wheat bread, butter and milk.

Yellow vegetables are stressed for they contain vitamin A, which government bulletins say helps to prevent colds and night blindness.

Frown on Two Hamburgers.

Last year's student special included meat, potatoes, vegetables or salad and bread and butter.

Hamburgers are still available, of course. But the youth who insists on two hamburgers and a bowl of chili for lunch draws frowns.

Mr. Washam manages the cafeterias, but the victory lunches are planned by Dietician Mary Kavanaugh.

PLANES TO ROAR OFF LAST YEAR'S FERTILE ACRES

Farm Families Move to New Homes.

The level land of the prairie is level again—south of Des Plaines. Man built structures are gone—razed.

Since July, 25 farm families have held auctions, moved entire houses, hunted up new farms or city homes, gone thru family partings because the Douglas Aircraft company is moving in on 1,347 acres south of Des Plaines.

You have to go out Mannheim road and along Higgins road to get the scope of the thing. Big "cats" pull plows thru tomato patches, powerful derricks in the fields swing their booms around, sometimes dangerously close to power lines, tractors inch along the roads, dismantled barns look dismally collapsed. And everywhere the green corn stands, almost ripe.

Close Wolf Road Section.

Chunks of Wolf road have been bitten into by power shovels and drills. Several yards of pavement next to the Landmeier farm were torn out for a spur line of the North Western railroad. It will be one and one-half miles long. Plane runways will cross Wolf road, and the road itself will be closed so long as the plant operates.

The story of families moving out, of construction workers coming in, closed roads, railroad spur lines, tremendous activity, has been repeated elsewhere since America's production began to soar. Up at Merrimac, Wis., on the Wisconsin river, a new powder plant meant the removal of farms. A large radio school on the outskirts of Madison, Wis., brought the same feverish planning and speed. A great arms plant swallowed fertile farms near Elwood.

The nation's agriculturists "take it." They say simply that some folks will get hit harder than others in this war, and in different ways. They give up farms of 34, 37, or 43 years' labor. They receive payment from the government, of course. But it's hard to leave, they admit.

Older Ones Retire.

Where two families work one farm, usually the older folks retire, and the young couple carries on in a new location.

Barney Landmeier has farmed on the Wolf road for 34 years, and the property has been in the family for 70 years. He has bought another 45 acre tract for his son, Clarence, 25, who will be a truck gardener in the new site, while he and Mrs. Landmeier will retire to a new home in Bensenville that they were fortunate enough to discover.

The 23 year old farm home, of 12 rooms, will be used by the contracting company as a dormitory for workers, and then sold at auction by the government.

"It's about time for me to quit farming, anyway," said Herman Stade, who has farmed along Higgins road for 43 years. "The missus and me found it hard of late to take care of our 40 acres alone." Their new home will be in Bartlett. Son-in-law Richard Drenth, Buick plant worker, bought land at Orchard Place, and the Stade homestead, 60 years old, was moved there.

1,000 at Auction.

More than 1,000 persons attended the Stade auction. "Farmers couldn't work the fields in that rainy spell we had, so they came here from miles around," Farmer Stade said.

Henry D. Gewecke, Higgins road, met with obstacles. He sold the homestead and 67 acres to the government. On the remaining 40, which adjoined the plant area, he planned to continue his dairy farm. After he had dug a cellar for his house and put a cement foundation down for the barn, the government decided it needed that section of land for a runway.

Gewecke had been on the farm with his father for 37 years. Granddad settled there in 1854. Two tons of soft coal were piled in bushel baskets on the lawn and a wash hung in the front side yard.

"Well, it's a setback of about a year's time," Henry Gewecke said, with simple matter of factness.

Houses Moved Away.

Twenty per cent of the acreage acquired by the plant was in subdivision lots. New brick and frame houses dotted the fields. Most of them were slated for removal to new sites. A Dutch colonial house, raised on blocks and wheels, waited next to its former foundation for the movers. Cement steps led into an open basement. Family life continued even during the trip down the road.

As for the corn, what is left of it after the runways have been laid thru the fields, the government will auction, together with such houses as were used for dormitories, offices, or storage.

Now, the low factory units will pour like lava over the acres.

OFFICIALS FIND HOMES

Families of supervisors and executives of the Douglas Aircraft company who will come here from California to work in the new plant under construction south of Des Plaines are practically assured of finding homes to rent or buy, according to George H. Hazel, 850 Lake

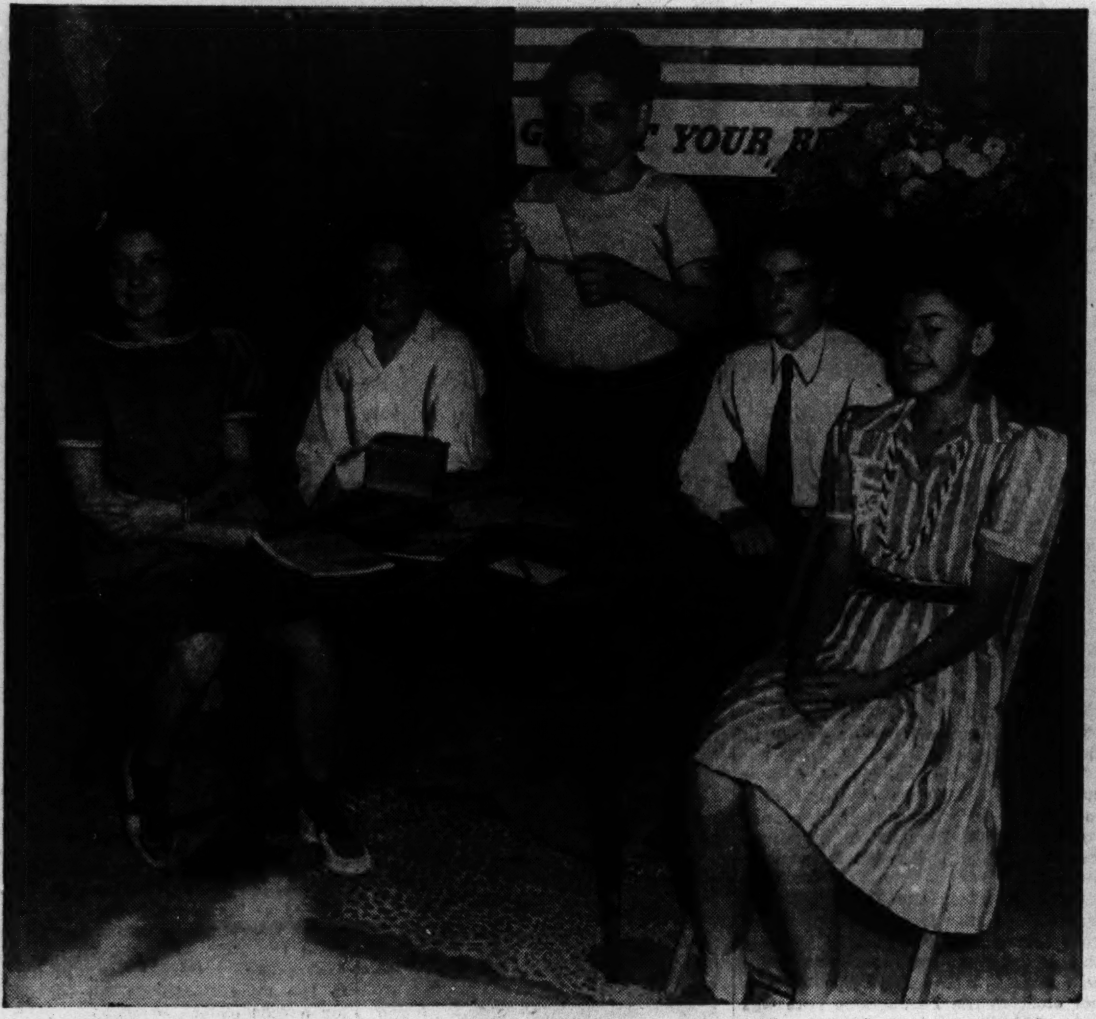
Northwest Siders Join Orphan Annie's Junior Commando Army

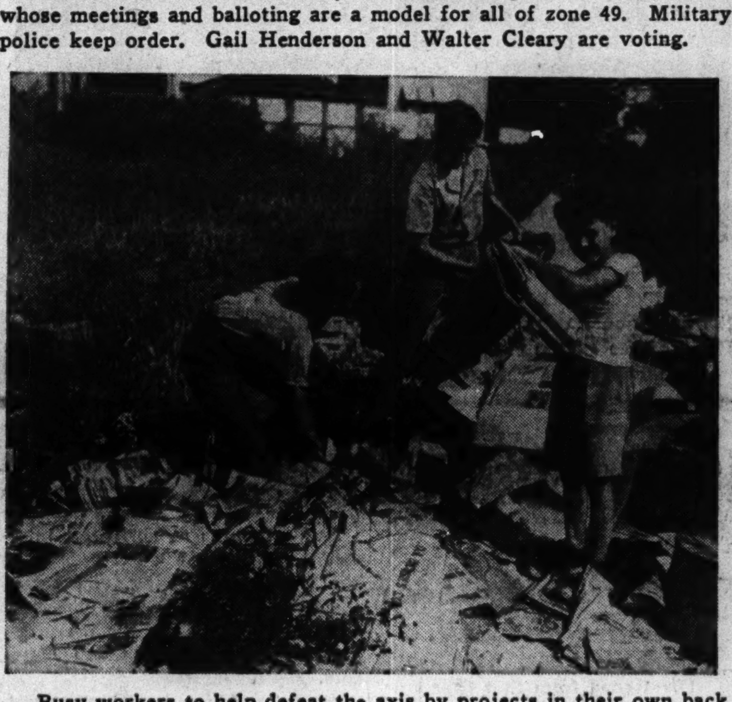


A Tribune comic strip has come to life out in Belmont-Cragin, where 100 Junior Commandos like Orphan Annie collect salvage, conserve materials, and listen for the enemy to talk. A. F. Henderson, zone captain of zone 49, made a speech one night at a civilian defense rally and got himself in for a job. He said, "Even the children can help win the war." Helping are officers of the Junior Commandos presiding at their meeting hall, a basement room donated by L. J. Laurion, at 5909 Barry avenue. They are, left to right, Marguerite Maher, treasurer; James Farley, major general; Richard Russo, lieutenant general, and Frank McCarthy, brigadier general, and Dolores Buriegi, secretary.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

The officers were elected by the membership of the Commandos whose meetings and balloting are a model for all of zone 49. Military police keep order. Gail Henderson and Walter Cleary are voting.

A two day waste paper drive netted $12.15 for the children. Some of the money earned at numerous profitable junk and paper collections purchased the flag pole and flag which have been planted at the southwest corner of Marmora and Barry avenues. Raising the flag are Richard Russo and Dolores Buriegi. The Commandos stand at attention and salute.



Busy workers to help defeat the axis by projects in their own back yards are three boys sorting and piling paper for the waste paper dealer to buy. Left to right are Edward Riesterer, Ronald Brinkman, and Jack Sizer. The three aims of the Commandos in addition to collecting salvage are respect to God and all commandments, respect for parents and home and understanding of the national problems.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

AT a flag raising ceremony held recently by zone 29, community 1, of division 5, at Marshfield avenue and Cortez street, 125 fathers and mothers were assembled. Parents and their sons in service were honored at the ceremonies.

Mrs. John Fafinski.

One of the mothers, Mrs. John Fafinski, 1049 North Marshfield avenue, stepped forward and addressed the chairman, John Gordon. "I am buying a $500 war savings bond," she said, "to keep them flying and rolling for my son, Frank, who is with the medical detachment, 132d engineers, in Farmington, Mass."

Frank is a former northwest side pharmacist. He attended the Illinois school of pharmacy.

BEGINNING a new pastorate today at Temple Baptist church, 3008 Cortland street, is the Rev. George Vouga of New Philadelphia, O. He succeeds Dr. Joseph Croft Dent, who retired after 51 years of service.

The new minister is a graduate of Wheaton college. He took his theological work at Dallas Theological seminary, Dallas, Tex., and at the Northern Baptist Theological seminary. He was ordained on March 30, 1936.

A 52½ pound pumpkin is the pride of Carl Denmeyer, 4313 North Bernard street, in whose garden the mammoth vegetable was grown. Denmeyer and his daughter, Clara, marked off half an acre of Mrs. Denmeyer's uncle's farm in Barrington for their garden. Their gardening is done on week-ends, but they make midweek trips to Barrington to gather ripe potatoes, tomatoes, onions, and cucumbers.

MR. AND MRS. G. J. BAEDER, 2703 North Albany avenue, celebrated their golden wedding with a family dinner at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Jennett Shelgreen, 2644 North Albany avenue.

Mrs. Baeder was 12 years old when she came to Chicago from Peoria, while her husband has resided here since he was 9. An electroplater by trade, Mr. Baeder now is active as a coal salesman.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Van Dyke of Lake Geneva observed their golden wedding recently with a renewal of vows in the same bay window in which they were married and in which they repeated their vows 10 years later. Mrs. Van Dyke was born in the same house in which she has since resided. About 200 guests attended during the day.

The couple have two children, Henry Button and Mrs. A. J. Lazzaroni, both of Lake Geneva. Camp Van Dyke has been operated by Mr. and Mrs. Van Dyke for many years.

SAILOR GUESTS TO HAVE DINNER IN BARRINGTON

The tree lined streets of Barrington and the lawn encircled homes will be filled with bluejackets today. Twenty-two families in the village have volunteered to help entertain a delegation of sailors from the Great Lakes Naval Training station at home cooked dinners. The families will also pay the bus fare of the sailors to and from their station.

Most families have asked that two sailors be assigned to them. In addition to the dinner they will provide an afternoon of entertainment. The sailors will be brought from Great Lakes to Barrington by bus arranged thru T. A. Henry of the Estates Bus service. The families who have volunteered in the Sunday-at-home program are asked to meet the bus at the station and to return their guests at the close of the day. Details of the community project are being arranged by Mrs. Roy E. Willmering.

Most families are Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wente, Mr. and Mrs. George Landwer, Mr. and Mrs. Reuel Carr, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Condill, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Boback, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Kincaid, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Drover, Mr. and Mrs. George Etters, Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Beerman, Mr. and Mrs. K. K. Lillien, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Deane, Mr. and Mrs. John Wirth, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ryner, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Street, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Calkins, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Speck, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hawley, Mr. and Mrs. Gottlieb Kuhlman, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Holke, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Wilmering.

TRAILER CAMPS OPPOSE OUSTER AT BENSENVILLE

Ask Village to Remand Order to Move.

Ordered to move by next Jan. 1, trailerites of Bensenville last week requested the village board to remand its order. The resolution was drafted Tuesday night at a meeting held in Bensenville by the Leyden Community Trailer association, according to W. E. Sellers, spokesman for the Bensenville unit.

Should the village board refuse to reconsider its order, the trailer association will seek further legal action, Sellers said. He reported that most of the Bensenville trailerites now were members of the organization.

Town's Residents Object.

Bensenville's trailer camp situation flared up last spring when a third camp sought to open within the corporate limits of the village. Objections of townspeople brought to light the fact that the present zoning ordinance did not permit trailer camps within those limits.

William Peck, president of the village board for the last five years, explained the picture as follows:

"Five years ago when Mrs. Nellie Schriver, Irving Park road, asked me if it would be all right for her to open a trailer camp on her home grounds, I said I could see no objection. Mrs. Schriver happens to live on the outskirts of Bensenville. I placed the request before the village board and no objection was raised there. None of us realized at that time," Peck offered, "that the request should have been referred to the zoning board.

Ordnance Change Denied.

"Last spring," he continued, "we learned that the ordinance would have to be changed to permit trailer courts within Bensenville." Peck said that Mrs. Schriver then requested a change in the ordinance. The zoning board of appeals voted it down on June 27, and the village board upheld the decision at its regular meeting July 2.

Other members of the village board include John Rehr, William Bishop, John Hampton, Robert Tonning, Earl White, and Erma Kvevli. Zoning board members are William Franzen, Edwin Sprandel, Curtis Brumfield, Henry Kleinschmidt, and Howard Hendrickson.

DES PLAINES LOOKING TO BIG GROWTH, SEEKS THIRD WATER SUPPLY

Altho Des Plaines has two adequate sources of water supply, with a $300,000 water softening plant and a million and a half gallons stored in the reservoir, Mayor Charles Garland is taking steps to provide a third auxiliary water supply in case of emergency.

The mayor says the third supply probably will be obtained by tapping Chicago's supply and building a new reservoir while it is still possible to get materials. The present supply is adequate for a population of 25,000, while Des Plaines has only 11,000 residents.

Mayor Garland expects the population of the town to double when the Douglas Aircraft plant has been constructed south of the city. "There will be 15,000 employés working at this plant in need of homes," he said. "Des Plaines is making ready to provide these homes. All we need is a go ahead on building priorities from the government."

Last week new pumping equipment was installed in one of the Des Plaines wells at a cost of $5,000, replacing worn out machinery. With a third source of supply the town will be ready for any emergency and any great growth of population.

ENLIST DRIVERS CORPS TO HELP DURING AIR RAIDS

A corps of 4,500 automobile drivers will serve the 900,000 residents of the northwest side during a possible enemy air raid or black-out, it was announced recently by the Office of Civilian Defense in division five.

Community commanders have received requests to nominate members to the drivers' corps personnel who will provide quick and ready transportation for first aid squads, casualty stations, control and message centers, the staff of the civilian defense coordinator, and the offices of division chiefs and community commanders.

Five men or women will be nominated to each 1,000 population. They must be able to drive automobiles efficiently and safely under air raid and black-out conditions. Individuals who own automobiles and those who are good drivers but do not own cars are asked to apply.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Lieut. Brooks.

Le Roy O. Brooks, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Brooks, 6229 Northwest highway, received his commission as second lieutenant in the army air forces this month in graduation ceremonies at the new army flying school near Columbus, Miss. He also had trained at flying schools at Ocala, Fla., and Greenville, Miss., and had served as a private in an observation squadron. Lieut. Brooks is a 1939 graduate of the University of Illinois and a member of Delta Sigma Phi, social fraternity.

Another graduate of the University of Illinois, Second Lieut. Wallace B. Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Black, 3836 North Lowell avenue, is serving as a pilot with an observation squadron at Will Rogers field, Oklahoma City, Okla. He received his commission in the air force at Brooks field, Texas, this summer. Before his graduation from the university in 1941, he had attended Schurz High school. He is a member of Alpha Kappa Lambda fraternity.

Carl August Manning, football player at Austin High school when it won the west section championship in 1930, has been graduated from the Great Lakes naval training station as honor man of his company. He enlisted several weeks ago as a fireman, first class, and gave up his job as a machinist with the W. A. Jones Foundry and Machine shop to join the navy.

Manning's parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Manning, live at 1410 North Laramie avenue and his wife, Ruth, lives at 4207 North Sawyer avenue.

Formerly a Chicago high school teacher, Sergt. Louis S. Potempa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Potempa, 2424 North Austin boulevard, has arrived at the army air forces replacement training center, Atlantic City, N. J. Potempa is a graduate of Loyola university and holds membership in Sigma Pi Alpha, Blue Key honorary scholastic fraternity. He was active in civic affairs and was a stamp collector.

Serving with the 760th railway operating battalion [Diesel] at Camp Claiborne, Louisiana, is Arthur S. Randak, Crystal Lake, who was promoted to captain this month. The battalion is the only unit of its kind in the United States army. Capt. Randak is a former engineer of the Sinclair Oil Company of New York, with offices in Chicago.

The engineer's center at Camp Claiborne prepares army construction regiments, railway battalions, and other specialized engineer units for immediate duty.

Lieut. Hay.

Second Lieut. Robert B. Hay, 5031 Warwick avenue, was graduated recently from the officer candidate school in seacoast artillery, Fort Monroe, Va. He has reported for duty at a new station.

Hay was a music clerk with the Clayton F. Summy company before leaving Chicago.

Training to be an active combat flyer at the flying school at Minter field, Bakersfield, Cal., is Richard Xavier Chabalowski, 1528 Elk Grove avenue, who was honored with the award of the Purple Heart for bravery and being wounded in action. The aviation cadet was at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7 and had served with the air forces at that Pacific outpost for two years. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chabalowski.

Elmer G. Bruckner, son of Mrs. Frances Bruckner, 6230 North Karlov avenue, was promoted recently to the rank of sergeant [temporary] at Fort MacArthur, San Pedro, Cal. He had been a technician, fifth grade.

John Thomas Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Moore, 4254 George street, has entered training as an aviation cadet at Scott field, Illinois.

The army air forces technical school at Madison, Wis., reports that Corp. John P. Bencivenga, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bencivenga, 2922 North Kenneth avenue, has been promoted to a sergeant. Col. Oscar L. Rogers, commanding officer, made the announcement.

Three northwest side men completed the officers' gas course at Edgewood arsenal, Md., this month. They were Lieut. Carl F. Bracken, 1626 North Albany avenue; Lieut. Sidney M. Van Kirk, 2419 Leland avenue, and Lieut. Roland C. Schwartz, 821 Sunnyside avenue.

Lieut. Bracken was active in insurance organizations in Illinois and Indiana before he entered the service, while Lieut. Van Kirk was an architectural engineer. Coach of the Camp Grant football team, Lieut. Schwartz was a physical education director and a theater manager.

Medical Auxiliary of Irving Park Will Meet Tuesday

Mrs. W. C. Bornimeir, 7850 Caldwell road, will entertain the women's auxiliary of the Irving Park branch of the Chicago Medical society at dessert-luncheon at 12:30 o'clock on Tuesday. Sewing for war projects will follow a short business meeting.

ST. STANISLAUS KOSTKA JUBILEE CLIMAX SUNDAY

Expect Thousand at Evening Banquet.

The Rev. Bronislaus Lazarowicz.

St. Stanislaus Kostka church, Noble street and Evergreen avenue, the mother church of Polish Catholicism in Chicago, is celebrating its diamond jubilee this month with three weeks of special observances. One hundred fifty Polish families formed the nucleus for the church's establishment in 1867 by the Resurrection Fathers.

Next Sunday will mark the highlight of the three week period when an anniversary mass will be celebrated by Bishop Stanislav Bona of Grand Island, Neb. Archbishop Stritch will preside. The jubilee banquet will be held at 6:30 o'clock Sunday evening in both the upper and lower halls of the church auditorium. About 1,000 persons are expected to attend, and many church dignitaries will be present.

Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Barzynski, commanding officer of the Chicago quartermaster depot, will deliver an address. He is a nephew of the Rev. Vincent Michael Barzynski, pastor of the parish from 1874 to 1899, whose memory is revered by American Poles.

Two Weeks' Mission Being Held.

The Rev. Ladislaus Zapala, now a missionary in the United States, and former head of the Resurrection Fathers, will speak at the anniversary banquet. Father Zapala is participating in the two week mission now in progress at the church, which will close next Sunday.

Choirs from the elementary and high schools of St. Stanislaus Kostka parish will sing. The Rev. Henry Jasinski is director of the boys' choir, and Sister M. Sylvestra directs the girls' choir. The St. Cecilia choir—high school senior group—will be accompanied by the organist, Stanislaus Skabinski.

Under direction of Father Jasinski, an album of the church's history is being prepared. Its 180 pages of pictures and articles will be bound in a white leather covering on which will be stamped a replica of the church in gold. Old Polish families, church leaders, societies, parish buildings will be depicted in the album. The book will be distributed at the banquet.

Thanksgiving Mass Oct. 5.

On Sunday, Oct. 5, a thanksgiving mass will close the three week celebration. Bishop William O'Brien will say the thanksgiving mass.

The mission being held at the church is drawing an attendance of thousands, many of whom are from parishes which owe their origin to St. Stanislaus Kostka church. The Rev. Bronislaus Lazarowicz, pastor of the church since 1935, is in charge of the mission, assisted by the six priests who form his staff.

The original church was a wood structure of two stories and a steeple, erected in 1869 at a cost of $6,885. The first services of the parish were held on the scaffolding under a canopy, and a Czech priest, Father Molitor, conducted the services since a Polish priest could not be obtained immediately for the young Polish settlement in Chicago.

Pastor Quarter of Century.

The real growth of the parish came under the 25 year pastorate of Father Barzynski. A leader of energy and resourcefulness, he directed the development of the parish and encouraged new Polish parishes to establish themselves. Thru his endeavors, St. Hedwig's church was built; then St. John Cantius church, and St. Stanislaus Kostka grade school and college [now Weber High school].

Other churches followed in time. They were St. Hyacinth in Avondale, St. Stanislaus, St. Mary of the Angels, whose organizer was the Rev. Francis Gordon, Holy Trinity, Holy Innocents, and St. Albert's on the south side. A newspaper, "Dziennik Chicagoski," and St. Joseph's Home for the Aged were the outgrowth of the expansion of the first parish.

The first school, opened in 1874 under the care of the School Sisters of Notre Dame, had 89 pupils. The school was to witness phenomenal growth. After a fire in 1906 which destroyed the school, library, convent, and auditorium, a five story fireproof structure was erected. The period from 1907 to 1910 found 5,000 pupils registered and 80 nuns in service. Today the school population is about 1,000.

Present Building Erected in 1887.

Erected in 1887, the present church is in the Romanesque style. It was remodeled in 1925. The exterior walls were reinforced by sham rock, giving the church the appearance of a stone structure, and the entire front was remodeled to lessen the number of steps. The ceiling of the sanctuary is covered with a famous painting of the Resurrection done by the Polish artist, Thaddeus Zukottinski. Windows and the stations of the cross are from Bavaria and there is a four manual organ in the church.

A red brick rectory, English Tudor in architecture, was built on Evergreen avenue at the rear of the church in 1930.

SCHUETZ RIVAL IN PRIMARY RACE AIDS MORELAND

Gorski Adds to Polish Support of G. O. P.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Democratic props that have been supporting Rep. Leonard W. Schuetz of the 7th congressional district continued to fall away last week while the chances of his traditional G. O. P. opponent, former Ald. James C. Moreland, grew steadily brighter.

There was a noticeable defection of former Schuetz supporters among the voters of Polish extraction in the district, said to number in the neighborhood of 100,000.

Sharp emphasis to this trend was given by the announcement of Otto E. Gorski, a Democratic candidate for congressman against Schuetz in the primary, that he would work for the election of Moreland, the Republican. Gorski, a meat dealer well known thru the northwest side, was one of the high ranking Polish-American opponents of Schuetz in the primary results.

Link with Rudnik.

The Moreland campaign is closely linked with that of Michael J. Rudnik, one of the 10 Republican candidates for Cook county commissioner, and one of the two Polish-Americans on the G. O. P. county ticket. Rudnik, who was formerly Moreland's secretary, was placed on the ticket largely thru the former alderman's efforts, and is helping now to draw disgruntled Democratic voters into the G. O. P. camp.

Several Polish-American groups are among the independent men's and women's organizations that have volunteered their aid to bolster the growing G. O. P. strength in the 7th.

Moreland's supporters say that regular organization strength in the district is higher than it has been in years. Moreland was one of the G. O. P. candidates who emerged from the April primary with solid backing among the G. O. P. ward organizations. This has given his campaign greater impetus because it has freed him from the task of patching up old rifts.

Quit Patronage Jobs.

G. O. P. workers report that their party hopes have been greatly helped by the indifference shown in patronage affairs by old Democratic organization workers, who have recently found nonpolitical jobs with better pay in war industries. The heavy Democratic patronage in the district was once an important factor in the political life of the 7th.

Schuetz, who is as well known for his campaign speechlessness as for the party favors he has failed to confer on one-time supporters, is particularly silent in the present campaign. His friends report that he is ailing, but that he declares he is well enough to serve in congress if he is reëlected.

The 8th district battle front, one of the few bright spots in the congressional picture for the Democrats, was comparatively quiet last week. The campaigns of both the Democratic nominee, City Treasurer Thomas S. Gordon, and the Republican, Mrs. Rena E. Pikiel, proceeded strictly along organizational lines, as far as surface indications were concerned.

Bairstow Wins Aid.

In the 10th, which dips into the northwest side in Chicago and also includes some Lake county territory in the area, powerful Democratic effort was being poured in to aid Jack Bairstow of Waukegan, who is trying to prevent former Congressman Ralph E. Church of Evanston from regaining his old seat. Candidates on the Democratic county slate took time from their busy schedules to appear at Bairstow sponsored affairs. These included Benjamin Adamowski, a candidate for congressman at large, and Judge John Gutknecht, running for reëlection to the municipal bench.

Church, who has not yet begun his handshaking stands at elevated and railway stations, was appearing at political meetings in quest of votes. One of these was a testimonial banquet in honor of Emerson C. Whitney, Republican nominee for state senator from the 31st senatorial district.

In the 11th district, which includes McHenry, Kane, Du Page, and Will counties, supporters of Congressman Chauncey W. Reed of West Chicago joined in the drive to get out all eligible voters to qualify for the Nov. 3 election under the new state-wide permanent registration law.

WOMEN'S GROUP TO LEAD MAYFAIR SALVAGE DRIVE

A women's salvage committee is being organized in Mayfair community under direction of Stephen Cablk, 4731 North Keating avenue. Each block captain will appoint at least five women, 18 years or older. Active members of women's clubs, church groups, home economics, business, and social units will be preferred.

The committee will be asked to obtain a salvage pledge from every home in Mayfair community, and will develop competition between zones.

"Women have the heart for getting behind a project and a knack for putting it over—once they understand it and believe in it," Director Cablk said. "Show the ladies the vital need of salvage, what they can do, when and how, and you will create the irresistible drive so essential to the success of this great wartime effort."

Tonti Isabellans Giving Luncheon Next Saturday

Mrs. George Schupolsky, 4231 West Melrose street, is chairman of the benefit luncheon to be sponsored by Tonti council of the Ladies of Isabella next Saturday at the Home Arts guild, 205 N. Michigan avenue, at 12:15. Committee assistants include Mrs. Charles N. Rank, 4227 North Lawndale avenue, educational chairman, and Miss Frances Siuda, 4121 North St. Louis avenue, grand lady.

Daredevil Riders Will Hold Horse Show Today

City cowboys and girl ranchos will display their skill and courage at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the ninth annual horse show of the Elston Saddle club in the Elston Riding stables, 5663 Elston avenue. After the young people learned horsemanship they went in for rough riding. Demonstrating a jump over a human bridge is Marion Pollard riding her horse, Klarney T. Left to right on the bridge are Barbara Majus, Gladys Buskey, and Marion Thezan. On the ground, left to right, are Robert Karnegie, Nick Angelacos, Toots the pony, Tex Harris, and Ray Croft.

COWBOY ANTICS PUNCTUATE CITY HORSEMEN'S SHOW

Bronco, Steer Riding on Program Today.

Beauty operators, grocers, clerks and high school boys and girls who never knew a lone cowhand from the Rio Grande and who ride the Elston avenue street car instead of the wide ranges can rope a calf, bust a bronco and ride a steer like the best of them. This will be seen when the Elston Saddle club presents its ninth annual horse show and rodeo at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Elston Riding stables, 5663 Elston avenue.

The saddle club of city folks boasts 30 members who ride one evening a week and who organize two day riding jaunts along the riding trails of the Chicago area. When the members mastered the fine points of horsemanship under the tutelage of Raymond Croft they asked to learn fancy and rough riding. Thus in the Elston horse show are many of the tricks of the cowboys of the west and tricks that could have come out of a circus arena.

Jump over Human Bridge.

Seven trophies will be awarded in the horsemanship classes, the jumping classes, the game of musical chair and the pair classes. Another trophy will be offered to the best steer or bronco ride. Five ribbons will be presented in each class.

In the special feats part of the show will be a ride and jump by Marion Polard, 15 year old rider, who will perform with her horse Klarney T jumping over a four foot human bridge. Gladys Buskey, who won two trophies in last year's show, will come out of the chute on a wild bronco without benefit of a saddle, holding to the tail of the bronco with her left hand and the mane with her right hand. Miss Buskey will do this feat for her first time at the show.

Myrtle Alstrom, a bank clerk, born and raised in Chicago will show the westerners how to rope a calf. Boy Bryza will sit on a wild bronco for his first time. Nick Angelacos, president of the Elston Saddle club, will ride a steer named the Bat which he claims threw 57 cowboys. He will also perform in a Roman two horse riding act. Mr. Angelacos is a grocer. Vern Pedersen, president of Lane Technical High School Saddle club, will do some fancy roping stunts.

High School Horse.

George Jayne will present his horse, Jimmy, in 16 human tricks. Young Jayne, a 20 year old boy, has been teaching Jimmy tricks since the horse was acquired as a young colt eight years ago. Jimmy nods his head yes or no when asked questions, sits up and begs, lies down, and counts out the month and the day by tapping with his right foot.

Marion Thezon, who has performed in circus shows under the name of Princess Mata Marahja, will ride Ferdinand, her tame Brahma bull, over a four foot jump.

Judges in the show will be Dr. O. J. Carter, Silas Jayne and William Marion. Frank Jayne will be arena director. Officers of the club are Nick Angelacos, president; Myrtle Alstrom, secretary, and Gladys Buskey, treasurer.

Isabellan Benefit.

Mrs. Richard Bergen will entertain at a card party at her home, 1717 North Newland avenue, Friday evening for the benefit of Madrigal council, Ladies of Isabella. Mrs. Helen Melvin is grand lady of the council.

Marion Thezan is riding her trained bull, Ferdinand. Miss Thezan revealed great patience in training the bull to curtsy, jump, and trot. She is demonstrating one of Ferdinand's tricks with the help of Frank Jayne of the Elston stables. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

PLANES TO ROAR OFF LAST YEAR'S FERTILE ACRES

Farmers Ending Long Tenure of Land.

Shore drive, who is in charge of the company's home placement service.

"It's a lot of work finding places for them," Hazel said last week, "but we have found them. Many vacancies in Chicago and environs are created by service men's families who leave this area."

Rentals from $40 to $200.

About 60 California families have already settled here, Hazel said, representing approximately 20 per cent of the number expected in the executive position classification. Monthly rentals paid by them range from $40 to $200, Hazel reported. Homes were found in Arlington Heights, Prospect Heights, Park Ridge, Edison Park, Des Plaines, Glenview, Evanston, and surrounding territory.

Welcomed to Des Plaines.

Des Plaines has the largest group so far, Hazel reported. "We received a warm welcome from Mayor Charles Garland of Des Plaines, and from other city and civic bodies," he said. The coöperation of officials and citizens there has made his job a pleasant one, Hazel added. He has two assistants in his office.

To give incoming California families an idea of what types of homes are available, the Chicago real estate board has taken 72 pictures of typical homes. They will be included with other information in a brochure to be sent west.

B'nai Shalom to Register Pupils in Hebrew School

Registration for new pupils will be held thruout September at the Hebrew and religious school of Congregation B'nai Shalom, 3245 Ainslie street. Samuel S. Weiss, principal, announces the addition to the faculty of Miss Rivkah Pitkowsky, a graduate of the Hebrew High school of Bialystok who has taught in New York and Toronto.

MOTOR COUNCIL SEEKS CROSSING HAZARD REMEDY

Traffic hazards at northwest intersections, such as the Foster-Milwaukee-Gettysburg crossing, and Devon and Central avenues, were discussed at a recent meeting of the northwest area council of the Chicago Motor club.

Several accidents have been reported at the first crossing, and the council plans to conduct a study at that point. Vincent C. Rozycki of the Northwest Civic association and secretary of the area council explained that the present system of bus turning at the intersection contributed to the congestion.

A recent traffic fatality at the intersection of Devon and Central avenues was reported by Edward F. Byle, Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs. He urged installation of four-way stop signs at that corner and at Caldwell and Central avenues.

The council advocated the creation of thru street designation for Wrightwood avenue as far as Cicero avenue. Judge Oscar K. Stahle, Park Ridge, is chairman of the area council.

Service Men to Be Guests at Block Party Wednesday

The Block Aiders, a woman's organization in zone 19, block two of Albany Park community, will hold a supper dance for service men and their girl friends at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday at Eugene Field park, 5100 North Ridgeway avenue. Members helping with arrangements are Miss Lee Zitnik, Mrs. Natalie Copilow, Mrs. Shirley Malvin, Mrs. Ruth Miller, Mrs. Maurice Nemeroff, Mrs. Sarah Terry, Mrs. Esther Rubin, Mrs. Josephine Sher, Mrs. Y. A. Schuster, Mrs. Eve Keachman, and Mrs. Jeanette Becker.

G. O. P. PREDICTS RESAG VICTORY IN 25TH DISTRICT

Party Workers Point to Recent Gains.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

The gigantic 25th district, covering most of the northwest side, is about ripe to elect a Republican state senator on Nov. 3, John T. Dempsey, chairman of the G. O. P. county central committee, declared last week as he launched the legislative campaign at a meeting of ward committeemen in the section.

"This is real fighting territory this year," the energetic young Republican leader said. "Gov. Green's administration, having already cut the sales tax from 3 to 2 cents, needs a majority in the 1943 legislature to carry on the good work. We are determined to gain a Republican senator right here."

G. O. P. Leaders Fighting.

Frederick B. Resag, senate nominee and member of Dempsey's 33d ward organization, was a guest at a dinner of the group in the Logan Square Athletic club Wednesday. Also present were nominees for the Illinois house, Rep. Elroy C. Sandquist and Eugene L. Nusser, and James C. Moreland, candidate for congress.

Considerable enthusiasm was displayed over G. O. P. prospects at the dinner Tuesday night of committeemen representing Wards 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 38, 39, 40, 41, 45, 47, and 50, all of which are wholly or partly in the 25th district.

Resag had an analysis of figures supporting his hopes of being able to end the 12 virtually silent senate years of the Democratic nominee, Frank J. Huckin Jr., 4305 Milwaukee avenue.

In 1938, when the Democrat was last elected, the Democratic primary vote for the office was 124,919 while the Republican vote for the office was only 27,743. Yet in the November election the Democratic vote was only 123,507 against 102,256. The Democrats actually dropped 1,412 votes while the Republicans gained 74,513 between primary and election.

Republican Vote Gains.

Putting it another way, the Democratic lead shrank from nearly 5 to 1 in the primary to less than 5 to 4 in the election. The machine vote had hit its high in April and in November many persons receiving government money went over to the Republican side under protection of the secret ballot, G. O. P. statisticians say.

And in this year's primary the Democratic vote for state senator had decreased 43,533 votes from the 1938 figure, down to 81,386, while the Republican vote went up 6,103 to 33,846.

"Only a narrow margin won for the Democrat last time," Resag said. "Now that the Democratic primary vote is down about 35 per cent while the Republican is up about 22 per cent, it appears certain that our party will fight its way thru to victory Nov. 3."

Huckin "Hasn't Started."

Resag was born in Chicago and attended Austin High school and the Chicago-Kent College of Law. An attorney for 15 years, he resides at 3011 Logan boulevard.

Sen. Huckin said last week that he has not started his campaign and had nothing to say. Chief deputy clerk of the Superior court, in the last session of the legislature at Springfield he introduced only one bill independently—to establish a state employé's pension system. He shared sponsorship of two other bills, which also failed to pass.

At the end of Huckin's second term in 1938, the Legislative Voters league, which has suspended operations for the duration of the war, said: "Quite inactive; he has become a nonentity."

Commissioner Heads 4 Generations

Four generations of the William Busse family attended the recent christening of 3 weeks old Frederick Thomas Mosiman who is in the arms of his great-grandfather, County Commissioner William Busse, in front of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Mount Prospect. At the left is Sergt. Frederick Mosiman of the United States air corps, father of the baby. Next is Mrs. Mosiman, Commissioner Busse's granddaughter. Standing next to the commissioner is his daughter Mrs. J. E. A. Mueller, grandmother of the child. At the right is the Rev. J. E. A. Mueller, the baby's grandfather and pastor of the church. Commissioner Busse has 7 sons and daughters, 23 grandsons and granddaughters, and 9 great-grandchildren. The Busse family settled in the northwest area a century ago. [Max F. Kolin Photo.]

Vestal Royal

Miss Doris Carlson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carlson, 7031 Oleander avenue, took her oath as vestal royal when the Ancient and Modern Vestals of Victory Haven held public installation of officers last night at the Park Ridge Masonic temple.

SODALITY PLANS ANNUAL FROLIC AND MARDI GRAS

Young Ladies sodality of St. Tarcissus church will hold its annual fall frolic and Mardi Gras floor show Saturday night in the social center, Moody and Milwaukee avenues. Most of the girls in the sodality will appear in choruses of the floor show which is being presented the same evening as a part of the card party and dance of the United Societies of St. Tarcissus.

Miss Shirley Klodzinski is general chairman of the party and Miss Ellen Marquette is in charge of the floor show. The dance routines will be South American in design.

Assisting in the preparations for the party are Miss Harriette Somers, president of the sodality, and the Rev. William Fisher, spiritual director of the group.

GOSPEL CHURCH HOLDS REVIVAL IN PARK RIDGE

An evangelistic campaign will be conducted by the Gospel church in Park Ridge beginning today and continuing thru next Sunday evening. The Rev. Billy Graham of Charlotte, N. C., will preach at the services which will be held every night at 7:45 o'clock in South Park fieldhouse, Talcott and Cumberland avenues.

Opening the campaign will be a service at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Forest Trailer Park clubhouse. Then the Rev. Mr. Graham and the Ambassador Male quartet will travel to the Park Ridge School for Girls for a 4:30 o'clock service.

On Wednesday the pastor and the quartet will appear before the Kiwanis club at 2:15 o'clock at the Tally Ho tearoom. They will give a program at 2 o'clock in the junior high school and at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Maine Township High school.

CHURCH TO MARK GOLDEN JUBILEE IN EDISON PARK

Methodists Plan Program for Oct. 4 to 11.

Fifty years of religious leadership and expansion will be celebrated the week of Oct. 4 to 11 at the Edison Park Methodist church, corner of Oliphant and Pratt avenues. A committee directed by Dr. John Carroll Spencer, pastor, already has worked out the details of the program and engaged several church leaders for the jubilee.

Dr. George A. Fowler, superintendent of the northern Methodist district and a former pastor of the Oak Park First Methodist church, will open the program with a Sunday morning service on Oct. 4. In the afternoon there will be a homecoming meeting and an organ recital.

Advocate Editor to Talk.

Dr. Roy L. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate, will address a men's banquet on Oct. 6; Dr. Georgia Hartness, professor of systematic theology at Garrett Biblical institute in Evanston, will talk at a women's luncheon on Oct. 8, and Bishop E. L. Waldorf will close the jubilee on Sunday morning, Oct. 11. A pageant depicting the history of the church's 50 years will be presented Thursday night, Oct. 8.

Hold Meetings in Depot.

The Edison Park Methodist church was organized in November, 1891, in a home which stood near the present site of the old Walter Reiling home on Overhill avenue. The first meetings were held in the waiting room of the Chicago and North Western railroad station. The present church was dedicated in 1892 and an addition was built in 1927 to accommodate its 600 members.

WOMEN'S WORK IN WAR CHANGES LITTLE SINCE '17

Same Spirit of Sacrifice Holds in Park Ridge.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

The ways and means of living have improved since civilization advanced from World War I. to World War II. In the interim of 25 years villages and cities gained by such discoveries as anti-knock gasoline, vitamin D, color photography, the pushbutton elevator, television and the autogyro airplane. War work in these same cities and villages, like the wounds and scars of war, stays much the same.

Mrs. H. A. Buchheit of Park Ridge knows. She is a heroine of both wars. But in the pages of history when big battles are reduced to paragraphs Mrs. Buchheit's name will be left out. She is production chairman of the Red Cross unit in Park Ridge. In the last war she made surgical dressings with the unit that met in St. Mary's Episcopal church.

In a quarter of a century making bandages has changed little. Mrs. Buchheit rolled the gauze 25 years ago. Today the gauze is cut by machinery, sent to the unit in automobiles driven by uniformed members of the Red Cross motor corps.

More Varieties of Bandage.

Today it's faster because 25 years ago some one went by train into the city to bring back the gauze. There are more variety of bandages today. the unit chairmen must attend classes to learn how to tie bundles of sponges so that one pull of the wrappings will open the bundles. Today they make such bandages as pack abdominal, pad absorbent, sponge surgical, and face mask surgical. There is more inspection, checking, and measuring.

Every now and then new instructions come from Red Cross headquarters. The instructions are definite and Mrs. Buchheit must learn them all and teach them to the surgical division of the Park Ridge unit which has a membership of 225 women. While the women are working they mention now and then that their sons are in Alaska, or Iceland, or Africa, or New Caledonia. Otherwise they never mention the war. All the young men—the reasons for the wide lawns, the spreading trees, the school houses, the parks, and playgrounds in Park Ridge—are away from their homes.

Groups of 30 Leave.

Sometimes as many as 30 Park Ridge boys leave town on one train. Their mothers go back to the work of making bandages, cutting abdominal dressings in sizes 4 inches by 18 inches, 8 inches by 18 inches, 8 inches by 36 inches, and 12 inches by 18 inches. They pack them according to specifications, 1,440 to a carton and the large sponges 540 to a carton.

"Mostly the women exchange recipes while they work," says Mrs. Buchheit, "or they give out secrets for tender pie crusts. They just don't talk about the war."

When Park Ridge took up bandage making for the Red Cross in the last war, the women who wanted to could buy a khaki uniform buttoned down the front. Not many bothered to buy them. Today all surgical workers must wear, according to regulations, a white Red Cross uniform with the symbol of the organiaztion sewn to the front. In the last war there was no talk of civilian defense, no talk of being bombed. Park Ridge raised money to buy an ambulance and sent it to the front lines of France. The women raised money in a cooking school conducted by Mrs. O. E. Hiller. They had card parties and solicited personal pledges. The ambulance was paid for in one summer.

Same Bond and Stamp Sale.

In the last war the women helped sell Liberty bonds and thrift stamps. In this one they sell war bonds and war stamps. In this war James D. Tierney, mayor of Park Ridge, is proud of his civilian defense organization. In the last war his brother, Mel Tierney, lost his life and his name still lives in the Mel Tierney post of the American Legion which sold thousands of dollars worth of war bonds at its recent carnival.

Mrs. Buchheit and her production unit in Park Ridge are today a part of a huge accoutrement of modern war. Like Clara Barton, the American founder of Red Cross, the women shut their eyes to the why of war and try to ease the suffering. In two years the production corps of the Red Cross has grown from 200,000 to 2,000,000 workers. They are producing millions of garments for hospitalized soldiers and sailors, disabled veterans, and war refugees.

Notice Shortage of Wool.

They are producing 40,000,000 surgical dressings a year for the United States army and navy. Assisting Mrs. Buchheit with the Park Ridge quota is Mrs. George T. Fisk.

In the last war when Mrs. S. H. Holbrook was chairman of the knitting division of the Park Ridge unit there was plenty of wool for making scarfs, sweaters, and helmets. In this war Miss Mary Perkins, chairman of knitting, finds her unit virtually without wool.

World War II. finds Mrs. O. F. Weiss, chairman of garment sewing, a division much the same as the sewing division of World War I. This has been speeded up by the use of the division of labor, one woman sewing on buttons, another sewing in the hems, another cutting out the sleeves.

Fortitude of women has remained the same thru 25 years. They say good-by to their sons one day and go back to work the next following the precept of Miss Barton, the humanitarian of the Civil war, the Franco-Prussian war, and the Spanish-American war.

CHILDREN TAKE TIP FROM ORPHAN ANNIE'S EXPLOITS

Show Up Elders in War Work at Home.

(Pictures on page 1.)

Little Orphan Annie of THE TRIBUNE comics has inspired 100 children in zone 49 of the Belmont-Cragin community to take a serious part in the war.

These real life junior commandos, led by Richard Russo, their 12 year old lieutenant general, meet in the basement at the rear of 5909 Barry avenue, a room now in the process of being painted and festooned with red, white and blue streamers. The children periodically pull their wagons thru 100 blocks in the zone where A. F. Henderson is captain. They will rush a pound of grease to the butcher on a nod from any housewife. They collect newspapers, tin cans, keys and cast off articles made of rubber.

Take Lamp Apart.

"Sometimes people give us pieces of junk that are too big to put in our wagons," says Lieut. Gen. Dickie Russo. "A woman gave us a lamp but we took it apart so we could carry it away."

Dickie is proud of their waste paper collection. "We made $12.50 in two days," he says. "We still have the money that the paper dealer paid us except for $3. We bought ice cream with it."

Mr. Henderson says the money earned by the children is subject to auditing by the Office of Civilian Defense. They must have an O. K. before they can spend the money.

The organization was the children's idea. Mr. Henderson had given a speech one night at a zone rally. He mentioned among other things that "Even children can work for victory."

The next morning his door bell rang. There on the front stoop stood Dickie and a friend named James Farley, now major general of the commandos. They said, "We think the children can help too so we want to organize. Can we start right away?" That evening the children had their first meeting.

Example for Elders.

Their meetings are so serious and so well conducted that when zone 49's block captains had an argument that was leading to loud talking and bordering on disorder, Mr. Henderson marched them over to sit in an a children's meeting. The block captains were so impressed that they went back to their zone meeting and made peace.

The commandos now have 100 members with Miss Betty Robinson as zone youth leader. They have a body of military police who see to it that paper is cleaned off the streets after it is spread out for a waste paper dealer to choose from. They have earned the money for a flag pole and flag which was dedicated last week at Marmora and Barry avenues. They purchased a bulletin board for block six in the zone. They had a party complete with ice cream and elected officers.

Military Police Leaders.

Richard Stahr is head of the military police assisted by Raymond Benearo. The sergeants at arms are Robert Freses and Salvatore Caldrone. L. J. Laurion, a building agent, donated the use of the basement room in his apartment and little Gail Henderson is in charge of decorating the room.

JEWISH GROUPS FEEL WAR PINCH IN BOY PROGRAM

But Council Will Keep Its Clubs Operating.

They could be called the forgotten generation, these 28 kids from 9 thru 14. They are too young to fight and too old to hide away in a nursery school, content with toy trains and tin airplanes. However, three northwest side boys clubs maintained and staffed by the Young Men's Jewish council, 5 North Wabash avenue, are teaching these boys to believe in America with handball courts, handicraft rooms, and friendship.

The boys clubs, which gives the boy in the congested area a place to play and friends to meet, are paid for by the checks of 3,000 individual contributors. The 44 men on the board of directors of the Young Men's Jewish council make individual contacts among their friends to pay for the fun in the clubs. This year the council is feeling a pinch. Many of the men on the board are now in the army or navy.

Growing on the list of contributors are the check marks designating that the man is now in the service of his country. Other contributors are putting their money into war funds, for relief of scores of refugees in all countries of the world.

Jewish Women Raise Funds.

Some 1,275 boys troop into the Deborah Boys' club, 2441 West Division street, a remodeled two story building originally intended to care for not more than 800 boys. The club was the idea of the Deborah Woman's club of which Mrs. Lester Stern is president. Thru the years all the money required to give the boys healthful play has been raised by this social club of Jewish women. Harry Dorfman is the Deborah club manager. It costs $16,000 annually to give all these boys lessons in photography, public speaking, carpentry, and to let them run riot in the gymnasium.

There are 935 boys that go to Albany Park Boys' club, 3715 West Wilson avenue, which is located in the Max Straus center. The club has all its own quarters and facilities, a handball court in the back, an auditorium, a gym, a woodshop, a glee club and a dramatic club.

Attend Summer Camp.

Meyer Katz and a group of friends helped finance the Humboldt Park Boys' club, 1143 North Spaulding avenue, which serves 550 boys.

In the summer time the boys leave their clubhouses and make a trek to Camp Henry Horner which was founded as Camp Wooster in 1914. From June 27 thru Aug. 30, the boys swim and play near Round Lake. In 1940 there were 1,560 boys given a vacation during the 10 week season. First they lived in tents when the camp was new but thru the generosity of friends, cabins were built one by one. The largest number of cabins costing $10,000 were built thru the Max Straus estate.

Until June 1, the staff of the three boys' clubs were intact. By Oct. 5 there will be a shortage of young men to win the confidence of these younger boys and teach them that friendly clubs are more fun than gangs in an alley. Over at the Albany club the boys have a new director, Sol Boskind, who is assistant director of the Young Men's council. Boskind had to move over to the club when Meyer Visotzky, former director, marched off to the army.

Council Has Three Solutions.

The Young Men's Jewish council have three solutions to their mounting problems in running boys clubs during wartime. If enough young men and enough contributions can not be obtained for an activity, they may have to cut the activity. Secondly, they will try to get older men with families who are draft deferred to spend their evenings teaching the boys or they may use the services of high school teachers and junior college men who are not yet old enough for military service.

Third, they will try to substitute women. Last year at the Humboldt club, a woman, Miss Francine Felsenthal, was hired as director of the art department. The club manager called it an experiment and waited to see how the roughest boys would take to a woman teacher.

Volunteer as Teachers.

Everybody, including Miss Felsenthal, was surprised. The boys respected her and confided in her their intimate troubles. She said she never has made better friends.

The young men on the council board also will volunteer as teachers. However, 10 of the 44 board members are in the army and more are expecting to go. Another source of instructors may be volunteers recruited thru the Council of Social agencies in conjunction with the Office of Civilian Defense.

With all the problems war brings to boys' club management, the Young Men's Jewish council plans to keep their clubs open and their boys smiling. In last year's year book, the council said, "This book is dedicated to the American boy with the solemn realization that the future of America and the destiny of humanity are in his hands—and that what he absorbs today will influence the way in which he meets the problems of tomorrow."

Two Pastors to Dedicate Block Flag This Afternoon

Two pastors will officiate at the dedication service to be held this afternoon by block 3, zone 4, at Leland and Washtenaw avenues. The Rev. Joseph F. Barrett, Queen of Angels church, 2330 Sunnyside avenue, and the Rev. George J. C. Koehler, Luther Memorial church, 2500 Wilson avenue, will lead residents in honoring men of the block now in the armed services, among them the Rev. James J. Fitzgerald, assistant pastor of Queen of Angels church for nine years, who is stationed in the Pacific area.

Block Displays Fighters' Pictures

Service men from block 8, community 10 of division 5 have their pictures starred in a glass enclosed case built by Block Capt. Bernard J. Czapski, 2959 North Harding avenue, retired park policeman. Thomas Rehberger, 2952 North Springfield avenue, supplied the 50 foot flag pole. The new stand and pole were dedicated last Sunday at Harding and Wellington avenues. Albert W. Kaercher, 3158 North Pulaski road, Avondale assistant defense commander, acted as master of ceremonies, and Theodore J. Czarnecki, 4005 Oakdale street, community commander, spoke at the dedication.

BILL HAS THREE STANCH ROOTERS FOR BIKE TITLE

They're His Brothers, All Cyclists, Too.

Most mothers would think that one bicycle around the house was quite enough. Mrs. William Broscovak, 7009 Ozark street, Edison Park, has four sons and consequently four wheels around the house.

The boys all ride racing wheels, and Bill, 18, and Dick, 16, participate in city-wide wheelmen's events. Their mother is keenly interested in her boys' sport. Besides helping them get their wheels and jerseys, she attends different meets and keeps a scrapbook of clippings, usually with her own observations added in a careful hand.

Eldest in Bike News.

Up to the present these clippings have dealt primarily with Bill, who is a graduate of Schurz High school, and a railroad lease clerk in Chicago. Bill has been a member of the Edison Park Wheelmen for three years. Dick, a junior at Taft High school, is a recent member of the club. Ray, 14, and Bob, 6, students at Ebeninger grade school, are yet to have the press take more than casual cognizance of their industrious riding.

Of an evening, after dinner, the quartet rolls down the driveway for a little 20 mile spin. Sunday morning also is a favorite time for their favorite sport. Forty-five mile jaunts have been taken by young Bob with Dick and Ray. He goes with them to the park bowl for practice, and let it be recorded that he shines and greases his wheel and watches his tires himself.

In 1940 Bill placed third in a 50 mile club meet, and ninth in the Elgin-Chicago race. In 1941 he entered the only three races because a new job took his time. This year he looms as club champion with 43 points in eight club meets [two are to be run] as against 28 points of the runner-up, Bob Jackson. Last year's winner, Gunther Lueschen, lists 14 points in third place, and Frank Schott Jr., is fourth with 10 points. John Sullivan is fifth with 9½ points.

Notes on a Race.

Dick leads the juniors with 17 points. Jack De Visi is second with 11 points, and Dick Daly third with 4 points.

Of the 45 mile handicap road race from Joliet to Chicago, held Aug. 30, Mrs. Broscovak wrote in the scrapbook in part:

"Billy rode especially well. He started from dog mark, which was a 4 minute handicap. There were about 20 riders in his pack. Bill had a fine chance of winning the race or placing second as he is unusually good in his final sprint, but unfortunately he spilled as they entered the park. He pulled himself together and was on his way. He finished eighth and received a beautiful trophy and a time prize trophy."

"I MOVED CLOSER TO THE STORES"

"It's an easy walk now and we're saving the car and tires, too."

WOULD it be more convenient for you to take an apartment closer to shopping facilities? Are you going to have to move closer to your work?

Consult the Apartments to Rent columns in the Tribune want ad section. There you will find offers of attractive apartments grouped for ready reference by numbers of rooms and by locations thruout Chicago and suburbs. Because the Tribune prints more apartments to rent want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined, you have the largest choice of apartments available when you choose from these helpful columns. Review them today.

HOW TO SPEED HOUSEWORK

In these times, it pays to organize your housework as efficiently as possible.

Good, labor-saving appliances, such as those advertised in the Household Appliances column in the Tribune want ad section, can help you to do your work better and faster. Washers, ironers, vacuum cleaners and a variety of other appliances are made available thru these columns. Watch your opportunities to get the appliances you need thru these offerings.

"AM I GLAD I TOOK THAT COURSE!"

"There are plenty of promotions around here for those with special training."

Are you in line for promotion? Do you have the training required to qualify for a better job?

Ambitious men and women are preparing themselves for today's big demand for trained workers by taking courses offered in the Instruction, Trade Schools, Musical and Dramatic, and Dressmaking and Millinery Schools columns of the Tribune want ad section. Select one of these regular or short courses today and get started on the surest route to quick advancement.

"HERE'S ONE BILL I'M HAPPY TO PAY"

"FIVE OF US DRIVE DOWN TOGETHER"

"We certainly are getting our money's worth in this used car."

If you need a car to get to work, you can choose from today's largest selection of used car values offered in the Tribune want ad section.

There is no ban on their sale. All you need is one-third down payment and you can handle the balance in 15 monthly instalments.

To get maximum value in a used car, watch the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in the Tribune want ad section. Because the Tribune prints more used automobiles for sale want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper, you have the largest choice when you follow these offerings. Turn to them now.

"Our insulation job is going to cut heating costs way down."

Next winter will be no time to put up with drafty doors and windows or walls and ceilings that leak heat and waste fuel. Every householder who possibly can should make his home wintertight before fall.

For offers of insulation, storm sash, weatherstripping, heating equipment and other items you need to plug heat losses, consult the Building Materials column in the Tribune want ad section. You save doubly by taking advantage of these offerings—both on the cost of the materials you buy and in the fuel economies which they make possible. Watch this column in the want ad section.

★Because they get better results, want ad users place more total want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

'How Green Was My Valley' on Radio Theater Tomorrow

Maureen O'Hara, Walter Pidgeon, and Donald Crisp, stars of the screen epic, "How Green Was My Valley," will be featured in a radio adaptation of this show on the Radio theater over WBBM-CBS at 8 o'clock tomorrow. Cecil B. de Mille is featured on the show as narrator.

FOR SHOW WITH SPIRIT TRY 'ON STAGE, CHANUTE'

W-G-N Presents Airmen Tuesday Nights.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

One of the brightest of the many soldier and sailor shows that ride the kilocycles nowadays comes from the USO center in Rantoul, down in the midst of Illinois' cornfields. It's called "On Stage, Chanute," and if your aren't listening to it at 7:30 p. m. Tuesdays on W-G-N you're missing some of the best band music and choral singing on the air.

It's all provided, of course, by the men of the air forces at big Chanute field, which overshadows little Rantoul. Busy as they are training for flying servies the men devote a lot of time and energy to broadcast the shows. It takes a lot of planning and long hours of rehearsal to develop these entertainments and put them together. We found that out by visiting Rantoul.

Many Problems Encountered.

Producer Morrison Wood and Francis Coughlin, who writes the script, spend about half the week on these shows. Coöperating with Maj. M. F. Ranney, in charge of public relations, and Capt. Francis E. Hammond, in charge of music, they recruit the talent well in advance. Wood and Coughlin had already conducted preliminary rehearsals when we arrived.

And Max Bear, W-G-N engineer, and Announcer Lee Bennett [formerly a singer with Jan Garber's orchestra] were on hand for final rehearsals. Incidentally, an engineer gets a terrific workout on such shows put on from "remote" spots more than a hundred miles from the studio. Each week he has to lug down a lot of heavy special equipment. And he encounters a lot of knotty problems the studio technician escapes altogether.

In fact such impromptu shows are tough work for the producer, the announcer, the musical director, and it requires the closest coöperation among all to bring forth the smooth shows they do.

The flavor of the Chanute shows comes mainly from the fine musical groups that have been developed there. There's the really top band, with a nucleus of alumni from the great University of Illinois band. Band Leader Eugene Dieter gives a Sousa march a master touch. A half dozen men have been taken from the personnel of the band lately and been made army bandmasters elsewhere.

Choral Singing Featured.

You won't hear any better choral singing anywhere than that of the Chanute Wing chorus, directed by Capt. Hammond. Loudest applause for its performance came from Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production, who was a guest at the broadcast. In fact, after the show MacGregor joined some of the men in a little impromptu close harmony session. Stuart Piggins, who plays the piano for this group, was formerly an accompanist for Gladys Swarthout and the director of the Sunday Evening Hour chorus on CBS.

The Four Techs, composed of Sergt. Johnny Oliver, Privates Alex Drazba, Joe Bianco, and Ben Lorry give out the kind of rhythm that would be recognized as A1 in any swing circle.

Chanute seems to have everything in the realm of music. Sergt. Jay Froman and Pvt. Joseph Cuervo really know what to do with grand opera.

The weekly interviews with soldiers help to give prospective airmen a glimpse of what goes on at Chanute. Last Tuesday Technical Sergt. Paul B. Van Horn got down to business on the subject of propellers.

A rousing medley of World War I. tunes, with Lieut. Norma Brooks of the army nurse corps as soloist, tied the show all up in a bow.

FIRST NIGHTERS RECALL ANOTHER MOSCOW ATTACK

A drama titled, "The Great Bell of the Kremlin," written by Edwin M. Marshall, will be presented on the First Nighter show tonight at 7 o'clock over W-G-N.

The play concerns an episode in the lives of a Russian family during Napoleon's march on Moscow. Les Tremayne will be cast as Nicholas, an escaped captive from Napoleon's army, who has returned to Moscow to see his sweetheart, Anna, played by Barbara Luddy. Napoleon, like Hitler, stood at the gates of Moscow.

Moscow was to burned and the signal was to be the ringing of the great bell of the Kremlin. The heroism of the two leading characters is a thrilling explanation of the failure of Napoleon's march.

Eric Sagerquist and his First Nighter orchestra will supply the music.

SEN. BROOKS' SAFETY ADDRESS ON W-G-N TONIGHT

An address by Sen. Wayland Brooks on "Safety in Peace and War" will be broadcast at 11:30 o'clock tonight by W-G-N and the Mutual network from a civilian defense rally at Moline, Ill. The rally will be held by the Illinois State Council of Defense. Sen. Brooks will urge safety in war factories and on the highways.

Rosanska Will Be Soloist on Radio City Music Hall

Josefa Rosanska, well known American pianist, will be the featured soloist on the Radio City Music hall today at 11:30 a. m. over WCFL-Blue. Others on the program will be John Herrick, baritone, and Frederick Wilkins, first flutist of the Radio City Music Hall Symphony orchestra, and a quartet composed of Jacques Gasselin, first violinist; David Novales, second violin; Leon Frengut, viola, and Gaston Dubois, cello.

On Date Show

Frances Scully is the mistress of ceremonies on Your Blind Date show presented Sundays at 6 p. m. over WCFL and the Blue.

NEW YORK TENOR WILL BE GUEST ON MELODY HOUR

Mario Berini to Sing with Miss Claire.

Mario Berini, young New York tenor, will make his network debut Saturday, singing opposite Marion Claire, soprano, on W-G-N and Mutual's "America Loves a Melody" program to be aired from 8 to 9 p. m.

Berini, a newcomer to the concert world, has recently completed a successful concert tour of the east. He will have three solo selections on the program, singing Romberg's "Your Land and My Land," Campbell Tipton's "A Spirit Flower," and Lehar's "Yours Is My Heart Alone."

Miss Claire will offer four solo selections, Romberg's "The Same Silver Moon," "Il Est Doux, Il Est Bon" from Massenet's "Herodiade," Foster's "The Americans Come," and "The Lost Chord" by Sullivan.

Musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra conducted by Henry Weber and by the chorus under direction of Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production, will be the producer.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

The chorus will offer two selections, Lieurance's "By the Waters of the Minnetonka" and Steininger's "Marching Along Together." The orchestra will play Délibès' "Czardas" from "Coppelia Ballet," and Herbert's "Indian Summer."

Two of the selections, "By the Waters of the Minnetonka" and "Indian Summer" will be accompanied by dramatic playlets drawn from $25 prize winning letters written by the radio audience telling true stories behind their favorite songs.

W-G-N TO AIR NEW SERVICE MEN'S NIGHT CLUB SHOW

A new program for service men will make its debut on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Wednesday, when the Service Men's show is broadcast from the eighth floor night club of the Chicago Service Men's center at 176 West Washington street.

The musical novelty group, the "Hoosier Hot Shots," and the comedy team of "Tom, Dick, and Harry" will be regular attractions of the program and are scheduled to be heard each week along with visiting guest artists. The object of the program will be the entertainment of the service men who will be attending the night club at the service center.

First guest artist on the new weekly program will be Edna O'Dell, W-G-N singing star. Many singing stars of stage and radio are scheduled to appear as guests on the program.

The "Hoosier Hot Shots" are well known to the listening audience as a featured attraction of the National Barn Dance program for many years and as guest artists on numerous network programs. The novelty group features Frank Kettering, bass player who is heard on W-G-N supplying the bass background for Hugh Carson. Others in the musical combine are Gabe Ward, clarinet; Hezzie Trietsch, musical washboard, and Ken Trietsch, guitar.

Military Morale to Be Topic of Review Stand

A discussion of military morale will highlight the broadcast of the Northwestern Reviewing Stand at 10 a. m. today over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. Participants in the discussion will be: Lieut. Col. Walter R. Jeffrey, executive officer, army emergency relief, 6th service command; Commander Smith D. A. Cobb, professor of naval science and tactics, Northwestern university, and Maj. Charles S. Hart, war department representative to the army war show. James H. McBurney will appear as moderator.

HERE ARE SOME HINTS ON CARE OF YOUR FLOORS

Old Surface Can Be Made to Look Like New.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[We've prepared a leaflet on some popular types of floor finishes, and some Do's and Don'ts for proper floor refinishing. Please send a stamped, addressed envelope to this department if you wish leaflet.]

If you have a wood floor that is soiled and spotted it may be that:

1. A good paint and varnish remover will put the surface in shape for varnish, wax, or one of the new and beautiful penetrating finishes.

2. A good bleach will transform it to a blondness as modern as it is attractive.

3. Or a rented sanding machine have a new wood surface for what treatment we wish.

4. And an oxalic acid treatment can be counted on to rid a floor of dark stains and also to lighten the wood.

Prepare Old Surface.

If you wish a new floor, the chances are it can be laid over the old one, if the surface of old floor is properly prepared. There are:

1. Damp proof linoleums, asphalt tiles, dyes, and paints for basement floors; 2. linoleums for all rooms in the house and beautiful, actual wood floors in parquet block and mosaic patterns that can be laid like a rug over an existing wood floor.

If you wish to prevent surface scratching and prolong the life of the floor coating you should wax the floor frequently. It never pays to let an old floor coating become worn thru before revarnishing.

Worn spots on varnished or shellacked floors can be touched up by carrying the renewed finish to the edge and ends of the boards to make any contrast between old and new less noticeable.

Remove Old Paint Coating.

If a floor finish is to be changed from paint to stain, the old paint coating must be removed with paint and varnish remover. This is a process where directions should be followed carefully, and then when surface is clean the wood should be washed by a cloth soaked in turpentine. Then the stain can be applied and the finish coat of shellac, varnish, or wax applied.

Sometimes, but not always, it is necessary to use a paste wood filler after the paint and varnish remover, in cases where the wood is open grained. A paste wood filler can be applied directly to bare wood, according to directions on packages. Excess can be removed by rubbing coarse cloth against the grain of the wood after the filler has been on for the length of time specified.

Sand Surface Down.

If a floor finish is to be changed from stain to paint, the surface must be sanded down and well dusted and the knot holes coated with thin shellac. Sappy streaks also can be treated in this way, so there is no danger that the pitch will bleed thru to the final finish.

Then before the actual finish is to be applied the wood can be primed with one or two coats of enamel undercoater and then sanded lightly. A good grade of floor enamel can be applied for the finishing coat, and then this coat well waxed. If a painted floor is kept properly waxed it can be cleaned easily by wiping with occasional cold water.

If a floor is to be revarnished or reshellacked it should be thoroly washed, rinsed, and dried.

Tin Can Depots Established for Suburban Towns

Eight district depots, serving a total of 44 communities, have been designated as tin can collection centers outside Chicago, in territory under jurisdiction of William L. McFetridge, Chicago area salvage director.

Other depots will be set up to serve 64 more communities. This work is retarded, however, because response has been slow from community salvage chairmen asked to supply can collection data on forms furnished by the area office, McFetridge said.

To get at least 15 tons of cans a month, each depot should serve a population of about 30,000. Collection districts will be organized on this population basis when possible, salvage officials said, altho few districts designated so far are that populous.

Railroad cars used for can transport usually have capacity for 20 tons of cans and the roads refuse to take less than 15 tons in a car. A ton contains about 8,000 cans.

First monthly collections were scheduled for August in several towns, but the Winnetka district, including Wilmette, Kenilworth, Glencoe, and Northfield was the only one to make a shipment to the Gary detinning plant to which all cans in this area are destined. Winnetka shipped 40,000 pounds Aug. 12.

Several other centers are said to be nearing their minimum.

District depots have been established in communities with railroad freight facilities. Communities to contribute to each district depot are listed with the key centers:

Downers Grove—Lisle, Belmont, Fairview, Westmont, and Liberty Park.

Elmhurst—Villa Park, Itasca, Bensenville, Addison, Wooddale, and Yorkville.

Highland Park—Lake Forest, Highwood, Deerfield, Bannockburn, and Lake Bluff.

La Grange—Clarendon Hills, Western Springs, Hinsdale, La Grange Park, Brookfield, Riverside, and North Riverside.

Blue Island—Evergreen Park, Oak Lawn, and Crestwood.

Harvey—Flossmoor, Hazel Crest, and Homewood.

River Grove—Elmwood Park, Schiller Park, and Franklin Park.

Winnetka—Wilmette, Kenilworth, Glencoe, and Northfield.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 21.

Keep careful watch on plants to be used for indoor decoration. Bring them into the house immediately to avoid checking from exposure to cold nights and frost. Cacti should be removed indoors even tho many of them are entering their resting period and need reasonably low temperatures.

Tuesday, Sept. 22.

Mealybugs on house plants are among the most difficult to kill due to their protective covering of white woolly material. Many can be knocked from the plants by a stream of water under pressure, some may be lifted from the axils of the leaves with a toothpick, or washed off. Wrap a small amount of cotton on the end of a toothpick, dip it in alcohol, touch the bugs, and they will die.

Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Winter injury of evergreens is frequently caused by failure to water the plants, and permitting them to pass thru the winter in dry soil. Give the soil a good soaking if it needs it. Protect annuals that are blooming, against freezing. Transplant pansies into cold frames.

Thursday, Sept. 24.

Shrubs and other hardy material should be obtained as soon as the nurseries can ship them, for early planting gives the plants time to become established before freezing weather. Many plants make a root growth in fall and should be planted early if possible. They will remain in the ground without injuring if planted late, but they will need mulching to prevent loosening by storms.

Friday, Sept. 25.

Plow vacant lots; sow rye, vetch, or other good cover, and turn it under in spring. This is a fine method of incorporating humus in the soil. When a bundle of shrubs is received from the nursery it should be examined, and, if dry, place the bundle in a tub and pour water on until it is soaked thru. Then plant.

If the place for the plants is not ready and the work must be delayed for a week or more, remove the plants from the packing and heel in the garden. They will keep indefinitely. When planting have each hole large enough to accommodate the roots. Firm the soil around the roots. All mutilated roots should be cut back to clean wood.

Saturday, Sept. 26.

The entire garden area within the lot line, or wherever the garden is located, should have a thoro cleaning up. Destroy all vegetation that harbors insects. Trim out dead wood from trees and shrubs, tie up vines to prevent their swaying in the wind, with the likelihood of breakage to the stems.

Plant bulbs for indoor use and remember that potted bulbs must be thoroly rooted before bringing to the light window. Arrange feeding stations for birds. Protect newly planted fruit trees against the attacks of rodents seeking food.

PUPILS LIKE 18c VICTORY LUNCH IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Government Gives Menu, Some of Supplies.

Victory lunches at 18 cents, replacing last year's 15 cent student specials in Chicago high school cafeterias, are proving popular, administrators reported after the first full week in which the lunches were offered.

Food prices have risen during the summer but the added three cents pays for more food, not merely for increased costs, Director F. D. Washam said. Student specials were planned for dietetic balance, but this year's victory lunches go a step further. Their nutrition value is measured according to a national nutrition yardstick laid down in Washington.

Supplies from Government.

The schools are getting some supplies from the federal surplus commodities administration to aid them in providing a meat or meat substitute for each meal along with raw fruit or raw vegetables, eggs three times a week, enriched or whole wheat bread, butter and milk.

Yellow vegetables are stressed for they contain vitamin A, which government bulletins say helps to prevent colds and night blindness.

Frown on Two Hamburgers.

Last year's student special included meat, potatoes, vegetables or salad and bread and butter.

Hamburgers are still available, of course. But the youth who insists on two hamburgers and a bowl of chili for lunch draws frowns.

Mr. Washam manages the cafeterias, but the victory lunches are planned by Dietician Mary Kavanaugh.

EMPLOYE OF LAMSON COMPANY 50 YEARS IS FETED BY ASSOCIATES

James Hopkins, 41 North Lockwood avenue, one of the oldest and best known employés in Chicago's financial district, was honored with flowers, cake, a watch, and other tokens last week when he marked the 50th anniversary of his employment with Lamson Bros. & Co.

Altho he has been at work almost daily in the board of trade building since he was 13 years old, he is far from ready to quit, he said. At 63 he is a hearty specimen, standing 5 feet, 11 inches tall and weighing around 200 pounds. His age shows chiefly in his wavy hair, sprinkled with gray.

Hopkins began as an errand boy, but for the last 25 years has been in charge of the settlement department for Lamson Bros. Fellow employés gave him a watch, the firm gave him a gold commemorative plate, a huge cake was cut in the office, and congratulations and flowers came from dozens of associates in the area.

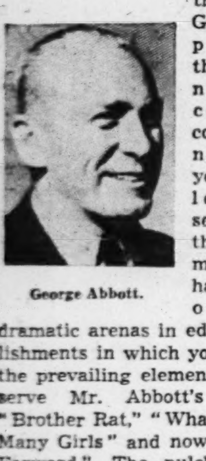
Charm of 'Best Foot Forward' Lies in Fresh Juvenility

Musical Full of Enthusiasm, Youthful Zest

It was a good augury that the new theatrical season opened at the Erlanger theater with as prepossessing an entertainment as "Best Foot Forward." So felicitous, indeed, was the production that the qualities of the work might well bear further consideration.

Not least remarkable among the properties of this new musical is the sagacity of George Abbott, its producer. For that impresario, noting [as of course all his competitors have noted] that youth and good looks are essential factors in the success of musical comedies, has more than once set his dramatic arenas in educational establishments in which youth, at least, is the prevailing element. You may observe Mr. Abbott's synthesis in "Brother Rat," "What a Life," "Too Many Girls" and now in "Best Foot Forward." The pulchritudinous advantages of college existence he had already exploited; "Best Foot Forward" is concerned with complications in a prep school.



George Abbott.

There yet remain those less adolescent academies in which the seventh grade represents the highest flight of learning, and, still descending to the lowest of the educational strata, there will be left the kindergarten. It would be interesting to observe what Mr. Abbott would do with that.

• • •

Unique, perhaps, in musical comedy production is the amount of juvenility in the work that is the subject of this review. With a Ziegfeldian eye to the further allurements of face and figure, its producer clearly combed the market for young ladies whose charms, when you have seen them, you cannot possibly deny. The boys in the cast of "Best Foot Forward" are youthful, too, easily lending verisimilitude to the constituency of Dr. Reeber's school.

Altho musical comedies are supposed to contain music, not many of them provide their patrons with expert singing. "Best Foot Forward" is no exception, for the principals scarcely suggest that they have toiled earnestly in the studios of vocal training. At this point Mr. Abbott possibly will address a deprecatory communication to this department, to express his conviction that no occupant of a prep establishment could sound convincing if she sang like Lily Pons; and the sole answer to such a protestation would be—Amen. However, the voices in "Best Foot Forward" are fresh, and the manner in which the songs are sung is full of ingenuous charm.

• • •

The "book" of the new piece is not, perhaps, its most valuable feature. John Cecil Holm, who wrote it, was making his maiden effort when the play was staged at the Ethel Barrymore theater in New York nine months ago, and it is probable that if, or when, he makes further contributions to the musical comedy repertory he will discover greater originality and a larger sense of humor.

At least Mr. Holm's text put no obstacles in the provision of much music, and it is the latter which is the most attractive element in "Best Foot Forward." Its composers—Hugh Martin and Ralph Blane—were, like Mr. Holm, tyros in the musical comedy field when Mr. Abbott discovered them, but it may confidently be asserted that their talents [which include lyric writing] will carry them very far. As ditties "The Three B's" and "Shady Lady Bird" are altogether charming, and you shall wait long before you are likely to hear a more invigorating school song than "Buckle Down, Winsocki," which is the "hit" of the composers' score.

It is scarcely expedient to scrutinize again the individual accomplishments of an extensive cast, which in most cases is that which played the comedy in New York—a circumstance that has given it stage-consciousness and the confidence which awaits upon experience. Every member of the company has something interesting to deliver, and it is projected with inimitable zest. The chorus, too, as youthful as the principals, is admirable to see and hear, and not one but feels that his or her labors are a vital contribution to the whole. Not always thus is it on the musical stage.

• • •

In close connection with "Best Foot Forward," are some interesting observations that have come to hand from Donald Walker, who is one of the two arrangers who made the orchestrations for that work. Not many people are aware that in the case of musical comedies—as also of the music for motion pictures—composers rarely undertake to score for orchestra the songs and choruses which they have written at the piano. Mr. Walker should be permitted to inform you as to this:

"It has been whispered," he says, "that some years ago you were lucky if a composer could write down the melody he wrote. Today our show composers, with practically no exception, are fine musicians, compose their harmonies as well as their melodies, and some of them even make original piano parts. I have also been told that in the old days those one-fingered composers tried to keep their limitations quiet, even leading people to believe that the orchestra music sprang from their mythical pens. Today our composers stand on a firmer ground of musical knowledge; they do not mind admitting that in the modern musical comedy arranging and orchestration are separate jobs for specialists.

"The only composer who orchestrates all his own music is that genius, Kurt Weill. This important accomplishment has, so far, gone quite unnoticed by our critical gentry."

Mr. Walker brings forward one of the nicer points of orchestral writing in the course of a tribute which he pays to Hugh Martin, who, it should be explained, is one of the composers of "Best Foot Forward." "I think," says Mr. Walker, "that Hugh's music is just grand, and a pleasure to work on. But he has one horrible weakness. He loves the key of B major. Now the key of B major is a musician's nightmare, and arrangers have difficulty even in thinking in B major. Only an orchestra with masochistic tendencies would play in that awful key of its own free will. An anonymous viola player, emerging during the course of an orchestra rehearsal from the jungles of B major into the sunny field of C [no sharps of flats], made a classic remark. He said, 'It's like coming out of a tunnel!'"

Writer Requests Information About an Indian Actress

The drama desk has received the following letter, which may be of interest to old-time theatergoers:

"Drama Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

"Dear sir: Some of your readers who were playgoers during the '90s and early years of the century may remember the Indian actress, Go-Won-Go Mohawk, who appeared in Lincoln J. Carter's 'The Flaming Arrow,' 'The Indian Mail Carrier,' and 'The Indian Boy.' Since I would like to include as much as possible of the life story of Miss Mohawk in the book I am writing about the melodrama theater I would welcome information from any one who has biographical data, photographs, clippings, or letters that directly relate to this actress. She was very popular in Chicago, and a particular favorite with the audiences at the Alhambra, the Academy, the Bijou, the Criterion, and the Columbus theaters.

"Yours very truly,

"ROBERT B. BYRNES,
"122 West Franklin street,
"Baltimore, Md."

CLASSICAL RECORDINGS

The Victor company, in a Red Seal album, has grouped together four of the six marches which Sir Edward Elgar projected under the collective title of "Pomp and Circumstance." Of those pieces, which are recorded by the Toronto Symphony orchestra under the direction of Sir Ernest MacMillan, the first is not only the best known, but also the most striking, its middle section, whose broad theme Elgar later used for his Coronation hymn, "Land of Hope and Glory," having swung it into universal popularity.

The second march, if less notable than the first, is an interesting example of the composer's attempts to give soldiers better music than the trivial quicksteps that were usually their artistic portion. The third march is less attractive, but the fourth of the set has in it something of the qualities of the first, notably the tuneful subject of its trio.

Writer Pays a Tribute to Michel Fokine

The following tribute to the late Michel Fokine, the great choreographer, was written by John Martin, well known New York dance critic:

The passing of Michel Fokine presents a paradox that nobody even remotely associated with the art of the dance will find it easy to accept, for so long as the ballet itself is alive, manifestly Fokine is alive. This is no mere theory, no article of faith; fact and practice demonstrate its substantial truth on every hand.

His works constitute the living classics of the ballet; what little remains in the repertoire from before his advent is with few exceptions quaint and lifeless. Nearly 40 years ago he enunciated a new truth in the ballet, and with the assistance of eager and able believers in his revelation he established it so firmly that, in spite of oppositions, heresies and defamations, it became the new ground upon which all ballet practice stood. What was once an insurgency, beating against the walls of entrenched reaction, became the accepted régime, and, tho counter-revolutions and new insurgencies have attacked it from time to time, it remains still the dominant power in the field.

• • •

In the entire history of the ballet there are only two other individuals who have wrought such momentous changes in the art: Lully, who established it as a professional art, and Noverre, who brought it into the borderland of the expressive arts. Great changes took place, it is true, apart from these, but always as the result of general forces rather than of individual genius.

Fokine himself, like all other leaders, was no doubt the product of the times which produced him; else he would have had little of persuasion in his revolutionary reform. At the beginning of the 20th century there were many forces at work to release the inner creativeness of the individual, and in Fokine they found responsive material. In the most sequestered of all conceivable places, the Imperial Russian theater, he voiced a tenet of creative freedom in the arts that could not be silenced.

• • •

It is difficult for us now to realize that once it was virtual blasphemy to declare, as he declared, that "the aim of every movement in ballet should be expression" instead of acrobatics and traditionalism. Pantomime, music, scenery, costumes, gesture, style, even the fundamental technique of training he attacked from this basic point of view and transformed an art that had descended to the lowest estate of its long history to a vital and living force. When Diaghileff presented the work of the young insurgent to Paris in 1909 the old ballet passed suddenly out of existence and a new epoch opened.

As is inevitably the case with a new idea that proves its value, there have been many attempts to belittle Fokine's part in the great rebirth of the ballet. Some have tried to maintain that it was Diaghileff who was the creator, in spite of the fact that Diaghileff never made a ballet in his life.

Others have credited it all to Isadora Duncan, because Isadora was first in a related field. Still others have laid it all at the feet of Benois. Certainly all these and many others touched the work at some point, for no man lives to himself and works in a vacuum, but the personal genius of Fokine is so strongly impressed upon every one of his works—the inferior ones as well as the superior—that it is futile to try to deny him any jot of his originality or its fruitage. The modern ballet stems from his vision, his craftsmanship and his artistic integrity.

• • •

Cyril Beaumont, in his "Complete Book of Ballets," published in 1937, credits Fokine with the creation of 63 works at that time. Since then seven more are to be added, and certainly not one among them that would tend to alter the opinion of Beaumont that "here is not one masterpiece, but many masterpieces, a record of successful achievement which cannot be matched by any other choreographer, past or present."

Many of these 70 compositions never have been seen in America, and many of them, no doubt, fall short of the category of masterpieces. But consider the six "indispensables"—"Les Sylphides," "Petrushka," "Price Igor," "Spectre de la Rose," "Carnaval," and "Schéhérazade." Without at least a good proportion of these, no ballet company has a backlog of proven successes upon which it can absolutely rely, and few companies even attempt to do without them. In most cases, the versions used are shoddy, based on somebody's memory of what the original was like; in some cases they are merely plagiarized [how many spurious "Sylphides" there have been in the world!], and in a few rare instances they have been versions actually staged by Fokine himself. But good or bad, they are essentials.

• • •

To these six works, add four others less familiar but of perhaps equal greatness—"The Fire Bird," "Coq d'Or," "Don Juan," and "Paganini." The list is impressive, not only for numbers and for variety of treatment and material, but for the amazingly consistent quality. The newest works are every bit as fine as the oldest; the fires continue to burn.

The 70th work had its posthumous première in Mexico City on Sept. 8. It was "Helen of Troy," based on Offenbach's operetta, "La Belle Hélène." Like its predecessor, "Blue Beard," it was planned to be gay because of the war.

It is good that the last work should be a gay one. It is good, also, that when we see it in New York in October it will be new to us, for in effect it will be saying what we know to be true, namely, that while the ballet itself is alive, Fokine is alive.

IN LATIN QUARTER SHOW

Vaudeville

Jessica Rogers is the headliner at the Rialto in the show which is the week's attraction. Miss Rogers began her career as a trapeze artist, and later having learned stage dancing, headed toward the lights of Broadway as a chorus girl, show girl and eventually to the position of a featured attraction in such productions as that set forth at the Rialto. There is a large cast supporting the star, among them Russell Trent, Marsha Blue, Charles LaVine, Diane King, Hap Arnold, Tyler and Renaud, Harry Holly, and Charles King.

The two attractions that were features at the Empire room all summer are now at hand at the Chicago theater in the persons of Tommy Tucker and his orchestra, and the comedian, Billy de Wolfe. The show also offers Catherine Harris, specialty dancer, and the Ghezzis, a pair of veteran acrobats who dance on their hands. The screen shows "Orchestra Wives."

The Oriental theater is featuring Ann Corio and Georgie Tapps, their supporting company being the Three Winter Sisters, Stuart and Taylor, the Three Dennis Sisters, and Francis Wills. Miss Corio has been known to the movie public thru her film vehicle, "Jungle Siren." Since then the stage has known her in "White Cargo" and "The Barker." Georgie Tapps comes to the Oriental from the Mayfair room of the Blackstone hotel, but he danced last season in "Pal Joey."

Ethel Merman May Star in Freedley Musical

Vinton Freedley is getting ready to produce a new musical, "Something for the Boys," by Cole Porter and Herbert and Dorothy Fields. While the cast has not been put under contract, Ethel Merman is spoken of for the leading rôle, and Paula Lawrence, an eccentric comedienne who has been appearing in the New York company of "Junior Miss," may also undertake a part.

London Stage Thriving Despite War; Has 8 Openings in 9 Days

From war-torn London W. A. Darlington, drama correspondent of the New York Times, sends the following reassuring report upon the permanence of the British stage:

The London drama critics are in the middle of the heaviest wave of theater going they have enjoyed since the war began. As I write, I have three consecutive visits to the theater behind me, and five more to go before seeing eight new productions in nine days—which, you must allow, is good going, especially at this time of year.

Easily the most important and most interesting of these additions to our theater list was the "Othello" with which the Old Vic company opened a repertory season of Shakespeare.

The name part was played by Frederick Valk, a refugee actor from Czechoslovakia, who proved to have all the qualifications except one for the most complete embodiment of Othello seen on our stage for a long time.

• • •

The one thing wanting is the ability to speak Shakespeare's verse. Yet pause before you say—as well you might—that that one defect must outweigh all the actor's good qualities. The trouble is not that Valk has no music in him. Considered as an instrument, his voice is both impressive and pleasing. But the melody it plays is not Shakespeare's, and to the ear of an English-speaking listener the words the actor speaks are often quite unintelligible.

Here, then, we have a performance which is most nearly perfect technically and even artistically. Where it falls short, the failure can hardly be ascribed to the actor. What is to be the judgment of criticism on such an achievement?

At least one of our most respected critics has ignored the language difficulty and has acclaimed Valk a great Othello. I cannot agree. The effect upon me of his majestic delivery of a mangled version of some of the most moving passages ever written in our language was that I listened with admiration but without a flicker of emotion. A great Othello? In Prague, perhaps. Never in London until he acts in a language that he can speak.

• • •

Of the new plays, the best has been "Murder Without Crime," by J. Lee Thompson, a young sergeant observer in the RAF. This offering deals with a young man who sticks a knife into his mistress and hides her in an ottoman, and later murders his neighbor who has discovered the crime. It then turns out that the lady was not dead after all and that the neighbor had been using her as a counter for a little blackmail and the chance to gratify his own private hate. The play's quality consists not in its crude and obvious plot but in the character drawing of the sadistic neighbor.

A less interesting production is the dramatization of "No Orchids for Miss Blandish." Has the fame of this remarkable novel penetrated to your side? It is a tough tale of American gangsters, and the remarkable thing about it is that it was written by a quiet young man in a London publishing house who never had been to America in his life. It was done well enough to be accepted over here as the genuine article and has had an enormous sale. The play is quite a different thing. It lacks the relentlessness of the book, and becomes nothing better than an ordinary second rate melodrama.

Other new productions are "Salt of the Earth," a story of occupied France, by Michael Egan; and "Light and Shade," the latest in the Herbert Farjeon series of intimate revues. It is witty, like all the rest of its author's work. But the general verdict is that the proportion of shade to light is unduly heavy.

TRAIN NOW FOR THE new OPPORTUNITIES in ACCOUNTING
Accounting, for 20 years past, has offered outstanding opportunity for ambitious men and women. Growing fast, paying well for ability, leading often to executive positions, this profession is also unusual in that the beginner can (shortly after he begins training) get a job as bookkeeper, statistical clerk or junior and earn while he prepares for the higher jobs.
Today those opportunities are greater than ever. The needs of defense, new and enlarged plants, increased government regulations—all demand more and better accounting, more bookkeepers and accountants in business offices and in government departments.
INVESTIGATE—Without Obligation
We shall be glad to tell you frankly about the requirements and possibilities in accounting—whether you are fitted for it, how much preparation you will need, what it will cost you.
For 27 years this school has been teaching accountancy. Everything is geared to practical training to make you capable and successful quickly and at low cost. From this and its parent school have come over 10% of all Certified Public Accountants in the United States.

Two Ballet Troupes Booked for Chicago Engagements

One Will Open on Christmas; Other Feb. 24

By Edward Barry.

Last Sunday's music and drama columns were bursting with news of the symphony concerts and the theater and opera performances which the 1942-'43 season is to bring forth, but they chilled rather than warmed the hearts of a sizable segment of the city's theater-going population. These are the people for whom autumn and winter exist for only one reason—ballet!—and who found not a word about their chief delight in all those columns of information.

Irina Baronova.

Now an announcement is ready for release which will put a new face on the coming season. The two richest and most glamorous ballet troupes in the world are booked for Chicago engagements. They are not skimpy engagements, either.

The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo will move into the Civic Opera house Christmas night for a 10 day stay. Ballet theater will be seen in the same theater from Feb. 24 to March 7 [12 days].

• • •

As has been remarked before in this column, the mere name of a ballet company is meaningless nowadays without a roster of its artists. The last few years have seen such a bewildering process of division and fusion and redivision going on among major dance groups that even the critics—who in theory at least keep resolutely abreast of the developments in their field—would be embarrassed if they were suddenly called upon to list the principal dancers of the two companies named in the last paragraph.

This critic, with an up-to-date release in front of him, has a distinct advantage. The roster of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo is headed by Leonide Massine, Alexandra Danilova, Mia Slavenska, Nathalie Krassovska, Milada Mladova, Lubov Roudenko, Sonia Woicikowska, Katia Geleznova, Igor Youskevitch, Frederic Franklin, Roland Guerard, and George Zoritch.

Leonide Massine.

Ballet theater's principal dancers are Irina Baronova, Alicia Markova, Karen Conrad, Annabelle Lyon, Nora Kaye, Jeannette Lauret, Sono Osato, Maria Karniloff, Rosella Hightower, Anton Dolin, Ian Gibson, Yura Lazovsky, George Skibine, and Hugh Laing.

• • •

Some information on the new works which the two companies will probably bring to Chicago is already available. The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo promises the following for its Christmas engagement:

"The Snow Maiden." The choreography is by Bronislava Nijinska, sister of Vaslav Nijinsky. The music is Glazunoff's and the story is based on the Russian fairy tale which supplied the material for the Rimsky-Korsakoff opera of the same name.

"Misteria." This represents another collaboration between Choreographer Massine and the surrealist painter, Salvador Dali. It uses Bach music and is said to be an abstract work. If this means that it has no story or other conceptual content it will differ interestingly from the two previous Dali ballets—"Bacchanale" and "Labyrinth."

"Concerto." This work marks Mia Slavenska's debut as a choreographer. The music is Bruch's first violin concerto.

An as yet unnamed ballet on a western theme. The music has been commissioned from Aaron Copland and the choreography is by Agnes De Mille. This is Miss De Mille's first contribution to the répertoire of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo.

• • •

Ballet theater's late winter engagement may include first Chicago performances of these works:

"Helen of Troy." The last work of the late Michel Fokine, one of the most important choreographers in ballet history. The music is drawn from the Offenbach operetta, "La Belle Helene." Marcel Vertes is in charge of décor.

"Romeo and Juliet." Choreography by Antony Tudor to Delius music.

"Tschaikowsky's Trio." This represents a nice intercompany gesture, for the choreography was created by Massine for Ballet theater. No doubt the music is the beautiful Tschaikowsky trio for violin, cello, and piano which we have become familiar with in recent years in Frederick Stock's transcription for orchestra.

"Pillar of Fire." Choreography by Antony Tudor.

To this list must be added two quasi-novelties—a restaged "Petrouchka" and a one act version of "Coppelia."

• • •

Both companies will present also the more familiar favorites of other years. The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo lists "Gaité Parisienne," "Serenade," "The Nutcracker," "Prince Igor," "Scheherazade," and "Spectre de la Rose" as well as a revival of "Rouge et Noir." With Shostakovitch so much in the limelight for his fifth, sixth, and seventh symphonies the revival of a ballet which uses his first symphony for its musical base is timely and welcome.

Ballet theater expects to perform "Russian Soldier" and "Bluebeard," two works with which it has scored outstanding successes here.

PIANIST TO PLAY HERE

One of the many important names on Chicago's 1942-'43 concert calendar is that of the Brazilian pianist, Guiomar Novaes. She will play on the Musical Arts series in Orchestra hall, which begins Nov. 3. Miss Novaes' date is March 2.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Announcements for the 1942-'43 music season continue to pour in. The Allied Arts corporation, of which Edgar Goldsmith is the moving spirit, is not only sponsoring the History and Enjoyment of Music series and the Chicago engagements of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and Ballet theater, but is also presenting a miscellany of other things. Allied has announced a Sergei Rachmaninoff recital for Nov. 22 [in Orchestra hall], two appearances by the Flamenco dancer, Carmen Amaya, for Feb. 5 and 6 [Orchestra hall], a Yehudi Menuhin recital for March 28 [Orchestra hall], a concert by Lily Pons, Andre Kostelanetz and orchestra for March 30 [Civic Opera house], and a recital by the duo pianists, Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin, for April 11 [Orchestra hall].

Bertha Ott has a long list which will lead off on Oct. 1 at Kimball hall with a costume recital of Spanish and Mexican songs by the Mexican soprano, Belen Ortega. Farther down on the list are the Fine Arts String quartet, the Chicago Piano Symphony orchestra and a host of vocal and instrumental recitals.

The Chicago Negro Opera guild will present two performances of Verdi's "Aida" in English on Oct. 10 and 11 at the Civic Opera house. The principal singers will be La Julia Rhea [Aida], Nellie Dobson Plant [Amneris], Napoleon Reed [Rhadames], William Franklin [Amonasro], Jackson Smith [Ramfis] and Reginald Burris [the king]. Mrs. Mary Cardwell Dawson is in charge of the project and is being assisted by a strong committee of Negro civic leaders.

Gail Kubik, 28 year old American composer, has been appointed director of music for the Office of War Information Film bureau.

Yehudi Menuhin will undertake a tour thru 14 Latin American countries at the conclusion of his 1942-'43 American concert schedule.

Gilman Chase, organist of the First Unitarian church, today will give the third of the Sunday morning organ recitals which the church has been presenting this September. Next Sunday regular services with full choir will be resumed.

The Central Church chorus, directed by William Hughes, will be heard in Orchestra hall at 11 this morning.

The Central YMCA College Symphony orchestra, of which Nicolai Malko is director, will hold the first rehearsal of its season in the Kimball building Tuesday evening. Membership in the orchestra is not restricted to students at the college.

Charles Coburn May Return to Broadway

Charles Coburn is contemplating a return to the Broadway stage this winter after an absence of five years. He is interested in acting in a comedy by the late Don Marquis, "Master of the Revels." The play was produced at the Mohawk Drama festival in Schenectady, N. Y., in 1935, and Coburn then enjoyed what was described as "an actor's field day" impersonating Henry VIII. At that time the cast included the late Mrs. Coburn in the rôle of Catherine of Aragon.

Shostakovich Traces Music of the Slavs

Dimitri Shostakovich, Russian composer who now is in the limelight because of his sensational new seventh symphony, recently wrote an article on Slavonic musical culture. Following is a shortened version of it.

It is a long time since the fable to the effect that the musical culture of the Slavonic nations represents a secondary branch of European music has been utterly confuted. In the course of many centuries, particularly the 18th and 19th, Slavonic musicians proved the right of their art to claim permanent historic significance. In Russia the independent rôle of Slavonic music was asserted by Glinka, Mussorgsky, the composers of the "mighty handful," Tschaikowsky; in Poland by Chopin, in Bohemia by Smetana. They created schools of music, distinguished by profound originality and which left an imprint on the entire development of the art of music of the last 100-150 years.

• • •

There is no need of going far afield for examples. Chopin's influence upon the style of piano music is a matter of common knowledge. To this day, almost a century after Chopin's death, there is hardly any composer who has not felt the powerful influence of Chopin's music, at least in the early period of his development as a musician. It is also well known what an enormous part Mussorgsky's music played in shaping French impressionism. It has long been an elementary truth that Rimsky-Korsakoff is one of the founders of the modern orchestral style.

Personally, I am thoroly convinced of the exceptional significance Tschaikowsky's scores have had on modern orchestral thought. Unlike Rimsky-Korsakoff, Tschaikowsky did not leave behind for the instruction of posterity any fundamental pedagogical work such as the well known "Principles of Orchestration." But every opera, every symphony composed by Tschaikowsky represents a true repository of wisdom of the highest model of how the means of the symphony orchestra should be used.

• • •

The era of symphonism, ushered in by Beethoven, produced amazing musicians such as Berlioz, Liszt, Wagner, and Mahler. But to Tschaikowsky, Russian composer and Slav, belongs the honor of being Beethoven's true successor. The philosophical profundity of Beethoven's symphonic style was supplemented by Tschaikowsky with a passionateness of lyrical utterance and with that concrete quality in expression of innermost human emotions which have made the symphony—that most complex form of musical art—accessible and comprehensible to masses of people.

Here is revealed one of the most remarkable features of Slavonic music—its kinship with people, their thoughts and feelings, with images conceived by the popular imagination and with folk art in the broadest sense of the term. In the works of Glinka, Mussorgsky, Tschaikowsky, Borodin, Chopin, Smetana, and Dvorak—no matter how intricate and even refined they may be—we always and primarily hear the voice of the people that gave birth to this art. It was Glinka who wrote that it is the people that composes, while composers merely arrange. And that is what makes the music of the great Slav composers so popular.

• • •

One of the noble features of Slavonic culture is its readiness, while strongly and proudly upholding its own independence, always to recognize and appreciate the cultural achievements of other peoples. This is an old tradition. Thus Mozart, who in his native Vienna drank to the full the bitter cup of nonrecognition, was hailed as a conqueror in the Czech capital, old Slavonic Prague. Beethoven's work of genius, the "Missa Solemnis," was first performed in Russia. Hector Berlioz, who never attained recognition in western Europe dring his lifetime, was properly appreciated by Russian musicians.

Not only as composers but in every other sphere of musical art, Slav nations have displayed artistic genius. Chaliapin, Petroff, Stravinsky, Nikisch, Napravnik, and Rachmaninoff, Anton Rubinstein, and Davidov, who were Russian musicians by training and education—it is with pride that every true musician pronounces their names.

• • •

The Fascists feel horror for the culture of Slavonic nations because it is beautiful, and all that's beautiful and great is an accusation leveled against the frightful moral monstrosity of Fascism. This is terrible for Hitler's henchmen, for today it marches alongside all of progressive mankind taking part in the great struggle against the brown pest. Our arts are hateful to the Hitlers and Goebbelses because it has extolled the finest qualities of the Slavonic peoples—their selfless courage, their readiness for self-sacrifice for noble ideals, and their ardent love of their countries.

Our country and all Slav nations are waging a hard struggle against the most terrible enemy that ever stood in the way of human happiness. In the mortal battle now being fought all Slavs have rallied around our nation.

And in this lofty, creative unity of the finest representatives of Russian, Ukrainian, White Russian, Polish, Czecho-Slovak, Serb, Croat, and Slovenian culture there have found expression the inherent qualities of Slavonic nations: Their unshakable will, their courage, their faith in themselves and their forces, their traditional noble aspiration to help all mankind in the struggle against dark forces trying to enslave it.

In the present encounter between light and darkness, good and evil, humanism and hatred of man, let all culture's forces of the fraternal family of Slavonic nations fearlessly perform their duty—the great mission entrusted to them by history!

WALNUT ROOM DANCER

Talia, beautiful sister of Capt. Arthur Wermuth, the one man army, is again offering her beautiful dances in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel. Jimmy Joy plays for the show and dancing.

[Murray Korman Photo.]

Serlin May Enter Army, but Productions to Go On

Oscar Serlin, who is expecting to be called into the army soon, will not allow his absence to interrupt the flow of plays from his production office. A number of plays are under preparation, of which one may well be "Life with Mother," which Messrs. Lindsay and Grouse are expected to take up after "Strip for Action" has been staged.

Flora Robson Signed to Star in 'The Damask Cheek'

Flora Robson has been signed to star in the production of John Van Druten's and Lloyd Morris' play, "The Damask Cheek," will open in Boston, Oct. 5. The play is about an English girl "of not too tender years," who comes to New York in 1909 seeking a husband. Even in 1909 the frame of "The Damask Cheek" was scarcely as novel as it might have been.

Signal Corps Employes Take Radio Training

By the Rev. John Evans.

Sixty civilian employés of the army signal corps are students in aircraft radio work at the University of Michigan. The arrival of this unique student group from Wright field, Dayton, O., was recently announced by Prof. R. H. Sherlock, coördinator at the university for the engineering, science and management war training program of the United States Office of Education. Prof. M. B. Stout and an electrical engineering staff will supervise the 24 week course.

The trainees will learn how to service aircraft communication equipment and will be taught the technique of inspecting materials and equipment assembled for the army signal corps. Training for duty in radio laboratories or elsewhere in the signal corps will be included. Mathematics, some electrical engineering, including radio theory, and a considerable amount of radio laboratory work, will be a part of the instruction.

• • •

Applications of persons qualifying for appointment to this new class are being directed to Maj. R. M. Harnett, signal corps, Wright field, Dayton, by whom they are submitted to the civil service commission. General requirements for acceptance include a four year high school course and experience in one of the following classifications: A year of college engineering or a year in college or junior college, including work in engineering, chemistry, mathematics, or physics; successful completion of specialized engineering courses in night school or part time work in residence at a technical institute or college equivalent to one full year's course; a year of professional or subprofessional experience in an appropriate field of engineering; successful completion of an appropriate course under the engineering, science and management war training program; or completion of six high school units in chemistry, physics, mathematics, drafting, or a combination of same.

• • •

Civil engineering students at the University of Kentucky spend six weeks during the summer of their junior year in leveling, triangulation work, cross-section work, and running traverses on the university's 15,000 acres of wooded mountain land in Breathitt county. This unusual experience in practical engineering, encompassing plenty of good, practical work in the mechanics of surveying forests, railroads, creek beds, and coal lands, is a requirement in the four year engineering course.

Located at Noble, Ky., the summer surveying camp was made possible in 1937 when the federal government gave to the university a camp built by the Civilian Conservation corps on property belonging to the institution. Camp Robinson, named for the donor of the 15,000 acres to the university, is situated on the southwest corner of Robinson forest, and there the student engineers go each summer for six weeks of engineering experience.

and
The Jivin' Jacks and Jills

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

This is very, VERY dull.

TO ITS CREDIT:

The Andrews Sisters. [If you like sister singing and dancing acts, I don't. But these three are nice, smiling, friendly girls, popular with some people.]

Dan Dailey Jr., Charles Butterworth, William Frawley—who for so long I called "the late Mr. Frawley" only to learn that reports of his death had as in the case of Mark Twain "been greatly exaggerated."

"The Jivin' Jacks and Jills"—a bevy of young folks who know their jitterbuggery and how to put it across.

ON THE DEBIT SIDE:
A woozy story.
Mediocre music.
Uninterestiing dancing.
Unremarkable direction.
Dumb dialog and situations.

• • •

The heroine is an heiress who wants to be a jive artist and who, escaping from the custody of three prim aunts, becomes that little thing. . . . The hero is a band leader. . . . The aunts—now and then impersonated by the Andrews sisters—furnish the major part of what was meant to be comedy.

It's all just TOO silly—really!

See you tomorrow.

Saroyan Threatens to Stage Strip Tease Show

William Saroyan, the playwright, disappointed at the feeble reception given his "Saroyan theater" project in New York, now says that he may stage a show for the specific purpose of making money. He says, "I may produce a straight commercial show, using every trick and device to make an instantaneous hit and money. If I do, I'll start with a strictly corny show. I'll hire 90 strip-tease artists and 50 comedians. That's sure-fire for money-making, but it isn't good theater."

Do You Make These Mistakes in English?

Sherwin Cody's remarkable invention has enabled more than 100,000 people to correct their mistakes in English. Only 15 minutes a day required to improve your speech and writing.

MANY persons use such expressions as "Leave them lay there" and "Mary was invited as well as myself." Still others say "between you and I" instead of "between you and me." It is astonishing how often "who" is used for "whom" and how frequently we hear such glaring mispronunciations as "for MID able," "aveNOO," and "KEWpon." Few know whether to spell certain words with one or two "c's" or "m's" or "r's" or with "ie" or "ei," and when to use commas in order to make their meaning absolutely clear. Most persons use only common words—colorless, flat, ordinary. Their speech and their letters are lifeless, monotonous, humdrum.

Why Most People Make Mistakes

What is the reason so many of us are deficient in the use of English and find our careers stunted in consequence? Why is it some cannot spell correctly and others cannot punctuate? Why do so many find themselves at a loss for words to express their meaning adequately? The reason for the deficiency is clear. Sherwin Cody discovered it in scientific tests, which he gave thousands of times. Most persons do not write or speak good English simply because they never formed the habit of doing so.

What Cody Did at Gary

The formation of any habit comes only from constant practice. Shakespeare, you may be sure, never studied rules. No one who writes and speaks correctly thinks of rules when he is doing so.

Receives Two Salary Increases

"I can frankly say that my last two increases in salary were largely due to my improvement in English, as influenced by the course." C. A. P. (Washington)

Great Business and Social Benefits

"I am a secretary and handle a large amount of correspondence. Your course has built up my vocabulary, made me accurate in spelling and punctuation. I now enjoy myself at social functions, knowing that I use proper English and, through your course, can express myself in more colorful language." Miss L. M. L. (Illinois)

From a Minister

"It has proved most beneficial to me as a minister and public speaker. I can highly recommend it." Rev. V. B. A. (California)

Gains New Self-Confidence

"My friends have already noticed a marked improvement in my speech and writing. I am feeling a new confidence that puts me at ease in any company." A. B. (California)

"Has Helped Me—and My Children"

"I wanted to correct my English and thereby help my children acquire correct habits of speech. Your course has not only helped me, but also my children in school." H. J. H. (Oregon)

Finds Course Fascinating

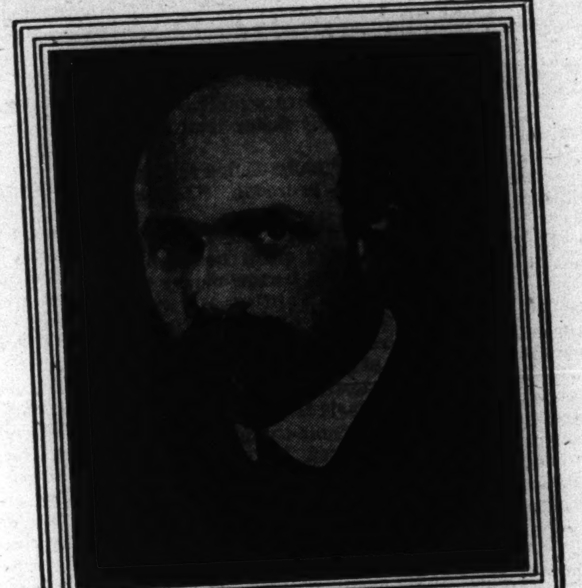
"I am more grateful than I can say. No teaching could be easier, more practical, more absorbing." F. W. (New York)

Here is our mother-tongue, a language that has built up our civilization, and without which we should all be muttering savages! Yet our schools, by wrong methods, have made it a study to be avoided—the hardest of tasks instead of the most fascinating of games! For years this has been a crying disgrace.

In that point lies the real difference between Sherwin Cody and the schools!

Here is an illus-



SHERWIN CODY

tration: Some years ago Mr. Cody was invited by the author of the famous Gary System of Education to teach English to all upper-grade pupils in Gary, Indiana. By means of unique practice exercises, Mr. Cody secured more improvement in these pupils in five weeks than previously had been obtained by similar pupils in two years under old methods. There was no guesswork about these results. They were proved by scientific comparisons. Amazing as this improvement was, more interesting still was the fact that the children were "wild" about the study. It was like playing a game!

The basic principle of Mr. Cody's new method is habit-forming. Anyone can learn to write and speak correctly by constantly using the correct forms. But how is one to know in each case what is correct? Mr. Cody solves this problem in a simple, unique, sensible way.

100% Self-Correcting Device

Suppose he himself were standing forever at your elbow. Every time you mispronounced or misspelled a word, every time you violated correct grammatical usage, every time you used the wrong word to express what you meant, suppose you could hear him whisper: "That is wrong, it should be thus and so." In a short time you would habitually use the correct form and the right words in speaking and writing.

If you continued to make the same mistakes over and over again, each time patiently he would tell you what was right. He would, as it were, be an everlasting mentor beside you—a mentor who would not laugh at you, but who would, on the contrary, support and help you. The 100% Self-Correcting Device does exactly this thing. It is Mr. Cody's silent voice behind you, ready to speak out whenever you commit an error. It finds your mistakes and concentrates on them. You do not need to study anything you already know. There are no rules to memorize.

Only 15 Minutes a Day

Nor is there much to learn. In Mr. Cody's years of experimenting he brought to light some highly astounding facts about English.

For instance, statistics show that a list of sixty-nine words (with their repetitions) make up more than half of all our speech and letter-writing. Obviously, if one could learn to spell, use, and pronounce these words correctly, one would go far toward eliminating incorrect spelling and pronunciation.

Similarly, Mr. Cody proved that there were no more than one dozen fundamental principles of punctuation. If we mastered these principles, there would be no bugbear of punctuation to handicap us in our writing.

Finally he discovered that twenty-five typical errors in grammar constitute nine-tenths of our every-day mistakes. When one has learned to avoid these twenty-five pitfalls, how readily one can obtain that facility of speech which denotes the person of breeding and education!

When the study of English is made so simple, it becomes clear that progress can be made in a very short time. No more than fifteen minutes a day is required. Fifteen minutes, not of study, but of fascinating practice! Mr. Cody's students do their work in any spare moment they can snatch. They do it riding to work or at home. They take fifteen minutes from the time usually spent in profitless reading or amusement. The results really are phenomenal.

Sherwin Cody has placed an excellent command of the English language within the grasp of everyone. Those who take advantage of his method gain something so priceless that it cannot be measured in terms of money. They gain a mark of breeding that cannot be erased as long as they live. They gain a facility in speech that marks them as educated people in whatever society they find themselves. They gain the self-confidence and self-respect which this ability inspires. As for material reward, certainly the importance of good English in the race for success cannot be overestimated. Surely, no one can advance far without it.

FREE—Book on English

It is impossible, in this brief review, to give more than a suggestion of the range of subjects covered by Mr. Cody's new method and of what his practice exercises consist. But those who are interested can find a detailed description in a fascinating little book called "How You Can Master Good English in 15 Minutes a Day." # NOT ONLY OIL

By

T. T. FLYNN

(Copyright: 1942: By Thomas Theodore Flynn.)

Sally gasped as the dull smack of a fist knocked Mr. Whittley sprawling.

THE visitor had been in conference half an hour with the two partners of Panhandle Lease and Exploration company when Sally's desk buzzer sounded.

Mary Dolan's smart gray head turned from the other desk as Sally caught up notebook and pencil.

"Better duck, infant, when you go in. From the noise in there Jonas and Whittley have been skinning another one."

Sally flushed. "Mr. Jonas or Mr. Whittley might fire you for such talk. Strangers wouldn't know you were kidding."

Mary Dolan's chuckle was dry.

Mr. Jonas' private office was quiet. Mr. Jonas was was leaning back in his chair, staring at the ceiling, munching a toothpick. His large bulgy eyes were half-closed.

Sally had the guilty thought that Mr. Jonas resembled a corpulent frog relaxing after a tasty gulp.

Mr. Whittley, the younger partner, was gallantly polite.

"Sit there by the desk, Miss Crane. We have a matter covering transfer of property and equipment."

The visitor was standing by the window, drawing on a pipe. He corrected bitterly past the pipe stem: "You mean theft of property and equipment!"

Mr. Scully was tall, like Mr. Whittley. But not dressed so tastefully or carefully. Dried mud smeared Mr. Scully's high laced boots. His lean young face had an old leather tan. The hand that took the pipe from his mouth was strong and calloused instead of white and manicured like Mr. Whittley's hand.

Mr. Jonas started to dictate without taking his eyes off the ceiling.

"In consideration of comma and full payment of comma supply notes in the sum of 14,000 comma 600 dollars comma given by Peter Scully——"

There was a great deal of it, interrupted by bitter comments from Peter Scully and pauses while the three men referred to maps and read off complicated oil lease locations from documents . . .

When Mr. Jonas stood up with a grunt it was 12 minutes past quitting time.

"That'll cover it, Scully. Drop around in the morning and we'll sign and finish up."

"I'd rather finish today," Peter Scully said shortly. "I can start driving toward clean air tonight. You two pollute this corner of the state and I'm getting mad."

Mr. Jonas blinked. He was round, pudgy, and his bulgy eyes never seemed to hold emotion. He considered and nodded.

"Come to my house about 8. . . . Miss Crane, bring all that to the house not later than 8."

Sally went out, a little rebellious at late work again.

Mary Dolan had on her plain hat and was smoking a cigaret.

"It took long enough. How badly did they skin Pete Scully?"

"It wasn't that way at all," Sally differed with another urge of loyalty. "Mr. Scully just wasn't lucky. He didn't find oil like he thought he would."

"He found Jonas and Whittley instead," Mary said. "And I'll bet he didn't think of that, either. I'm curious——"

Mary broke off as the door opened. Mr. Whittley was carrying his hat and smiling until he saw Mary.

"You staying late again, Dolan?"

"I thought Sally might need some help. She's still new at this."

"She does very well," Mr. Whittley said brusquely; his smile returned for Sally. "It occurred to me you'll be hungry when you finish. Why don't I drop back here, pick you up, and we'll have a bite on the way to Jonas' house?"

Mary Dolan blew a lazy smoke ring.

"I'll bring Sally something to eat. Don't bother about her."

"This office couldn't run without you," said Mr. Whittley disagreeably. He slammed the door when he left.

Mary chuckled. "I've been waiting for him to deal one off the bottom of the deck since you brightened the office.

"Pete Scully hollered when they peeled him, didn't he?"

"He seemed unreasonable."

"Mmm—maybe," Mary shrugged. "Scully is no shrinking violet. He used to have a terrible temper before he won an old worn-out cable drilling rig in a poker game and started wildcatting on his own.

"He worked on one of Axel Fromm's drilling crews and fell for a two-timing redhead in Gortonsville, when Fromm opened up the Gortonsville field. Pete bought the girl a diamond ring, the big deluded innocent. . . . And one night the ring turned up as security at a poker game where Pete held a hand. The redhead had loaned it to a roughneck she later married."

"That was a mean trick," said Sally uncertainly.

Mary grinned faintly.

"Pete Scully thought so. Pete took a few drinks, and then called the redhead out on her front porch and spanked her. And then Pete hunted up the roughneck who had the ring and whipped him, and three more who jumped into the fight. Gortonsville is still talking about that night. . . . Pete Scully didn't used to be safe to fool with when he thought he'd been done dirt."

"He was a roughneck himself to spank a girl, no matter what she did!" Sally said indignantly. "He probably got what he deserved today."

"No one ever deserved Jonas and Whittley," said Mary cheerfully. "Now tell me what happened."

Sally Reads Dictation While Mary Listens

Sally was not quite sure herself what happened. Mary asked her to read the dictation; and then Mary sat with hands locked around a knee, considering.

"Pete got a block of that unproved Willow creek acreage from Jonathan Hatton, while old Hatton was still alive. That's plain enough. Pete moved his rig in and started that wildcat north of Willow creek. And right away he started to hock other leases and parts of his Willow creek royalties for casing and supplies. Pete must have been almost broke when he started. According to your notes, Pete also borrowed cash from old Jonathan Hatton. Which is queer. Pete gave Hatton demand notes. He evidently felt he could trust Hatton."

Sally nodded wisely. "You see, Mary—it was just business and Mr. Scully guessed wrong."

"He had company," said Mary. "Old Jonathan Hatton evidently thought Pete had a chance to get production or he wouldn't have advanced the cash."

"But they haven't found oil."

"No," Mary agreed. "And Jonathan Hatton died suddenly and his daughter and her husband in New York got everything. . . . And now Jonas and Whittley turn up with Pete's notes to Jonathan Hatton, plus assignments of the supply notes that Pete gave other people. And they're scalping and skinning Pete and turning him loose tonight broke."

"He'll get 5,000 cash that they don't have to give him," Sally reminded.

"When Jonas and Whittley give, they get," said Mary calmly.

It was almost 7:30 and night outside when Sally parted from Mary Dolan at the corner.

"Pete Scully was good while he lasted," Mary said regretfully. "This should teach him a lesson. Take care of yourself, infant."

Sally was still smiling over Mary Dolan's solicitude as she caught the bus.

Mr. Jonas lived on Torrance street, in an old frame monstrosity of a mansion with a cupola on top. Sally's wristwatch said 10 minutes to 8 as she stepped on the porch and rang the bell.

No one answered. She rang again, and then again, and suddenly Peter Scully opened the solid wooden door and said: "What is it?"

Sally was startled. Her nose informed her that Pete Scully had been drinking. His face was in shadow, but he seemed to be laboring under strain.

"I brought the papers for Mr. Jonas."

"I'll take them." Pete Scully reached for the big manila envelope.

Sally moved back. "I'll have to give them to Mr. Jonas."

"He can't see you."

"I'll have to wait then," said Sally coldly.

"Better not go into the next room," he advised as he closed the door. "Jonas is in there—dead."

"How did he die?"

"His throat looks like he was choked."

Sally's glance flew to the strong, calloused hands. Pete Scully guessed her wild thought. He looked haggard as he nodded.

"I said he needed it. But it was done before I got here. I was trying to think what to do when you arrived."

Sally opened her mouth silently, and closed it. . . . And steps came briskly on the porch and the bell rang.

"Whittley!" Pete Scully exclaimed under his breath. He sucked in a slow breath, shrugged, opened the door.

Mr. Whittley stepped in, voicing a slight trace of astonishment. "You seem to be at home here, Scully. Where's Jonas?"

Pete Scully closed the door.

"Jonas is in the living room. Some one killed him."

Mr. Whittley sniffed the liquor smell, backed away, and with a quick movement brought a snubby, nickel-plated revolver from his coat pocket.

"I brought this in case you meant some of those threats this afternoon! Keep your hands away from your pockets! Miss Crane, call the police!"

"Whittley, I didn't do this," Pete Scully said.

He sounded fully sober now and he looked ghastly. Mr. Whittley's manner was repelling.

"Don't tell me; tell the police!"

Sirens raced into the street. Detectives entered the house and went about their business with quick, impersonal efficiency—

More police arrived. More detectives. Pete Scully was questioned. Sally was questioned. The detectives stated that Mr. Jonas had been murdered. His throat bore marks of pressure.

Mr. Whittley was coldly blunt and accusing.

"Scully threatened us this afternoon in our office. He's dangerous when he's drinking. They can tell you about it in Gortonsville, where he made trouble several years ago. I was afraid of something like this!"

"If I'd killed him," said Pete Scully angrily, "I'd have had sense enough to leave."

"Miss Crane surprised you."

"I didn't have to answer the front door! There was a back door to walk out of!"

Sally had thought of the back door. It troubled her. When they asked her what had happened, she said calmly that Mr. Scully had opened the front door and told her that Mr. Jonas was dead.

It wasn't strictly the truth. Sally didn't know why she evaded adding that Mr. Scully hadn't wanted her to come into the house.

Perhaps it was because of the back door he could have used for escape. Perhaps it was Pete Scully himself, looking big, helpless, cornered.

And, too, it was frightening to know that with a few added words, Sally Crane could probably send that big, helpless young man to the electric chair.

Pete Scully was the only one who knew what she had withheld. His eyes looked gratitude.

Newspaper reporters arrived; there was confusion and talk in the front hall. Pete Scully moved over beside Sally and thrust a leather key folder into her hand. His voice was low, urgent.

"My car is out front! Tell Sam Davis at the well about this! I'll need a good lawyer!"

His undertone was fiercely urgent.

"You gave me one break! Will you get Sam?"

A detective turned toward them. Pete Scully stepped back. They took him away a few minutes later.

Mr. Whittley argued them out of also taking Sally, They could have Miss Crane any time they wished. It was obvious she had nothing to do with the crime. And after he prevailed, Mr. Whittley told Sally:

"I'll take you home as soon as they're thru here."

"I—I'll just take the bus. Can I go now?"

"I don't see why not," Mr. Whittley said tolerantly. "Don't blame you for wanting to get away." He patted Sally's hand, and held it for a moment. "Don't worry; everything will be all right."

But everything obviously was not all right with Pete Scully. Sally drew a shaky breath as she left the house. She could still see that pleading, haggard look in Pete Scully's eyes. He had left with handcuffs on his wrists. He was accused of murder.

The key folder was clenched in her hand. A coupe which had been parked at the curb when she arrived was still there. Sally walked past it—and turned back.

The ignition key fitted. The motor started smoothly. No one tried to stop her as she drove Pete Scully's car away.

In an oil office you knew the location of all oil activity for a 100 miles around. The Willow creek wildcat territory was northwest some 25 miles.

The dirt road to the wildcat well would be bad. They always were. Fortunately the weather had been dry. . . . A mile beyond the white concrete of Willow creek bridge the coupe headlight picked up a small wooden sign: HATTON NO. 1, and a crudely painted arrow pointing off the highway.

The men at the well looked toward her; but when she stopped, a man approached from the nearest of two tar-paper covered shacks.

"We got the casing cleared," he called. "How'd you make out, Pete?"

"This isn't Pete. I want Sam Davis."

"I'm Sam Davis. . . . Ain't this Pete's car?"

"It is. I have a message."

Sam Davis was grizzled, with a drooping mustache and broad, stooped shoulders. And his voice was humorous as he peered thru the open window.

"Didn't know Pete had a girl to run his errands."

"It isn't that way at all! He's in trouble and asked me to tell you."

Sam Davis grunted.

"I was afeerd of it when Whittley drove out this morning and broke the news. Pete slapped them two crooks down, I bet."

"Mr. Jonas has been killed!"

Sam Davis swore under his breath, hurried around to the other side of the car, and got in.

"Tell me," he said shortly.

"Looks bad for the boy," he said after Sally's story. "So you're workin' for Jonas and Whittley?"

"Yes," said Sally uncomfortably.

Another Car Drives Up as Sam Talks

Sam Davis sucked on the pipe.

"Pete's a smart boy with leases. He's been holdin' some likely-lookin' stuff that didn't cost him much. But why'd Jonas an' Whittley want to buy his notes behind his back an' take everything? Why'd they want this piddling piece of hard-luck wildcat? Whittley drove out this morning an' told Pete he might as well close down because Jonas an' Whittley was taking over quick unless they got paid off today.

"We been fishin' three weeks for a string of tools in the bottom of that hole," Sam Davis muttered. "I got 'em out about dark. I was all set to go—an' now Pete loses everything!"

He opened the door and got out heavily as another car drove into the clearing. "More word about Pete, I guess."

The other car stopped a few yards away. Mr. Whittley's voice addressed Sam Davis.

"That's Scully's car, isn't it?"

"Belongs to one of the men," Sam Davis stated.

"It's Scully's car!" Mr. Whittley insisted sharply. "He left it parked in front of Jonas' house! Who's that behind the wheel?"

Mr. Whittley stepped toward the coupe and uncomfortably Sally identified herself.

"It's me—Sally Crane. Mr. Scully asked me to drive out here and tell Mr. Davis."

"So?" said Mr. Whittley, and he had never sounded startled and harsh like this. "You've got a nerve working for me and helping Scully! You're fired!"

"Pete only wanted me to hire a lawyer," Sam Davis put in.

"He'll need a lawyer!" Mr. Whittley snapped. "I'm taking over Scully's holdings! Fire the men tonight and close down!"

"I was fixin' to do it when you drove up," said Sam Davis mildly. "You saved me some trouble, friend."

Sally gasped as the dull smack of a fist knocked Mr. Whittley sprawling. He tried to get up. Sam Davis knocked him down again.

"Brucker!" Mr. Whittley shouted wildly. "Help, Brucker!"

"Why should Brucker help you?" Sam Davis snarled.

Mr. Whittley scrambled and plunged toward his expensive sedan. He was inside and the door was locked before Sam Davis could catch him.

"Grab that Brucker!" Sam Davis bawled toward the derrick.

"That big slob begged off this afternoon to go in town, an' he gets back

SOMEBODY WHISPERED

"The letters," she said harshly.

INSTALMENT XI.

"ELFREDA didn't kill Miles Barcland," Lucille Day snapped. "I know she didn't."

Jim stared at her. "How would you know?" he asked.

"Because," she told him calmly, "she was with me when Miles Barcland was murdered."

"And where were you, Miss Day?" he asked softly.

"Home," she said, "in my apartment. At 1942 Winthrop avenue."

"Were you there at 3 o'clock that morning?"

"Yes," she said emphatically. "—we were, Elfreda and I were home at 3 o'clock that morning."

He shrugged. "You're not telling the truth. I know you and Elfreda were together that morning. Yet, you were alone because you are Elfreda. Your name is Elfreda Baum. But you weren't in your apartment at 3 o'clock that morning. At 3 o'clock you were leaving Miles Barcland's apartment at 36 Rush street."

"That's a lie," she said harshly, staring at him with wide eyes.

"No," he overrode her impersonally. "It isn't a lie. I know every move you made for a half hour or so about that time. Let me go over it with you. You hurried out of that apartment building at 36 Rush street just as a cab swung in. You got into it and told the driver to take you to 1942 Winthrop avenue."

"It's a lie," she repeated hopelessly. "I was in my apartment. I can prove it."

"You couldn't go on denying it if the police knew what I know," he patiently pointed out. "I can go back from where the taxicab picked you up and place you right in the apartment. Better than that, I can place you in Miles Barcland's bedroom."

"How?" she asked in a weak voice.

"Dick Barcland remembers seeing you. You were the second of two women he met there. It was your orchid he found in his hand when he woke up on the couch later. He had snatched it from your dress when you laughed at him."

"But that proves I didn't kill Miles Barcland," she said eagerly. "He was alive when I left there. Dick knows that if he knows anything at all."

"It seems to prove it," he granted. "I'd be satisfied but I don't think the police would be. You were there within a half hour of his death. They'd move you closer than that. They'd place you there at the exact moment of his murder."

"You mean they will," she said bitterly, "when you tell them or have Dick Barcland tell them he remembers seeing me there. God knows they'll find I had plenty of reasons for killing him."

"I have no intention of telling them unless I have to," he assured her. "Neither has Miss Marshall."

"What has Miss Marshall to do with it?" she asked quickly and then sudden realization came to her. "I see!" she said softly and slowly. "Miss Marshall is a psychiatrist. You used her to make Dick Barcland fight back thru his drunken stupor. And all the facts came up. How clever!"

"Not all the facts," Jim grinned. "He hasn't reached the killer yet. And he saw him or her because the killer hit him across the face with a pistol. But we're not looking for the killer, altho we may turn him or her up in the search for what we're after. We're after some indiscreet letters that Barcland was holding over a woman. They've disappeared. They're not among his effects."

"Yes I know," she nodded. "Mr. Monoco told me about them. Those letters are Ann Marshall's. She broke her engagement to you to become engaged to Dick Barcland. I see it all now. His father used her letters to force her into that engagement. Now she realizes that whoever killed Barcland has the letters. What happens if you uncover the killer?"

"We demand the letters from him or her."

"Before you inform the police?"

"I'm speaking for Dan O'Malley and myself," Jim explained. "Dan was commissioned to get those letters back before Barcland was killed. I decided to give him whatever help I could for personal reasons. As far as we are concerned, the killer interests us only if he or she has those letters. I don't know what Dick will do. Tell the police, I suppose. It was his father who was killed. I wish you'd understand all this. If you did, I could talk to you."

"I understand," she assured him. "What do you want to talk to me about?"

"The letters. Do you know anything about them?"

"If I did," she smiled, "that would make me a fine prospect as Miles Barcland's murderess."

"No," Jim argued slowly. "It could be some one to whom you are very close."

"You mean Tony Monoco?"

"He's one possibility. Barcland had documents that could send him to prison or the chair. He's anxious to get them back. He had this place ransacked last night."

"Who are the others?"

"Until tonight," Jim said, "I believed there were two others. Drake Royal and Elfreda."

"I've told you I'm out of this. You must believe me. I don't know anything about Royal. I don't know what reason he'd have for wanting to kill Miles Barcland."

"An affidavit swearing that he killed a man in a gambling place he ran in St. Louis," Jim told her. "Barcland tried to use it to get the Monte Carlo club here away from him. He threatened to give it to the police but Royal didn't scare. But when Barcland got a death threat over the telephone the day before he died, he left the affidavit to implicate Royal as a possible killer.

"Royal says he didn't kill Barcland," Jim smiled. "He was in plain view of a hundred people in the Monte Carlo when Barcland died. But he thinks 'Elfreda' might have done it. He told me last night that 'Elfreda' was 'quite a girl.' He knew her well. She was as close to him as a woman can be to a man when she told Barcland about the death of a man named Healey in his St. Louis gambling place. Barcland had detectives comb St. Louis until they found Bullock, the colored helper, who swore to the affidavit. When Royal learned about that affidavit, he knew where Barcland got his information. So he broke with 'Elfreda.' To put it mildly, he kicked you out."

Blonde Visitor Offers to Talk Turkey

"All right," she said, "you know quite a bit about me. There's no use in being polite any more. Let's talk turkey. What do you want?"

"Drake Royal's theory is that you got Tony Monoco's little black book for Barcland. It has seven dead men in it and the prices that were paid for making them dead. What do you think Tony would do if he even suspected that?"

"That's easy," she answered. "He'd kill me." The veneer had suddenly slipped off her. She was still charming but she was hard and ruthless. "Let's get it straight. Let's say I did all the things you say I did. I crossed Drake Royal and Tony Monoco for Miles Barcland. I was in his apartment a little while before he died. And I'm glad he was killed. I was going places when I got mixed up with him. He changed all that. He made my life a hopeless thing. But I didn't kill him.

"Now he's dead," she said, "and I ought to be free again. I could make a new start. I could forget the nightmare that was the last three years. But I can't. Those letters are in the way. [illegible] And I don't want to die."

Her poise was gone now. Her eyes were wide with fear. She put her hand on his knee and gripped it. "Please, Mr. Hallard," she pleaded. "For God's sake, give me back my letters!

"I'll do anything you ask," she whispered, "anything!"

"I can't," he told her, "unless I get the letters I'm after or until Barcland's killer is found. If you knew where those letters were——"

"I don't," she sighed hopelessly.

"I'm sorry," he told her sincerely, "but that's the way it is."

She sighed. Her eyes dropped and became interested in her ankle. She leaned forward and grasped the ankle with both hands and began straightening the seams in the back of her stocking. Utterly absorbed in her task, she impatiently thrust her dress to a little above the knee and went back to straightening the seam on her leg. Her two hands moved swiftly and deftly. Jim, embarrassed, looked away.

His eyes came back in time to catch a flashing glimpse of white flesh. Then, suddenly, her hand was full of metal. She had pulled a short barreled revolver from its leg holster. The butt nestled in her right hand. The muzzle seemed to be staring at the middle of his body.

"The letters," she said harshly. "Get them. Quick. Put your hands up."

His hands went up automatically and he stood that way, the palms turned toward her.

"I haven't them on me," he told her and moistened his dry lips with his tongue.

"Get them," she repeated low and hard and quick. "They're in that place. Hurry!"

The flat of Nick Serento's hand cut down on her wrist like a dull knife. The pistol clattered to the floor. Jim bent in the middle as he picked it up. He straightened up and held it [illegible]

"They think of the damnedest things," Nick said to nobody in particular.

"You may not have killed Barcland," Jim told her, "but don't tell me you couldn't. I'll never be nearer dying than I was just now."

She didn't answer. She sat there, writhing half-heartedly in Nick's grasp.

"What'll I do with her, boss?" Nick asked.

"Let her go," Jim decided. "Call a cab and get her coat."

"You mean you're going to let me go?" she asked incredulously.

"What else would I do?" Jim asked in turn. "I'm not a policeman. If you're arrested, Tony Monoco will find out you stole his little book for Barcland. I don't want to see you dead. We'll even help you. Here's Nick with your coat." The telephone rang. "And there's the notice your cab is waiting."

"And they told me you were a hard man," she said and laughed. "Good-by for now, Mr. Hallard. I hope we meet again soon."

The telephone rang again and Nick picked it up and listened. "Wait a minute," he said into it and turned his head. "It's Barcland," he shrugged. "He's cockeyed and he wants to talk to you."

Paul Brand Interrupts Barcland's Conversation

Dick Barcland was already talking when Jim took the phone.

"—Why the hell I should pull your chestnuts out of the fire," he was snarling. "I tol' you who those two women were but I'm not tellin' who killed my ol' man, even if I think of it. What have you got that I haven't? What makesh Ann go for you and treat me like a chill? I'm tellin' you, Jim Hallard, I'm not tellin' you anything more excep' that I do not like you. I think you are [illegible]"

There was a short scuffle and Paul Brand came on the wire.

"Paul, Jim," he said a little breathless. "We're in a bar on Clark street. It's crowded. I located Dick here and heard him mumbling about the two women he met in his father's apartment. Does he know who did the killing?"

"He didn't when he left Ann and me last night," Jim said. "Has he mentioned any names?"

"I don't think so," Paul said. "I'm almost sure he hasn't."

"Well, get him home," Jim advised. "He's carrying the electric chair in his head for somebody. The killer might like it."

He put down the instrument and came back into the living room and sprawled on the couch. He rubbed his hand over his face, squeezing his eyes with his fingers. Nick stood watching him.

"You been a busy guy tonight, boss," he said. "I heard you tellin' the dame. She's a card. A fast baby with her head and when a dame's fast that way a guy ain't got much chance to beat her."

"Do you think she killed Barcland?" Jim asked.

"That baby'd do anything," Nick declared with conviction. "And she was in the joint when Barcland was croaked so I guess she's it."

Jim picked up the vicious little revolver and examined it, turning it sideways in his hand.

"But not with this gun," he said. "Barcland was killed with a .32. This is a .22."

"Well, to hell with it," Nick dismissed the whole matter. "How about you gettin' a little shuteye? Lookit the clock. It's daylight."

"O. K.," he agreed and got up and walked into his bedroom.

It was four hours later with the pressure of Nick's hand on his wrist. His eyes flew open to the man. Nick was holding the telephone in his hand.

"Miss Marshall, boss," he informed him.

Jim swept the instrument from his hand and said:

"Good morning, Ann."

"Jim," her voice came over calm but [illegible] the nervousness beneath it. "I'm sorry to wake you, but I wondered if you'd like to come and have breakfast with me."

"I can't think of anything I'd like half as well."

Ann let him in herself. She was wearing a dark, flowered dress. Her lovely face was [illegible] but her eyes were shining. She gave him her hand.

"It's so nice to have you, Jim," she greeted. "Let me take your coat."

"All right," he commanded. "What's the matter? Give it to me."

"I want to drop all this," she said and her voice was trembling. Words [illegible] "I'm afraid, Jim. Whoever killed Miles Barcland will

What Has Gone Before

Miles Barcland, Chicago financier who has risen to power and riches thru blackmail, extortion, and bribery, receives a whispered death threat over the telephone in his hideout. Unable to recognize the voice or the sex of the Whisperer, he searches thru records in a secret compartment of his bedroom hoping to get some clue. He chooses the four most incriminating documents: A death threatening letter to him by Duke Herndon, bootlegger; a death threatening letter and two love letters signed "Elfreda"; a record of murders ordered by Tony Monoco, racketeer, and an affidavit swearing that Drake Royal, gambler, killed a certain man. Miles turns over this evidence to Paul Brand, his lifelong friend. That night he attends the opening of a night club run by Monoco, where Lucille Day, Monoco's mistress, is the featured singer. Other guests at the opening include: Miles' son, Richard; Brand; Jim Hallard, oil executive and silent partner of detective Dan O'Malley; Ann Marshall, Hallard's fiancee; Margaret and Herbert Severn, Ann's flirtatious sister and jealous brother-in-law; Duke Herndon, and Drake Royal. Miles is blackmailing Ann into breaking her engagement to Jim and promising to marry Richard by threatening to show Herbert letters Margaret wrote a gigolo. With Miles looking on, Ann gives Jim back his ring. Lights suddenly go out in the night club and some one shoots at Miles but misses. Shortly after 3 a. m. the next morning, Jim is awakened by what he thinks is his telephone ringing, but when he answers it, the line is clear. He decides to go to Miles' hangout and demand Margaret's letters. When he reached there, he finds Robert drunk in the living room, and Miles murdered in the bedroom. As he is picking up a brooch he thinks is Ann's, police step out of hiding and demand it. Some one had called police headquarters shortly after 3 a. m. and whispered the report of Miles' murder. Richard remembers having seen two different women come and go from his father's apartment that night and later having been struck by some one. But he was too drunk to remember the women or his assailant. Miles left a note to Brand asking him to find the murderer. The janitor seems to recognize a picture of Ann but refuses to talk, as he received a whispered threat over the telephone. Brand gets O'Malley to work on the case and turns over the four documents Miles gave him, to Jim. Jim telephones Herndon, Royal, and Monoco, telling them that he has the documents, then tapes the documents to the body of Nick, his valet. Jim has Ann hide in an unoccupied apartment of Nick's sister, to keep police from questioning her, but Dick learns about the hideout, gets drunk, and tells many others. The Whisperer telephones Jim, then Ann, threatening death if they don't stop trying to find the murderer. Jim, accompanied by police, goes to Ann's hideout but finds Brand there. Brand says the Whisperer telephoned him, threatening Ann. Ann denies owning the brooch police question her about, and shows them one she has like it. She tells Jim, Margaret admitted having been in Miles' apartment the night of the murder and having lost her brooch; but denied killing Miles. Both Tony and Dick arrive at Ann's hideout while police are there. Afterwards Tony sends for Jim and O'Malley and his men search them in vain for Tony's record book. Royal tells Jim that "Elfreda" is Lucille Day. Ann psychoanalyzes Dick and he remembers that Margaret and Lucille were the two women he met in his father's apartment the night of the murder. Lucille calls on Jim and pretends that "Elfreda" is a friend of hers and is anxious to get the letters she wrote Miles.

SOMEBODY WHISPERED

do any amount of killing to stop this investigation. I don't know how many times they've tried to kill you. I don't dare ask. But Dick told me this morning of the attempt they made on you and Dan outside your apartment. Perhaps, the next time they try, they won't miss. Let's drop it, Jim. It really isn't our affair. It's the business of the police. It's what they're paid for. Let them hunt this killer. We can't recover Margaret's letters without uncovering him or her. And, maybe, the letters will disappear some way. O, Jim, please."

Jim thrust the nonessentials aside. "You say Dick told you this morning," he mused. "When did he come back?"

"He didn't. He left soon after you did last night. But he called me on the telephone three hours later. He was drunk and talking from some crowded place. He said terrible things; that you and I were using him as a cat's paw; that we were going to get him killed. He shouted about having already remembered two women but he said he refused to try and remember anything further about that night. He said he might be doing it for my sake. He said it mightn't be very good for me, if he remembered the person who killed his father. He insisted that I get out of the investigation. He told me to mind my own business."

"What did you say?"

"I promised I would," Ann said wearily, "but we already had agreed that he was to come back here at noon. I insisted that he do that. I promised I wouldn't ask him to talk about it. I was suddenly dreadfully afraid for him. I knew he was carrying the picture of his father's murderer buried in his mind. And I knew that if the murderer knew it, he or she would kill Dick as ruthlessly as he or she had killed his father. He promised he would come. He had wakened me and I went back to bed. But you can imagine, I didn't sleep. I got to thinking of all the possibilities. They're dreadful, darling. I decided that it would be best for all of us to get out of it."

"All right," he agreed. "Tell Dick not to come. You're out of this, Dan and I will go it alone. It wasn't fair to bring you into it in the first place. Just forget it."

"But you didn't get me into it in the first place," she said heavily. "It was I who got you into it. But I knew you'd say this. You're so wild and ruthless. No one can talk to you."

He sat there, staring ahead of him, marshaling his thoughts. "You're wrong, Ann," he said carefully. "Anybody can talk to me. But it wouldn't do any good. I couldn't get out of this show. The chips are all down and it's my play. It doesn't make any difference that the cards seem stacked against me. I have to play it out. If I stepped away from this, I would not only be unworthy of you, but I wouldn't be able to live with myself. Every morning I'd have to look at myself in the shaving glass and know I was looking at a coward. I haven't the gu—the courage to do it. You're different. You're a woman. You don't understand these things. But that's the way it is."

"I couldn't understand from all my studies of Freud and Jung and Adler," Ann acknowledged. "I couldn't with my mind. But I do with my heart, Jim. A woman comes to see things thru the eyes of the man she loves. If you got out now I'd despise you and I'd hate that because I'd have to go on loving you." The soft light in her eyes blinded him. He lifted her hand to his lips. "Not my hand, darling," she murmured, "while my lips are waiting."

Light from a winter sun at its zenith poured off Randolph street into Dan O'Malley's private office and Dan sat with his back to his desk and his feet on the sill, enjoying it, while he chewed a match to kindling and listened to Jim "empty his bag."

Jim talked tersely, giving no color to the tale. He was making a report that needed no comment. He told Dan carefully and in detail everything that had happened from the time they separated in front of the homicide bureau.

Long before he had finished, Dan's feet had swung to the floor where the match stick, chewed to pulp, already rested.

"[illegible]m," he said disgustedly when the younger man had finished, "if you fell into a coal mine, you'd come up with the Kohinoor diamond. Don't tell me diamonds don't grow in coal mines. They would for you. You're one of those people that are magnets for trouble. You don't have to go looking for it. All you have to do is sit down and wait and trouble will come along and find you.

"Now, I'm a dick. Before I was a dick, I was a cop. I'm a guy them things should happen to. They're my business. But do they? No! Why couldn't that hackie start telling the story about the blonde before I got out of the cab? If he had, I wouldn't have gone on in."

"Well," Jim cautioned, "all we have is three or four or five possibilities. What else did you do last night?"

"I got what you might call a couple of negatives," Dan grinned. "I found out that while Duke Herndon could have shot Miles Barcland, he couldn't have done any whispering since because he has been in the can for two days. He came out of stir with delusions of grandeur. He thinks he still has the dough he made during prohibition and he writes checks on money that ain't in the box. They got four bad pieces of paper against him."

"Too bad," Jim said regretfully. "He was a fine prospect. He writes a good letter. Right to the point. Who's the other negative?"

"Mrs. Margaret Severn," Dan grinned. "You know. Miss Marshall's sister. I got in touch with a detective in Miami as soon as I found out she was one of the women that called on Barcland in his apartment that night. Here's his report."

He took a collect telegram from his pocket and handed it to Jim. It read:

"Subject living quietly with husband at Miami Biltmore. They go to beach or golf course daily. All their telephone calls local. Send hundred on receipt of this, Greive."

"I'd never even thought of her," Jim confessed as he handed back the telegram.

"I did," Dan told him seriously. "I'm a cop. I figure everybody's guilty until they prove up innocent. Even you. Ed Mercer does, too. Especially you. He likes you the best of all. His boys figure it was strictly an amateur job. They base it on the stuff the stool pigeons have been flying in with in their bills. Nothing. And every stool in Chi has been working under pressure from every cop that has one in the city.

"That covers this town from north Evanston to south Gary. There ain't a whisper. That don't say a good professional didn't do it or have it done. Tony Monoco for one. I like Tony as much as Ed Mercer likes you for the job. He's as smooth as silk. He could stop the pigeons from cooing. Not even a stool will talk when he knows that his pay will come in lead. Well, let's look over Tony and the others."

Jim Makes a Threat to Captain Mercer

They were still looking them over three hours later, this strange and variegated company tangled up in the meshes of a murder.

"Damn it," he growled, "the killer's in here some place. That has to be. It all adds up. We just can't figure the answer."

"The killer has to make a move," Jim said thoughtfully. "We're closing in. Something has to happen soon."

The phone rang while he was talking and Dan answered it and handed the instrument to him. It was Ann.

"Jim," she told him, "Dick hasn't shown up. Do you suppose he's all right?"

"I'm positive he is," Jim assured her. "He has a detective guarding him. But I'll check and see. Don't worry about him." He waited for her to break the connection. Then he said to Dan, "Dick had a lunch date with Ann Marshall. He hasn't shown up. What's the answer?"

"Maybe Ed Mercer," Dan said thoughtfully. "He couldn't miss hearing about him shooting off his mouth last night. If he did, he's had him in for questioning. Want me to find out?"

"I'll do it," Jim refused and gave the homicide bureau number. He got thru to Capt. Mercer in about two minutes. "Capt. Mercer," he said, "I understand you're holding Mr. Barcland."

"I been talking to him," Capt. Mercer admitted.

"Turn him loose," Jim grated, "or I'll have lawyers swarming all over you for false arrest and for persecuting a citizen. Where do you think you are? In Russia?"

"If I was, you'd be in Siberia," the captain roared. "I know you've got Miss Marshall psychoanalyzing him and that he's remembered two people he met in his father's apartment the night he was killed. Maybe you were one of them. He wouldn't talk and I couldn't make him. He left here an hour ago. But I'm telling you, Hallard, you're putting that girl's life in danger. Why the hell don't you let the police work it out? We'll get the killer, if you'll let us alone. If you don't we'll have some more murders. And they'll be on your soul."

The hours passed. The quick winter dusk lowered swiftly over the city and turned suddenly into full night. The lights blazed on along the Rialto.

They both heard the siren wailing in the north and they followed its course with their ears. It went north a little way and turned west. They could imagine it flying thru the startled city like the shadow of a juggernaut, the siren clearing the path with its banshee's wail.

"The voice," Dan O'Malley mused, "of crime."

The telephone rang and he picked it up and listened and said, "It's for you," and handed it to Jim.

"Jim," Dick Barcland said and his terror banged against Jim's ear, "Ann has been kidnaped. Less than an hour ago. I came out here just now. When she didn't answer her bell, I called the janitor. He opened the door and we found Helga bound and gagged on her bed. She said four masked men did the job. A detective who has been shadowing me reported it to Capt. Mercer. The police are there now."

"Where are you now?"

"In a drug store two blocks from Ann's studio. I got out while the detective was telephoning. What will I do?"

"Get to my apartment," Jim decided, "in a hurry. Nick will let you in. Wait for me. And don't drink."

He tortured the lever until the "all clear" buzz resumed and then he dialed his apartment.

"Miss Marshall's been kidnaped," he told Nick. "Dick Barcland's on his way there now. Hold him. If the police come, hide him. I'll come when I can."

When he dropped the telephone, Dan was holding his coat for him. They didn't wait for the elevator. They pounded down the steps together.

NOT ONLY OIL

half an hour ago with a bottle of imported French booze an' turns out a crook workin' for Whittley all the time!" Sam Davis peered in the window. "Sorry about your job, sister—but I got my hands full helpin' Pete! Leave the car at the O. K. garage!"

Sally sat jumpy, undecided, and then started back to town. Being roughly fired on her first job should have been a catastrophe. But it didn't seem to matter. She was furious at Mr. Whittley. She disliked him. Like a jigsaw puzzle coming together were many things she had seen and heard in the office.

Sally almost drove off the road as facts and guesses suddenly crystallized. She wrenched the front wheels straight and began to drive furiously. Mary Dolan could help her.

Mary was in her little two-room apartment, hair in curlers, when she opened the door.

"I heard about Jonas over the radio and telephoned your rooming house," Mary greeted. "Pete Scully really blew up, didn't he?"

Excitedly, Sally said:

"I'm fired, Mary! And we've got to help Pete—Mr. Scully!"

"Well!" said Mary weakly. "You fell for Pete Scully faster than most of them do."

"It isn't that," Sally denied as they went into the bedroom. "Listen, Mary——"

"Let's see what you know," Mary said sternly. "It's plain now why Pete Scully couldn't borrow money to pay off Jonas and Whittley. His well was too risky with a string of tools clogging the casing. That man Brucker was probably responsible for the tools getting lost in the first place."

"But Sam Davis is firing the men tonight!" Sally reminded desperately.

Mary ignored her. "Whittley and Jonas obviously didn't want Pete to start drilling again. They wanted Pete's crew fired and possession quickly."

Sally was jumping to her feet when Mary firmly pushed her back.

"Are you certain that Pete Scully did not sign everything over to them?"

"How could he? Mr. Jonas was dead when I got there with the papers! I have them in the car now!"

"Then Whittley ran a bluff tonight. He wanted the well closed tight before they drilled into something valuable."

Mary began to remove her curlers. "Jonas was murdered, Sally. Pete Scully's oil well is important to Pete Scully. But murder is pretty terrible."

The telephone rang in the next room. Mary answered it, was frowning when she returned.

"That was Whittley. He wants you at work in the morning as usual. Also he wants those papers tonight as quickly as he can locate you."

"I—I'm going down and tear them up!"

"Sit there until I'm dressed," Mary ordered. "I didn't tell him you were here."

They drove to police headquarters in Pete Scully's coupe, and at the front steps they met Sam Davis.

"Did you catch that man Brucker?" Sally questioned hurriedly.

"Got him an' edjicated him, ma'am. Whittley was payin' him to report on the well."

"Where is this educated rat?" Mary Dolan inquired briskly.

Sam Davis grinned frostily.

"I passed him about a mile this side of camp, limping along with his suitcase."

Mary did not bother to explain.

"You can warn Pete Scully for us. Tell him not to sign away his property tonight. Whittley will probably be around with cash money."

Sam Davis shrugged hopelessly. "What's the difference—tonight or tomorrow? Whittley'll get everything."

"Any oil in your well?" Mary suggested shrewdly.

Sam Davis gave her a long look, and again shrugged hopelessly.

"Looks like it. We was right on the sand, smelling production, when we lost that string of tools in the hole. Yep, Whittley'll probably come outa this with an oil well. And Pete gets left with a murder to explain."

"Don't let him sign anything tonight," Mary said flatly.

"I'd let Pete sign papers with the devil if the cash'd put him free on the street," said Sam Davis curtly.

The broad, stooped figure hurried inside and Mary turned back to the coupe.

"This is one time, infant, that dating the law comes in handy. Andy Gessler is a police lieutenant, and he'll give us a hand or hold his own hand in the movies after this.

"Drive me to 714 North Schuyler—and if Andy's out tonight he lied to me and will sweat for it."

The brawny, silhouetted figure that Mary talked with in the doorway of the Schuyler street house seemed to be protesting. But in a few minutes Mary returned to the coupe.

"Andy," she said, "will make a good husband. He always gives in. Now let's find this Brucker before some driver picks him up."

They were almost to the Willow creek bridge when the headlights raised a burly, shadowy figure limping toward them with a bulging suitcase. Sally braked quickly.

"Th-that's him!"

"Well, stop and pick him up." And as the car drew up alongside, Mary called out the window. "Are you Brucker?"

"That's me. Who is it?"

"I'm Mary Dolan from Jonas and Whittley's office. Get in."

"'Bout time Whittley thought of me! I'll say plenty to that fool for giving me away at the well!"

"He was excited," Mary suggested.

"I'll excite him!"

Sally turned the car and started back. Brucker peered at them. "Two, huh? More women than I've had around since I been on this job."

Brucker drew a round bottle from inside his coat, drank, pushed the bottle into Mary's hand.

"Have one, kid."

"Five Star Cognac," Mary read, holding the bottle in front of the dashlight.

Sally began to drive at reckless speed. The first twinkling lights at the city line had never looked so bright and comforting.

"Get gas at the next station," Mary blurted shakily.

The coupe drew up beside the lighted gas pumps; and the big, red-faced man who stepped to Mary's side of the car looked relieved as he peered in at them.

"Andy, take him!" Mary called. "And I don't care what you do to him! The bottle's inside his coat!"

"Come outta there, bum!" Andy Gessler boomed as he jerked open the door. "It's a pinch!"

A big hand dragged Brucker out, angrily protesting, trying to fight.

Andy Gessler spoke angrily over his shoulder.

"I'll settle with you later, Mary, for this fool stunt! Get away from here and keep out of any more trouble!"

"How I love that big oaf," said Mary, drawing a shaky breath. "But if he ever lets me have my own way again, I'll quit him cold. Hurry up to headquarters, infant. We're probably too late now."

A bluff detective at headquarters was affable as he looked at Sally.

"I guess you ladies can see Scully as long as he's got visitors already."

"I knew it," said Mary under her breath.

The detectives led them down a corridor, ushered them into a small waiting room where a bored detective was watching Pete Scully, Sam Davis, and Mr. Whittley.

Mr. Whittley was writing in a checkbook on his knees. He looked relieved and stood up when they entered.

"Found her, did you, Dolan? Good for you. Miss Crane, let's have those papers. Scully is ready to sign."

"I tore up the papers. He's not going to sign."

"You what?" Mr. Whittley's voice rose. "You're fired again! Get out!"

"What is this?" Pete Scully asked weakly.

"I won't get out!" Sally told him stubbornly.

"No, of course not." He looked big, troubled. The last few hours had marked his tanned face. His look was warm and a little sad as he looked down at Sally.

"Sam gave me your message," he said gently. "I can find another oil well, but I've only got one neck, and first I need cash to save it."

"But—but you can wait a little."

"Not if he wants any cash from me!" said Mr. Whittley viciously. "That's final!"

"Nothing," said Mary to Mr. Whittley, "is ever final with you, if there's a dollar to be snatched."

"You're fired, too, Dolan!"

"That," said Mary, "shatters my life."

"I'm sorry," Pete Scully said to Sally. "You see how it is."

"Better listen to her," said Mary. "She's been working all evening to help you."

"She's sweet," said Pete Scully. "I've been thinking all evening about her."

Sally's heart began to thump queerly. . . .

"But," said Pete Scully, "I'm going to take the money while I can get it."

Sally heard the detective by the door say: "Hello, lieutenant."

She looked around and Andy Gessler was standing there, slowly chewing a match.

"Which one's Whittley?" Andy Gessler asked.

Andy Tells Whittley of Brucker's Confession

Mr. Whittley was annoyed. "What do you want?"

"Little matter of murder," said Andy Gessler placidly. "Brucker sneaked a confession after he thought you'd already squealed on him."

Mr. Whittley looked bleak, terribly white as he stared. Then his voice broke higher, shriller.

"Brucker lies if he says I paid him a thousand to do that! Lies, you hear me!"

"I hear you," nodded Andy Gessler placidly. "How'd you know it was a grand for Brucker to stop your partner's clock tonight, if you didn't offer it? Let's go down the hall and talk it over."

"No!"

Andy Gessler's big hand plucked Mr. Whittley firmly out of the room. Over his shoulder Andy Gessler spoke to the detective guarding the door.

"I think we're gonna let Scully out in a few minutes. Ease up on him."

Pete Scully looked dazedly at Sally.

"She did it," said Mary. "At the well tonight Whittley said he'd seen you park your car in front of Jonas' house. Davis told Sally that Brucker had returned from town after dark with a bottle of expensive French whisky. It clicked while Sally was driving home.

"To see you get out of your car, Whittley must have been watching the house when you drove up. Brucker was working for Whittley. He had been to town about that time. He came back to the well with a bottle that sounded exactly like Mr. Jonas' pet cognac. So Sally and I picked Brucker up on the highway, looked at the cognac bottle he was still carrying; and when we saw it was Jonas' brand, we turned Brucker over to the police." With satisfaction Mary added: "I knew Whittley would outsmart himself some time."

Pete Scully ignored Mary. He was holding Sally's hands.

"You got fired to help me!" he said huskily.

"I didn't want you to lose your oil well."

Mary looked them over critically.

"I'll go home with Gessler," she decided. "Your car is out front, Scully. And if you believe it was only your oil well, an oil well is all you deserve to get out of this."

Sally's cheeks were hot as Peter Scully kept her hands. She saw him grinning over her head at Mary Dolan.

"What do you think?" Pete Scully asked Mary.

"I think you won't need any more help," said Mary dryly. "Good night —both of you."

Eight-Year-Old Actress Is Star of New Broadway Play

'Janie' Contains the Makings of a Popular Hit

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—During the first performance of "Janie," which is the first of the new comedies to reach performance this season, there was a call for a young actress named Clare Foley. The call was followed by a search for Miss Foley. She was shortly found sitting on an overturned fire bucket cutting out paper dolls. Clare is 8 years old.

Being warned that her cue was about to be spoken on stage, Miss Clare responded with professional alacrity, walked into the action, and tried to stand on her head. This, as the audience already knew, was a part of Miss Foley's collection campaign. Whenever her older sister, Janie, was entertaining a beau Clare made it a point to appear in the living room and make a nuisance of herself.

Linda Watkins.

This, Janie would explain to the beau, was a trick the brat always tried in the hope that she would be properly bribed to leave the room. Usually she collected a dime, but she would disappear for a little while for a nickel.

Miss Foley, you may readily understand, was the hit of "Janie." She will have much to do with its early success, because she will be pretty generally talked about. In this way she will be of help to the comedy, because she will give its authors, Josephine Bentham and Herschel Williams, a chance to strengthen its weaknesses, which were pretty apparent at the opening.

• • •

The real head of the cast of "Janie" is a young woman from the west coast named Gwen Anderson. Miss Anderson is a sweet child of limited stage experience, but sufficient gifts to put her in the promising class. Her rôle is that of a restless 16 year old who is prompted to give a party for a handsome 19 year old draftee and some of his friends from camp the night she is left at home to look after her little sister.

Janie's father is a newspaper man who has written editorials suggesting that while it is perfectly fine for various women's aid organizations to organize parties and dances for the service men in camp halls and town halls, it would be well if civilians generally would have a care about inviting the men into those homes in which there are children of tender and impressionable years—especially girls.

Janie doesn't read anybody's editorials. Even if she did she probably would have forgotten them when Dick Lawrence suggested a party. She tells Dick to invite two or three of the boys, and she and Bernadine and Paula will get together enough hot dogs and soft drinks to make a party. They must promise, however, to be out of the house by midnight, when she expects the folks home. And he will have to take little sister over to grandma's for the night.

The party just expands and expands. In place of two or three of Dick's friends, practically his whole company crashes Janie's house. They move the furniture, organize a dance, find and drink pop's liquor. The party spreads all over the house, taking over not only the upstairs sitting room but all the bathrooms as well.

Naturally, when pop gets home, and finds the party still going on, he is pretty excited. And when it is discovered that little sister has been lost is literally hell to pay. Pleasant ending, tho. Janie takes a noble stand for the service men and their rights, and daddy discovers that the funny old man little sister has picked up at a street carnival is the very fellow who can control the priorities and get him a new press.

• • •

There are the makings of a popular hit in "Janie." As it plays now Janie is a heroine, not by any act of her own creation but because she is pushed into the party by young Dick. If they will give her the idea first, and let her organize the party as a young patriot's idea of something that should be done for the boys, audience response will, I'm sure, be much more spontaneous than it is now.

Linda Watkins is in the cast after several years of retirement. So is Howard St. John. Frank Amy plays Janie's high school boy friend amusingly. It was he, and not any of these soldier competitors, who remembered when Janie had her tonsils out, and worried about her. Frank would have her remember that. In the end she does.

• • •

It is easy to see, even this early in the new season, what the trend of the escapist drama is going to be thru the second winter of the war. Mostly burlesque. Mostly striptease. For awhile, anyway, playgoers will be presented with a variety of entertainment of the loose and frivolous sort to take their minds off the day's depressions.

Gypsy Rose Lee.

When lady playgoers began rallying to the support of Michael Todd's "Star and Garter" that was the tipoff. When the box office sale of tickets for that skin and curves revue began to soar, with lines before the wicket and standees in the foyer, showmen winked wisely and declared that this was what the people really wanted; this was the sort of thing that could be relied upon to take their minds off their troubles and center them upon Gypsy Rose Lee. Women, they said, were as eager as men to see how far Gypsy would go.

So now we have a comedy, "Strip for Action," which tells the story of a burlesque troupe preparing an entertainment for the soldiers, playing preliminary engagements on the way to Broadway. "Wine, Women and Song," another vaudeville revue, with Margie Hart, a Gypsy Rose Lee disciple, co-starring with Jimmy Savo, who was in burlesque back in the days of the first World war, also is in rehearsal.

• • •

Also we have a producer named Al Rosen. Mr. Rosen's success with "Good Night, Ladies" in Chicago has fired his ambition to take Al Woods' place as a provider of risque and fleshy entertainment for a restless and curious Broadway. Mr. Rosen is not only planning to bring his "Good Night, Ladies" into the eastern territory but is having another farce called "Harem Scarem" prepared for the trade. By advance report this one will be as escapist as all get out, if it succeeds in escaping the censors first.

In addition to these lightsome affairs we are to welcome two more straight vaudeville shows, with burlesque features. One is called "Priorities of 1943," and will bring Harry Richman, Bert Wheeler, and Carol Luce to the center of the stage. Another is known as "Show Time," was organized on the Pacific coast, and has George Jessel, Jack Haley, Ella Logan, and the De Marcos as its leading disrupters of depression. At least for a time it should be a lively season.

BACK TO EMPIRE ROOM

Griff Williams came back to the Empire room of the Palmer House Thursday for a long run. Co-starring with him in the revue are the dancing satirists, Grace and Paul Hartman. [Seymour Photo.]

"Best Foot Forward" Author Has New Book

John Cecil Holm, who wrote the book of "Best Foot Forward," now playing at the Erlanger theater, has just brought out a book which, entitled "Sunday Best," is the story of his early life in Philadelphia just after the turn of the century. The author says that his book "sets the reader on a train of thought among things, places, and people that he had almost forgotten."

Gracie Fields Wins Plaudits in Chez Revue

By Will Davidson.

Add to the three Graces—Faith, Hope, and Charity—an indispensible fourth, Grace Fields.

She's the best contribution from England since Dieppe, and the Chez Paree never in my experience has had a more devotedly popular entertainer. There is a genuine quality of simplicity about Gracie that is quite irresistible, and a clean, dry humor that is completely winning.

Without seeming so at all, this fabulous lady from the tight little, right little isle is a devastating entertainer. She starts you out with a subtly ordinary interpretation of "Sleepy Lagoon" then counters with the cockney humor of that delightful whimsy, "Thing-a-ma-bob," which tells the complicated story of the feminine cog in a great war industry. She has complete control of the tremolo stop when she sings the sweet little ballad, "Nighty Night, Little Sailor Boy," and goes vocally slapstick in that famously mad song of hers, "The Biggest Aspidastra in the World." So delightful is that number that you can forgive even the haggling precisionists who quarrel with you over the spelling of that phenomenal flower. Furthermore, I thoroly like the way she sings "The Last Time I saw Paris," which is a real test considering the mauling that song has received.

When you hear Gracie sing, and watch her unaffected manner, and when you remember the immense contribution she has made to the war effort, you can well understand why her adoring English public says, "God bless you, Gracie."

Miss Fields is not alone at the Chez Paree. Puckish little Sammy Walsh, a Chicago stranger for these past eight years, comes back into an acclaim that is undoubtedly most satisfying to him. Sammy is a whimsical sort of comedian—and clean. His sometimes aimless nonsensicalities have a delightful way of suddenly developing hilarious involvements, his satire is delicious, and he has a knack of turning a soft shoe dance or a solo into something quite out of this world. To quote the Baker school of collegiana, he knows how to get with it, and he has it in big fat gobs. Check!

Fred Evans has filled the rest of his show with satisfactory entertainment. Bob Bromley is a smart ventriloquistic puppeteer, with a technique that still is entertaining after several visits. The Robinson twins are energetic show openers, and the D'Ivons rise above their own neutral level with a happy, sprightly routine called "Nothing."

The Adorables, prettier than ever, do some smart work in the graceful "Night Medley" routine, and collaborate with Gracie Fields in a peppy and not too trite patriotic finale.

If you're looking for entertainment you'll probably find good Pickens in the Mayfair room of the Blackstone. Jane is singing there and her audience likes her. Long famous as one of the Pickens sisters, Jane has been doing very much all right for herself as a single these past years, and fits neatly into the smart surroundings of Emil's habitat. Jane has a style that unfortunately leaves her open to comparisons with Hildegarde—unfortunate because the people who like the Hildegarde sort of corn may consider Jane as an artless impostor. She's not, of course, for she is talented and gracious, and possessed of a fine répertoire of well known songs. Her medley of patriotic songs, during which she invites the audience to sing, is one number I think could be used very sparingly, when the crowd is in the exact mood. But generally she picks her numbers well.

The Mayfair room has been blessed with good bands, and Eddie Oliver's will stand with the best of them. Eddie is a delightful person, and he produces delightful music. I am particularly fond of bands with personality, and this is one.

By the time you read this Jimmy Dorsey will be more than half way thru his two week engagement in the Panther room of the Hotel Sherman and Sonny Durham will be prepping for his Friday debut, but I'll lay a wager that Jimmy will be well on his way to a record for a comparable period. Jimmy has acquired the habit of setting records, as well as selling them, and the way he is giving out in the swing Nirvana makes it appear he'll continue. If you don't like strong swing, diluted occasionally with amusing specialties by pretty Helen O'Connell, or superb ballads by Bob Eberly, you of course won't care a lot about Dorsey. But it needn't worry you, or the Sherman, for there probably wouldn't be room for you in the Panther room, anyway.

Jimmy has two Virginia jitterbugs with him, but they didn't show those Panther room youngsters much in the way of cortortions.

Talia Wermuth is back in the Walnut room of the Bismarck, and that means she's the hit of the show there. Fresh from triumphs in Montreal, this beautiful and charming young sister of the "one man army" renews her claim to inevitable stardom with her exquisitely costumed native interpretations, and a simple but most effective scarf phantasy. Perhaps students of the esoteric school of dancing might quarrel with me over my enthusiasm for Talia's dances, yet she has a quality that is lacking in so many more famous performers—simple sincerity and charm. She is ideal for the Walnut room.

To praise Talia is to take nothing from Don and Sally Jennings, long established favorites in the Bismarck. Their dance routines are crisp and fresh and friendly. Nor is it to take anything from the Harriet Smith girls, who do their neat little routines with fine spirit. And you can't take anything from Jimmy Joy, for that boy has a superb orchestra, with a lot in the books.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Val Ernie's band returns to the Camellia House Sept. 22. Lovely Marie Nash, of the Lillian Russell beauty and the pleasing voice, holds the spotlight there now, ably assisted by Ray Benson's orchestra. . . . The Mayfair room brings in Neil Bondshu and Dwight Fishe on Oct. 9, Renee De Marco on Oct. 30, and Jane Froman on Nov. 27. . . . Good old Joe Frisco has left the Rainbow Gardens, victim of an environment impossible for his intimate humor. Healy and Mack, a mixed comedy balancing team, replaced him Thursday.

Seen at French Lick Springs hotel, Indiana, Paul Draper, dancer extraordinary, who is relaxing before going on concert tour with Larry Adler or into the army. . . . Monday nights at the Sherman now are devoted to jam sessions, conducted by Bud Freeman and his orchestra. Red Allen and J. C. Higginbotham will abet him tomorrow night. . . . The grapevine says Joe Reichman will follow Griff Williams in the Empire room early in January, but I'm still keeping my fingers crossed. . . . Avis Kent is singing in Baltimore. That Earl Carrol café deal seems to be off.

Melba Cordes, former Abbott dancer and more recently Miss Abbott's studio assistant, is now chief assistant to Leon Fokine in his new school of dancing. Also continuing her own classes for children. . . . Add good musical moments: Vincent Bragale's Latintinabulations at the Latin Quarter. . . . Cynical suggestion for a café column title [born at a well hidden press table], "Back Views and Profiles."

PANTHER ROOM TRIO

Popular Priced Opera May Expand Repertoire

Alfredo Salmaggi, who specializes in the presentation of popular priced opera, may expand his répertoire in the near future by reviving Halevy's "La Juive," Bellini's "Norma," Saint-Saëns' "Samson and Delilah," Puccini's "The Girl of the Golden West" and Mussorgsky's "Boris Godunoff." His fall season opens on Sept. 19 at the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

"Lunch Time Follies" Entertain War Workers

Workers in eastern war plants are now being regaled by the "Lunch Time Follies," two units of which are taking noontime entertainment to workers in eight factories in various parts of the east. If the plan, sponsored by the American Theater Wing War service, is successful, it probably will be extended. A similar scheme has succeeded well in England.

St. Louis Opera Has Profitable Outdoor Season

The 1942 summer season of the St. Louis Municipal Opera drew the third largest total audience in the 24 year history of the outdoor musical project. A total of 770,346 patrons attended 86 performances, a decrease of 41,167 from the summer of 1941, when 87 performances were given. This year two performances were canceled because of rain.

The theater preserved its record of being self-sustaining, for receipts were sufficient to repay in full the list of nearly 1,000 guarantors who underwrote the season against possible loss to the extent of $100,000. Never in the history of the Municipal Opera has a guarantor lost a cent.

• • •

An unusual number of rainy days affected 1942 attendance adversely. The month of June was described by the St. Louis weather bureau as the wettest June in 14 years. Altho all but two performances were given, rain fell on 20 out of the 30 days of June, and the box office reflected the weather perceptibly. July was even less favorable, for it was called the wettest July since 1875.

On July 4, however, the attendance record for a single night was broken, when 11,337 people attended "Hit the Deck." A few weeks later, on Aug. 8, this record was shattered by an attendance of 11,385 at "Roberta," and on the following night 11,382 attended.

In 12 weeks 11 operettas and musical comedies were presented. "Show Boat," which closed the season, was given for two weeks. The other works in the 1942 schedule, each given for one week, were "Roberta," "The Wizard of Oz," "Hit the Deck," "The New Moon," "Girl Crazy," "Glamorous Night" [10 performances], "No, No, Nanette," "Wildflower," "Song of the Flame," and "Sally."

• • •

Thruout the season thousands of free reserved seats were given to men in military service, thru the distribution facilities of the USO. On Aug. 24 a benefit performance of "Show Boat," for the Army and Navy relief funds, netted $7,600 in ticket sales. Additional contributions raised the total to about $10,000, and a war bond rally during the evening netted $37,000 in bond sales.

Notes of the Theater

"Junior Miss," which opens tomorrow night at the Harris theater, is a production which, like "My Sister Eileen," is the work of Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov. Max Gordon, the producer of both plays, chose for the rôles of the three young girls who are the focal characters in "Junior Miss" a trio of juveniles who have a minimum of stage experience; for, he declared, he wished to work with material that was pliable, and which, therefore, could be easily molded. The three youngsters are Lenore Thomas and Sandra Holman [who have both just turned 16 years of age], and Eileen Clarence, who is scarcely a year older. It must not be believed, however, that those players are tyros at entertaining. Lenore Thomas, who takes the title rôle, began dancing and ice skating when she was 6, was active in ballet, tap, and acrobatic dancing two years later, and had a child rôle in "The Gay Divorcement" during a two week engagement a year ago.

Eileen Clarence, the elder and spiteful sister of "Junior Miss," began studying dramatic art when she was 9, and at 12 played the daughter in a revival of "The Drunkard" in New York. This appearance in "Junior Miss" is her big opportunity.

The "New 1943 Hellzapoppin," which is to make things boisterous at the Erlanger theater Sept. 28, is described by Messrs. Shubert's representatives as "a big all-star, all wacky array of escaped lunatics." Lew Parker and Jack Gleason head the lineup of comedians and specialty artists, and Olsen and Johnson are declared to have worked out new skits and sketches. There are to be new songs, too, by Sammy Fain and Charles Tobias, and if you are curious as their titles they are "We're Two," "The New Hellzapoppin," "Scarecrow," "Pledge of My Heart," and "Latin with the Patent Leather Hair." Edward D. Dowling is responsible for the staging and Dick Barstow for the dancing.

The Douglas Park theater, Ogden and Kedzie avenues, will open tomorrow evening with a performance of Scholom Secunda's "Street Singers," a new work which uses a cast of 25. The stars will be Menachem Rubin, Edmund Zayenda, Rose Wallerstein, Sam Gertler, Abe Lax, and Malvina Rappel.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

Perhaps the hardest thing in the world to kill is tradition. Generally speaking, this is as it should be, because tradition is usually both sound and beautiful. In its bridge sense, however, tradition has a lot to answer for. It has foisted upon contract players the worst faults of auction bridge—faults that apparently have carried over from one generation to another.

Outstanding among these noxious inheritances is the notion—blindly, doggedly held by millions of players—that an opening no trump asks for a takeout in any five-card major suit. The observance of this so-called rule has cost untold millions of points. For the fact of the matter is that a no trump should not be taken out to any suit bid unless there is a genuine reason—not a general reason—for doing so. An unbalanced holding by the responder [a singleton or a void] constitutes a genuine reason, but the mere presence of a five-card major suit most emphatically does not. Richard L. Frey, writing in The Bridge World magazine, documents this point further, as follows:

"Here is an example of how the correct opening bid of one no trump helps the responding hand—and why the responding hand shouldn't take out of no trump merely because he has a five-card major suit.

"East, dealer.

"East-West vulnerable.

"The bidding:

| East | South | West | North |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | 1 no trump | Pass | 3 no trump |
| Pass | Pass | Pass | |

"Before entering into discussion of the bidding, let's see the play. There's no play whatever for four spades. North would have to lose two diamonds and a heart and the failure of the spade finesse would doom him. At three no trump South demonstrated that a little knowledge was a dangerous thing.

"West opened the heart four. As his best chance of winning two tricks in the suit, declarer played dummy's queen and held the trick. This was correct as far as it went, but it didn't go far enough to win the game, which depended on bringing in a flock of spade tricks. South had to take the spade finesse, and when it lost, a heart lead thru his king let West win five hearts and declarer was down two.

"The circumstance of being forced to take the spade finesse into the East hand should have determined the way declarer played the heart suit. If the finesse succeeded declarer didn't need even one heart trick. If it failed, South could make game only if East's hearts were exhausted by the time he won the spade king, or if the hearts were 4-4. Therefore, South should have withheld both dummy's heart queen and his own heart king from the first trick. A heart continuation by the defenders would remove East's last heart; and no other lead could set up enough tricks to defeat the contract.

"The bidding of this deal holds two points of importance. One is the difficulty which the opening bidder gets himself into if he opens with anything but one no trump. His hand is just sufficiently strong so that if partner responds with one no trump he would like to bid two no trump, yet it is not quite strong enough for that raise to be safe. The problem is solved when the opening bid itself is one no trump, and the decision whether to play there or go further rests where it belongs—with partner.

"The other point is the way the opening no trump bid helps the responder when he has the medium-strong type of hand. The responder knows that there will be no slam in the hand, but he also knows there will be a good play for game. He therefore raises the no trump and stops worrying."

Hearts are trump and South leads. North and South are to win seven tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads the ace of clubs and then a small one. If West leads the diamond, North ducks and South ruffs and finesses trumps.

If West leads a spade, North wins and lets South ruff the small diamond, and lead the trump, as before.

If West leads the trump, North wins and makes the same play in diamonds, getting in with the spade ace to pick up the trumps and make the club.

Fall Sees Advent of Line of 18th Century Furniture

New Ensemble for Your Home in Six Colors

By Edith Weigle.

Furniture and furnishings of 18th century England are perennially popular, so it is not surprising that this autumn sees the advent of a whole new line of merchandise built around the theme of Georgian elegance. Drapery fabrics, upholsteries, floor coverings, wall papers, paints, even the smallest accessory such as an ash tray or a waste basket are specially manufactured to go with the furniture, most of which is of dark mahogany.

The woman customer may select a single chair or table, or complete furnishings for her home in this group, and she may see all the pieces in a series of rooms of average size, interiors such as she has in her own house or apartment. If she doesn't like one type of dining table she may choose from among four others. Colors, too, are varied and as they are all especially mixed and dyed to harmonize she can select any two or three at random and be certain they will blend.

These tones are as follows: Bristol blue, a saft, easy-to-live-with, medium blue; Thames tan, a beige; York yellow, derived from gold; Garrick green, a pleasing leaf or forest green; Romney rose, a truse rose tone, and Mayfair mauve, a lavender hue. All the fabrics, paints and wall papers are made in each of these colors.

• • •

For the formal room there are brocaded damasks, rich tapestries, quilted rayon taffetas, satin striped silk rayons and floral gabardines; for informal interiors, colorful chintzes, cretonnes, sateens and sheer celanese in delicate colors. And for those women who like to avoid monotony in furniture finishes there are a few pieces of beautiful pickled pine, and colored lacquer to mix with the dark mahogany.

In one bedroom, for example, interesting lattice-back Chippendale beds lacquered Garrick green are used with dark mahogany Chippendale tall chest, bureau, and dressing table. The quilted taffeta bedspreads also are green, as are the silk window draperies which are hung under a latticework cornice of natural bamboo. A pair of antique white side chairs have seats of yellow striped silk, and this gold note is repeated in an ornate Chippendale gold mirror hung above the dressing table.

• • •

If you never thought of lavender as a possible color for walls you'll be interested to see how successfully it is used in the living room of this model house. The pebbly weave wall-to-wall rug is the same Mayfair mauve tone, and the woodwork is painted pure white in contrast.

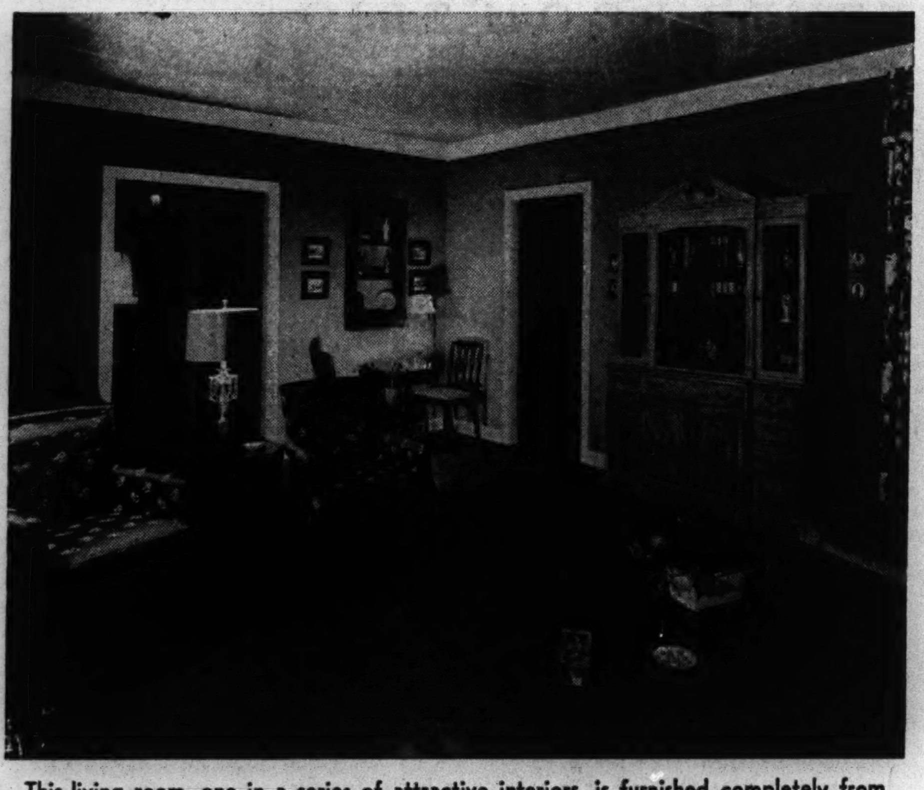
Against one wall is a tall, important breakfront bookcase-cabinet of natural pine. Opposite is the white fireplace. A third wall, broken by the door to the entrance hall, has a handsome writing desk on one side and a small table set up for a chess game, with accompanying mahogany chairs on the other. The couch is against the fourth wall and nearby is a mahogany drum table with a handsome lamp and a drop leaf table, while a leather topped coffee table completes the grouping.

• • •

Window draperies are of a beautiful toile in 18th century design on white, and the accessories are of crystal and porcelain. One handsome lamp has a plain, dark paper shade and a base adapted from a beautiful old crystal drop candlestick.

An excellent suggestion for a dark interior is the delightful York yellow in which a second bedroom's walls are painted. The dark mahogany bed has a spread of yellow and white chenille and the same sunny hue is repeated in the floral printed cotton draperies and upholstery of an armchair.

The room is really given the effect of sunlight and is one of the most charming in the entire series. But see them all for yourself, for seeing is believing that the 18th century was truly the golden age of furniture design.



This living room, one in a series of attractive interiors, is furnished completely from ash trays to wall paint in a new line of home furnishings that follows the 18th century English trend. Mauve is the dominant color in this particular scheme. But there are five other hues in this made-to-go-together palette.

'Good Sports' Puzzled; Is It Compliment?

By Doris Blake.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

One correspondent confides to us that she loathes being called a "good sport." Another young woman reports that her beau had her all confused by telling her she was the best sport he ever knew. The second young woman, it seems, thought he was proposing to her by so extoling her sportsmanship, anyway, giving her encouragement.

We gather, therefore, that there is confusion in young minds about this matter of being a good sport. This uncertainty is due for a little clearing up.

1. Is being called a good sport the highest form of compliment?
2. Is it a quality in women that men dearly appreciate?
3. Is being a good sport to be confused with the deeper emotion known as love?

• • •

The latter probably is the question on which an answer is most widely sought.

Well, there is good sportsmanship as women see it, and there's good sportsmanship as men appreciate and like it. There is self-styled good sportsmanship that pays no dividends any way you face it. As an example of the latter we will present Joan's experience:

"The fellow was out of a job for a year. I made him money loans time and again. I paid for every dinner, movie, dance, and other entertainment. In return for my being such a good sport, the minute the fellow got a job he started taking another girl friend around. Isn't that appreciation? Believe me, I'll neve be that kind of sport again!"

Such conduct is not good sportsmanship! If the girl were to analyze her motives honestly she'd discover she paid the restaurant checks and bought the theater tickets because she wanted, at all costs, to be with the man. She gave him money because she was afraid she would lose him if she didn't. Either that or, by obligating him to her, she felt she had a stronger hold.

• • •

No, it never is being a good sport to rob a man of his right to self-respect. That's what happens when a woman keeps on playing Joan's sort of rôle. The man loses respect for her as well as for himself, and his quick turn to another girl means merely an attempt to restore in himself some of that lost confidence.

Question No. 1 cannot be answered with a yes or no. The incident would influence the decision one way or the other, but if a young woman met a trying situation or an embarrassing one in which she maintained her temper, her poise, her grace and charm, and were she then described as a good sport, it would be a compliment. For the "highest form of compliment" we think we would reserve the marriage proposal with the words "I love you."

Modern conversation attaches to the phrase "a good sport" an evaluation not always appreciated by a woman, in fact, often resented by her. It fixes her as a pal, but never a sweetheart, a girl who'll stand for neglect and never complain; a woman who will do everything and receive nothing in return.

• • •

There are elements of good sportsmanship that appeal to men. A handsome young man we know gives its broad definition as a sense of fair play.

The good sport is courteous, well bred, kind and unselfish, he observes. Whether she wins or loses, she never forgets her sense of justice. If she wins, she never is condescending or patronizing to the loser. If she loses, she doesn't wail over her mistakes, bad luck, or handicaps, and this goes for life and love as well as golf, bridge, or tennis.

• • •

Here is a brief questionnaire by which you may help to determine your own good sportsmanship rating, as men see it:

Do you break your word as often as you keep it?

Can you mingle with ease with people inferior to you in intelligence and station in life?

Do you graciously forgive tardiness and disappointments?

Do you nurse grudges?

Do you harp on the mistakes of others?

• • •

Are you genuinely glad to see your friends succeed, even when you are out of luck yourself?

Do you make a fetish of being frank and speaking your mind openly even tho it hurts?

Can you take criticism without rancor?

Can you take a joke on yourself?

Do you expect a man to spend more money on you than he can afford?

Do you judge a man by one or two weaknesses instead of measuring his whole character?

Are you given to scenes of jealousy?

In other words, man's idea of a good sport is one who corresponds to his ideal of a generous, loving, sympathetic, understanding woman, which, if the interpretation be true, must be conceded a high compliment, if not the highest he can pay her. And here you have the answer to question No. 3.

New Bedspread Pattern

By Ellen Bruce.

Every crochet worker is alert for a new bedspread pattern that is different and not too difficult. This attractive design is the answer to what we all have looked for. It is not difficult to create and the pattern is set together to form an interesting design. White, mercerized, crochet cotton may be used. White lusterless bed cotton is another suggestion.

Hikers to Hold Farewell Party for Member Oct. 9

All members and friends of the North Shore Hiking club are urged to reserve Friday evening, Oct. 9, for a fish fry party at the Long Grove blacksmith shop in west Lake county. The autumn outing is planned as a farewell to Miss Anne Moring of Evanston, who has been one of the club's most active members. Miss Moring has been accepted for service with the WAACs.

Child Thrives in Home Life That Is Full

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Did you happen to read a Sunday article about children's intelligence which appeared some weeks ago in this department? Here is another on the same subject.

Home and school can help a child's intelligence to develop, or they can hinder it; but, even if school fails, observing and loving parents can make their child's mental and emotional life rich and full. On the Sunday I refer to, we talked about this very thing, pointing it up with tales of our own black kitty and our Scottie, MacGregor, when they were very small.

But, after finishing that article, I thought that a great many mothers might feel at sea or, perhaps, discouraged, thinking that it must be a difficult and complicated procedure to treat their child so that his intelligence would flower. It occurred to me that they might think that such a result would require a teacher's training or some elaborate sort of technique.

• • •

This is not so. It isn't difficult to treat your son and daughter [of any age] in such a way that their minds grow and develop. It isn't complicated, and you don't have to be a super-super parent to achieve that end.

A few broad statements and the path ahead is clear; and this advice, incidentally, applies to the training of the exceptionally brilliant child, too, about whom so many parents write to me. Here are some signposts to show you the way:

Give your child a real wholehearted interest [and this means at every age].

Regard him or her as a person, full of potentialities.

Treat him as a friend.

Be patient, infinitely patient, with all his attempts at all kinds of learning. If you do this you will soon come to interpret nearly everything he does as a learning process. When you do, your way of responding to that behavior and of handling your child will change for the better, and will simultaneously encourage his whole personality development, which, of course, includes the development of his intelligence.

• • •

This learning will take many forms: There will be all sorts of experiment [or trial and error] in the exercise of the big muscles, in the exercise of small muscle skills [deftness], and in the change of activity, as when a boy or girl switches from one hobby to another, showing that short-lived interest that distresses so many parents.

Another important means to employ, if your aim is to foster the development of your child's mentality, is to answer his questions. I think I have mentioned before that the father of a boy who is outstandingly brilliant told me he attributed his son's development to the fact that he always had gone out of his way to answer his son's questions, or to find out the answers if he did not know them.

• • •

Now it is necessary, I think, for me to tack a warning onto this last piece of advice. It consists of this: That answering a child's questions does not mean crowding his mind with facts and large "gobs" of information. It does not mean cramming him with "culture." It does not involve taking measures for his improvement that will result in priggishness or boredom. To illustrate:

I've seen children ask questions that, in most cases, required a brief answer, receive a perfect deluge of information. Too much for them to take in, or too much for the demands or mood of the moment. As, for example, a boy may be absorbed in reading a book and, without breaking his concentration, ask his father the meaning of a word. All that is needed is an adequate synonym, instead of which his father embarks upon a long paragraph of explanation. Also, I've seen children have "culture" crammed down their throats [outside of school, of course]; lectures on subjects they had no interest in, and art courses where there was no aptitude, resulting in listlessness, with only a little of the cultural courses "sticking" to the surface.

• • •

Quite the opposite of this forcing or cramming process to develop a child's mind is the one which watches to see what his natural interests or talents are, and giving those everything they need to grow.

These various measures and attitudes will accomplish the result you are seeking, but not without one more vital element. You must provide for your child the rich soil of an understanding home life, with all that that means, to grow in.

The Stamp Collector

When a collector asks for advice on starting a modest collection of cancellations on cover this department usually recommends that he try his hand with slogan postmarks. These are all of rather recent origin and a good start may be made if access can be had to an office waste-basket.

Slogan postmarks are those which advertise something thru the use of words, phrases, slogans, etc., in the killer portion of the postmark. Slogans may call attention to some event, such as an exposition, or may advise the purchase of Christmas seals, or war stamps or bonds, or admonish the reader to join the Red Cross.

Slogan postmarks dated before 1900 are not easy to secure and there are only a few varieties. The first according to available records was used at Toledo, O., from 1898 until 1902 to advertise the centennial of the state of Ohio. It reads "Ohio 1902 Centennial," and is fairly scarce. In 1899 Buffalo, N. Y., began to advertise the coming world's fair with a slogan which reads "Pan American Exposition." This is fairly common in the usual triangular design in a narrow killer of straight lines, but a later type used in 1900 with the slogan on an involute flag is one of the scarcest varieties of all.

Slogans were used to advertise two other events in 1899. These were the National Export exposition at Philadelphia and a street fair at Memphis. The former is common while the latter is very rare. The Memphis mark is unusual, for it introduces a separate rectangular box between the town mark and the killer which contains the slogan "Street Fair—Oct. 23-29—Memphis," in three lines.

In 1900 six slogans were used in connection with United States postmarks. One of the most interesting for the year is that which appeared at Paris, France, on a machine in the United States Postal exhibit at the Paris exposition. This had the slogan "Paris Exposition 1900," in a box in the center of the usual flag killer. The scarcest postmarks of the year were those used at the annual convention of letter carriers in Detroit and to advertise the South Carolina Interstate and West Indian exposition at Charleston. Less important were the marks used at Houston for the Texas Fruit Flower and Vegetable Festival, Dec. 10 to 15, 1900; at Dallas for the Texas State Fair, Sept. 29-Oct. 14, 1900, and at St. Louis to start the advertising for the Louisiana Purchase exposition.

During the following year only three events rated new slogans altho several of those of previous years continued to call attention to future events. The new marks were for an International Fair at San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 19-30, the annual Texas state fair at Dallas, and a carnival at Ventura, Cal., with the last mentioned being quite rare.

In 1902 only two new slogans appear to have been used. Both were for the Elks, the first for a street fair at Oakland, Cal., and the other for a carnival at Peoria. Both marks are scarce, but that of the Oakland post office ranks among a half dozen of the rarest slogans. At that period there was a let down in the number of advertising slogans permitted by the postoffice department. In 1904 Portland, Ore., announced a World's Fair in that city for the following year. In 1906 Newport News, Norfolk and Portsmouth, Va., began using slogans to call attention to the Jamestown exposition of 1907. In 1908 Seattle, Wash., likewise announced the World's Fair in that city in 1909.

The next new variety on the list did not come out until 1911 when several California cities began to advertise the Panama Pacific Exposition at San Francisco in 1915. These slogans are quite common, for they were continued in use until the event took place. In 1912, Key West, Fla., celebrated the completion of the overseas railroad with an appropriate slogan and in 1913 new varieties were used at Cleveland in connection with a celebration of Perry's victory at the Battle of Lake Erie, and at Dallas to advertise a corn exposition and at Tulsa, Okla., in connection with a Dry Farming congress.

Slogans of 1914 include one for the sixth annual convention of the Southern Commercial congress at Muskogee, Okla., another for a Dry Farming congress at Wichita and a third for the National Star Spangled Banner Centennial celebration at Baltimore. Of those last mentioned only the Key West mark is difficult to obtain.

A continuation of the story of slogan postmarks will appear in an early issue of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

A few months ago it was announced by the stamp column of a New York newspaper that the United States would issue a stamp to commemorate the destroyed village of Lidice, Czecho-Slovakia, and that the first day sale would take place on Aug. 14, first anniversary of the Atlantic Charter of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Almost immediately a denial was made by the postoffice department that any such stamp was under consideration, much less approved. In the current issue of Scott's Monthly Journal Kent. B. Stiles explains the situation which led to the assumption that a Lidice stamp was about to be issued and the Stamp Collector believes that a brief resumé will be of interest to its readers.

Several months before the actual Lidice story begins a group of professional artists under the leadership of Paul F. Berdanier, secretary of the Collectors Club of New York and advertising art director of the J. Walter Thompson Company, volunteered their skill and time in preparing a series of designs which would be suitable in promoting the war effort.

Early in July Mr. Berdanier showed the designs to a group of officials in Washington, which included representatives of the postoffice and war departments and of the Office of Facts and Figures, a unit of the Office of War Information. The sketches were presented solely as a contribution of artists who wished to assist in winning the war.

Following his return to New York, Mr. Berdanier received a commission from the Office of Facts and Figures to prepare a design to honor the village of Lidice. The requirements were for a three cent stamp, purple in color, with a release date set for Aug. 14. On the strength of this commission the assumption was made that the United States would issue such a stamp on the date given.

Mr. Berdanier called a meeting of artists and others including representatives of the Office of War Information. Twenty artists submitted designs for the stamp and at this point the newspaper stamp columnist released his story that the United States was preparing to issue a Lidice stamp on Aug. 14. Other philatelic writers seeking information at the postoffice department received no information except denials concerning the entire matter. The postmaster general stated that such a stamp had never been considered, and consequently no commission could have been given for the design.

Postmaster General Walker speaks only for the postoffice department in his statements, for it seems to be a fact that the OFF gave a commission to Mr. Berdanier which was executed and completed when he delivered 62 sketches of 20 contributing artists to the Office of Facts and Figures at Washington. Perhaps the Office of War Information was overstepping the line by making commissions for stamps. The postoffice department is very jealous of its prerogatives. On the other hand it may have been that premature publicity spoiled a climax toward which the Bureau of War Information had been pointing.

Dried Beans Excellent Replacement on Meatless Days

Fashions.......
By Angela

If you're a wool gatherer, fall dress designers are making it a most delightful pastime. Why not make the most of your talents and gather yourself a new wool dress for fall and winter; to wear now during the first cool days without a wrap and later on under your heavy coat when keeping warm is just as important as looking smart and fashionable?

This collection of fall frocks covers the color wheel ranging thru purple, kelly, forest green, black, red, and brown.

At the top of the column is a two piecer with a gored skirt and jacket top, the latter combined with velveteen which forms a panel down the front and continues around the hips bordering the hem line. Tucked under that front border are two pockets. Under $20.

Plaid is a fall favorite. To wear with the plaited plaid skirt is a bodice of plain brown of a light weight wool trimmed with diagonal arrows of matching plaid.

The third sketch is of a one piece dress in the popular peg top style. Prominent tucks take up the fullness in a decorative way at the shoulders and the front of the skirt. Chinese masks are made into clasps for the front closing. Under $13.

Mink tails tied into soft little bows elegantly decorate the deep curved yoke and the round pockets of dress number four. It's a two piece dress with close fitting bracelet length sleeves. In a soft medium brown you'll find it very rich looking.

A material in a soft plaid design is plaited into a full comfortable skirt and fluted in a narrow cartridge plaiting which is sewed on the plain bodice in such a way as to outline the pockets and the square yoke. Plain buttons fasten the top of the two piece dress from the high round neck to the hemline.

Here's a Few Recipes on How to Serve Them

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

In planning meatless meals it is necessary to replace the meat with a food of approximately the same protein value. Dried beans of all kinds, fish, poultry, and cheese are excellent meat replacers. Because it is difficult for many homemakers to think of new ways of serving dried beans and cheese as a main dish, I've gathered a few time tested recipes for this kind of good protein food. At present there's a surplus of cheese in this country, so it's a good plan to serve cheese dishes frequently.

Soybean Loaf.
[Serves six to eight.]
3 cups cooked dried soybeans
1 cup broken macaroni, cooked
1 onion, chopped
1 egg, well beaten
Salt, pepper
½ cup tomato purée

To prepare dried soybeans, soak them overnight, then simmer until tender in water to cover. Better yet, use a pressure cooker or saucepan and, without soaking, you can cook the beans in half an hour or less. Combine ingredients, pack into a greased loaf pan, and bake at 375 degrees for 40 minutes. Slice and serve hot. Tomato sauce may be served with the loaf, if desired.

You can't buy the dried soybeans at every grocery, but they are available at health food stores and many of the larger markets.

Cream of Lentil Soup with Cheese.
[Serves four.]
1 cup cooked lentils, mashed
2 cups water and 2 cups milk, or
1 qt. milk
1 tablespoon butter
1 small onion, minced
2 tablespoons flour
Salt, pepper

Add lentils to water and milk, or milk alone, and heat. Sauté onion in butter until soft, add flour, and blend. Add lentil mixture and cook until thickened and smooth. Serve hot with grated cheese sprinkled over every serving.

Mock Sausages.
[Serves three.]
1 cup puréed split peas or dried beans
½ cup dry bread crumbs
2 tablespoons cream
Salt, pepper
1 tablespoon minced onion
½ teaspoon sage
1 egg, beaten
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
Fine crumbs or crushed corn flakes

To obtain the purée, cook split peas or dried beans in simmering water until tender, then put thru a sieve. Pulp should be thick. Combine all ingredients except the last, and shape into small patties. Roll in fine bread, cracker, or cornflake crumbs. Brown in hot ham or bacon drippings, or in butter. Serve with apple rings.

Salad Luncheon.
[Serves six.]
½ bunch romaine, cut in pieces
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
¼ cup piccalilli
1 cup cooked peas or cut green beans
3 tomatoes, peeled and diced
½ cup cubed American cheese
Salt, pepper
French dressing

Toss ingredients together in a salad bowl.

Cheese and Bean Loaf.
[Serves six.]
1 cup cooked navy or kidney beans
1 cup cottage cheese
½ cup chopped peanuts
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 cup cooked rice
1 small onion, minced
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 tablespoon bacon or ham drippings
1 cup tomato juice
Salt, pepper.

Mix ingredients thoroly, shape into a roll, and brush over with melted fat. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Serve with medium white sauce or celery sauce.

Spinach Ring Dinner.
[Serves six.]
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
½ pound American cheese, sliced
1 cup finely chopped cooked spinach
1½ cups bread crumbs
3 eggs, well beaten
Salt, pepper
Hot mashed potatoes
Small buttered beets

Melt butter and blend in flour. Add milk and cook to smooth, thick sauce, stirring constantly. Add cheese and let melt in sauce. Add spinach, crumbs, beaten eggs, and seasonings. Fill greased ring mold and bake in a slow oven, 325 degrees, until firm, about 50 minutes. Unmold on a hot platter and fill center of ring with hot mashed potatoes. Surround with the buttered beets.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

These first autumn days, the transition period from summer to autumn, have found straw hats mingling with felt ones, winter shades stealing the spotlight from summer prints, and have brought forth the usual complaints from those who "rushed the season" and ended up by dressing too warmly, and from those who wish they had brought along a coat. A conglomeration of summer and autumn frocks and suits was found at the Racquet club recently when the Service club entertained at tea for the young women who are to assist at its fall benefit, the opening of the "Ice Follies of 1943" on Oct. 13 at the Chicago Arena. . . . Miss Alys Faurot, a tall, slender blonde, was wearing a straw hat, an interesting one of navy color that covered the back of her head, and which was trimmed at either side of her head with red grosgrain ribbon, giving a "wide" look to her rather oval face. She was wearing a navy blue dress and bolero jacket. The sash that trimmed the frock was piped in white. . . . Miss Alice Hooper, who also is taller than average, was wearing a gray silk street dress, with plaits in the skirt, and a fetching little flowered bonnet that perched above one eye. Miss Fifi Montgomery, who had had a luncheon that day for all of the buds of the season, was wearing a stunning navy blue dress and matching draped turban, unrelieved by any other color.

Miss Alice Hooper.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Hattie Ogden was wearing one of the new basic black dresses. Inset in it was a wide sash. A strand of pearls brightened the neckline. Miss Beth Coleman came to the tea in her light blue OCD uniform. Mrs. Edwin W. Sims Jr.'s suit was of bright scarlet, its sleeves of crocheted work to match the smart little crocheted turban trimmed with matching yarn perched atop her head. About her neck were several kolinsky skins. . . . Mrs. John Quincy Adams Jr., who is doing her first work for the club, looked especially smart in a beige dress and hat. The dress was trimmed with beige yarn fringe arranged to simulate a deep bertha. Her hat was a wide brimmed one, buccaneer style. Mrs. Loyal Davis greeted autumn in a smart black wool suit that fastened with brass service buttons.

• • •

Mrs. George Woodruff watched the Dunham Woods Riding club horse show seated on the bumper of her car, with a parasol to shield her from the sun. Wool clothes were not uncomfortable at the show, but the brilliant sunshine kept most of the spectators wishing they had dark glasses. Mrs. Nathaniel Duval watched from her car in a pale blue slipover sweater and a mixed tweed skirt. . . . Patsy Salek epitomized the younger feminine riders present. She was wearing tan jodhpurs, a coat of finely checked brown tweed, and a black velvet jockey cap, most becoming with her long, light brown curls. There were many present in slacks, among them Mrs. Herbert Nye, whose jacket and trousers were of navy-blue. Mrs. William Joyce's costume consisted of black wool slacks, well tailored, topped by a short beige wool jacket with large buttons of the same material down the front.

At the Passavant benefit on the opening night of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey circus Mrs. Arthur A. Burrows Jr. wore a basic black dress and a gay little bunch of flowers held to her head by a black bandeau. Mrs. Philip D. Armour Jr.'s hat was trimmed at the center of the forehead with birds whose wings and tails shot a full 12 inches straight up into the air, a stunning and unusual chapeau. . . . Mrs. Henry L. McIntyre's new bonnet was made of golden yellow breast feathers, and was nothing but a high, high, cone shaped crown, but, O, so smart. Her dress was of green wool. Mrs. Edward B. Smith's simple black dress was of crêpe, trimmed with narrow black velvet ribbon, and her hat was a pompon of black feathery stuff above her forehead. Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, chairman of the benefit, looked pleased and happy, as well she might, in a ringside box. Her dress was a suavely cut black silk one, and her smoothly dressed golden hair was topped by black aigrette plumes. Mrs. John L. Cochran's hat was little more than a headdress, really consisting of several shocking pink feather wings fastened to a black band, and jutting straight up. Her dress, too, was a basic black one. These frocks threaten to become as much a uniform as the Red Cross uniform Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer wore to the circus.

Looking every inch a debutante in her white net gown was Miss Priscilla Pirie, who was introduced to society at a tea a few days ago in the Winnetka home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. Pirie. The dress was made with a long waistline and short sleeves. Silver balls were embroidered on the skirt and on the sleeves, and silver embroidery trimmed the heart shaped neckline and outlined the bottom of the waist. The debutante's flowers were white stephanotis. . . . Miss Catherine Loucks chose ice blue taffeta for her debut dress. Pink net and ivory net were used in an interesting decoration, and sequins in four colors outlined rubrum lilies on the bodice. She carried pink orchids. Miss Jane Leonard, for whom the only supper-dance of the fall season was given, was the belle of her own ball in floating white silk net. The skirt was extremely bouffant. The bodice was tight fitting, and the drop shoulder neckline was trimmed with white ostrich feathers. Silver slippers twinkled beneath the frothy white skirt, and a tiny bouquet of white stephanotis and one white orchid, and a coronet of the white stephanotis in her hair completed the picture. . . . One of the most handsomely dressed bridal groups of the early fall was that surrounding Miss Lucy Trumbull when she became the bride of Dr. Frederick M. Owens Jr. a few days ago. The bride wore her mother's wedding dress, magnificently trimmed with rosepoint lace. Her attendants were in copper colored satin, the first of the season, gleaming and shimmering in the softly lighted Christ church, Winnetka. Instead of the conventional bouquets of flowers they carried rope garlands of chrysanthemums in all the fall shades.

Boundaries.

The little road leads from the domain of one great state into that of another, but there are no forbidding barriers, no gray stone pillars, no toll houses. The wayfarer is not halted and searched for contraband. Indeed, he does not even sense when he crosses the boundary.

On the hither side a field of ripened grain flows in golden waves under a caressing summer wind, which lifts some little seeds now and then and bears them over yonder, where they may bear fruit a hundredfold. At the far margin of the field is a great fruit tree that spreads its laden limbs without favor to one side or another. Birds nest in its branches and fling their song or wing their flight to anywhere they list.

The same beneficent sun shines on all the land alike and at night the witchery of the moon makes a fairyland of the whole peaceful scene, and love songs rising from the prairies over here are echoed from the rolling hills over yonder.

When lightning strikes and sears and burns, when floods come, when grief scourges the one or the other, neighbor hurries to offer aid and comfort to neighbor and takes no account of boundaries. No more than the little boy who sits there in the sun, takes a handful of sand from here, a handful of clay from there, and builds himself a little house in his play.

There are thousands of these little roads. When will the world learn their lesson?

Laughing in the Rain.
(For Pauline.)

Tiger lily, tiger lily,
Standing in the rain,
To the glum gray skies a-crying,
Send your flame up, rain-defying!

While the world sinks in despair,

Shout with laughter! Shake your hair!

Let the weak ones hide from rain;

You will flaunt your flame again!

Tiger lily, tiger lily,
Laughing in the rain!

PHYLLIS BRIGGS.

Forest Fire.

A mask of red upon the sky
And flame swords in the air;
They slash the canvas painted by
The hand of nature fair.

The wind blows breath into the lungs
Of lurid hate and ire—
Devoured by these dragon tongues,
The forest all afire.

LILLIAN OSWALD.

I saw the house from the winding road. It was so little and old and weather beaten it looked almost as black as the trunks of the great old trees that towered above it. But on the porch was a bench painted a fresh apple green, and there was a little window box with white petunias and a trailing cluster of heavenly blue morning glories. Some one who needed a bit of beauty had coaxed it from a little can of paint and a few dry seeds.

Stage Fright.

"And next Sunday
the program will take place,
so learn your verse."'

His small defiant face caught her eye. He said:
"I won't be here!"
"You won't?" she asked. "But why not, dear?"

Resolutely he went on to say,
"I'm going to be sick that day!"

NORMA M. RANKIN.

Back Yard Friends.

I, too, am the lady of a little house.
From my window I can see
My neighbors' yards and porches,
Over which we chat pleasantly!

Sometimes we exchange a recipe,
Or borrow an egg or two;
Or ask each other's advice
Whether to paint our kitchens red or blue.

Sometimes we sit on our porches
And have a cup of tea;
We chat about this and that,
And enjoy each other's company.

We don't put on airs, or wear fancy clothes—
Just a neat, crisp frock. We don't even powder our nose!
When washday comes round each week,
We chat over the fence for awhile.
We talk about our families, or some new hair style.
We tell one another our troubles,
Or, perhaps the baby kept us up all night;
And somehow thinking about these simple things
Makes the world seem quite all right!

DOT RAYBORN.

Readying for their southward trek, the robins are working their systematic way down the mountain ash. They begin at the top and clean off each cluster of berries as they work down. A dozen of them are at it at the moment. They stage little fights for diversion and then go and squat in the bird bath, challenging all comers for possession. There's one in there now making believe he's a duck. How they love to bathe!

A young grackle stalks about turning over leaves to see what he can find for supper; and a bright warbler flashes in and out of the chestnut tree like a shred of elusive sunlight.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

Softly tailored models are "musts" for the autumn and winter season. We busy women need clothes which are feminine at the same time they are practical, wearable thruout our busy wartime days. Today's three dresses are of this type.

At the left, a two-piece effect frock combining plaid and plain fabrics ingeniously. The plaid used in the flared skirt is repeated at the square neckline, as cuffs on the short sleeves, and as a belt around the slim waist. Two wool materials may be combined, but the more patriotic idea would be a fusion of velveteen or corduroy and crêpe or synthetic.

Center, a new version of the jumper frock, indispensable for school or office. This one has a dainty blouse which deftly avoids the too-tailored look. There's a wide choice of materials fashionable for this frock, too.

Right, a model designed for both slim and more mature figures with paneled skirt, softly draped bodice, and slim sleeves. It's a distinguished dress calling for only your favorite costume jewelry as accent.

Style No. 3581 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19. Size 15 requires 1⅛ yards of 39 inch plain material and 1¾ yards of 39 inch plaid fabric.

Style No. 2779 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires, for the jumper, 3½ yards of 39 inch material; for blouse, 2 yards of 39 inch fabric.

Style No. 3585 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

Some intriguing color type guides in purse size are available for the asking, and handy guides they are. . . . A manufacturer of modern, water thinned paints offers these helps that you may select colors according to your type. . . . Whether you are blonde, brunette, red haired, or gray haired you can use this guide if you are painting the walls and ceiling of a room and discover what tints and shades flatter you most and compliment your individual type. . . . There also are mixing charts to be had which show different possible shades, obtainable by adding certain quantities of deep colors to white. . . . These washable and easy to apply paints come in 10 pastel colors and 10 deep colors, and their soft, velvety finish reflects light rather than absorbs it.

If you would like to have some mirror in your home installed flush with the wall and yet be able to remove it and take it with you in case you move, there's an adhesive suited to just this purpose. . . . It will cement the mirror directly to the wall and still permit its removal when necessary. . . . There are two types of this adhesive, one for light mirrors and one for those which are heavier and require a stronger plastic with a heavier bond. . . . It is claimed that the adhesives are waterproof and will keep their toughness and resiliency.

Judging Cotton Goods.

One way to judge the quality of cotton goods is to unravel a yarn and pull out the small fibers; the best fabrics have the longest fibers.

Career Wardrobes Take Place in Fashion Scheme

No Longer Are They Merely Office Clothes

By Rea Seeger.

Career wardrobes are, at last, assuming their rightful rôles in the fashion scheme. They are not segregated in a definite or distinctive classification, that is, office clothes, but are super collections for any woman sleuthing about for smooth, well groomed, smart dresses, suits, coats, and the important costume accessories for a busy working routine.

Career girl fashions are typically American, instantly recognized for their superlative streamlining, outstanding color, fine fabrics, excellent workmanship, and distinction of design. Dresses are the last word in fitted symmetry, suits equally smooth and flattering, without a hint of cluttering frou-frou, yet anything but masculine because of the tailoring or details. All the star models are young, with a flair for action and service without being utilitarian.

• • •

This fall and in the early winter collections, suits and dresses are especially stressed. Models are accommodatingly separable in the suits, assuring plenty of variation with other jackets and other skirts. Dresses are simply cut and designed to adhere to the frozen silhouette edicts, also following faithfully the general outline and extreme simplicity of details. Pockets are concealed; there are no extra flaps or excessive extras, but inspired designers have worked miracles with silhouette and clever details such as center shirrings, folds, draw string effects, and their interesting accents.

Office dresses are available in straight line models featuring both short or long sleeves; necklines are soft and flattering and usually high. Skirts are straight with controled fullness. Fabrics feature soft textures and unusual colors. Office or career girls' winter or fall coats are knockout successes; classic, casual types in straight lines, like the new Chesterfield models that are ready to wear with everything you own; fitted, furless coats to dress up or down, with or without furs, and the jaunty affairs in checks, stripes, or plaids, the kind that double for daytime wear and all spectator sports events. Warmth is especially featured this season, for there are coats with padded and quilted linings, coats lined with the smart, inexpensive furs, and coats with detachable lining of chamois or quilted satin.

• • •

Extra jackets are still the delight of the career girl, as are the many good looking extra skirt finds, for with these obliging extras everything is possible for mixing, matching, and changing an otherwise limited wardrobe. Color is introduced with extra jackets, as well as with the indispensable costume accessories, blouses, hats, bags, gloves, footgear, belts, and all the rest of the colorful trivia.

Career girl fashions are splendidly featured in all the shops and stores of Chicago. In many stores, entire departments are completely filled with clothes for the career girl. Everything available for an entire costume has been collected there to assure good shopping in a minimum of time, without racing from one floor to another. The fall and winter collections are ready, new loot arrives almost daily, so the fun is about to begin. Sketched from one superb showing are the accompanying finds for the appreciative shopper. Others just as timely, just as new, are in the same showing.

• A. Daytime dress of soft wool for office wear or with the addition of dramatizing accessories in dashing color contrast for dress parade occasions. • B. The ideal all-purpose suit, not severely tailored, yet not too fussy. The skirt is comparatively simple and straight in silhouette. Accessories are velveteen beret and matching draw-string bag. • C. The rage of the hour, a dull black man's overcoat in a softer version for the ladies. It's the newest all-purpose casual coat of the year • D. Foundation coat in either brown or black. The material is soft wool, the coat is cut in figure flattering lines and the fur scarf comes with the coat. • E. Another daytime dress of soft wool with the fetching new pegtop silhouette in the skirt. • F. Dress parade dress of dull black without which no well planned wardrobe can function smoothly. This is the dress for informal dinner and after five dates. • G, H, I, and J are the new accessories, two blouses, a calf bag, stitched cotton slip-on gloves, pearl and gold clips and the matched set of velveteen beret and capacious drawstring bag.

Your Stars ★ Today ★

By WYNN

Sunday, Sept. 20.

There are genuine lessons in our own experience that we have missed. Today is a wonderful opportunity to analyze our own past and draw from it what we should have learned. Week ahead is full of genuine openings for the alert lad and lassie.

How We Grow.

The egotist prevents his own inner growth by his outer attitude, for he is constantly refusing to admit anything is wrong with him. This prevents him from improving himself, for the very beginning of improvement is to admit error. That is why confession is good for the soul—it is the soul that does our inner growing. No wise person was ever an egotist. No egotist was ever a wise person.

New Booklet, 'Etiquet for Army Wives'

By Helen Bartlett.

"Etiquet for Army Wives" is a new booklet that has been prepared by this department. And it is waiting for you at The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn and Tribune Tower lobby. If you order it by mail enclose 7 cents in stamps with your request. If you buy it at the counter 5 cents is all you need.

With the increase in the military personnel there is a new army of officers' wives who find themselves suddenly thrown into an existence quite new to them and they find themselves somewhat unprepared for the accompanying social responsibilities. Women with men in the service will find that this booklet is written with their problems in mind.

There are some sections of the military code that apply solely to military life, such as those governing life at any army post, the professional relationship between members of the service, military weddings, and funerals, rules of precedence, military ceremonies, etc. In general, however, the army code is the same as the social code, except that it is stricter and more rigidly observed.

Army wives and other relatives are judged by this same strict code. No quarter is given for the excuse of being a newcomer and a stranger to army life. Let them not underestimate the importance of being well informed and of acting accordingly. It is not unknown for an officer's career to be thwarted because of the lack of taste, dignity, and good manners of his wife.

HOME OWNERS' QUERIES

Chicago. [To the Home Owners' Editor.]—What can we do for joints between clapboards that seem to have opened due to shrinkage?

JAMES F.

Answer: Those joints can be caulked. If the cracks are large you will need a caulking gun.

* *

Evanston, Ill. [To the Home Owners' Editor.]—We have a fieldstone fireplace in our summer cottage that is too dark, we think, to be attractive. Is there any way we can bleach it? How can we clean it? S. A.

Answer: You can paint it with a cement base paint. To clean it, get some mechanic's hand soap, the sort of soap which is made with sand. Mix this with water to a paste consistency and scrub stone thoroly. Then rinse and dry.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

It's regularity in applying lubricants that counts in the preservation of unlined skin around the eyes. Oil smoothed over the lids each time you make up your face, and rich cream massaged in gently each night, will be far more successful as a wrinkle preventive than any frantic efforts to erase them after they're full fledged.

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Skin lubrication is ever so much more than just oiling to keep the skin comfortably smooth and fine textured. The most important thing about it is that it is the best known preventive for premature wrinkles. It's pretty sad that more of us don't realize this. Too many of us apply creams frantically when the skin gets unbearably dry but fail to realize that just letting it get that way has done the tissue and the skin surface accumulative damage that may not be repaired.

Where the skin around the eyes is concerned we often don't even get the warning signal of flaky dryness. The skin just seems to break down into fine lines, and when it reaches that stage you've really got a corrective job on your hands.

That skin doesn't have an underlayer of muscle structure to keep it firm. It's thin and delicate and more inclined to premature lines than the skin anywhere else. It needs consistent oiling, even in youth, if you'd have it smooth and firm in your forties.

• • •

It's important, if you want to prevent eye wrinkles, to establish the habit of oiling that skin regularly. Put a little cream on the lids every time you put on makeup. The sheen will be flattering and the oil that creates it will be protective. Apply it gently; that's tissue that can't be pulled.

• • •

Most important, tho, is the nightly oiling of the skin around the eyes. For this, use a richer cream but one that flows so smoothly it can be applied without pulling at the skin. Smooth it on the upper lid from inner to outer eye corner and pat it gently on the skin beneath the eyes, with especially generous applications at the outer corners where wrinkles appear first. While you're working on your eyes you might remember your forehead, too; give that some strokes with the palms of both hands, drawing the skin upward toward the hairline and then gently moving the hands toward the temples.

Nothing works such miracles as regularity. If you discipline yourself into the habit of giving eyes and forehead just a little extra attention every night you'll preserve the facial facade of youth for many extra years.

Writer Finds Capital Busy and Exciting

By Cousin Eve.

The train scuds thru mountains all night and leaves one on Washington's doorstep in the morning. WASHINGTON, D. C. With other wayfarers to the same hotel you share a taxi, and already the iron heel of war makes itself felt.

The old historic capital of our forefathers looks drab—yellow leaves twirl in the street. Great posters warn of air raids, of black-outs, and ancient landmarks are vanishing overnight. Yonder is a pile of bricks where once was the National hotel. Here where plush draperies and crystal chandeliers long held sway was hatched the plot against President Lincoln—his assassination.

At the Mayflower, after a wait of hours and a sufficiency of prayer, a cell is ours, air conditioned to please an Eskimo.

• • •

It's a magnificent achievement to get a room in Washington in these times and one gloats accordingly. The streets are full of people who have a job in Washington, but nowhere to lay their head. Every house, hotel, apartment, and tenement is overflowing with humans. On Saturday night, after a gay dinner at Balalaika with nice White Russian singing and dancing, I roamed about with some friends from the Greek legation. They came here at the moment of the Greek king's visit and hope to be housed by January in a place now building.

King George of Greece is a young bachelor who seemed to have a very nice time here. Minister and Mme. Deamantopolous gave him a huge brilliant fête at the legation with tout Washington. The Greek archbishop also was there, long white beard, stiff brocade robes and all. There were several private parties in the king's honor, one of his hostesses being Mrs. Truxton Beale, a daughter of James G. Blaine. Her charming house is in the old sector, near the White House, and a most chic establishment.

• • •

With only four days in Washington, and much terrain to cover, one plans a campaign of 50 objectives or so. Out of town jaunts were out of the question, on account of tires and time and that settled the question of going to the Crosbys at Warrenton to see the most charming household in the world. Oscar Crosby, a retired diplomat, and his two daughters, Celeste Miller and Miriane, Countess Carraciola, live in a great old house on a hill and receive the foreign set of Washington on Sundays. During the racing season in the spring their parties are just something! As it was, the enchanting Celeste would have lunched with us at the Mayflower—where the noon lunch in the cocktail room is of the best—but Negroes had brought in all the tomato crop from the garden, and the belle of Washington had to stand by and do her wartime canning. And that was the way it was.

My first date was therefore with David Finlay, director of the National Gallery of Art, which is the Mellon memorial, at half after 10 in the morning.

• • •

Mr. Finlay is one of the pillars of Washington, formerly in the treasury with Andrew Mellon, and later first secretary of the embassy in London, where Mr. Mellon became ambassador. He is a slender, intellectual type of man, upon whom the task of building the great art museum and seeing it completed in all its magnificent simplicity must have fallen heavily.

Together we circled rapidly on the main floor of the museum, he explaining, I admiring the extraordinary perfection of detail, the super elegance of the whole. Even after the war had begun, sections of green marble for the 24 central pillars upholding the dome came sailing in from Lucca, Italy. At the two ends of the building are fountain courts and beautifully selected exotic gardens that change with the seasons.

In the east court there is a Sunday night string concert and a cafeteria supper, where fighting men in uniform are invited. These concerts were inaugurated early in the season with much chichi, many young lovelies as hostesses, and a parade of fashion. But last Sunday night when we passed thru to see how it was done it was as democratic a hurlyburly as the most ardent Socialist could hope to see. Of socialites, there were none. But visitors could wander among the great art works of the world and listen to music that penetrated far. The Mellon collection has been augmented by the S. H. Kress collection of primitives, and latterly by the Widener collection, which is one of the finest in existence. There was quite a hocus pocus about the Widener gift and the taxation on it under Pennsylvania law. But latterly this was all settled, and the 14 magnificent Rembrandts and other famous units of the Widener gift to the National gallery will be shown this winter.

• • •

Interesting vacant spaces have been left on the creamy beige paneled walls of the museum for gifts sure to come. The modern French section of the gallery is superb. There are Renoirs, Matisses, Cezannes, Manets, Monets, Degases, Redons, Gauguins, and many of Toulouse-Lautrec.

Of 18th century British portraits, Romneys, Gainsboroughs, Reynolds, and some stunning Spanish Goyas. David Finlay pointed out some glorious ancient Italian bronzes in a beautiful gallery for bronze alone, reminiscent of the Naples Museo, famous for its bronzes.

We had planned to sup that night at the Water Gate inn, an open air place on the Potomac as it signs off just below Georgetown. The air was warm and soft, a glory of pink painted the sky and river, and a slender silver moon hung aloft. But we found the Water Gate inn absolutely crammed with patrons, and hungry scores waiting. So we went elsewhere. We were not especially hungry, as it happened, having had tea at 5 in the famous Washington house with the three celebrated Misses Patten, whose Sunday teas are a matter of Washington history. The fourth sister, Mrs. Henry Corbin, did not come down that day, and the ritual was carried on while a defile of guests came and went. The fascinating old brick house on Massachusetts avenue confronts the stone palace of Mrs. Sumner Welles, now turned over to the government on account of taxes, while the undersecretary of state and his lovely wife live in the country. Just below this house is the French chateau lately bought by the grand duchess of Luxemburg for her large family.

• • •

The Patten tea hour was amusing as possible. One of the chic women present had a daughter who had gone into an ammunition plant in California, and the only woman I had known before was Mrs. Butler Wright, whose late husband was our ambassador to Cuba. There were several soft spoken old bachelors of another age, and a gorgeous fattening tea with layer cakes and what not, the kind one doesn't see any more, alas! One Patten sister presided at the gleaming tea table set in the drawing room and the other two were free to chat with the oncoming guests. One heard news of the Clifford Corbins, who have just sold their nice house in Wyoming avenue and have winged away. Col. Corbin is on war duty and Emmeline, his charming wife, is en route to Spokane, while Dolly, always a belle in Washington, has a war job with Col. Donovan.

We went out into the modern electric world of Washington from the tapestried foreign salon of the famous Patten ladies feeling that we had returned from another planet to earth again.

• • •

After leaving David Finlay at the National gallery, one hotfooted to the capitol, where Mrs. Charles Dewey was waiting in a smart print frock of black and white. It was noon and Congressman Dewey was about to address his peers on the nickel and its contents—Mr. Dewey being on the currency committee of the lower house. Mrs. Dewey and I had the privilege of sitting on a very hard bench and listening to a review of the nickel situation. The Chicago congressman has an excellent voice and we missed nothing. Afterward we lunched in the congressional dining room with him and had a sight of the Republican round table with its various members preening themselves at good election news from home.

After that we visited Congressman Dewey's offices, which are a beehive of activity. In his private sanctum the walls are well covered with a huge reference library bound in red, and in one corner is a gallery of framed, signed photographs of his various colleagues in public life, from the captain of his warship when he was a lieutenant of gunnery in the last war, down to the present. There were Andrew Mellon, various Poles, presidents and men of affairs.

• • •

The Deweys bought a little white brick house across the way from his office in First street. It was on the wrong side of town socially speaking, and miles away from the fashionable front, but the most charming little house imaginable and 240 years old, dating back to 1700. Its history is fascinating. It stands on a corner and has a nice, wide garden decked out Chinese fashion with black iron chairs and tables, trellises, a magnolia and pear trees, and the whole is shaded by a half dozen Chinese ginko trees with a marvelous leafage. It couldn't be sweeter, and one warm night after dinner we all went into the garden for coffee and smoked an after-dinner cigaret under the ginkos and the big black and white umbrellas.

In rebuilding the ancient house, the Deweys cleared the basement for a long dining room, level with the garden, and made one oblong room of six windows for the living room above. The lacy ironwork at doors and windows is painted black, southern fashion, and the perfect simplicity of the whole hits you in the face. Yet it is the simplicity of wonderful old furniture, pieces that cannot be duplicated. As for example, the Santo Domingo mahogany writing desk, drawers and bookshelves of Grandpapa Seth Thomas, an early day railroad president; the exquisite Chippendale chairs, and many interesting mementos. At each end of the living room is a round table circled by side chairs and covered with green felt. It struck me as being in effect foreign, possibly Polish or maybe French, but social and unique.

• • •

That night at dinner among the dozen guests were two young Chicago matrons, Winifred Smith McCormack, wife of Col. Alfred McCormack, and Suzette Morton Hamill, wife of Lieut. Ernest Hamill, who was away on duty. Both girls were stunningly handsome, Winifred in white chiffon touched with insets of black lace, and Suzette in all white, robe style, with yellow roses at the belt, and lovely burnished bronze bob falling close round her lovely face. The dinner was interesting. Another young Chicago couple were the Roland Smiths of the War Production board.

Next day I drove out north with Suzette Hamill and then on to the Alfred McCormacks, who have a cheerful brick house in 49th street with large grounds, where their three boys were at play.

The Hamills have a sort of storybook house in 35th street, and lovely little Ariel was waiting for us on the doorstep with a chinchilla kitten squeezed in her arms. Later she showed a collection of paintings of her own manufacture, bound into a fascinatingly colored book by her mamma, and designed for Grandpa Hamill's birthday surprise. Some of the items were amazingly like Matisse. After a bit, Master Sterling Morton Hamill, aged 2, joined us and played the gallant. This handsome little boy looks like all the Mortons I've ever known and was as good as pie while I was there. But his mother said she feared that later on there might be a reaction. At 2 one never knows.

Among the first visits I made in Washington was at the Henry Fields' in Georgetown. Their house is a yellow one with high ceilings, and here, as in Chicago, a center of hospitality. The Fields, however, are domestic and rarely are lured into social life away from their own fireside. Their living room is at the back and Patsy has made of it a charming place, in tone a beige gray, very harmonious and quiet. Henry's bookroom is upstairs. From the living room, French windows open into an old, pensive, ivy clad garden, the kind you could get very depressed in, if you let yourself go. However, there was no occasion for that. The three daughters, young Patsy, Wendy, and blonde Marianne Field, all came in at the tea hour; also quite a few lights of the radio who were never identified. But one couple, Sir John and Lady Doumeresque, who had been living in Washington only a fortnight, had come from five years in Singapore. He is one of the thousands in the British set-up in Washington and she is young and beautiful in a brunet way.

As for Patsy Field, she is slim and lovely as ever—more so, maybe. As for Washington. O boy, what a breathtaking adventure it is!

MARRIED IN WINNETKA

Mrs. Frederick M. Owens Jr., the former Lucy Proctor Trumbull, and Dr. Owens are at home on the south side. They were married in Winnetka's Christ church with a reception following in the Winnetka home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Charles L. Trumbull. Dr. Owens is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Owens of Minneapolis.

When refinishing furniture, sanding should always be done with the grain of the wood, since scratches made by rubbing across the grain are not easily removed.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Sept. 14, 1894.

Dear Julia: Politics and the meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic in Pittsburgh are topics absorbing the attention of Chicagoans this week. Will didn't attend the Grand Army meeting, but he was pleased that his friend Thomas G. Lawler of Rockford was elected commander in chief, since it means recognition for the midwest. Col. Lawler will find plenty of work on his hands. Will says, for the old soldiers feel that they have been badly used by the Democratic administration and they look to the new commander in chief to see that some action is taken on their pension claims.

Shelby M. Cullom.

Will thinks Col. Lawler is a very fine man. He is a native of England, having come to this country at the age of ten. He enlisted in the Union army at the age of 17.

We were pleased to note that the next G. A. R. encampment is to be held in Louisville, Ky. The selection of that city was due in great part to the eloquence and influence of Henry Watterson, the great Louisville editor, no doubt. There is always much rivalry among cities of the United States anxious to entertain the Grand Army, but I'm glad to see them go to a southern city, or one in a border state, since it shows a kind feeling. Twenty years ago, Baltimore entertained them, a beautiful gesture. I hope the visitors sang "Maryland, My Maryland" heartily at that meeting. Since then, the reunions have always been held in northern cities.

Col. Watterson's speech was a model of patriotism, hospitality and good sense, we thought, not merely a tribute to the G. A. R., but an expression of faith in the destiny of America. No northern man, it seems to me, can make a welcoming speech or give an invitation as beautifully as does the true southerner, couched in homely language, sometimes, yet always courtly. It would have been impossible to refuse his invitation to "come and bring your knitting," and every one will hope, with him, that "the camp fire on the south bank of the Ohio river will be only the first stage of the march, and that the Union veterans will push their column into the new south, accepting the invitations that have been offered by Chattanooga and Atlanta."

Such generosity in a defeated foe can only win the heart of the north. It's the soldier who is readiest to forgive and forget. Colonel Watterson was an uncompromising Confederate and fought gallantly in behalf of his convictions, but when the war was over, he accepted the decision which it compelled, and took up the greater cause of Americanism, speaking all over the country on patriotic subjects. Will thinks he has been one of the greatest factors in drawing together the north and the south. May we, on our part, respond generously to the south's kindliness!

As for politics, Will, being a good Republican, is rejoicing in signs of coming victory for that party. Maine has just given a majority of nearly 40,000 for the Republicans and the old saying is that as Maine goes, so goes the nation. There seems to be a real revolt against the Democratic party in many states. Oddly enough, in Chicago Franklin MacVeagh, once a Republican, is seeking the office of United States senator. Will is bitter about Mr. MacVeagh's defection, calling him a "mugwump." As he pronounces that newly coined word, it is fraught with sinister significance. Have you heard the schoolboy's definition of mugwump? "A bird that sits on a fence, with his mug on one side and his wump on the other."

Will is sure that Senator Cullom, the present incumbent, will be reelected. In New York you are interested, no doubt, in the candidacy of Levi P. Morton. He has great prestige, by reason of his having been vice president, and he certainly would make a good governor.

Ever as ever,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

Franklin MacVeagh, candidate for United States senator in 1894, was defeated by Shelby M. Cullom.

Definition of Word "Gentleman."

Recently a group of Negro sailors in training at Great Lakes was referred to by their commanding officer as "gentlemanly in behavior." This recalled to us the fact that it is only in the army and navy that this word is used in modern times. Isn't it a mistake to let the word die? Should we not find more courtesy in everyday intercourse, if men cared to be honored by that distinction?

The editor of this column offers a copy of "The Victorian Keepsake" as a prize for the best definition of the word "gentleman," replies [not over 50 words] to be in our hands by Oct. 10. Old and young, men and women, may compete.

A faithful reader of this column, T. F. Delaney, quotes Cardinal Newman on this subject [from "The Idea of a University"]: "It is almost a definition of a gentleman to say he is one who never inflicts pain." How do YOU define a gentleman?

Old Letters.

I keep your letters for a rainy day,
Then take them out and read them all again;
So reading, I forget that skies are gray
And pathways sodden under falling rain.

They are so filled with simple friendliness,
And understanding of the things I love;
No phrase obscure and vague, to make me guess—
No deep philosophy my soul to move.

And tho your eyes are "lifted to the hills,"
You still keep touch with earth and earthy things;
Prosaic duty all your hour fills,
The while you listen for the beat of wings.

So, as a charm, to drive the blues away,

Garden Clubs Heads to Meet State Leaders

Thruout the country gardening is having a war boom on an unprecedented scale. Mrs. Raymond Knotts, president of the Garden Club of Illinois, reports the enrollment of 20 new groups with the state organization, which raises the membership to 160 clubs.

Mrs. Raymond Knotts. [Paul Stone-Raymer Photo.]

Tomorrow the presidents of all the affiliated organizations will meet with the state leaders at the luncheon table in the Crystal room of the Palmer House to discuss the new problems and responsibilities of the garden groups in wartime. Mrs. Knotts and her staff have been studying the situation diligently and will have many practical suggestions to offer, ranging from vegetable and fruit canning to the judging of exhibits in a flower show.

Among the speakers will be Mrs. O. W. Dynes, Mrs. A. D. Farwell, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mrs. W. L. Karcher, Mrs. Clay Harkness, Mrs. J. Wilson MacAllister, and Mrs. T. J. Knudson. Mrs. Knudson, who is from Springfield, will report on the 60 acre Abraham Lincoln memorial garden there.

• • •

To provide efficient judges for flower shows and garden exhibits, the Garden Club of Illinois has been conducting a judging school for several years. Mrs. MacAllister will tell of plans for this year's school of instruction, to be held early in November. It was Mrs. Karcher who urged the club in its most ambitious program, the annual Chicago flower show. She is returning to give her advice on integrating the new program. Mrs. Farwell will speak on herb gardening, and Mrs. Dynes on flower show possibilities.

Miss Elizabeth Howland, vice president, is in charge of program arrangements.

• • •

After a two months' vacation, the Midwest Horticultural society will begin its fall activities with a meeting for members and all persons interested in gardening at 8 o'clock Friday night in the administration building in Garfield park. Mrs. William Beaudry will preside.

Mrs. William Beaudry. [Maurice Photo.]

The speaker will be Hubert A. Fischer of Lombard, widely known authority on oriental poppies, iris, hemerocallis and delphinium. Mr. Fischer will show colored pictures of these flowers and also pictures taken on a recent trip thru the famous Bellengrath gardens in Alabama and the Louisiana iris swamplands. Mr. Fischer is judge for the American Iris society.

After the lecture E. J. Streichert will conduct a question box hour.

FLOSSMOOR GIRL A BRIDE

Mrs. Henry T. Fielding Jr. will be at home next week in Bristol, Pa. The former Jacquelyn Glair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Glair of Flossmoor, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fielding of Plainfield, N. J., were married on Sept. 12 in the Bond chapel at the University of Chicago.

Judge Gorman Will Talk on Problems of Woman's Court

Judge Gibson E. Gorman will appear before a midday luncheon meeting of the joint committee on the Woman's court and Detention home Thursday in the Top of the Town restaurant, 185 North Wabash avenue, to discuss "Some Serious Problems in the Woman's Court."

To procure adequate detention quarters for women held pending trial has been one of the objectives of the committee. With the enlargement and remodeling of the detention rooms at central police station, the civic group sees the goal all but realized. Separate rooms for first offenders have been provided at the station, facilities for the treatment of nervous cases have been installed, new mattresses and bed linens have been supplied, and the women are to be given simple, nutritious meals.

At Wednesday's meeting the committee will set a day for a tour of inspection of the detention quarters and a visit for observation to the Woman's court. Plans are to be drawn up for the season. Mrs. Richard M. Hallihan will preside.

Nurses Will Hear Talk by Pharmacist Tuesday

The 1st district private nurses' section of the Illinois State Nurses' association will hear a talk by Hans Hansen, pharmacist at the Grant hospital, on "The New United States Pharmacopœia and Formulary" at a 7:30 o'clock meeting Tuesday evening in district headquarters, 8 South Michigan avenue. Mrs. Rosellyn K. Millis will preside.

Women's Clubs Ready to Open Fall Programs

By Irene Steyskal.

Mid-September finds the women's clubs shaking off the lightest case of summer doldrums in their history, continuous war work having proved an effective preventive against the usual vacation slump. Many organizations are resuming activities well over a month in advance of their customary opening dates.

Tomorrow the Cook County Federation of Women's clubs opens its fall and winter season with a fine arts department program. With Mrs. Elmer Jones presiding, the meeting will convene at 10:30 o'clock in the Picadilly tea room, 410 South Michigan avenue.

In charge of the program is Mrs. Charles J. LaHodney, department chairman, who will have as special guest Mrs. Charles J. Bednor, fine arts chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, and Miss Elizabeth Robertson, art director for the public schools.

Mrs. La Hodney will present Dudley Crafts Watson, lecturer at the Chicago Art institute, in a talk on "The Protection and Use of the Fine Arts in This Time of Crisis." Mrs. Elizabeth Marshall of the board of education is scheduled to give an illustrated talk on the art work being done in the public schools, and Mrs. James G. Shakman, president of Women's Symphony Orchestra association, is to speak briefly on the orchestra and its members.

• • •

When in July the executive committee of Altrusa International met in Chicago, revisions and changes in emphasis dictated by the war were made in the defense program which the farsighted organization of business and professional women had set up more than a year before Pearl Harbor. These changes will be explained by Miss Mabel F. Meek, secretary treasurer of the executive committee, and Miss Alva Lowrey, district governor, to members of the Chicago Altrusa club at a dinner at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow in the Chicago Woman's club. The meeting is sponsored by Miss Lillie E. Kalsem, vice president and education chairman, and will be the first held under the direction of the club's new program coördinator, Miss Marion Eckel.

Miss Lillie E. Kalsem.

Miss Gertrude Gillette will preside. Miss Gillette is entering upon her second year as president of Chicago Altrusa. Newly elected officers on her staff are Miss May Cavanaugh, recording secretary; Mrs. Stella Ford Walker, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Jane Livelsberger, treasurer. Miss Anne Clarke is chairman of the club's war program.

Altrusa was organized during the first World war.

• • •

Mrs. Franklin M. Miller [Francesca Falk Miller] is giving a tea and musical at 3 o'clock Saturday in her home at 1500 Lake Shore drive for the newly elected officers and members of the Northern Illinois branch of the National League of American Pen Women. Mrs. Minne Moreland Dow heads the staff of new officers.

• • •

Tomorrow at 2 o'clock Mrs. Harry R. Kendall will open her home at 2848 Sheridan place, Evanston, to Chicago branch of the Southern Woman's Educational Alliance. Members are to have the privilege of bringing a guest. Elizabeth Hart, radio announcer, will give a talk on women in radio and changes in personnel and broadcasting technique brought about by the war.

• • •

Determined to curtail on every luxury for the duration, the Woman's University Club of Chicago has removed from its spacious quarters on the ninth floor of the Fine Arts building to a three-room suite on the fourth. The change is not without its compensation, for the lounge of the new quarters, fronting on Michigan avenue, boasts a "landscape" window framing a view of Buckingham fountain in which the members are taking great pleasure during their daily tea hour. Club activities are to be centered this season upon Red Cross classes, nutrition courses, Spanish lessons, current events and book reviews. Miss Maude Kirk is president.

• • •

This week will see several departments returning to Illinois Federation of Women's clubs headquarters at 30 West Washington street for opening fall conferences. Mrs. William T. Bruckner, state war service chairman and general federation director for Illinois, has called a meeting for 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, and at the same hour Tuesday Mrs. Kenneth L. Van Auken and her club institutes committee will meet.

An international relations department conference is posted for 10 o'clock Friday, with Mrs. Orville Anderson presiding, and at 1:30 o'clock Mrs. Oliver O. Olson will have a literature and drama meeting and Mrs. A. H. Johnson, a radio department conference.

The Willing Workers Woman's club has its opening meeting set for 1:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Covenant club. It will be a social gathering, with the board of directors as hostesses.

Hunting Season Now Under Way in New England

Over Essex County hill and dale comes the clarion call of the huntsman's horn and the baying of the beagles, harbinger of the opening of the hunting season over some of the fairest and finest hunting ground in all New England. This time honored sport still continues despite the war, which has eliminated so many of the sports programs along the north shore.

BEVERLY, MASS.

With fine field and much interest, the meets of the far famed Myopia Hunt club in Hamilton are on, and from now until the snow flies in December pink coated hunters, men and women, will ride to the hounds on the trails of real foxes or the scent of the anise seed drags. There was a hint earlier this month that the hunt season might be another war casualty, but so many new followers appeared and others showed such a keen interest that the program which has been an autumn feature on the north shore for nearly three-quarters of a century is to be continued. Myopia men and women have ridden with the hounds in hunts in many sections of this country, with Virginia and Maryland among the favored states. Some have hunted in England, Ireland, and in France.

The Myopia meets are usually colorful, with the field in "pink." There are morning and afternoon meets. The morning runs are often followed by a hunt breakfast at some mansion house on the Myopia estates and for the afternoon meet there is usually a tea at which incidents of the chase are recalled. The Myopia meets are known the country over and while the gallery—the spectators following the chase and viewing it from automobiles along the back roads—may be limited, the good cheer and fellowship of the meet is as happy as ever.

Mrs. Donald F. Cutler Jr. and her two young children have returned to their Chicago home after a visit with Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell at Glendyne, her summer home in Manchester. Mrs. Mitchell, who was among the first Chicago cottage owners on the north shore, plans to spend the winter as usual at her plantation near New Iberia in Louisiana.

Mr. and Mrs. James Grote Vanderpool and children, Vanburen and Margaret Mary, have returned to Urbana, Ill., after a September stay with Mrs. Vanderpool's mother, Mrs. Henry S. Lyons, at her summer home, "The Boulders" at Pride's Crossing. Mr. Vanderpool is a professor of the history of architecture at the University of Illinois.

Mr. and Mrs. William Drake of Chicago, with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Green of Mexico, Mo., have returned to Chicago after a pleasant stay with Mr. and Mrs. John Clay Jr. of Chicago at Finisterre, their north shore estate on Eastern Point in Gloucester. They returned after a cruise in the Sea Rover, a smart cruiser owned by Mr. Clay, who is commodore of the Eastern Point Yacht club. The Sea Rover is to be used in the coast guard for patrol work. Mrs. Clay will be on the north shore until October, while her son, John Clay Jr., has resumed his studies at Harvard university and her younger son, William Drake Clay, at Hotchkiss.

• • •

The Misses Josephine and Harriett Swift have returned to Chicago after a visit with Miss Jane Leonard, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Leonard Jr. of Chicago, at their summer home in Eastern Point, Gloucester.

Mrs. Frederick M. Dearborn and her two young sons, David and Alexander, have returned to Fort Sill, Okla., after a visit with Mrs. Dearborn's mother, Mrs. William H. Moore of Chicago, at Rockmarge, the Moore summer home at Pride's Crossing. Mr. Dearborn is now a captain in the army.

Miss Lucia Winston has returned to her Lake Forest home after visiting Miss Tino Woods, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Woods, at their north shore summer home at Beverly Farms.

Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor Spaulding, who have been at their Sunset Rock estate at Pride's Crossing, are at Whitefield, N. H., for a late September stay. They are returning to the north shore for a late autumnal sojourn.

Mrs. Benjamin Atwood Smith II. and her young daughter, Barbara Smith of Annisquam, have been with Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. John C. Meecham of Chicago, at her Rockport summer home. Mrs. Smith is the former Barbara Meecham.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald H. Smith, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Rice at their home in Beverly, have returned to Champaign, Ill. Mr. Smith is now with the army air force.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter has returned to her Edgewater home in the West Beach district at Beverly Farms after a visit in Washington. Mrs. Leiter plans to be at her north shore home until late in October and will visit in Chicago before returning to Washington for the winter.

Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, who has been at her north shore home, Eagle Head, in Manchester, has returned to Chicago. Mrs. Morris has one of the largest as well as one of the most attractive estates in the colony.

HINSDALE GIRL A BRIDE

Mrs. T. Scott Jones, the former Helen Bebb Hench, wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin and rose point lace for her marriage on Aug. 15. The ceremony took place in the Hinsdale home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Lyman Hench.

Theater Guild's First '42 Play to Be 'Mr. Sycamore'

The Theater guild's first play of its 25th season is to be "Mr. Sycamore" by Ketti Frings, who based it upon a story by Robert Ayre. Ernest Truex is being sought by the guild as interpreter of the leading rôle, and Stuart Erwin, who for so long has been connected with the Hollywood studios, will return to the legitimate stage in the production. In Chicago the Theater guild states that if "Mr. Sycamore" proves to be a success in New York it will be included in the series of its productions here.

Onwentsia Club Powwow to Be Held Saturday

By Judith Cass.

One place where a woman doesn't venture ordinarily on a Saturday is on her club's golf course, for Saturday traditionally is the working man's day on the links. This year, however, because of the caddy shortage, the women's powwow of the Onwentsia club is to be held next Saturday.

The golfing part of this annual feminine party will be over by luncheon time, however, so the course will be cleared for the men golfers for afternoon play. The men won't be having their annual powwow this year because the war has called so many away. It always has been one of the gayest of the club's annual parties, and there are many who will regret it. Guests, all of whom must be over 30, dress up in Indian costume for the affair. Franklin G. Clement and Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy are the Onwentsia's golf champions.

The 43d annual Harvest Home dinner of the Lake Geneva Country club will be held next Saturday night. Old records of the club indicate that the first dinner held at the club in September, 1900, was the original Harvest Home dinner given by a country club in the west, and, possibly, in the United States. When the directors of the club originated the dinner and established it as an annual affair, they probably had in mind to continue the custom and tradition of the Pilgrim fathers who held their first harvest festival in September, 1621, invitations to the event suggest. This festival, intended as a thanksgiving for a bountiful harvest during the settlers' first critical year, was repeated each year for the next two and a half centuries, until the present Thanksgiving day celebration was made a national holiday.

The Lake Geneva Harvest Home dinner-dance is a costume party, with farm clothes predominating. The hearty dinner offered includes hot roasted turkeys, oyster soup, cider, steamed brown bread, and pumpkin pie, among other appetizing dishes, and the occasion marks the close of the summer season at this Wisconsin resort where so many Chicago families have summer or year around homes.

The first of a series of informal teas the English-Speaking union is giving this fall will be held tomorrow in the organization's headquarters. Miss Barbara Ward, the young English author and foreign editor of the London Economist, will be the speaker. Miss Naomi Donnelley will be the hostess for the afternoon.

The British Empire association of Illinois is starting its season with a dinner tomorrow night at 50 East Huron street, at which Miss Ward will speak also. Today is British day at Bergman's grove, 24th street and Desplaines avenue, with all British organizations taking part. The proceeds will go to the British War Relief society.

Wednesday will bring the wedding of Miss Marie Louise Hulburd to Ensign Eliot Wadsworth Dalton which was postponed from the 12th, when he was detained to active duty to next Saturday, and then changed again to Wednesday. The ceremony will take place at 4:30 o'clock in the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest and all other arrangements will be similar to those planned originally.

Miss Dorothy Lytle and Lieut. George MacGregor Murray Jr., United States army air corps, will be married in Trinity Episcopal church, Highland Park, on Saturday. The ceremony at 4:30 o'clock will be followed by a reception at the Moraine-on-the-Lake hotel, given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Albert Lytle.

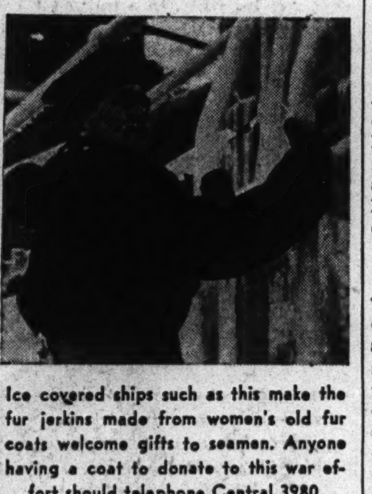
Women in War Work . . . . By India Moffett

War work began for 600 members of the International Fur and Leather Workers union in Chicago months ago when they first began making seamen's jerkins. The idea was brought back to this country by Mrs. Henry Cambridge, 1245 Chase avenue, from a Canadian vacation a year ago. It has developed to the point where a Fur War committee was set up by the fur industry in Chicago—and now we have the answer for those women who have written this department inquiring: "Isn't there some place I can send my old fur coat to be used in the war effort?"

The answer is—send your used fur to room 1212 at 58 East Washington street or telephone Central 3980 for advice regarding the collection of furs. The used fur is made into jerkins which are sleeveless, hip-length jackets usually worn with the fur inside. The "lining," worn outside, may be blue wool, gabardine, corduroy or, in short, whatever has been contributed by wholesale houses and stores.

• • •

But we're getting ahead of the story. It is essentially a narrative of another way for women at home to save lives on the fighting front—for a fur jerkin worn by a sailor standing watch over winter seas can mean the difference between sufficient warmth to keep up efficiency and the numbing chill that may mean illness. The jerkins have proved of value to survivors of torpedoed ships who have had to take to lifeboats.



Ice covered ships such as this make the fur jerkins made from women's old fur coats welcome gifts to seamen. Anyone having a coat to donate to this war effort should telephone Central 3980.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Cambridge begins her story of the fur lined jerkins with the time immediately after Munich when she began working earnestly for the Red Cross in the hope that she could contribute something to the comfort of suffering European peoples. She became an instructor in surgical dressings and became an organizer for the Red Cross and the British War Relief in Rogers Park.

Tired from working as organizer and teacher, Mrs. Cambridge went to Canada to rest and found another job? She saw a fur jerkin designed to show what could be done with reclaimed pelts, and resolved to bring the idea here. Needless to say, Mrs. Cambridge encountered many of the obstacles that beset the path of the pioneer. There was lack of interest, a natural doubt of the whole plan. . . . However, she succeeded in interesting the representatives of the fur industry; the 600 Chicago members of the International Fur and Leather Workers sent her a letter pledging their support; the workers assisted in collecting old coats; Chicago cleaners and dyers renovated the old garments, and the fur workers turned out 55 jerkins the first day they worked on the task!

• • •

Nearly every large store in Chicago has contributed materials. Chicago firms have given labels and fasteners; manufacturers in Detroit have given furs; New York firms have given yards and yards of fabrics for linings; the British War Relief has given material. This is all new goods. As long as snap fasteners were available, the garments could be made reversible. Now, however, the fasteners are used and the jerkins can be worn only one way. Soon there will be a record of 1,000 jerkins completed. The garments have been distributed to Allied seamen thru the Navy League of Canada. Mrs. Cambridge has stipulated that the jerkins belong to a ship rather than to an individual, and the goal is to supply six to a ship. If more jerkins can be supplied, they can be used, of course.

• • •

Fur coats are best for this salvage work because enough good fur usually can be taken from one coat to make a jerkin. However, odd strips of fur, such as might come off coats with tuxedo furred fronts, can be used. Odd pieces are matched and sewed together. Women take over the first part of the fur job. They tear out the old coat linings. The fur cutters, operators and finishers are usually men. Women, however, cut the new linings.

Women do the sewing and finishing. Small furrier shops, as well as large establishments, have coöperated in the Chicago plan. It has been so successful here that Mrs. Cambridge reports other large cities are following our example. Labels from jerkins made here read: "A Gift from Chicago."

Lou Goldstein is chairman of the production committee here. Louis Himmel, president of the Associated Fur Industries of Chicago, is chairman of the Fur War committee, the group handling the over-all project. He has designated Mrs. Cambridge and Edward W. Uhlemann, vice president of Associated Fur Industries, as co-chairmen. Sidney Walzer is secretary, and Irving Morris is treasurer of the fur committee.

• • •

Mrs. Cambridge has an award for service from the Navy League of Canada for her work in supplying jackets. She has recently been made liaison officer for the continent of North America to the fur manufacturers and fur workers union and their membership and to ports on the Atlantic, Pacific and St. Lawrence waterway. She has recently returned from a tour of some of these ports.

Mrs. Henry Cambridge, co-chairman of the committee to provide seamen with fur jerkins, shows Shelby Pitts, petty officer 2nd class, how a lookout on a ship in icy weather wears the sleeveless jacket made from an old fur coat.

Winter will soon arrive in the north Atlantic and Pacific. It is none too soon for Chicago women to add fur coats to the salvage they are donating to the war effort. What an old fur coat means as a seamen's jerkin is exemplified in a letter from the Rev. P. B. Clayton, chaplain to the Anglo-Saxon Tanker fleet:

". . . Cold is an enemy beyond compare. I never knew its equal for depressing those who are stationed on the deck for duty, or in the forepeak, or above the bridge, or in the crow's nest where they cannot move. These lookout men have four hours duty day and night of terrible exposure to the weather. The wind and winter storms cut thru their garments. They come off duty very nearly frozen. I cannot imagine any greater blessing than to provide each ship in the far north with one-half dozen valuable jerkins which can form part of the lookout's equipment. . . ."

The jerkins were appraised last year for insurance for shipping. They are valued at $35 apiece. Fur workers here have found a means of service in doing the job they know best, an example of the old story about life's greatest opportunities often being as close as one's own back yard.

Removing Milk Spots.

To remove a milk and cream spot from washable fabrics, first soak the spot in cold water to remove the protein, then wash it in hot soap suds to remove the fat; for unwashable materials, sponge the spot with carbon tetrachloride, allow it to dry, then sponge it with lukewarm water.

Outdoor Sports Still Popular in White Hills

The White mountain resorts have attracted many visitors this week from Chicago and surrounding areas. Weather of summer warmth prevails and all outdoor sports, even swimming, which usually is out of the picture in crisp, September days, are popular.

WHITE MOUNTAINS, N. H.

Mrs. Ernest Poole, Mrs. J. G. M. Glessner, and Mrs. Lowell R. Burch, whose husband was a Chicagoan, all were present on Wednesday at the last meeting of the season of the White Mountain Garden club. It was held at Sugar Hill, at the home of Mrs. Francis Blewer, who served tea. Various members spoke upon "Bees," the topic of the day. A Dutch treat luncheon at Peckett's on Sugar Hill preceded the meeting, at which officers were elected. Mrs. Glessner is a past president, as is Mrs. Burch. Mrs. Poole begged off any other work this season than that entailed by her chairmanship of the Sugar Hill-Franconia branch of the Red Cross. The garden club has landscaped and maintained the grounds of the railway station and hospital at Littleton and also of the Community church at Sugar Hill.

Water Colors By Children of England Shown

By Eleanor Jewett.

An attractive exhibition opened at the Art institute in the Gallery of Art Interpretation last Tuesday. It is a group of 52 water colors painted by English children. The paintings are from 45 schools in England, both in the London district and in the provinces. The ages of the young artists range from 4 to 16. Unusual as it may appear, very few of the pictures have anything to do with the war. Of those that do the most striking is the conception of a 12 year old girl, a realistic picture entitled simply "Hess" and which shows a scene in a barn with a smoking lamp on a rough table, a farmer and his wife, and in a corner the German officer wearing the iron cross and swastika.

The majority of the water colors, however, bear such titles as "Me and My Friends as Clowns," "Football in the Snow," "Elisha Praying for Rain," "Old Fashioned Family Group," "The Little Mermaid," and "The Musician." If one is brave enough to use this exhibit as a yardstick with which to measure the reaction of the war upon the juvenile imagination or its direct influence upon the lives of England's children, the summing up must be that, so far, the war has not played a drastic part in the development of the childish mind. It is just another grownup "thing" to be circumvented or ignored in the child's world. Meanwhile the jolly incidents like family and circus, pets and games, are still the real core of living and as such keep their firm hold upon the vivid imaginations of the young artists.

The exhibit is similar to exhibits by our own school children. In as far as environments differ, the subject matter differs, but so does it in our public school art shows. Remembering the realistic fire fighting paintings by British firemen [the London blitzkrieg pictures shown at the Woman's club and the Chicago Historical society], the water colors by the little English children make the conviction stronger that, in spite of everything, the Germans have still not progressed one step in their effort to terrorize England. The young generation is not scared a bit by Hitler. A good pantomime and a friendly dog have far greater influence over them than the roar of guns, the drone of planes, and the crash of explosives. The children's exhibit comes as a tonic.

The pictures were assembled by the Museum of Modern Art, New York, in collaboration with the British Library of Information. The exhibit will hang at the Art institute thru Oct. 27 and later continue its tour of the country.

• • •

The Room of Chicago Art, Art Institute, is devoted to Oct. 4 to the work of Raymond Breinin and Joseph Vavac. Breinin has eight canvases hanging, all but one of which, "Nancy"—a portrait lent by Mrs. C. Paul Parker of Evanston—are in his familiar imaginative style. Joseph Vavac paints in a contrasting manner, his work being marked with a sturdy quality that finds its best outlet in the portrayal of such types as men digging the subway, beggars asking for alms, and other men at the thin end of life doing odd jobs to earn their daily bread.

• • •

The Art institute is preparing gallery 53 to be known as the "Gallery of Art in War." It will open Thursday with an exhibition of paintings by Barse Miller of La Canada, Cal. The pictures are lent by a contemporary magazine and illustrate the activities of American soldiers guarding our military supply lines, especially on the west coast.

• • •

The annual exhibition of work by students of the Art institute school hangs now in the east wing galleries and will remain on view to Oct. 4. An amazing Spanish-Mexican atmosphere overlays the first gallery, where dramatic figure studies of a young man and a young woman claim most of one's attention. Here and there a particularly well handled still life must not be missed.

There is good work further on among the line drawings and illustrations, a young artist named Betty Hatchett has an especially fine drawing of monkeys. Across from her picture is another portrait of a single monkey, excellently done, whose author's name we could not find.

Among the sculpture there is an appealing study of a baby seal with something very Walt Disneyish about its eyes.

The ceramics, pottery, textiles, and handicrafts division of the exhibit is fascinating. It is beautifully installed and the separate factors are well worth study. The advertising posters are good and all in all the students' exhibition is one of the best the institute school has yet put on. It is well worth seeing.

• • •

The 53d annual exhibition of American paintings and sculpture will open Oct. 29 in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. The exhibition has been assembled entirely thru invitation. The special feature of the exhibit will be a memorial showing of work by the late Grant Wood.

• • •

Helen Beatrice Slutz, whose tiny portraits in water color will be remembered, so charming were they, is in town from a long stay at Dallas, Tex. We are hoping to have further word from her and perhaps the good luck of an exhibit of her recent work. She has been missing from Chicago galleries far too long.

• • •

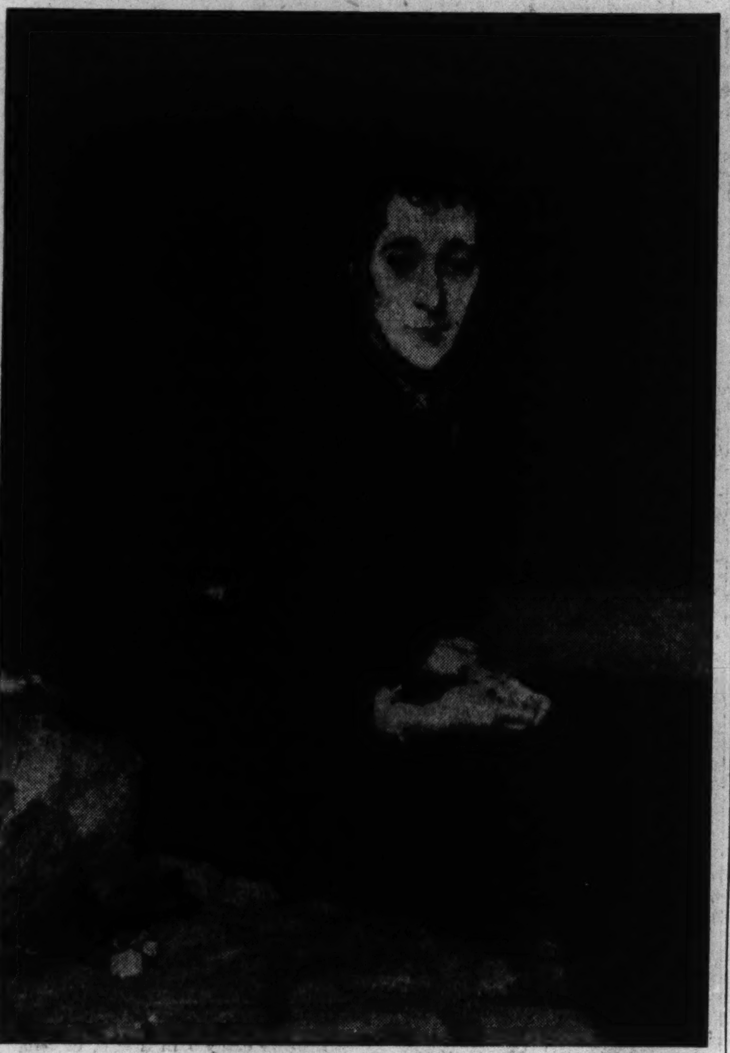
The fall exhibition of work by member artists of the South Side Art association opened yesterday in the Club Woman's Bureau, Mandel Brothers. The exhibition this year is unusually strong, with many brilliant paintings on the walls. Mrs. Albion Headburg is president of the association and Nan Rice and Leveta Grover compose the exhibition committee. The exhibit will remain on view thru Oct. 10.

• • •

Mrs. Edwin N. Johnson, president of the All-Illinois Society of Fine Arts, writes she is still trying to find a gallery to house the 17th annual fall exhibition of work by members. The loss of the Stevens hotel to the army cut frightfully into the plans and activities of the All-Illinois, which for many years has been showing in its third floor corridor gallery. The All-Illinois has a large membership and it is a problem to find wall space enough to show its artists' work to advantage.

• • •

During September the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts is sponsoring an exhibition of paintings by Orval O. Haag at the Drake hotel. There are 23 paintings in the exhibit, several of them portraits which have been loaned. Mr. Haag is an able painter; his work is most likeable. He is represented in a number of collections and in a number of private homes; his portraits are liveable likenesses, well done and distinctive.



"MRS. CHARLES GIFFORD DYER."
John Singer Sargent, famous American portrait painter, is honored at the Art institute during September thru the choice of this tragic little portrait for the Masterpiece of the Month. The painting is from the Friends of America art collection

7 Cataracts: Little Known Scenic Marvel

[This is the 53d article in a series on South America. The next will appear in an early issue.]

By Mason Warner.

GUAYRA, BRAZIL.

Sete Quedas, the "Seven Cataracts" of the Parana river, form one of the world's great natural wonders, but they are difficult of access and it is improbable that the total number of persons who have seen them since their discovery by explorers more than three centuries ago is less than that of the crowds who visited Niagara Falls on any one midsummer Sunday this year.

To get there, one can go to Buenos Aires, then travel up the Parana river by boat more than 2,000 miles to Porto Mendes, then by rail 38 miles to Guayra, or he can make a long and difficult railroad journey from Buenos Aires to Posada, take a river boat from there to Porto Mendes, going only 476 miles on the river and making the final stage by train.

Or the traveler can come the way Mason Robert and I did—from Rio de Janiero to Sao Paulo, and from there to Presidente Epitacio by rail, and then down the Parana to Guayra by boat. Either route requires about three weeks from seaport to seaport for a visit to Sete Quedas.

There is no airport or landing field at Guayra, but there is a limited flying service from Buenos Aires to Iguassu, with one plane a week. So, by careful timing, and provided one's schedule of connections with boat and train from Iguassu to Guayra is not canceled by fogs on the river, it may be possible to make the trip in a week—if one is lucky.

• • •

The Parana river is two miles wide above the waterfalls, which drop its waters 374 feet in a distance of less than three miles. Altogether there are 18 cataracts in the series, but Sete Quedas are the big show. The other 11 are not so large and imposing, and it is necessaary to travel thru jungle and take to canoes to get within viewing distance.

After coming thru the falls, the Parana becomes a deep, swift flowing stream, confined in a gorge 200 yards wide, with a depth of 165 feet.

The scenery around Sete Quedas is wild and rugged, just as it was left after a great geological convulsion of nature piled the rocks in a fantastic but enchanting panorama, unmarred by such manufacturing establishments as have banished most of the poetry, beauty, and romance from Niagara.

The first cataract the visitor views has not a large volume of water, but the tumbling stream in the rocky gorge is a picturesque sight. No 2 and No. 3 are greater in volume and higher in fall.

Cataract No. 6 is the most impressive. The broad torrent is two city blocks wide and plunges down 150 feet. It is nearly as larage as the American falls at Niagara, and, as it goes over a ledge almost as high, the tremendous roar of the descending water echoes and reëchoes from the surrounding, jungle covered hills.

• • •

We saw a distressing sight at No. 6 on our third day in Guayra. We went for a final look at sundown. A last lingering rainbow was dissolving in the mist that rose from the crashing waters below. The water goes straight down from the edge of a sheer precipice. It was a warm, subtropical evening, and many birds were flying about, on the hunt for food insects, so plentiful near the river's surface.

Mason Robert and I were observing the break of the water over the ledge when we noticed a bird suddenly drop, as if shot, into the tumultous vortex below. Then another went down, swift and straight as an arrow. Another bird followed to certain death. We counted 20 go down in 10 minutes. It looked like mass suicide.

In seeking the reason for this strange behavior we decided that the falling water caused a down air current that caught the birds in such firm grip they could not fly, and dragged them down to their doom—a conclusion verified as correct by natives at the hotel.

It was not pleasant thinking, but we could not refrain from trying to estimate the number of bird fatalities at cataract No. 6 in the course of a year.

• • •

Cataract No. 4 was a contrast to Nos. 2 and 3. In fact, no two of the waterfalls resembled one another. One cascaded down a stairlike series of rock steps and meandered around as if undecided which way to go. Another was a slender stream of seeming silver and emerald, gracefully diving 100 feet forward and down into wide and serene pool.

No. 7 rivaled No. 6 in size, beauty, and roar. It was difficult to decide which was the more satisfying spectacle, for both had appeal in their formation, coloring, movement, and environs.

Strolling from one cataract to another is a pleasant pastime. The trails are easy to travel, and there are many rustic wooden bridges over the streams. Three are placed immediately below the smaller falls, so that one can get a closeup front view not only of the cataract but of the oncoming turbulent rivulet with its rock edgings.

Sete Quedas are situated on private property, a huge estate of many thousands of acres, owned by the Companhia Matte Lorangeiro, S. A., a closed corporation founded and operated by Thomaz Lorangeiro and devoted to the maté [mah-tay] industry.

Maté grows wild in the jungle and is also cultivated on large plantations. The leaves of this South American tea are gathered by Indians and brought to Guayra in canoes and barges. The trees grow to a height of 12 to 15 feet. The leaf is a pointed, narrow oval, three to four inches long. When dried it is brewed and drunk by millions of South Americans. I like maté. It has a slightly medicinal flavor, and is more stimulating than ordinary tea.

• • •

The corporation runs the model town of Guayra, with a population of 700 or 800. Thomaz Larangeiro is not a philanthropist, but he is a benevolent employer. The majority of the citizens are employés of the corporation, which owns nearly all of the houses, in which they live rent free. Milk is distributed free. A fine, large orange grove is open to the people [including tourists], with the privilege of picking as many oranges as they wish. Medical attendance is paid for by the corporation. The company owns a big general store, where meats are sold at 4 to 5 cents a pound. Wages are paid in cash, and are on a level with Brazilian standards. So a job with the Companhia Matte Larangeiro, S. A., at Guayra, is the ambitious dream of boys in the surrounding, sparsely settled country.

The Guayra hotel is owned and run by the company. The accommodations are first class, and everything necessary for the comfort of the traveler is supplied—at prices that cause the guest to feel he is cheating the landlord.

VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Please keep them brief. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

SONNET OR QUATRAIN?

Barrington, Ill., Sept. 14.—To the Travel Editor: Those four four-line verses which Ella M. Bartlett of St. Joseph, Mich., contributed to "The Voice of the Traveler" on Aug. 30 should encourage tourists to stuff discarded papers in waste bags instead of tossing them onto lawns and roadsides.

Of course, tourists, as well as travel editors, will make mistakes. In this instance the travel editor captioned the four stanzas "Summertime Sonnet." If he will refresh his mind on his college course in versification he will remember that a sonnet consists of 14 lines with special rhyme structure. I should call Mrs. Bartlett's verses "A Summertime Quatrain."

All of us hope you will continue to publish your travel pages in wartime. Even if we can't travel by train or auto, at least we can travel by way of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE if you continue to do your part. I enjoy being an armchair tourist, especially when traveling with Mason Warner thru South America.

JOHN H. D. BLANKE.

[Editor's Note: Webster defines a sonnet as "[1] a short poem; [2] a fixed verse form of Italian origin, consisting of 14 lines, rhyming according to a prescribed scheme." Under the first definition, the "Summertime Sonnet" caption over Mrs. Bartlett's verses was correct.]

TEN THOUSAND PHEASANTS.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 12.—To the Travel Editor: It was mighty nice of you to write up our state game farm near Poynette, Wis.

If you happen to be up this way again in October, I know you would enjoy another visit to the farm. Birds are then in full plumage and animals in good fur. Ten thousand pheasants in full plumage provide an inspiring sight!

W. F. GRIMMER,

WHO CAN TELL HIM?

Chicago, Sept. 16.—To the Travel Editor: On Chamber's Island in Green bay, about eight miles off Ephrain and Fish Creek, Wis., there are a number of buildings gone to ruin. They must have represented an investment of $50,000 or more.

Rumor has it that this was one of the late Samuel Insull's projects. Is there a story about it which you can publish?

R. O. PARK.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Travelers and other Tribune readers are invited to send cards and letters to those unable to share in the wonders of travel. These requests have been received since the last previous list was published:

Mrs. John Baier, Sunnyview sanitarium, Winnebago, Wis. [Mrs. Baier is 21 years old. Her hobbies are reading, writing, embroidery work, and crocheting.]

Mrs. Antoinette Denny, Macon County Tuberculosis sanitarium, Decatur, Ill. [Mrs. Denny, a widow, 33 years old, collects stamps and whatnots.]

Ross O. Burke, hospital ward 37, Oak Forest, Ill. [Mr. Burke has been a shut-in for four years. He lived for many years in Cedar Rapids, Ia.]

Sylvia A. Thompson, rural route, Cayuga, Ind. [Because of arthritis, Miss Thompson has not been able to walk in more than 20 years. Her hobbies are embroidering, tatting, working jigsaw puzzles, and collecting foreign and United States stamps.]

Hattie Lensing, 3546 McLean avenue, Chicago. [Miss Lensing, a victim of arthritis, has been a shut-in for 40 years. She collects poems and stamps.]

North Carolina Village Is About to See an Auto

MASHOES, N. C.—For the first time in 20 years, Mashoes will see an automobile. The five mile sandy road from Mann's Harbor to this hitherto isolated Dare county village is about completed, and almost any day the postman is expected to arrive from the landside instead of from the waterside.

"I guess," said T. R. Midgett, whose home is the best looking one in the village, "I'll have to keep the grass cut in front of the house, what with all the automobiles that might be passing."

Mashoes claims it is the last North Carolina place not served by a public road [excusing, as the natives say, the Outer Banks]. Once the postoffice here served as many as 20 families. Now a half dozen households are extant. The mail service heretofore has been aquatic, and youngsters have had to go to school by boat.

Twenty years ago Uncle Loff Midgett floated a second hand car into Mashoes on a flatboat. The path from the church to Bill Howett's house widened for a half mile stretch, and the villagers enjoyed short pleasure rides for a while. But the novelty wore off, the car disappeared, the path was overgrown, and no more cars came in.

Art of the Potter Still Flourishes in Quebec Province

QUEBEC.—The ancient art of the potter will remain alive for many years if provincial government plans to establish a small class of "artisan farmers" are continued.

The school has been in existence for several years. Trained in the College de Beauceville, La Beauce county, the ceramists are young men whose aim is to become self-sufficient artisans, owning their own farms, cultivating the land in summer and creating decorative pottery in winter.

The potter's art is an old one in Quebec province. Marius Barbeau, authority on French Canadian folklore, recalls that the art flourished here 70 years ago.

The ceramists have established their headquarters, showroom, and work shop on the Levis-Jackman highway, between the villages of St. Joseph and Beauceville.

Texarkana Has Its Border Problems

TEXARKANA, Tex.—Texarkana, young and lusty trailer and tent-edged war industry locality, is experiencing a north and south sides of a street rivalry. The town is situated where the states of Arkansas and Texas join.

All the troubles of a typical emergency town are found at the crossroads. Among the wartime oddities are the new parking meters on the Arkansas side of the main street and the fact that cars may be parked free on the nonmetered Texas side.

On the Arkansas side are the Texas liquor stores, as the Lone Star state is dry, with severe penalties for those who bring intoxicants across the street. On the Arkansas side are postcards and curio shops with greetings from Arkansas and booklets on Hot Springs and other recreational spots in that state. On the Texas side one may learn of the Gulf coast resorts, the Alamo, and Sam Houston's monument, America's tallest memorial.

This Tour Can Be Enjoyed at Any Old Time

By Catherine Hastings.

JOLIET, ILL.

Summer is over, school has started, tires aren't to be had, gasoline will be rationed . . . what of it? Get away from your wailing wall, for you middle westerners are in one of the world's most usable year round vacation areas. Walking is the vogue, railroad trains, elevated trains, street cars, and buses still run, and, while you can't hire buses for large groups, it won't matter, for you and the family can have a vacation lasting right thru the winter. It will cost little, teach you a great deal, be lots of fun, and not depend too much on the weather.

I am suggesting 10 points of interest in Chicago. They have historical background, but are so cram full of interest that you get the history the painless way.

Comfortable walking shoes, a camera [in some places], money for fares, booklets, lunch, et cetera, and a mind ready to absorb the sights are all you need. Here is the list:

1. Tribune Tower.
2. The historical museum.
3. Lincoln park.
4. The water tower, Fort Dearborn plaque, the O'Leary house site.
5. Maxwell street.
6. Chinatown.
7. Field museum.
8. Aquarium and Planetarium.
9. The city library.
10. A tour of the loop.

• • •

With history as our background we will visit The Tribune Tower first, to get an overview of the city we are to vacation in. Being so high will give us ample opportunity to see how Chicago nestles on the shores of Lake Michigan, how the river meanders inland to the deep waterway, how the streets are laid out to accommodate traffic.

We can gaze in wonder at the skyscrapers gleaming in the sunlight or reaching for the moon. We can outline the loop, known the world over as an integral part of Chicago, and understand why it is called that. We can point out the famous buildings from the beautiful tower of this one on which we stand—buildings noted for their size, architecture, and beauty. We can trace the famous Outer drive, Michigan boulevard, Navy pier, lake cribs, freighters going toward that black smudge to the south.

This gives us sort of a skyway road map of the city we are about to explore.

• • •

Now let's go to the historical museum, at southern end of Lincoln park. We will go thru all of it, leisurely, for here is treasure for a long time, and we can't possibly absorb it all in one trip. But here again we will get the overview, then return to various sections to get details.

Two sections I would point out for our special attention: [1] The Chicago dioramas will show us the history of the city that sprang up among the prairies, the Indians, the mud, the lake, and the river. Passing from one scene to the next will show how the fort became a village, the village a town, the town a city. Three dimensional pictures are perfect for displaying such a subject, and these are exceptionally fine. [2] Lincoln was prominent in this region. So we will visit the Lincoln rooms and the dioramas, recently finished, of him and his life. If we can't tour the Lincoln country in downstate Illinois this is a good substitute.

• • •

Next let's wander thru Lincoln park, stopping at the statue of the emancipator, then strolling northward [with a bag of peanuts for the friendly squirrels along the way] to the zoo, the lake shore, and the extensive greenhouses, with their rooms lush with flora. The park holds something of interest for everybody, backed as it is by skyscrapers and facing the sturdy seawall against the rigors of Lake Michigan.

We will turn south to Chicago avenue and note the tall spire of rugged yellowish stone that commands a small square of its own. This water tower is celebrated for its survival in the great fire.

• • •

We'll walk south along Michigan avenue to the river, stand on the bridge, and study the landscape: The river flowing backwards, the avenue itself, the skyscrapers like sentinels guarding the entrance to the bridge, the other bridges to the west.

On the southwest corner of Wacker drive and the avenue we will see a plaque telling us that here stood Fort Dearborn, the beginning of this great city.

In another neighborhood we shall visit a narrow fronted house that also carries a plaque. It was here, long ago, that Mrs. O'Leary lived and had the cow that, according to legend, burned up the town.

• • •

We shall visit Maxwell street to see buying and selling laden with interest and curiosity for the sightseer.

We won't miss Chinatown, either, for just now we are China conscious. As we walk thru the town within a city we shall see evidence of a culture that predates ours by thousands of years. It is fun to have lunch in Chinatown and eat food that is new to us.

At the Field museum we'll see many things that concern our life of today and the life lived long ago. Here again, take the overview first, then return to the things that hold the most interest. There is more than any one can do in a day, or a single trip, but we can come back again and again.

The Aquarium and Planetarium will show us marine life on the one hand, and what goes on overhead. Both of them hold many surprises.

• • •

The city library contains an almost overwhelming amount of printed material, all nicely catalogued. You may also read books in Braille, take out slides to look at at home, or borrow records to listen to during the blackout.

Now a tour of the loop, the rather small area squared off by the elevated tracks, and the department stores that help make Chicago world famous. We can stand before window after window and marvel at the artistry that is back of decorating. We can travel quite a distance by just gazing wide-eyed in these squares of store windows. We can walk thru the financial district that grew up from village days.

• • •

This is only a teaser for what can be done in Chicago the year round. All it takes is personal ingenuity to figure out what you want to see and do.

Vacation all over for this year? Fiddlesticks!

TIPS TO TOURISTS

PTA Founder to Be Honored at Birthplace

Some 100 leaders in the Parent-Teacher movement will gather next Sunday in Marietta, Ga., to dedicate a memorial to Alice McLellan Birney, co-founder of the organization which today claims a membership of 2,685,000 men and women in 28,000 member Parent-Teacher associations thruout the United States. Marietta was Mrs. Birney's birthplace.

This state will be represented at the ceremonies by Mrs. Theodore Gleichman, president of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Mrs. Harry M. Mulberry of Chicago, national board member and a former state president. The entire office staff of national headquarters in Chicago also is to attend.

Mrs. Birney's memorial is a sun court, constructed on the grounds of the Marietta High school. Each state congress sent native stone to pave the boxwood-edged court, and at its center stands a marble sundial, the gift of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

• • •

Carved in the pedestal upon which the sundial stands is the inscription, "This sun court is dedicated to a great woman who made a great dream come true—Alice McLellan Birney, founder of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. From the seed of faith she planted has come the flowering of a new era of hope and promise for America's children."

The sundial will be unveiled by Alice Birney Roberts, a great granddaughter of Mrs. Birney, and one of the speakers will be Mrs. Alonsita Walker of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Birney's daughter. Among other speakers will be Mrs. William Kletzer of Portland, Ore., president of the National Parent-Teacher congress, and Mrs. Robert A. Long, president of the Georgia state affiliate. Mrs. Gleichman will participate in a processional of the presidents of all of the state congresses.

A portion of the dedicatory program will be broadcast nationally at 2 o'clock, Central War time.

• • •

The Birney memorial was a joint project of the citizens of Marietta, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert Jr., a granddaughter of Mrs. Birney.

Mrs. Birney was noted for her work in child welfare. She conceived the idea of a national organization of mothers in 1895 and enlisted the interest and financial aid of Phoebe Apperson Hearst in founding it. The two women launched the National Congress of Mothers two years later in Washington, D. C., at a gathering of women from all parts of the country. Their Mothers congress was the parent organization of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The national board of managers, which is meeting next Friday and Saturday in Atlanta, will be present at the dedication of the Birney memorial.

Dinner Will Mark American Indian Day Observance

Friday is American Indian day, a starred date on the calendar of the Indian Council Fire. The organization will give a dinner that evening in the Top of the Town restaurant in compliment to the Office of Indian Affairs, which is one of the government bureaus recently transferred from Washington to Chicago. Dr. William Beatty, director of education with the Indian office, will speak, and the hostess will present an Indian program.

This will be the occasion for the presentation of the 1942 Indian achievement medal, which is to be awarded to the Rev. W. David Owl, Cherokee missionary representing both the Baptist and Presbyterian churches to the Six Nations Indians at Iroquois, N. Y.

Graduated in his early youth from a trade school, Mr. Owl aspired to higher learning that would aid him toward bettering conditions for his race. Accepting no assistance, he worked his way thru college and theological seminary, finally achieving the ministry. For 20 years he has worked among the Iroquois, sturdily urging Indian participation in the national life as opposed to the policy of segregation from the general social order.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

Here's wardrobe first aid in a single easy lesson: A plastron effect frock with a military air so subtle it won't detract from your femininity. Even you girls who wear uniforms during the day may step out in this date frock and know that you're as different from your daytime self as black is from white.

There's no collar on this new model, which is attractive in a wide variety of patriotic materials, and the only trimming is buttons outlining the plastron, which ends low at the waistline and gives way to the deft skirt fullness.

The sleeves are three-quarter length, which gives you an excellent chance to wear your "junk jewelry" to advantage.

Style No. T-8789 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch or 2¼ yards of 54 inch fabric.

BUY-LINES • by Nancy Sasser

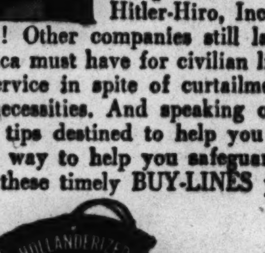
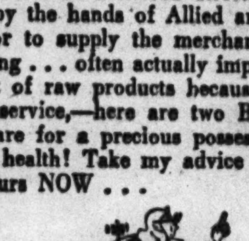
A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 19th. Last year I visited many factories . . . reported their peacetime production as BUY-LINES personally recommended for better, happier, more convenient living. Today those factories revisited reward with a more thrilling story,—production of BUY-LINES for the government . . . to be delivered directly to Hitler-Hiro, Inc. by the hands of Allied armed forces! Other companies still labor to supply the merchandise America must have for civilian living . . . often actually improving service in spite of curtailment of raw products because of war necessities. And speaking of service,—here are two BUY-LINE tips destined to help you care for a precious possession and a way to help you safeguard health! Take my advice and make these timely BUY-LINES yours NOW . . .



If you value your furs, look for this famous tag when you have them cleaned. I just took my own coat out of storage, first making sure to have it HOLLANDERIZED and am I thrilled! The lining is as lustrous as when I bought the coat and the fur actually gleams. I've been through the HOLLANDERIZING plant and what I saw will intrigue you as much as it did me. So I wrote all about it in a little booklet that's free for the asking . . . adding some helpful hints on fur care that the HOLLANDER people gave me. How to get a copy? Just ask your favorite fur retailer.



Here's Judge Budget — warning you NOT to forget savings to be made on VIMMS. The regular 50c package is yours FREE when you invest in the $1.69 size . . . both boxes give you a total value of $2.25. Remember—VIMMS give you ALL six essential vitamins, in the very amounts the Government recommends and doctors endorse, TOGETHER with Calcium, Iron and Phosphorus. Don't risk vitamin-starvation! Take my advice—invest in VIMMS this week!

Hadassah Rally Will Open Fall, Winter Season

Three speakers will address a city-wide meeting of Chicago Junior Hadassah at 8 o'clock Wednesday night in the Hamilton hotel, 10 South Dearborn street, having for their common theme, "Youth on the World's Battlefronts." The patriotic rally will open the fall and winter season for Chicago members of the young women's Zionist organization.

William Clark, representing the British Office of War Information on the program, was graduated from Oxford university. Previous to his association with the British ministry, he was for two years on the history faculty of the University of Chicago. The second speaker will be Jaroslav Hnizdo, Czecho-Slovakian counsel general in Chicago. Mr. Hnizdo was for several years chief of the Czech legation in Shanghai.

The Zionist Organization of Chicago will be represented on the program by Nathan D. Kaplan, its president. Mr. Kaplan lived for several years in Palestine and was a member of the city council of Tel Aviv.

Boy Scouts of the Anshe Emet synagogue troop will post colors at the meeting.

• • •

Chicago Junior Hadassah is opening the season with Miss Lillian A. Schwartz as its president. As the theme of the first assembly indicates, the war effort is foremost in the minds of the young Hadassah women, and Miss Schwartz and her staff will direct the work of the organization this year almost entirely along war service lines. Early next month a membership drive will be launched under the direction of Miss Jean D. Turner, membership vice president.

The Chicago section international relations class of the National Council of Jewish Women will resume regular meetings at council headquarters, 185 North Wabash avenue, at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning with Mrs. Edward Du Broff presiding. A talk on Nazi Germany by Mrs. Jacob Lifschutz is scheduled.

• • •

Mrs. Samuel S. Hollender has called a board meeting of the Jewish Big Sisters for 10:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Covenant club. This being the first regular conference of the governing body of the beginning of the fall season, all committee chairmen are to present reports.

With Mrs. Hollander, officers serving the organization this year are: Mrs. Maurice J. Weiss, Mrs. Herbert Kohn, and Mrs. Philip Winston, vice presidents; Mrs. Lesle B. Levin, recording secretary; Mrs. Harold Shlensky, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Philip H. Kahn, financial secretary, and Miss Dorothy Hoffman, treasurer.

Chicago Tribune
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. Eland:

In the short period of seven years we have become recognized as one of the very best sources for executives, technical men, office, and skilled and unskilled factory workers.

We attribute this fortunate position in no small part to the fact that early in our work we discovered, after careful analysis of sources of supply, that the Daily and Sunday Tribune are the most productive media for our purposes.

This is how we have allocated our Chicago classified business since the first of the year:

| | % of Total Expenditure |
|---|---|
| Chicago Tribune | 93.7% |
| Paper B | 4.7% |
| Paper C | 1.6% |

Because of greatly increased requirements for skilled workers in Defense Industries, demands have been made on private employment industry which a few years ago we would have considered impossible to fill.

However, by advertising we have found it possible to meet the majority of these demands.

Appreciating the splendid cooperation you are giving us, we are,

Sincerely yours,

William Latham, President

WHEN A SUCCESSFUL firm in the highly competitive employment agency field gives one newspaper 93.7% of its entire advertising appropriation—there must be a reason.

And when that same want ad medium publishes more than twice as much help wanted and employment agency advertising linage as all other Chicago newspapers combined—there must also be a reason, and a very good one.

Is your business getting want ad results on a par with your competition?

Make your own checks and tests! You will conclude that Tribune want ads are the most effective and the most economical want ads you can buy.

One reason for their productivity is the Tribune's huge circulation, now over 1,000,000 daily and more than 1,200,000 Sunday. This is from 550,000 to 735,000 more total daily circulation than is delivered by other Chicago daily newspapers—and more than any two other Chicago daily newspapers combined. On Sundays the Tribune delivers from 305,000 to 820,000 more than delivered by other Chicago Sunday newspapers.

Because Tribune want ads command the largest audience in Chicago and the highest reader-confidence, they are the most effective for every purpose and can be a real help to you, no matter what your problem.

Cut down delays, dissatisfaction and lost work hours by calling SUPerior 0100—Want Ad-Viser. A want ad specialist will be glad to take your want ad.
